THANKSGIVING DAY FOOTBALL 2010

Skippers hoping for some home cooking

Cohasset players, including Jeff Cavanaro, Jamie Faber, Eric Bartucca, Terence Doonan, and Jake Kissick are all smiles after a win this season. They're gearing up for Thanksgiving Day against Hull.

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

A year ago, the Cohasset football team was on a roll heading into their Thanksgiving Day game at Hull.

The Skippers were the undefeated South Shore League champions, with a ticket to the playoffs.

They had Dana Valentine, who was averaging monster numbers all season, quarterback Jeff Cavanaro and Brendan Doonan all playing well with a very stingy defense.

Hull, meanwhile was 6-3 coming into the game and was playing like it was their Super Bowl.

The Pirates walked away with a 15-7 victory on their home turf, which gave the Skippers fits all morning.

"It wasn't raining, but it had been," Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw said. "We had the ball inside the 10-yard line three times and didn't score. The footing was tough. Dana changed his shoes at halftime, but the rest of the kids were playing on ice skates."

With the game at home this season, Afanasiw is hoping for a better result.

THIS WEEK'S HIGH 5 (WEEK 12)

Weymouth Girls D-1 Champions: Making history is never easy, and these girls did just that. By placing 5 girls in the top 17 in the heavy field in D-1 East, they proved the motto "you are only as good as your fifth runner". Bridget Jaklitsch (19:38) was 8th overall, followed by Morgan Fitzgibbon (19:58) in 9th, Jill Corcoran (20:12) in 13th, Molly Barker (20:17) in 16th, and Julie Tevenan (20:20) in 17th. The Wildcats hope that an All State title is next in the works, but they'll enjoy their school's first ever EMass title in the meantime.

Pembroke Boys D-4 Champions: Coach Greg Zopatti was asked several times on Saturday if his kids were just taking it easy. Those people watched Ryan Kelley (15:58), Wesley Gallagher (16:00), and Brendan Adams (16:01) cruise to the top 3 spots, but looking at the times, they were moving. Adding in strong top 20 performances from Joe Vercollone, Ryan Moran, John Valeri, and Jesse Fine, the Titans look poised for a 2nd straight DII All State title in Gardner.

Steve Sollowin Weymouth: Speaking of making it look easy, Sollowin just toyed with the DI field on Saturday, leading comfortably at the mile and gradually picking up his pace as the race went on. His 15:47 time was good enough for an 18-second win, and he looked relaxed enough to put a real challenge in against Shrewsbury's John Murray, the favorite to win DI All States next weekend.

Kevin Thomas Marshfield: By the time the DII boys race went off, the Franklin park course was a bit muddy and slow. That didn't seem to affect Thomas much, who rolled to a 3rd place finish in 16:13, just one spot ahead of teammate Joel Hubbard. Thomas doesn't get as much credit as his mid-distance star teammate Hubbard, but this tandem is among the best in the whole state and will look for a big day on Saturday.

Heather Connick/Chelsea Savage, Pembroke: While the Titan men deserve some credit, these ladies led their team to a 1st ever runner-up trophy in XC, taking 2nd behind Bishop Feehan. Connick was her steady self, taking 4th in 19:13, ahead of Savage by one place in 19:24. The 1-2 punch led the way for the Titans, but they needed solid races from Mary Scanlan, Gabby Malignano, and Jess Leary to seal the deal, and move on to next week in the process.

Not to be forgotten: Several other CNC area athletes will be traveling to Gardner for the All State meet in an unprecedented showing of talent form the area. Out of D-6, Archies' Erica Gagnon and Sarah Saccoach were both top 12 finsihers, Scituate's Katie Sheehan will make the trip from D-5, Julie McConville and Melissa Lumbert of Hingham will make the trip thanks to solid top 20 races, Kelsey Whitaker and Sophie Love move on from NDA, although the team narrowly missed the trip, and the Pembroke girls team takes its DIV second place ranking to Gardner. On the boys side, Nolan Parsley joins Sollowin from DI thanks to a 16th place finish in 16:46, Joel Hubbard, 4th in DII joins Thomas from Marshfield, Hingham's Mike McConville is in, as are Duxbury's threesome of Jason Angell, Greg Bray, and Jonathon McKinley, and DVI brings us a trip from John McKeon of Abington, who raced to 5th, Hanover's John Logan (19th), and the Norwell boys, who ran a terrific team race to garner 4th place.

MEET TO WATCH (WEEK 12)

All State Championship Meet (Gardner Municipal Golf Course, Saturday Nov. 20: The aforementioned group will toe the line at the season's ultimate meet, a 2.9 mile jaunt around a rolling hills cathedral known affectionately as Gardner. Weymouth's girls and Pembroke's boys will be hoping to take home some more hardware, as will Sollowin, Thomas, Hubbard, and countless other South Shore harriers. This is where you pray your season ends, and four local teams have that dream coming true.

had we not addressed it and adapted," she said. "We had to wake up and figure it out at the midway point of the season. It became very evident that we needed to focus on our goal of qualifying for post season at that moment or it wasn't going to happen."

The team started anew with a new purpose.

"After our regrouping we went on to finish our season winning five out of our last eight games which qualified us," Beal said. "I think that we were playing our best soccer at that point. We were playing confidently and disciplined. It could not have been better timing."

Cohasset made the tournament and picked up a favorable seed and bracket.

"We began the tournament having to play a preliminary game against Seekonk and we were fortunate enough to be able to play at home, which made it much more exciting," Beal said. "I was quite pleased with where sat in the brackets and I felt we had a great opportunity to kind of sneak up the ladder from there.

"We played tough soccer against Seekonk and the confidence on the field prevailed. That was Saturday evening, so logically we'd play Monday and we drew Nantucket, the number one seed. We tried for four solid days to try to get to Nantucket, but the weather and the seas were not cooperating. Although it's not that exhausting physically to sit and wait, mentally it was very difficult to maintain focus and stay on task. Each day, we didn't know if we were going or not."

The game did happen, after a long wait.

"Finally Friday we traveled, and yes Nantucket is beautiful, the boat was great, the weather was gorgeous but it was a long day," Beal said. "We began at 9a.m. and returned at 7 p.m. We spent all day traveling."

The game itself mirrored the regular season in some ways.

"Our game was a bit frightening in the beginning," Beal said. "We kicked off right at 2 p.m. We had to make the 4:35 p.m. boat home, and by the second minute of the game we were trailing 0-2. We needed to figure this out quickly or it was going to be an even longer day.

"Nantucket had two really quick strikers that they obviously planned their attack around and when we realized who and where they were we began to play a bit more efficiently. We actually got really lucky when their coach called a timeout and it allowed Christine and I to tag team our kids and get them back on track. Breaking the game for just one minute was the difference we needed."

After the long trip, Cohasset didn't want to go home on the losing side.

"We came out fighting, scoring three goals in 10 minutes and taking a one goal lead into halftime," Beal said. "Halftime was a bit more strategic and calmer than the timeout. We began the second half just as aggressively that we finished off the first and scored two more goals, sealing the deal. It was a great day as everyone who made the trip got some quality playing time. The boat trip home was a bit different from the one to, as the winds and seas had picked up and it was quite a bumpy ride back."

Cohasset had no rest.

"The next task jumped right up at us and we were going to Carver the next day at noon," Beal said. "I'm not making excuses but we were tired from Nantucket and it was tough to get the blood flowing. I think mentally we were exhausted from the week's roller coaster. Carver proved to be quicker that day."

In the big picture, Beal is happy.

"It's always hard to lose but looking back we had a great season considering how we started and how we got there," she said. "We really got lucky and we really worked hard. I am so very proud of these girls and their dedication and commitment to one another. It's for those reasons that I coach. A game is a game but watching these girls grow up into fine young adults is the real draw. I can't thank them enough."

A fantastic run

chances early on, the best when a rebounded shot came right to Cobin.

Cobin, who had won the previous two games with penalty kicks on Cohasset's final shots in the round, took the shot, but hit the crossbar and bounced down away from the net.

That turned out to be the best chance of the night.

Dover-Sherborn's Chris Crowley scored in the 20th minute off a beautiful cross pass that fooled Cohasset goalie Sam Richardson, and Cohasset wasn't able to get the tying goal.

Cohasset rallied in the second half after making some defensive changes – moving the center-half-back up, but still couldn't get the ball in the net.

Richardson had another immense night in net, making numerous highlight-reel saves.

The Skippers finished the season, including playoffs with a 16-4-2 record.

Saturday night, the No. 4 seeded Skippers got a game-winner from Drew Cobin on the game's final penalty kick, and Cohasset notched a 1-0 overtime, penalty kick victory that propelled them into Monday night's final against Dover-Sherborn.

The Skipper defense, led by Travers Craven, John McGoldrick and Joe Buckley stood tall once again, and Richardson was brilliant in net, notching his 13th shutout of the season.

After 100 minutes of shutout soccer, Richardson's presence in net, standing tall and waving his arms seemed to unnerve Spellman shooters, who looked to fire as far to the corners as possible.

They missed the first two shots, but Cohasset's Craven and Nick Brown had their shots stopped by Cardinal Spellman goalie Lenny Paoletta.

David Egitto scored for Spellman with a nice fakeout before Buckley came through for the second straight game to tie the shootout at one.

Nick Conrad followed with a goal to the high corner to give Spellman a 2-1 edge, but Anders Goetz answered with a blast to the high left corner to keep the contest tied.

Ryan Walsh looked to go high on his turn, but lifted the ball too much and the shot hit the crossbar as Richardson made sure it didn't bounce in, then Cobin blasted his shot for the winner, sparking a celebration.

"It was nice to see Drew hit two in a row," Cohasset coach Jim Willis said. "He sees his chance and wins it."

Cobin actually had to score two in Cohasset's win over Bourne in the quarterfinal after an apparent goal was called back.

As for Richardson, Willis said he is a factor.

"Just seeing him standing there makes them think," he said. "They might over think what they want to do."

The Skippers finished the season, including playoffs with a 16-4-2 record.

Willis said he's got a great group of younger players coming up, and he was more than pleased with his seniors this season.

"This is a great senior bunch," he said. "I've never seen a group grow up as much as these kids in a season."

Skippers hoping for some home cooking

"It's good to play at home," he said. "It's not necessarily the crowd, but it's the conditions. If it's windy there are the trees that give a little shelter and we know there won't be problems with footing."

Afanaswi said Hull has been brought up this season.

"Hull has been paramount all season long," he said. "At some point every week we've brought up Hull. We know we can't look past anyone. I don't think we have looked past anyone, and we won't be looking past Hull. I hope we play football the way we can and stay focused and locked on. If we do that, we should win."

Cohasset comes into the game with a 6-3 record, with road losses at Mashpee and Abington, along with one home loss to Rockland.

The Mashpee and Rockland losses were both by one point.

Abington beat the Skippers 30-8 on Friday night in Abington.

Hull comes into the game with a 3-6 mark.

Their wins have been against South Shore Voke, Norwell and Carver.

One thing Cohasset needs to do, according to Afanasiw is let Abington go.

"We dug ourselves a hole," he said about the Abington trip. "It was a carbon copy of Mashpee. We gave up two big plays in the first few minutes and the next thing you know we were down 14-0. We're trying to get ready for Hull. We gave them a couple of days off, did some film and conditioning. The feeling of the loss takes some time to get over. As we practice together, the more we get back to normal. The kids are excited to play."

Offensively this season, Cohasset has relied on a number of weapons, with Cavanaro holding things together.

"No matter how things go, Jeff Cavanaro never gets rattles," Afanasiw said. "He's a stabilizing force in the offensive huddle."

Defensively, Afanasiw said that Jake Kissick has been the force.

"Jake Kissick is the stalwart in the middle on defense," he said. "He continues to play hard no matter what the score is. He battled right to the end against Abington andMashpee."

The series is close, with Hull leading 12-10-1.

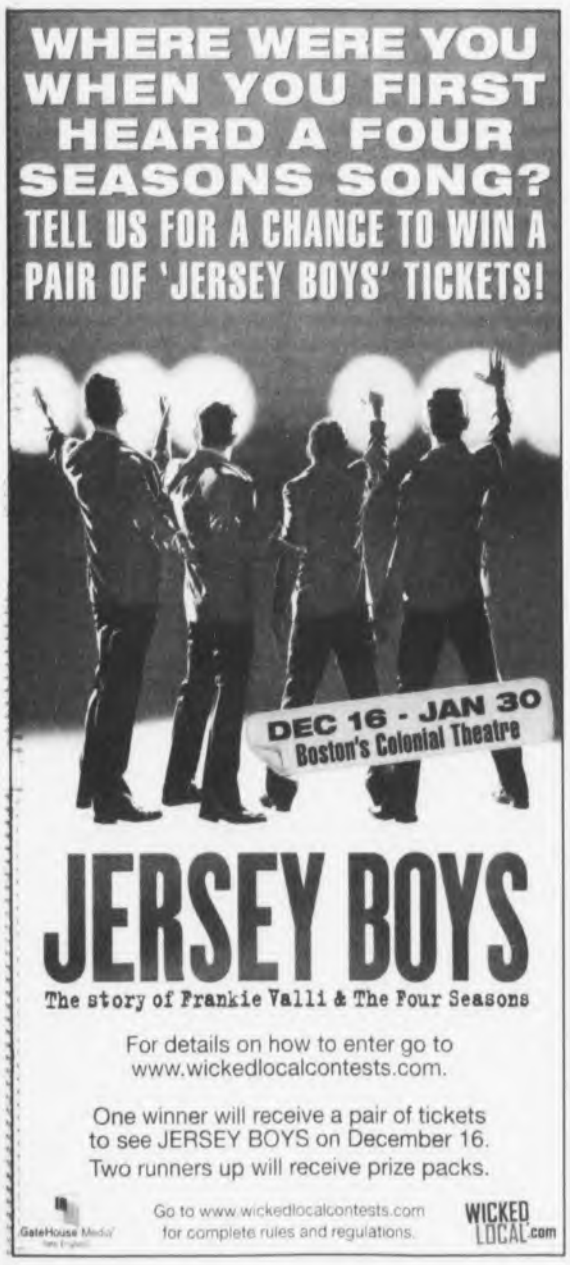
The Skippers have split the past two games, and won five of the last seven games.

Outside of a 14-14 tie in 1999, the closest game in the series was a 7-6 Skipper victory in 2003.

The most lopsided game was in 1997 when Hull closed out a series of six blowouts with a 50-6 win.

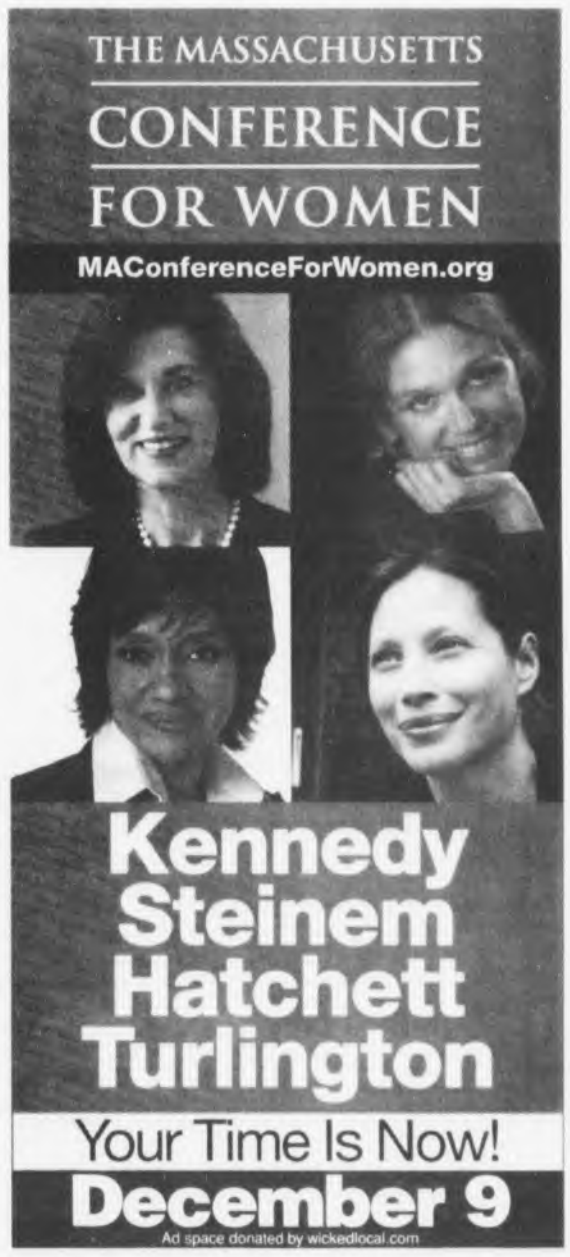
The Pirates won that six game stretch of the series by a combined score of 211-27.

At that time, the Pirates were a powerhouse, making the Super Bowl twice, winning in 1996.



Cohasset ended the futility with a 14-0 win in 1998.

More recently, Cohasset was a playoff team in 2001, 2003 and 2004 and 2009.



The halftime ceremonies will be special this year as the inaugural Cohasset Hall of Fame class will be introduced.

Tickets to the game are $7 for all and are available at the gate.

Game coverage will be in the Dec. 3 issue of the Cohasset Mariner or for same day coverage, visit www.wickedlocal.com/cohasset.

The Scituate-Cohasset Midget 8th Grade football team celebrates their Super Bowl victory on Sunday. The team has been together since second grade, have been to the Super Bowl and have won four straight Super Bowls.

YOUTH FOOTBALL

Truly Super

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

The Scituate-Cohasset Midget 8th Grade Sharks football team has a pretty long history together, and they added to their legacy on Sunday with a 16-14 win over Hingham in the Old Colony Youth Football League Super Bowl, for the group's fourth straight Super Bowl title under coach Frank Gaziano, who has coached the team when the kids were in third, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

The team has also been the the Super Bowl six straight years, with a tie and a loss in third and fourth grades.

Gaziano's son, Joseph is a tight end and middle linebacker for the squad.

One reason the team has done so well is consistency.

"Christian Brady has been our quarterback since third grade," Gaziano said. "His favorite target is Michael Schwartz. They've been together a long time. They're familiar with each other. Christian is very accurate."

Over the years, running backs have come and gone, but were led this year by Chris Bearce and Cole Kissick.

Kissick's brother Jake, a member of Cohasset's high school varsity football team has helped the team out.

"Jake's helped us out," Gaziano said. "He's a good kid."

In Gaziano's years coaching, the team is 39-5-3.

Interestingly enough, three of the five losses were this season, when the team faced injury troubles early, including the loss of linebacker/fullback Tim Gillis, who fractured an elbow in the second game.

The Sci-Coh's recovered however.

"When we lost our first two games and were sitting at 0-2 we were shellshocked," Gaziano said. "We had some injuries, so we went back to basics. I know it's cliché, but we went one game at a time and said don't panic.

I knew four teams make the playoffs and the way the league was, two losses could still get in. Once we're in we could play our best."

Defensively, Bearce led the charge at defensive end, with help from defensive end Deke Murphy and defensive lineman Tanios Abi-Saad.

Other members of the defense are linemen, Mike Coscia and Brian Cochran, linebackers Joey Gaziano, Shane Libby, Matt Froio, outside linebacker Jeff Porter, cornerbacks Kyle Midici and Tim Giuggio and safety Cole Kissick.

On the offensive line, which was a huge part of the team's success, players were tight ends Tucker Meehan, Cochran, Gaziano and Ryan Finneran, guards Fran Donovan and Patrick Rosen and center Patrick O'Brien.

While things have stayed similar, Gaziano has changed and added to the playbook, but kept the same philosophy.

"We've changed as they've gotten older," Gaziano said. "We adapt to what's age appropriate, but we've always been about solid defense, a strong running game and good play action."

The key to winning is the kids.

"They're very coachable," Gaziano said. "They're also good football players who listen and have bought into teamwork."

Assistant coaches are Mike Coscia, Scott Bearce, John O'Brien, Paul Schwartz and Mark Kissick.

The glory wasn't reserved for the JV side with the Sci-Coh's.

The 8th Grade junior varsity team had a great season, finishing 7-0.

There is no playoffs in the JV side.

"I told the kids when they were playing their last game to go undefeated that this was their Super Bowl," Gaziano said.

The junior varsity were running backs Colin Devin, Stephen Payne and Keegan Lee, defensive backs Robbie McDonald, Tyler Murphy and Ross Erler, linemen Stephen Iantosca, Nick Delmonico, Jack Hoffman, Paul Ryan, John Froio, P.J. Kent and Patrick Carolan and linebackers Hays Keniley and Ryan Black.

The team will be holding their banquet on Sunday night, and expect to have Cohasset High School coach Pete Afanasiw and Scituate High School coach Herb Devine speak to the kids, some who may be playing for them in the next few seasons.

South Coastal Men's Hockey League

By Mark Ducharme
CORRESPONDENT

The secret word in the South Coastal Men's Hockey League this week was "parity."

The league had four of their six games go to shoot outs and two of those games ended scoreless at the end of regulation.

One of the games that ended in regulation scoreless was the Bruins-Black Hawks Classics Div. battle. However, the Bruins won the shootout by a 3-2 score as Peter Fallon had the deciding goal in the shootout.

The Rangers and the Red Wings battled to a 4-4 tie at the end of regulation and neither team could score in the shoot out.

Tom Smith of Marshfield scored two goals, Jim O'Toole of Rockland and Joe O'Connell had a goal each for the Rangers.

Marhsfield's Mike Mullen had two goals and an assist and Ron DiCecca also of Marshfield had two goals.

The only Classics Div game that did not go to a shoot out was the Maple Leafs led by Jim Smith of Pembroke, who had two goals and an assist in their 4-2 win over the Canadiens. Mike Bartlett also of Pembroke had a goal and an assist and Jeff Gauthier added a goal.

Tim McCrystal of Marshfield and John MacLellan of Pembroke scored the goals for the Candiens.

The Crusaders and the Stingers battled to a scoreless tie and both teams went scoreless in the shoot in their Legends Div. game.

The league had four of their six games go to shoot outs and two of those games ended scoreless at the end of regulation.

Mike Verrochi scored the only goal in the shootout as the Whalers pulled out a 3-2 win over the Sharks. Paul Flagg scored a power play goal and Chuck Morrison of Marshfield scored for the Whalers in regulation, which ended in a 2-2 tie.

Jay Faherty had a goal and Jay Sloan of Marshfield had two assists in the game for the Sharks.

Mike Ryan scored two goals, Frank Elwood and John Thoms had a goal each as the Saints defeated the Toros for the time in three tries by a 4-1 score in the only Legends Div. game that was not decided by a shootout.

Paul Brinkman score the goal for the Toros in the first period.

Eleven-year-old Halle Pratt, a fifth grade student at Deer Hill, reads her winning Veterans Day essay during the Veterans Day Ceremony held at Veterans Memorial Park last Thursday (Nov. 11).

'We should honor a veteran'

By Halle Pratt

I am very proud that my grandfather and my uncle both fought for our country. The wars of their time needed their help and their strength.

Do you know what a Veteran is? It's ok if you don't because a lot of kids don't know what it is like to be a Veteran or live their life. A Veteran is a man or a woman who helps protect us. They sacrifice their lives for us. The Air Force, Army, Coast Guard, Marines and Navy, are the armed forces that all help to keep us safe. That is what a Veteran is to me.

A Veteran has many character traits. They are loyal to our country. They are brave beyond all others for having served in a war. They are always focused on the job they need to do, and are determined to win so that we may all live freely. Willing is what they are, they are willing to fight for our country, which makes them patriotic. And they are humble because when you ask a veteran if anything they do scares them or is hard, they will only reply that they would do it all again if they were asked. Most people just don't realize how amazing Veterans really are!

Why is it important to honor a Veteran? Without Veterans we might not have a beautiful town like Cohasset, or a school to go to each day. They do so much for us and we all need to care. Think about all the other places in the world where the sun doesn't really shine because the air is cloudy from bombs dropping or you don't hear birds singing because the guns shooting are too loud. I bet you wonder why we don't have that in the U.S. VETERANS, that's why. They do so much for us and we should consider that a gift! We should honor a Veteran.

I am very proud that my grandfather and my uncle both fought for our country. The wars of their time needed their help and their strength. They were both pilots in the Navy, and I know they did their very best to protect us. I honor and respect them, but no more than I do all the other men and women who fought and are fighting bravely. They protect us everyday, and we must not forget them. They allow us to be who we are today and everyday.

Halle Pratt is a fifth grader at Deer Hill School. Her essay on "What is a veteran?" was chosen among all her fellow classmates to be read at the Deer Hill Veterans Day ceremony and Cohasset's Veterans Day observances. Joseph Protrulis' winning essay was printed in last week's Mariner.

Powder Puff game is Wednesday!

LIFE AT CHS

NATALIE DIGNAN

Upperclassmen will be preparing throughout the week, so get ready juniors!

It's that time of year again… no, not Thanksgiving (close, though)… it's almost Powder Puff! Next Wednesday, 12:30 p.m., it's game time! Upperclassmen will be preparing throughout the week, so get ready juniors! And speaking of athletics (because Powder Puff is a real sport), congratulations to both the girls and boys' soccer teams for finishing an awesome season this week. Although the girls suffered a 5-0 loss in Carver on Saturday, they put in a valiant effort against some outrageous elbows. The boys' lost the Division 3 South Sectional Finals against Dover-Sherborn in Taunton on Tuesday. CHS fans had a great showing and more than a few witnesses to the supposed "goal", which was pretty blatantly out of bounds. As one CHS student artfully put it, maybe the refs will have a chance to glance at the rulebook during halftime? In any case, the boys' went further than any CHS soccer team in at least 20 years and still has some upcoming talent for next season.

But what else can you look forward to this holiday season besides some fierce flag football? To kick off this week, a half-day on Wednesday means that the entire Middle School will be enjoying the attractions of downtown Cohasset, including Tedeschi's and the Deli. This Thursday, the field hockey team will be playing the football team in a "friendly" game of field hockey on Alumni Field at 4:30 p.m. Be sure not to miss possibly the most exciting sporting even to be held on the turf as of yet.

The long-awaited "Wiz" will be performed at CHS Dec. 3rd, 4th, and 5th.

And with grades closing this week, students may be asking themselves what they could possibly do to raise their grades in the last 15 minutes of the quarter. Others may choose to skillfully intercept their report cards before they reach home. Both are viable options, although whiteout is recommended if the later route is taken.

But, really, the most pressing end-of-the-quarter class will always be ceramics, because someone really did steal that coil pot/chalice/ashtray you made and why did your box turn white again after you glazed it? And a warning to inexperienced ceramics students: painting everything Sassy Orange will not guarantee you a good grade, but it can only help right?

On that note, just a reminder that CHS volunteers from the National Honor Society run Homework Night for younger students at the Paul Pratt Library in the Discovery Room every Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. Free pizza at the end of a Tuesday homework session always seems to ease the pain of studying, so come stop by! That's all for this week, have a great weekend!

FOCUS ON HIGHER EDUCATION

COLLEGE MATTERS

Is going back to school the right move for you?

Define your goals and plan ahead before furthering your education

By Susan Kennedy
GATEHOUSE NEWS MEDIA

Going back to school in midlife can be a daunting prospect. After many years away from the classroom, adult learners may be apprehensive about not fitting in, have outdated study skills or may be concerned about balancing the demands of school and family.

Yet, the recent recession has forced many people to consider heading back to the classroom as a necessary step toward finding a job.

For the unemployed, closing a gap in skills may be the best chance to land a new job. For employed workers, returning to school may be a way to advance within the company or to provide some protection against potential downsizing.

Continuing education is not only for those who are concerned about their employment status. Many people who consider themselves lifelong learners return to school as a means of staying active and engaged, both mentally and socially.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, more than a half-million college students are over the age of 50, and that number is projected to increase as baby boomers approach retirement.

With a near limitless number of courses and programs available, how do adults begin their academic journey?

First, define your educational goals. Are you going back to school to get a better degree or job? You may be bored and looking for a way out of your current situation. Perhaps securing that degree is something you never got around to finishing and the time is now.

If you are going back to school to close a gap in skills, make sure they are the right skills for the job you want. Even more important: Make sure the local job market will continue to support those jobs in the future.

Clear educational goals can not only help you select the right program but can also provide the motivation you will need to complete your studies.

Next, take inventory of your accomplishments, including both academic and real-world experiences. Even if these experiences don't seem to be applicable to your course of study, they might count as elective credits. Realizing where you have already achieved can also be a great confidence builder.

Once you have defined your educational goals, you need to determine the program of study. A certificate program signifies the completion of a stipulated number of courses and is generally required for vocational or technical training. An associate's degree, which is offered by community and junior colleges, is defined as the completion of two years' of full-time academic study, and can be done on a part-time basis. A bachelor's degree is four years' of full-time study or 120 semester credit hours, while a master's degree is two years of advanced study beyond the undergraduate level.

There are also lifelong learning centers that offer ongoing courses and study groups that may be not-for-credit but can greatly enhance the love of learning without the pressure of tests and grades.

Consider which schools best match what you want to achieve. Depending on your goal, you might have a multitude of options or very few. Keep in mind that you may be able to get your degree or certificate online. Visiting schools and talking with the admissions department can help make sure you can accomplish your goals.

Some criteria to consider:

* The college or program accepts transfer credits and/or gives credit for life experience.
* Courses are presented at acceptable times: nights, weekends, distance learning.
* Professors are available after normal class hours.
* Campus and academic advising schedules accommodate adult students.
* The college offers academic support and resources for adult learners.

Next, you need to figure out how you will pay for your education. Student loans are only one way to pay for continuing education. There may also be grants available through workforce development programs or through the school itself. A visit to the local state unemployment office or a school's financial aid office may be time well spent. In addition, many employers offer tuition reimbursement for job-related continuing education.

Finally, create an academic plan detailing how you will manage your existing commitments while you are in school. How many courses can you take and when? Will you work part-time while you are going to school? Can you study at work during a slow time? Who will be your support network?

Having people supporting your goals can be motivating. Child care needs also must be addressed. Be sure to write your plan down and revisit it periodically to stay on track.

Returning to school, like many decisions made after the predetermined path of youth, may at first seem like a step backwards. It's a lot of time, work and, possibly, money. As an adult, you've come to realize that life is full of numerous turns and surprises, and education may be the ticket you need to move forward to a better job or more enriched life.

BU's Metropolitan College offers flexibility, convenience

BOSTON UNIVERSITY

It's no surprise that part-time education provides necessary flexibility and convenience for busy professionals. But Boston University's Metropolitan College does much more than that. The college's mission to deliver outstanding programs to career-minded students has become an impetus for developing new learning formats and for designing programs that are uniquely relevant to the dynamic developments of today's work environment.

A new kind of student

Because students at BU's Metropolitan College arrive with current knowledge of the issues at stake in their fields, they demand faculty and curricula that can provide insights, strategies and methodologies not only for existing challenges, but for emerging trends as well. Because they study in the hours before or after work, during business travel and alongside their family commitments, they require a level of technological savvy far beyond what most universities are able to provide in the traditional classroom. Because they intend to apply what they learn, these students seek, and insist upon, academic rigor.

BU's Metropolitan College students, in other words, continuously push the college staff to be better educators. Part-time learning drives innovation that redefines what education can be. BU proudly offers more than 60 part-time undergraduate and graduate programs that challenge all of academia to raise the bar at the level of both program delivery and content.

New learning formats

At BU's Metropolitan College e-Live programs are a case in point. This blended learning format combines the best of online and on-campus learning, extending accessibility to Boston University through online programming while also conserving the meaningful face-to-face interaction of the classroom. E-Live programs meet on campus three to four times a semester, as students simultaneously progress through lectures and coursework online.

Bristol Community College class deals in the tricks of the casino trade

By Grant Welker
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

FALL RIVER – It was the very rare – or unheard-of – instance in which the blackjack dealer was offering advice to the players in front of him.

But the dealer was Bristol Community College instructor Paul Robillard and the players were students in his Introduction to Casino Management course. Robillard had to demonstrate how blackjack and poker – two of the most popular casino games – work.

Being a card dealer might look simple enough to the untrained eye, but Robillard, who dealt games at Foxwoods for four years, demonstrated otherwise.

"You even pick up the cards in a certain order," he told the five BCC students who attended a hands-on class recently at Down to the Felt Club on Father DeValles Boulevard. There is a reason for the way everything is done.

"Turn your hand the other way," Robillard said. "Slide the card out."

"Put the card like this."

"Don't touch that."

"You gave her too much money."

"Pull out the card with your left hand and transfer it to your right. There you go."

Card dealing lends itself best to hands-on learning, but the casino management course also tackles the social benefits and ills associated with casinos, the politics behind it (including the bill in the Massachusetts Legislature that died at an impasse earlier this year), licensing and other aspects that go into casino operations.

"Managing a casino is like managing any other business," Robillard said.

BCC's new associate's degree program in casino operations is part of the college's business administration department, and includes courses on hotel management and operations, casino loss prevention, and gaming and social policy, which deals with social issues caused by gambling.

The program deals with the "front" of the casino, like hotel management, and "back" operations, like gaming, said Cecil Leonard, the chairman of the business administration department.

The courses are taught by experienced tourism or casino industry professionals like Robillard, the college says. More general courses required for the degree include principles of macroeconomics, writing composition, principles of accounting and public speaking.

The program deals with the "front" of the casino, like hotel management, and "back" operations, like gaming, said Cecil Leonard, the chairman of the business administration department. The only other similar program Leonard said he's aware of is in Las Vegas.

BCC stressed that its casino program is not meant to teach students how to gamble. Down to the Felt Club, which holds courses and tournaments, made a similar point about its operations to the City Council earlier this year when seeking a business permit.

The casino management course has attracted both students who see themselves working in casinos one day and those who don't.

Sarah Pinheiro of Dartmouth, a marketing major, said she viewed the course as more of a fun elective. Matthew Redfern of Somerset said he likes to gamble, so he figured he'd do well in the course. Nina Fraser of Bridgewater wants to be an MGM casino card dealer.

Sometimes, learning the right habits were difficult for the students. "There's just no pleasing you," Fall River's Lori Lesieur said, with both a frustrated and lighthearted tone, to Robillard after one particular critique.

"You spend a lot of time in blackjack school just breaking habits," Robillard said later. Before becoming a dealer at Foxwoods, he went through 160 hours of blackjack training and another 160 hours for poker.

When so much money is involved, mistakes must be kept to an absolute minimum. During the class, Robillard critiqued even the dealer's moves that could make it difficult for security watching on camera to follow along with the action. "Remember, you got cameras watching you."

GIMME SHELTER

Quinn and Quenten are currently cuddly, playful and adoptable kittens.

Baby brothers need together home

This week, Hull Seaside Animal Rescue features Quinn and Quenten, two adorable male kittens. They were rescued from the wild and are currently domesticated and cuddly, playful adoptable kittens. They are white with black. We would like them to go together as the smaller of the two is a bit on the shy side and would like to continue to have the company of his bigger brother. They are currently being fostered by one of our wonderful foster moms.

If you'd like to meet these little munchkins, we have open hours at the shelter on Saturday from 2 to 3 p.m. and Monday from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. If these hours aren't convenient, you can call Shirl at 781-925-3380 to arrange an appointment. For other matters, call Mary at 781-925-3121 or if you're 16 or older and would like to volunteer, call Nancy at 781-925-3638. We're located at 50 L St., Hull; our mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal, Rescue, P.O. Box 787, Hull, MA 02045.

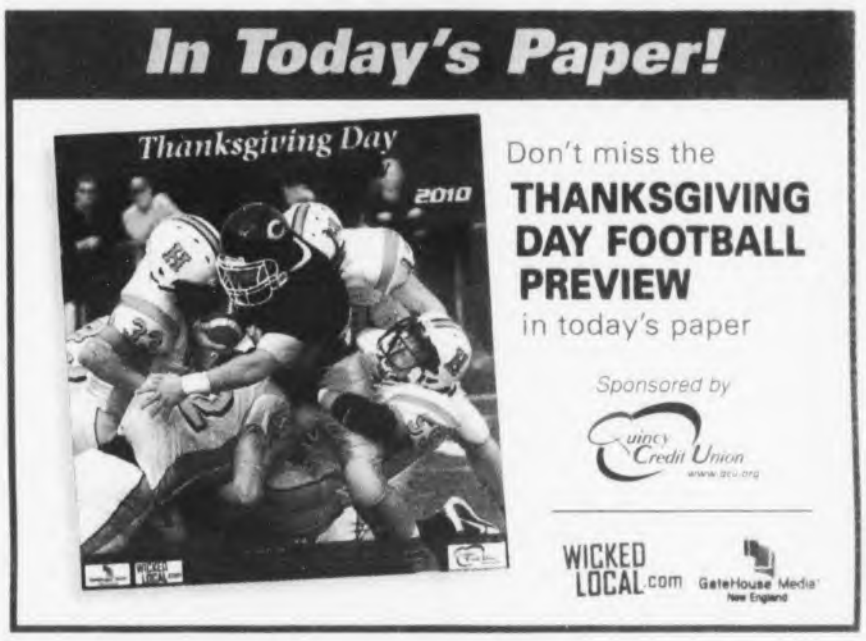
If you'd like to meet these little munchkins, we have open hours at the shelter on Saturday from 2 to 3 p.m. and Monday from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

Hope to see you at Hull Holiday Showcase on Saturday, Nov. 20, at Hull High School from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Hull Seaside Animal Rescue will be there along with many other vendors. HSAR will have an "opportunity drawing" for a bountiful cat and dog basket, filled with appropriate goodies.

Special music performance at Beechwood Congregational

Beechwood Congregational Church, 51 Church St., will host aspiring Christian musician Drew D'Agostino on Sunday, Dec. 5, during the 10 a.m. service. Drew is a singer/songwriter from Long Island, New York, and he has recorded 20 Christian songs and has written over 100. He has performed in the past with Casting Crowns and is currently studying business at Northeastern University while performing at various churches in the New York/New England area.

Drew will perform at Beechwood during regular church service at 10 a.m. followed by fellowship in Merritt Hall. See www.beechwoodcc.org for more details.



Holly-Day Fair

The Holly-Day Fair at Holly Hill Farm is taking place on Saturday Dec. 4 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the heated greenhouse located at the farm on 236 Jerusalem Road.

This fair will feature many fine artisans from the local area as well as fun activities for children, delicious food, live music, plus the beautiful setting of an historic New England farm. There will be jewelry, homemade jams, organic skin care products, hand-carved birds and wooden toys, pottery, soaps and candles, infant and baby clothing, stained glass, hand-knitted items, handmade books, artisanal chocolates, rustic furniture made from wood found on the farm, and more.

Admission is free and all artisans will be donating a portion of sales to the Friends of Holly Hill Farm, the non-profit that uses the farm as its outdoor classroom. For more: visit www.hollyhillfarm.org or call 781-383-6565.

Make note of novelty lighter ban

Toy-like or novelty lighters have been responsible for injuries, deaths, and accidents across the nation.

Cohasset Fire Chief Robert Silvia and State Fire Marshal Stephen D. Coan are alerting the public and retailers that the new ban on novelty lighters took effect in Massachusetts this week. Governor Patrick signed legislation passed this summer that prohibits the sale of lighters, which due to their physical or audio features make them appealing or attractive to a child under age 10. Coan said, "Massachusetts is the 14th state to ban these lighters that by their very nature are attractive to children." Chief Silvia said, "When adults cannot tell the difference between these lighters and toys, how can we expect a young child to do so?"

Toy-like or novelty lighters have been responsible for injuries, deaths, and accidents across the nation. Children are attracted to novelty lighters because they look like toys. Many of these lighters look like animals, miniature cars, mobile phones, cameras, fishing lures, stacks of coins, markers, and doll accessories. One lighter is nearly identical to the popular rubber ducky bath toy — it even quacks! There are also toy-like and novelty lighters that look like tools such as tape measures, drills, hammers, and paintbrushes. Ironically, there are even lighters that mimic a Dalmatian donning a fire helmet, a red fire truck, or fire extinguishers.

Alerting Retailers – "As part of our outreach to publicize this new law, we are distributing posters to retailers," said Chief Silvia, "Even though suppliers may still offer these items for sale to retailers, stores must not offer for sale, sell, exchange, give away, or stock them in a Massachusetts establishment." For questions, contact the Cohasset Fire Department Fire Prevention Office at 781-383-0616 or the Office of the State Fire Marshal at 978-567-3712.

The law contains an exemption for collectible lighters made before 1980, certain disposable lighters with artwork, and for interstate transport of lighters not designed to be sold in Massachusetts.

Children Using Fire – Coan said, "The national child resistant lighter standard has gone a long way towards preventing fires started by very young children. This is the next logical step to keep small children and their families safe from fire." A child using fire or fire tools is a serious problem in Massachusetts, and across the nation. Juvenile fire-setting intervention programs have found that only one in every ten child-set fires comes to the attention of the fire department, so the reported fire incidents are considered the tip of the ice berg.

Last Year Children Caused 158 Fires – In 2009, children using matches, lighters and other heat sources, caused 158 reported fires, two civilian injuries, eight fire service injuries and an estimated dollar loss of $887,306.

Child-set Fires Caused 4 Deaths in 2008 – In 2008, there were two fatal fires started by juveniles, one in Holyoke and one in Haverhill. These fires took the lives of four people: three children under seven and one disabled adult.

Match and Lighter Safety Tips

- Adults must keep all matches and lighters out of the hands of children. Store them in a high cabinet, preferably a locked one.
- Keep matches and lighters on your person or locked up. Don't leave them in a purse or on a table where children can easily access them when no one's looking.
- Buy child-resistant lighters, but keep in mind they are not child proof.
- Never allow children to play with lighters. Children as young as two years old have been able to operate lighters and start fires with them.
- Teach children not to touch matches and lighters and tell a grown-up when they see them lying around. When a child does so, praise them and then move the matches and lighters to a secure spot.

For more information, go to the United States Fire Administration's website on novelty lighters, or to see some in action, see The Idea Bank's Public Service Announcement on banning novelty lighters.

Working Smoke Alarms and Home Escape Plans

Chief Silvia said, "A working smoke alarm is your family's first line of defense in a fire. Coupled with a home escape plan you practice together, they can increase your chances of safely escaping a fire."

Novelty Lighters: Important Retailer Information

A message from the Department of Fire Services and State Fire Marshal, Stephen D. Coan

On Aug. 9, 2010, Governor Patrick signed into law "An Act Prohibiting the Use of Novelty Lighters." This law becomes effective Nov. 7, 2010. On or after that date, this new law prohibits the manufacture, sale, exchange, storage or transportation of any novelty lighter throughout the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Violations of the statute are punishable by fines not less than $500 nor more than $1,000 or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or both. See copy of law attached.

Whether being confused for toys or played with for their likeness to toys, lighters such as those below, have been the cause of many tragic fires. Below are examples of various types of available novelty lighters. This is NOT all-inclusive.

Beware! Lighters of this nature are not yet illegal nationwide. Even though your supplier may still offer these items for sale, you must not offer for sale, sell, exchange, give away, or stock them in your establishment. Questions? Contact the State Fire Marshal's Office at 978-567-3712.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

The 4th floor artists will hold their 19th annual Open Studios located in two neighboring buildings from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 21 and 22. The group has grown since last year to approximately 70 artists. The 4th Floor Artists are located in the ET Wright Building, 379 Liberty St., Rockland and in the Sandpaper Factory, 83 E. Water St. Rockland. In each building you will be able to see artists working and demonstrating in their studios, see displays of their work, do a little holiday shopping, and enjoy refreshments. Maps and artists lists will be available in each building. The artists include painters, printmakers, sculptors, photographers, jewelers, graphic designers, interior designers, architects, fiber artists, woodworkers, potters, and performing arts. The "Off the Wall" event will be repeated this year. An exhibit featuring small original works by the artists for a nominal fee of $25. Ten percent of the proceeds of the fundraiser will go to "Rockland Holiday Magic" a local group helping needy families at Christmas. Free admission and free parking at both locations. The ET Wright building is handicapped accessible.

Events and tents enhance Thanksgiving celebration in America's Hometown

Thanksgiving Celebration party to be bigger than ever

By Emily Clark
ECLARK@CNC.COM

America's Hometown Thanksgiving Celebration is a whole lot more than a parade.

Executive Director Olly deMacedo is anxious to spread the word that the parade is but one piece of a larger picture that includes gala events, great food and music, plus entertainment and education for kids, adults and entire families.

America's Hometown Thanksgiving Celebration Director of Event Operations Diana Scolponeti has been busy planning for everything from food festivals and kids' entertainment to educational pavilions and chef challenges.

"We really want to drive people to the waterfront once the parade is over," deMacedo said. "There's so much to do." Many of the celebration's events will be held along the waterfront on Water Street.

Flags swirl as the Connecticut Alumni Drum and Bugle Corps performs during last year's reunion concert last at Memorial Hall.

Friday, Nov. 19

PIDC Free Patriotic Concert featuring Tops in Blue at Memorial Hall, 7 to 10 p.m.

Saturday, Nov. 20

10:30 a.m. America's Hometown Thanksgiving Day Parade

11 a.m. to 4 p.m.: Arts and crafts fair – free

The New England Food Festival - $10 adults, children attend for free.

"This year we have 25 local and regional restaurants participating," Scolponeti said of the food festival. "The categories are soups, chowders, party food and deserts. We have Le Cordon Bleu College of Culinary Arts food demonstrations during the day, holiday recipe demonstrations and different showcases," Scolponeti said.

The Pawtuxet Pavilion – free

This educational tent, manned by Wampanoags, will offer the story of Thanksgiving in the New World. Plimoth Plantation is hosting this event, which busts many myths about America's first Thanksgiving. The Native Americans on hand will answer questions and tell the story of the holiday's origins.

Lindsey's of Buzzards Bay won first place at last year's New England Food Festival, one of many America's Hometown Thanksgiving Celebration events returning to the Plymouth waterfront this year.

Kids' tent – free

This tent will offer a mix of historical, educational and contemporary arts, crafts and activities, along with cranberry and Lexington Green exhibits. Kids will have a chance to make cornhusk dolls and other homespun crafts, as Ocean Spray representatives talk about cranberry farming.

Drum and Bugle Corps Reunion Concert at Memorial Hall – 6:30 to 10:30 p.m. Doors open at 5:45 p.m. for general seating. Admission price: $27. Tickets may be purchased the following ways: By going on line at www.memorialhall.com; by phoning Memorial Hall (9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays) at 508-747-1622 or Memorial Hall ticket Office -Tuesdays or Thursdays noon to 3 p.m. The 2010 Participants are: Blessed Sacrament Golden Knights, Newark, N.J.; Crusader Sr. Drum & Bugle Corps, Boston; Hanover Lancers, Hanover, Pa.; Hawthorne Caballeros, Hawthorne, N.J.; Holy Family Defenders, Rockland; Park City Pride, Bridgeport, Conn.; Reilly Raiders, Willow Grove, Pa.; St. Kevins Emerald Knights, Dorchester.

Sunday, Nov. 21

11 a.m. to 4 p.m.: Craft fair free

Blue Grass festival – free

Edible South Shore Harvest Market – free

"Edible South Shore works with Plymouth's Farmers' Markets and Plymouth Local Food to bring in 25 different farmers and food makers," Scolponeti said. "People can shop for their holiday meal."

In addition to fresh food, this event will feature a chef's challenge similar to those featured on cable TV's Food Network, as well as fruit carving and demos on how to set a holiday table.

Pawtuxet Pavilion – free

Big Ryan's Tall Tales – this engaging entertainer will tell stories about giving thanks. Time to be announced.

Turkey dinner tent – $25 for turkey dinner and a Mayflower II tour; $18 for just the turkey dinner. Two sittings are available at noon and 2 p.m.

Plimoth Plantation will host anyone craving a little pre-Thanksgiving turkey, with all the fixings.

Scolponeti urged people to keep their eyes pealed on America's Hometown Thanksgiving Celebration's Web site www. usathanksgiving.com for updates on times as they become available.

DeMacedo reminded the community that America's Hometown Thanksgiving Celebration can't host this weekend of fun and education without monetary donations. To make an online donation, visit www.usathanksgiving.com or send a check, payable to America's Hometown Thanksgiving Celebration, to 10 Cordage Park Circle, Plymouth, MA 02360.

Company Theatre announces its 2011 theatre season

Tickets on sale Saturday, Nov. 20 at an Open House, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The award-winning Company Theatre has announced a 2011 season featuring the Broadway sensations Sophisticated Ladies, Singin' in the Rain and Hairspray.

Tickets go on sale Saturday, Nov. 20 in-person only at the Open House from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; and by phone and online on Monday, Nov. 22 at 11 a.m.

Opening the exciting 2011 season is a national tour of "Sophisticated Ladies" (Feb. 16-20). This upbeat musical pays homage to the jazzy sounds of Duke Ellington, with a high-kickin' cast backed by a swinging band. Tickets are $32.

One of the greatest film musicals of all time takes to the stage with the dance-crazy "Singin' In The Rain" (March 18 to April 10). You won't want to miss this legendary show, complete with a rain storm on stage! Tickets $33-$35. The Company Theatre is very excited to bring to its stage the Broadway blockbuster "Hairspray" (July 29-Aug. 21). It's 1962 and plus-sized Tracy is turning Baltimore on its ear with her high-energy personality. You can try if you want, but "You Can't Stop The Beat." Tickets $33-$35.

For the fall season, The Company Theatre will present the thriller Dr. Jekyll & Mr. Hyde (Oct. 7-Oct. 23). This brilliant reworking of the Robert Louis Stevenson literary classic will have audience on the edge of their seats. Tickets are priced at $22-$24. The 2011 season will wrap up with the South Shore holiday favorite, "A Christmas Carol" (Nov. 25-Dec. 18). Tickets are $32-$34.

The Company Theatre box-office is located at 30 Accord Park in Norwell. The phone number is 781-871-2787, and the website is www.companytheatre.com. Tickets are now on sale for The Company Theatre's 2011 Concert Season, featuring Absolute Gold: A Tribute to ABBA (Jan. 14-15), An Evening with Lucille Ball (Jan. 28-30), The Magic of Motown (Feb. 4-5), 2U: The Ultimate Tribute to U2 (Feb 12), Gospel Music Celebration (Feb. 13), Bubblemania (Feb. 23), The Irish Descendants (Feb. 25-26), The Rat Pack Returns! (May 7).

Town spending freeze in place

Cohasset could be facing $1million deficit this fiscal year

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Interim Town Manager Steve Lombard has ordered a spending freeze across all town departments as of Tuesday morning. The effort is a response to circumstances uncovered during water and sewer audits, which are currently underway.

Lombard said the town is scheduled to bond $985,000 of water department related expenses in early December. However, through the audit, it has been discovered some of the accounting on these bond issues included ordinary operational expense items.

What that means is those operational expenses — and it is unclear at this time how much of it is operational expenses, Lombard said — have to be paid for through the operational budget. The amount, which could be as high as $1 million, represents a deficit the town and the water department did not plan for in the current year's budget.

Local dog makes good

Tater, the brown Newfoundland, enjoys the spotlight

By Nancy White

His looks are undeniably handsome. His personality is charming. Everywhere he goes people stop what they are doing to take a look and, if he is lucky, say hello.

Tater is a four-year-old, 145-pound brown Newfoundland dog.

Ever since he was a ball of brown puppy fur he has drawn attention to himself just by being him.

"He is a big brown loveable teddy bear," said owner John Flores of Beechwood St. Over the past four years Tater has not only gained attention from passersby, but also various media outlets.

Although much of his chances at the spotlight have been entirely coincidental, there's no denying his star power.

A puppy training class in Hingham that happened to be covered by a photographer with the Hingham Journal led Tater to the front page of a November 2006 issue.

In 2009, he stumbled across the filming of an Animal Planet dog training show at Stoddard's Neck in Hingham. They asked Flores if Tater could be in the shot. Of course, he said yes. It was a walk-on role, but everyone has to start somewhere.

"When the show finally premiered it was one of those things that if you blinked you missed him," Flores said with a laugh. "But, it was fun to see him on the screen."

Next up was a magazine spread of sorts. Dog Fancy was running a cutest puppy contest. Flores submitted a puppy photo and it received an honorable mention. The photo (on this page) features Tater with a broken planter on his head. The photo, which appeared in the April 2010 issue, got a half page of prime magazine real estate.

"We were so surprised (that it was so prominently featured). Obviously we had to run out and by more copies," Flores said.

Then, most recently, a trip to a pet store. Unleashed by Petco, at Hingham Shipyard earned Tater a spot as the national "Pet of the Month" for the Unleashed chain. He is featured on top right hand corner of the Unleashed website

Curtain to rise on 'The Wiz'

Production is the last for Mr. Marks

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

When the final curtain falls on Cohasset High's all school musical "The Wiz" next weekend, it will be a bittersweet moment for teacher and musical director Bryan Marks.

For 34 years, the chorus teacher has produced and directed countless musicals, taught hundreds of students the art of singing, and he fondly remembers all of it. Marks will not officially retire until spring 2012, but because the high school musicals are produced every other year "The Wiz" will be his last hoorah.

"We have a broad base of talent this year. We have a lot of kids who sing well and act well...so we picked a show that suits the talent," Marks said of the more ensemble-driven musical.

"The musical has a good upbeat nature, a good opportunity for dance and the kids are excited about it," Marks said. "The theme is to believe in yourself and that's a pretty wonderful theme to have."

"The Wiz" will have two evening performances at 7:30p.m. Friday, Dec. 3 and Saturday, Dec. 4 and a matinee on Sunday, Dec. 5 at 2:30p.m.

Even though this is his last production as musical director Marks doesn't see a need to go out with a "big bang" with an over the top production. To him his career has been a journey full of good memories.

"The Wiz" will be longtime Cohasset High School music teacher Bryan Marks' last musical that he will direct at CHS. Marks is retiring in 2012, but the musicals are produced every other year.

Cohasset Mariner 'drop box'

The Cohasset Mariner has a "drop box" and pickup location at Tedeschi's in the village. The drop box is on the counter in the front window around the corner to the left after you enter the front door.

The Mariner picks up at 8 a.m. on Mondays and Tuesdays. The drop box can be used to drop off glossy photographs, letters, flyers or other editorial copy.

Jingle Bell Walk today (Friday)

South Shore Community Center invites one and all to the 16th annual Jingle Bell Walk. Santa, Mrs. Claus, the elves, Rudolph and Frosty will arrive by boat at Cohasset Harbor at 2 p.m., on Friday, Nov. 26. All gathered will follow Santa as he is brought to the Center by a horse-drawn wagon.

Weather permitting there will be hayrides around the Cohasset Common and the lighting of the Christmas tree to celebrate the start of the holiday season. In the event of rain, Santa will arrive at the gym at 2 p.m.

Holbrook woman faces OUI charge after accident

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

The women had been headed north on Route 3A (toward Hingham) when their 2003 Chevrolet Impala careened off the road and into the woods.

At 5:01 a.m. on Sunday (Nov. 21), police received a call about two women, who were on the side of Route 3A by the train station, flagging down cars. Police arrived and found their vehicle way in the woods. The women had been headed north on Route 3A (toward Hingham) when their 2003 Chevrolet Impala careened off the road and into the woods. In conversation with the driver, a 22-year-old Holbrook woman, and the passenger, a 23-year-old Braintree woman, it was determined they had been drinking at a party in Scituate, police said. Both women were transported to the hospital with non-life-threatening injuries from the accident.

The Holbrook woman, who had been driving, is being summonsed to court to face charges of operating under the influence of alcohol and failure to stay in marked lanes. The Impala was totaled, police said.

Deer struck

At 1:28 a.m. on Saturday (Nov. 20), police responded to an accident on King Street. A 60-year-old Pembroke woman, driving a 1998 BMW, called 9-1-1 after hitting a deer near USA Fitness. The deer ran from the woods in front of the car, police said.

There was substantial damage to the BMW, which had to be towed, police said. The Pembroke woman did not have any apparent injuries. A passer-by picked up the deer, which was killed in the accident, police said.

Lawn vandalism

A 52-year-old Linden Drive woman reported on Monday morning (Nov. 15) that someone ran over her lawn the previous night. Police said there were two circular tire paths cut into the grass. There are no suspects at this time.

Being followed

The father of a 34-year-old woman called police at 6:23 p.m. on Monday (Nov. 15) to report that his daughter was being followed from Scituate into Cohasset. He relayed to her that police advised her to drive to the station. She pulled in and a police cruiser was waiting. The vehicle behind her that was being operated by a 57-year-old Scituate man continued down Elm Street. Police stopped the man and as it turned out, he was following her. Police said at some point, the woman had jammed on her brakes and the man in the car behind her thought she was "messing with him." Police straightened him out and the matter was resolved. There was no crime at that point, police said.

Unregistered, uninsured

A 32-year-old Hingham man, who was operating a 1999 Toyota Corolla, is being summonsed to court for operating with a suspended registration and without insurance following a traffic stop at 9:07 p.m. on Monday (Nov. 15) at CJC Highway and Beechwood Street. An officer monitoring traffic saw the car go by with an expired registration sticker on the license plate. The officer stopped the car an as it turned out the registration had been suspended and the vehicle, which was towed, was uninsured.

Expired licenses

At 5:11 p.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 16), an officer stopped a 1998 Lexus four-door, being operated by a 46-year-old Hingham man, on Beechwood Street for speeding. As it turned out the operator's license had expired and he is being summonsed to court for operating a motor vehicle without being properly licensed and for speeding. He was also cited for defective equipment (taillight out). He asked police if he could call a friend to come and take possession of his car so it would not have to be towed. A 45-year-old Cohasset woman arrived, but a check of her license revealed that her license had also expired. She was also issued a criminal citation to appear in court for operating without being properly licensed. Her passenger was able to drive her car but the Lexus had to be towed after all.

Suspended license

• An officer monitoring traffic around 7 a.m. on Sunday (Nov. 21) at CJC Highway and Beechwood Street recognized a 17-year-old Scituate girl operating a 2000 Plymouth Neon as having a suspended license. The officer stopped the car and confirmed with the registry that her license was suspended. She is being summonsed to court for operating after license suspension. The Neon was towed.

• An officer with knowledge that this individual had a suspended license pulled over the 2004 Chevrolet pickup that the 53-year-old Cohasset man was driving at 9:45 a.m. on Sunday (Nov. 21). The man is being summonsed to court for operating after license suspension and his truck was towed.

Intruder

A Jerusalem Road resident called police at about 8 a.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 16) to let them know that by the way her dog was behaving, she was concerned that an intruder might be in her house. Police checked the house and area and everything appeared to be OK.

Parking lot

At 11:53 a.m. on Tuesday (Nov. 16), a 66-year-old Cohasset woman reported that her 1979 Ford Ltd. had been struck in the parking lot of the Harborview Apartments off Elm Street, causing damage to the driver's side door. The man who hit her car, who also lives in the complex, had left a note and they were working it out between them. However, she wanted the incident logged.

Sheldon Road

Police received two complaints from residents of Sheldon Road over the past week. The first call (3 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 16) was a complaint about another neighbor storing a boat on property illegally. That matter was referred to the Building Inspector. The second call (12:32 p.m., Friday, Nov. 19) was a complaint from a resident about vandalism to his lawn. He reported there were tire tracks on his lawn again.

Loose dog

A concerned citizen brought a husky to the police station on Tuesday (Nov. 16) after people at the playground complained about the dog being loose. The callers reported the dog was friendly but was frightening some of the children, police said. The person, who brought the dog to police headquarters, was directed to bring the dog to the Scituate Animal Shelter because the police station does not have a facility to keep a dog. The owner of the dog, who lives on Old Pasture Road, called and was advised to pick the dog up at the shelter.

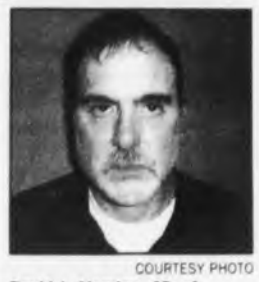
Parking issue

Police are conducting parking enforcement on Old Pasture Road near the back gate to the Deer Hill and Osgood schools after receiving complaints from the neighborhood last week. The parking has been creating a hazard. Police talked to both principals, who sent out a connect-Ed message (mass phone call) to parents, about the parking and most parents are cooperating, police said.

Town phone

A Town Hall employee reported last Thursday (Nov. 18) that her town cell phone, a Verizon Blackberry, had been stolen at a local restaurant. She had already notified Verizon when she made the report, police said.

Acting up



A 45-year-old parent of a 15-year-old son asked police for help last Thursday (Nov. 18) because the boy was acting up. Police responded and provided some parenting assistance.

Minors charged

Three Hull teens were arrested and charged with being minors in possession of alcohol after police found them with beer in the back of parked 2000 white Dodge Ram van at Wadleigh Park at 8 p.m. on Friday (Nov. 19). Police said the van did not have a parking permit and when the officer investigated, he banged on the van and found the three boys in the back of van with empty beer bottles on the floor.

Man arrested for harassing Everett

By Nancy White

David J. Ajemian, 49, of Cambridge.

Last Thursday afternoon (Nov. 18), Cohasset police arrested a Massachusetts priest for violating a harassment protection order taken out against him by Anthony Everett of Channel 5.

This is not the first time David J. Ajemian, 49, of Cambridge, has been accused of harassing a television personality. He was arrested in 2007 on charges of stalking late-night talk show host Conan O'Brien, and according to police, Ajemian was suspended from the Boston Archdiocese around that time. He pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of disorderly conduct, and was ordered to stay away from O'Brien.

Over the past few weeks, Ajemian has allegedly been making harassing phone calls and e-mails to Everett at his work, and on Nov. 10, Dedham District Court issued a harassment prevention order on Everett's behalf against Ajemian, ordering Ajemian to refrain from contacting or harassing Everett.

Last Wednesday, Lt. Bill Quigley said Ajemian came into the Cohasset Police Station to ask if by being in town he was in violation of the harassment prevention order. He told police he did not know where in Cohasset Everett lived.

Later that night, police said Ajemian called dispatch on the 911 emergency line that he had been able to obtain Everett's home address and he was going to go there the next day at noon. Police then felt Ajemian's actions had risen to a violation of the harassment prevention order, and a court clerk issued a warrant for Ajemian's arrest on Thursday morning. Officers were sent to Ajemian's Cambridge home and to the WCVB-TV headquarters in Needham.

At approximately 1:30 p.m. Thursday (Nov. 18), an officer on patrol spotted Ajemian walking on Sohier Street, where he was subsequently arrested without incident for allegedly violating the harassment prevention order.

As is procedure when arrested, Ajemian was given one phone call. Quigley said Ajemian placed a call to the city news desk at the Boston Globe. The call spurred a flurry of media interest, Quigley said. Cohasset police issued a statement about the incident on Thursday evening.

Ajemian was held overnight at the Cohasset police station on $25,000 cash bail. He was arraigned in the Quincy District Court Friday, Nov. 19. Subsequently, Needham police have sought a warrant on the same charge of violating a harassment prevention order. Ajemian was transferred from Quincy District Court to Dedham District Court for arraignment on those charges.

Ajemian was sent to the Solomon Carter Fuller Center in Boston, a mental health center, for 20 days. He is due back at Quincy District Court on Wednesday, Dec. 8.

WCVB-TV president Bill Fine commented on behalf of the station and Everett, "Anthony Everett views this as a private matter and desires to protect the privacy of himself and his family. He will have no further comment and would appreciate your understanding at this time."

WCVB-TV contributed to this report.

Arrest warrant issued for Hingham history book author

By Steve Adams
GATEHOUSE MEDIA

Cohasset Jewelers owner Mark Cirone hoped to raise awareness about breast cancer when he commissioned a local historical book last year.

A portion of the proceeds from sales of "The History of Hingham" were earmarked for donations to South Shore Hospital's breast cancer center, where Mark Cirone's wife Sharon is undergoing treatment.

Now the book is generating attention for a different reason than Cirone had intended. Judge Patrick Hurley issued an arrest warrant Thursday (Nov. 18) for its author, Arthur J. Roberts Jr. of Scituate, after Roberts failed to appear in Hingham District Court at a payment hearing to explain when he intends to repay Cirone some of the money he invested in the project.

The clerk-magistrate of the court, Joseph Ligotti, had issued a judgment in Cirone's favor for $2,062 on April 22, but Roberts has not made any payment. In a small claims suit, Cirone alleged that Roberts defrauded him by accepting $6,000 up-front for the book, but only ordered a small percentage of the copies that they had agreed would be printed. He sought $2,000, the maximum judgment then allowed in small claims court.

Since his release from prison in Texas, Roberts has written a series of historical books about South Shore towns.

"Did he play on my generosity to this cause? Sure, absolutely," Cirone said. "I mean, he sucked me in. I didn't check. My fault, my bad."

When Cirone signed the contract with Roberts' publishing company, Then And Now Publishing LLC of Norwell, Cirone was not aware of Roberts' background.

In 1999, Roberts was sentenced to six years in prison after being convicted in Texas of securing execution of a document by deception.

That conviction was related to a real estate venture in which he took money from a group of investors.

Arthur J. Roberts Jr. , author of "The History of Hingham."

Since his release from prison in Texas, Roberts has written a series of historical books about South Shore towns. He approached Cirone in January 2009 with the idea of writing a book about Cohasset history, Cirone said. Cirone suggested the book focus on Hingham and brought up the idea of donating a portion of the proceeds to cancer care center at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth.

The two signed an agreement calling for publication of "The History of Hingham." Cirone would receive the excess profits after printing costs and a $2-per-book-sold royalty for Roberts, according to a copy of the agreement that Cirone provided to The Patriot Ledger.

Cirone began to suspect something was wrong after a disappointing turnout for a book signing at Hingham's Old Ship Church last year.

"We had 50 people at the whole thing. I'm getting this really uneasy feeling now," Cirone recalled.

Cirone contacted the printing company, ZDocs Online of Lindon, Utah. The owner submitted receipts indicating that Roberts only ordered 507 books, although Roberts had sent e-mails to Cirone indicating he had 3,000 printed.

Cirone said he has received a total of $273 in payments from Roberts.

Cirone's work on behalf of cancer research dates back to 2003, after Sharon Cirone was diagnosed with a recurrence of breast cancer. He designed a "Badge of Courage" pin in gold and sold it at his store, donating $55,000 to breast cancer charities.

While Sharon Cirone prepares to undergo her latest chemotherapy treatment today, her husband said his thoughts are summed up by a framed photograph of his 19-year-old daughter that sits on a shelf in his office.

"I do this for that little girl right there so she doesn't face the same issues, and all the other little girls that are coming up," he said.

Reached by phone on Thursday, Roberts declined to comment other than to say he has appealed the case to a state appeals court.

He subsequently e-mailed a lawsuit that he filed against Cirone in Plymouth Superior Court this week.

The suit says Cirone has bribed or intimidated employees of Hingham District Court to prosecute a frivolous case against him and seeks $326,325 in damages plus $2 million in punitive damages.

Potential $700,000 budget gap for schools

Fiscal 2010 talk starts early

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"Because of what we are seeing and hearing on the town side we could be in very serious trouble in fiscal 2012."
— Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh

The School department typically presents its preliminary budget proposal in mid-December.

But, Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh said next year's budget looks sufficiently challenging to warrant starting the conversation early.

"Because of what we are seeing and hearing on the town side we could be in very serious trouble in fiscal 2012," said Superintendent Denise Walsh.

Looking ahead many of the state and federal aid and grants have dwindled or disappeared, the federal stimulus is not returning, and many costs are still on the rise. Budget offsets like state Circuit Breaker funding for special education have quietly slipped away, there are more unfunded mandates and health care costs are on the rise, Walsh said.

Walsh said a level services budget requires a 5 percent increase, which translates to about $700,000. With the reduced funding from other sources, Walsh said the school committee would need to take action. Next year's budget could mean a reduction in services, layoffs, program cuts, and/or increased fees.

"My recommendation is to open up this dialogue now," Walsh said, adding by mid-December decisions on the budget might have been made on the town side.

Walsh said they are hearing from the town the schools could be level-funded (same budget number as fiscal 2011) or a small $90,000 increase.

School Committee Vice Chairman Alfred Slanetz said the committee had to look closely at the budget.

"There are only so many levers that we have," Slanetz said, adding the committee might need to look at getting rid of block scheduling. Reverting to a more traditional schedule could yield a significant savings in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Earlier in the evening Slanetz alluded to the potential budget gap during a presentation from athletic director Ron Ford. Slanetz said at this point having athletics as part of the school budget was not a guarantee.

"We have to be careful about that type of planning," Slanetz said.

A budget sub-committee, which includes Slanetz and School Committee member Paul Schubert, was scheduled for Tuesday of this week.

From the audience, Mike Milanoski of South Main Street said he was surprised, given this news, there was no School Committee presence at the Special Town Meeting held on Nov. 15. The meeting rejected adding a .75 meals tax and a 6 percent hotel tax.

"(Town Meeting) turned down two taxes that could have brought a significant amount of money into the town. I was surprised there was no advocacy or leadership on those discussions from the School Committee. The bulk of that money (would have gone) to the school," Milanoski said. "Knowing what dire straights we're in I thought someone could have advocated for the schools."

Adrienne MacCarthy of Doane Street, who is a former School Committee member, noted she did not believe a quorum of the School Committee was in attendance at the meeting.

"Town Meeting is where the money is spent and the indication is the schools are facing an unsustainable deficit," MacCarthy said.

She faulted the committee for focusing too much on find a new superintendent for the district, "it's not going to matter how great a new superintendent is if you're cutting $700,000 from the budget."

MacCarthy suggested a spending freeze be placed on the fiscal 2011 budget as has been done the past two years.

"(If you don't do something) we are coming to a train wreck for the Cohasset Public Schools," MacCarthy said.

Town could be facing $1million deficit down by Dec. 1 so we have a number to work with," Lombard said.

Lombard said there are several options to deal with the budget deficit, but nothing has been decided on yet.

"We don't have an answer right now…at some point we will have to go back to Town Meeting and come to a resolution," Lombard said. The $985,000 scheduled to go out for bonding is within appropriations made previously by town meeting.

As a first step, Lombard instituted the spending freeze. "Time is short. We only have six months left in the budget to gain as much savings as we can."

The freeze puts a hold on all capital purchases, discretionary supplies, consulting and professional services. However, there is an exception if the services would affect health or safety or to operate essential municipal services, but even those expenses have to be submitted in writing and approved by the town manager.

"I want everybody on the same page with where we are, how we got here and why I'm ordering a spending freeze."
— Steve Lombard,
Interim Town Manager

The town will continue to honor all existing contracts and legal obligations.

"Anything where there is still a decision to be made will have to remain in flux for the time being," Lombard said.

The spending freeze includes overtime and other over and above expenses.

"Department heads need to make every effort to curtail that issue (overtime). All departments have to save as much money as they can," Lombard said. "This isn't just a water department problem."

But, the memo also specifically places restrictions on the water and sewer departments.

"The Water Department shall not obligate any further capital or operating spending until further notice without express written consent from the Town Manager's office," the memo states. "The Sewer Department shall not commit any further capital or operating costs, other than covered by existing bond authorization."

On Monday afternoon, Lombard met with the Board of Selectmen to discuss a bond anticipation note. The discussion included input from the town's bond counsel as the situation could have a negative impact on the town's bond rating. The bond could be rolled over for a few more months while the town figures out what action to take, Lombard said.

Lombard held an emergency department head meeting on Tuesday afternoon to discuss the situation.

"I want everybody on the same page with where we are, how we got here and why I'm ordering a spending freeze," Lombard said.

The water and sewer audit being conducted by at third party, Andover-based Melanson Heath & Company, is expected to be complete in the next couple of weeks.

"It needs the time it needs to get said and done," Lombard said. "We'll keep people apprised."

The audit has been underway since early September and was commissioned by the Advisory Committee. Its $65,000 price tag came out of the committee's reserve fund.

Veterans agent visiting hours

The Cohasset Director of Veterans Services will be at the Paul Pratt Library, Room 2B, as follows:

Donations are still being collected for the annual St. Stephen's book sale.

Donations sought for St. Stephen's book sale

As part of the Cohasset Village Fair, which takes place next Saturday, Dec. 4th, St. Stephen's will be offering their annual Book Fair in the Parish Hall. This year St. Stephen's is collecting high quality books that have been loved once and will be loved again when folks purchase them next week. Donations are still being collected, so if you have any of the following books, and they are in need of a good home, please bring them to St. Stephen's by Wednesday, Dec. 1st.

Needed:

- Good condition hard cover books
- Paperback bestsellers (no older than 2005)
- Classics
- Children's books (both hard and soft)
- DVDs, CDs, audio books

(This year St. Stephen's is not accepting magazines, VHS tapes, history, political, computer or religious genre textbooks)

All donations can be left at St. Stephen's Church inside the Parish office door. In town there are many, many voracious readers who might happen to have a number of new-releases that are ready to be shared. Please support the fair with as many good condition books as you can. If you have any questions about donating, volunteering or purchasing feel free to contact Franchesca Arnold with any questions 383-2548 or at franchesca@cohasset.net.

Girl Scouts hold Bronze Award Ceremony

The Bronze Award was presented to Girl Scout Troop 74812 on Sunday, Nov. 7 at Our World Museum. The Bronze Award is the highest achievement available to Junior Girl Scouts. Earning this award involved many hours of leadership and volunteerism. In recognition of this achievement, state Rep. Garrett Bradley presented a citation from the House of Representatives.

At the same ceremony before they bridged to Cadettes, Girl Scout Troop 74812 Scouts welcomed Brownies as they flew up to become Junior Girl Scouts. The Troop 74017 Brownies who flew up to Juniors were: Jane Cavanaro, Olivia Hansen, Samantha Kehoe, Hannah Laugelle, Mia MacGregor, Samantha Naples, Lilly Patterson, Lucie Novelline, Emma Stephens, Annie Toomey, Grace Vainisi and Lydia Vigneau. Individual Brownies flying to Juniors were Lindsey Beiche and Kylee Miller. Sarah Kehoe bridged to Cadette level and was welcomed into troop 74812.

The Scituate Cohasset Newcomers Club recently donated $700 to both the Scituate and Cohasset food pantries. From left, Molly Frame of the Newcomers Club, co-directors of the food pantry Moira Stansell and Jane Corry, Pat Seneski of the Scituate food pantry, John Lanata and Luke Driscoll, of the Newcomers Club.

Newcomers give to food pantries

At this time of the year thoughts turn to those who are most in need. The Scituate and Cohasset food pantries are both suffering due to higher demand, and a decrease in donations. Although both pantries continue to welcome donations of nearly all pantry staples, for the first time, in years, they have had to purchase food.

It is with this in mind that the Scituate Cohasset Newcomers Club decided to focus their fundraising efforts on raising some much needed funds for the food pantries. At the end of September, the Newcomers Club hosted a yard sale, and, in October, organized a Fantasy Football Challenge. Together these efforts raised $1,400 to split between the pantries.

The Newcomers Club presented each pantry with a $700 check on Friday, Nov. 12. The Newcomers hope that their donations can help the pantries get through this tough holiday season.

There are several ways, and means, to give to the food pantry. Donations of sundries can be dropped off at the pantries, in Cohasset on Tuesdays between 8.30 and 9.30 a.m., behind St Anthony's Rectory; in Scituate, also on Tuesdays, between 11 a.m. and 12:45 p.m., behind the Masonic Temple. Otherwise, donations can be brought to the town churches on Sundays, as well as at Stop & Shop and Shaw's. Donations may be non-perishable foods, supermarket gift cards or monetary.

The Newcomers Club hopes to donate more over the coming months, as well as becoming more involved. Membership to the club is open to all Scituate and Cohasset residents; not only do they raise funds for local charities, they also host many social events for individuals and families, looking to meet other people. The Club hosts a weekly men's night out at TK's during Monday Night Football. They also host various dinner outings, shopping events and kid's parties. Scituate Cohasset Newcomers Club is a way to make new friends as well as give back to the community.

If interested in joining, call Molly Frame, at 781-353-8108 or visit the website at www.scnewcomers.com.

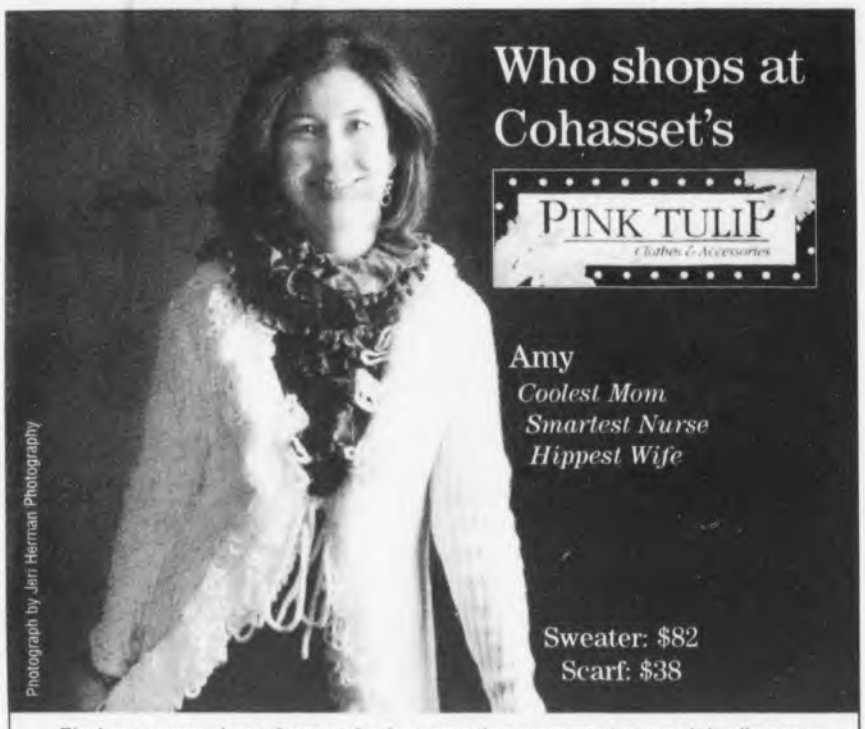
Help the Cohasset Food Pantry

The non-denominational Cohasset Food Pantry welcomes donations of nearly all pantry staples. The list below includes many of the items that are collected and distributed quickly and therefore their donation is in constant need.

Donations can be dropped off at the rear entrance of St. Anthony's Rectory on South Main St. from 8:30 to 9:30a.m. on Tuesdays, at Stop & Shop, or at local churches on Sundays. To give a monetary donation, the food pantry mailing address is Cohasset Food Pantry, P.O. Box 297, Cohasset, MA 02025.

"We are overjoyed at the response we have received from our friends throughout the community. Many families will share a wonderful holiday meal this Thanksgiving," said Jane Corry, co-director of the food pantry. Because of the outpouring of generosity many of the Thanksgiving boxes included homemade goodies donated by members of the community.

Because the food pantry is serving so many clients they are in constant need of items. Below is a list of current needs:



- Juice boxes
- Apple or cranberry juice
- Mayonnaise
- Coffee
- Tea
- Hot chocolate
- Peanut butter
- Jelly or jam
- Canned corn
- Canned stew
- Canned fruit
- Tuna
- Crackers and snacks
- Corned beef hash
- Hot / cold cereal
- Paper towels
- Toilet paper
- Napkins
- Kleenex
- Laundry & dish detergent
- Trash bags
- Bar soap

Drop off at Police Station

Food pantry items may be dropped off in the lobby of the Cohasset Police Station on Elm Street 24 hours a day, through November.

Saint Anthony Parish Center and the police and fire station continue accept food pantry donations.

The Cohasset Food Pantry does not accept expired or already opened food.

Would it make sense to insure just part of your house?

Of course not, so why insure just part of your savings?

As of November 7th, 2010, NEW legislation allows your credit union to fully insure your deposits above the federal insurance. That means that you no longer have to play hide and seek with your funds, putting some here and some there in order to keep them protected. Simply look for the MSIC logo at your local credit union and know that every penny you deposit is safe and secure.

Brie is a friendly young, petite and sweet Tiger female.

Brie has a purr-fect personality

This week Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is featuring, Brie, a friendly young, petite and sweet Tiger female. She once had a loving home but the arrival of a new baby who developed allergies, forced this family to give her up. Brie gets along well with children and is totally non-aggressive. She would be a welcome addition to most any home with her green eyes and sweet nature.

Brie would be a welcome addition to most any home with her green eyes and sweet nature.

Check out HSAR's other cats and kittens on its web site www.hsar.org. Open hours are on Saturdays, from 2-3pm and Mondays from 6:30-7:30. The shelter number is 781-925-3121; email address is hsar@verizon.net. Address is 50 L St., Hull. The mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue PO Box 787, Hull, MA. 02045. The Kittendale Calendar makes a nice holiday gift or a fun grab or Yankee swap for the office.

HSAR has six adorable kittens, ready to be adopted before the December holidays. The shelter is hoping they will go in pairs. If interested, please call Shirl at 781-925-3380. Some of their pictures are on the website. They are just too adorable for words.

HSAR wishes to thank its many supporters and wishes everyone a Happy Thanksgiving.

Holly Hill Farm holds Holly-Day Fair Dec. 4

The Holly-Day Fair at Holly Hill Farm in Cohasset is taking place on Saturday Dec. 4 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the heated greenhouse located at the farm on 236 Jerusalem Road, Cohasset.

This fair will feature many fine quality artisans from the local area as well as fun activities for children, delicious food, live music, plus the beautiful setting of an historic New England farm. There will be jewelry, homemade jams, organic skin care products, hand-carved birds and wooden toys, pottery, soaps and candles, infant and baby clothing, stained glass, hand-knitted items, handmade books, artisanal chocolates, rustic furniture made from wood found on the farm, and more.

Admission is free and all artisans will be donating a portion of sales to the Friends of Holly Hill Farm, the non-profit that uses the farm as its outdoor classroom. For more information, visit www.hollyhillfarm.org or call 781-383-6565.

Annual Holiday Stroll is Dec. 11

This year's Cohasset Holiday Stroll will continue a community tradition.

The festivities will take place on Saturday, Dec. 11 from noon to 7p.m. with Route 3A businesses in the afternoon and down in the village in the early evening. Route 3A businesses will host open houses and activities from noon to 4p.m., and the village will come alive with holiday cheer from 4 to 7p.m.

Sponsored by the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce articipating shops and businesses from Route 3A, Ripley Road, Smith Place, Elm St. and South Main Street will join in the celebration with each business offering something different - music, crafts, food, drink.

We welcome some new activities this year such as carolers from the First Parish Church, American Girl Doll Hair Styling at Hernan's Salon and The Cohasset Harbor Resort's Chowder as well as the family traditions you have come to know: Face Painting at Paperscapes, Christmas Crafts at Darilynn's and the Grinch at Atlantic Brokerage.

To help make Stroll participants easy to know they will have wreaths on their doors featuring decorated starfish and a burgundy bow.

For people unable to attend during the Stroll, Cohasset shops are open throughout the holiday season, many with extended holiday hours. For more information please refer to www.cohassetchamberofcommerce.com

Tater's furry brown coat keeps him warm throughout the year. Owner John Flores said he is always seeking out a cool spot.

Cohasset dog enjoys the limelight

In between his brushes with celebrity, Tater tried to maintain a low profile and live a normal life.

Flores and his wife, Kimberly, take Tater everywhere. He's often seen strolling the streets of downtown Scituate, Cohasset Village or Hingham Square. He enjoys vacationing with his family in New Hampshire and Maine. He goes through the Dunkin' Donuts and bank drive thru's.

"Where ever he goes he is the life of the party," Flores said. He greets new friends with a gentle rub against their leg to let them know they are free to pet him. He loves greeting kids and playing with other dogs.

"He loves people. He looks very sad if everyone we pass doesn't make a big fuss over him," Flores said.

Tater (Tot is sometimes affectionately added to his name) doesn't do well with knick knacks as his wagging tail always seems to knock them over.

His bountiful brown fur keeps his warm and seeking out cool spaces to rest. Regular brushing has kept him looking puppy soft. Each summer he gets shaved to help keep him cool. Last year, they weighed the fur and it checked in at over five pounds, Flores said.

What's up next for the local canine celebrity?

"I'm hoping a Matt Damon picture gets shot in Boston and they need a brown Newfoundland!" Flores said.

This picture of Tater, owned by Beechwood Street residents Kimberly and John Flores, won an honorable mention in the magazine Dog Fancy for their cutest puppy contest earlier this year.

Superintendent spotlight

School Committee gets report from focus groups

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Communicator. Collaborator. Leader. Listener.

These are just a few of the words that define what the school community is looking for in a future superintendent.

As the search for a new school superintendent gets off the ground the School Committee took the time to hear from their search consultants the results from four focus group sessions held recently. The search consultants from NESDEC had a total of 100 people participate in the focus groups, including teachers, administrators and parents.

But, before they heard what they focus groups uncovered, the School Committee was asked what qualities they would like in a new superintendent.

All the School Committee members agreed on three basic qualities: academic excellence and leadership, budget savvy, and strong communicator.

"I'd like to see a collaborative leader with all areas of town, not just within the school district," said School Committee member Jeanne Astino.

School Committee member Linda Snowdale said management style was key. "I'd like to have someone who seeks input from stakeholders and is a true consensus builder."

Building upon those thoughts, School Committee chair Helene Lieb said she'd like someone who is not only goal-oriented, but also process-oriented.

"To have brilliant ideas is awesome, but getting from A to B in the right way is equally important," Lieb said, adding she would also like to see a candidate with a doctorate and someone who lives locally.

A superintendent that has the "courage of his/her convictions" and the ability to justify and convey those convictions was another quality the school committee members agreed upon.

"There weren't many words here tonight that we didn't hear before (in the focus groups)," said NESDEC consultant, Bud Ferris.

A superintendent that recognizes the unique qualities of Cohasset and builds upon it was another key idea from the focus groups.

"(The groups) did not want someone to come in here with an agenda," Ferris said.

The focus groups (and the School Committee) also developed a list of items the superintendent should focus on in their first year. Some of the items included technology, building relationships in and outside of the schools, and advocating responsibly for the school district.

"People said they wanted a child-centered person, not someone focused on tests or the budget," Ferris said. Re-vamping the curriculum and preparing kids for a 21st century global economy also topped the to-do list.

The NESDEC consultants will use the information gathered at the focus groups to build a "superintendent profile" to help guide the to-be-formed search committee and school committee as they move forward in the process.

Screening committee

A screening committee made up of about a dozen residents will help whittle down the field of superintendent applicants. The committee will meet multiple times during the month of January and conduct the first round interviews of the candidates.

The members of the screening committee will attend a Saturday workshop to learn about the process and the following Thursday will choose the candidates to interview. The screening committee's job is to recommend between three and five finalists for the school committee to interview. It is the sole responsibility of the school committee to choose the next superintendent.

The School Committee said they would rely on various town boards and community groups to nominate citizens for the screening committee. At the very least the following groups will be represented on the screening committee: teachers (one elementary, one high school), administrators, PSO, CEF, Special Education Parent Advisory Council (SEPAC), school councils, Board of Selectmen, Advisory Committee, and students.

No support for Ripley Road

Planning Board recommends denial

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The Planning Board did not like the 25 Ripley Road project — or the attitude of the attorney representing the project.

On Wednesday, Nov. 17, Planning Board chair Al Moore requested that the applicant and his attorney leave the meeting. The gavel came down twice after a short presentation on the project.

Moore and other members of the Planning Board expressed confusion about some of the documents being presented. The farmer's porch, which project attorney James Creed said was no longer part of the project, was shown on the architectural drawings. The angled parking, a requested change by the zoning board of appeals, was still being worked on for the site plan.

Moore questioned if there was even an architect serving on the project. Creed said there was not, but once the project was approved an architect would draw up revised plans.

"We wouldn't even accept plans that are not signed, or a project without any architect involved," Moore said. Creed said preliminary architectural plans were all that were required at this time.

John Modzelewski, the town's consulting engineer, weighed in briefly on the project. He has been reviewing the project on behalf of the zoning board of appeals.

Modzelewski said there were a number of contradictions between the several sets of plans..

The 25 Ripley Road project has been before the town before. More than a year ago, the zoning board denied the project's application after months of hearings, largely due to a lack of documentation.

"We wouldn't even accept plans that are not signed or a project without any architect involved."
— Al Moore, Planning Board

"If we could get everyone on one plan so (the town) could know what it was approving," Modzelewski said.

Creed said stamped architectural plans would be forthcoming before building commenced.

Frustrations on the planning board grew as they struggled to understand what was truly being sought for 25 Ripley Road.

After some back and forth between Moore and Creed, it was clear the planning board was irritated at the lack of clear information. Creed said much of their questions would have been answered if they had been at the zoning board hearings.

At that point, Moore had had enough – down went the gavel, twice, and both parties said they would no longer take the other's attitude.

In simplest terms, the application proposes transforming the current 2,200-square-foot, single-family home into a seven condominium units with 11 bedrooms. Three units will have one bedroom and four will have two bedrooms.

The 25 Ripley Road project has been before the town before. More than a year ago, the zoning board denied the project's application after months of hearings, largely due to a lack of documentation.

Cohasset resident, property owner and developer, Will Charles, appealed the denial of the application to the state. The state's Housing Appeals Committee has remanded the application back to the zoning board with some very specific requirements for more information.

Two of the units will be deemed "affordable" by state standards. The inclusion of these two units allows the entire project to be possible under Chapter 40-B, the state's affordable housing law. Under Chapter 40-B towns with less than 10 percent housing stock are vulnerable to housing projects that can be approved under flexible zoning rules.

After the dramatic scene where the attorney Creed and his client, Charles, left the meeting, the planning board decided the project could not receive their recommendation.

"The applicant did not come here in good faith to seek our recommendation," said Planning Board vice chair Stuart Ivimey. Ivimey said the plans were inadequate and, in particular, lacked drainage calculations. "It seems like they are making it up as they go along and we don't approve projects that way."

Clark Brewer agreed, "the reality is we don't have a coordinated set of plans and we can't make a recommendation based on incomplete information."

The Planning Board recommended to the zoning board that they deny the application because of inadequate information, inconsistent plans and failure to present a architect for the project.

The next scheduled hearing with the zoning board on the 25 Ripley Road project is Tuesday, Dec. 7.

Register of Deeds to speak in Cohasset

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell will appear as a guest speaker at Cohasset Elder Affairs, 3 North Main St., at 11 a.m., on Wednesday, Dec. 1. The speaking program will touch on the historical nature of the Registry and the Register's efforts to modernize and computerize the vast number of Norfolk County real estate records.

Following his remarks, the Register will be available to answer individual questions. Members of the Register's staff will assist in providing information about the Massachusetts Homestead Act and have Internet computers and printers that can be used to demonstrate the Registry's Internet website, confirm the status of a mortgage discharge or print out a copy of a deed.

FOR CAR OWNERS WHO HAVE EVERYTHING

You don't have to be a "car nut" to appreciate having your car detailed by a professional. Everyone, from young drivers with their first cars to soccer moms in minivans to retirees in convertibles, enjoys having their vehicles washed, polished, buffed, waxed/sealed, vacuumed, renewed, and refurbished. So, this holiday season, why not give the gift of car detailing to someone you know will love having his or her vehicle brought back to near-new condition? Other good vehicle-related holiday gifts include a new pair of leather driving gloves, a custom key fob, a replacement audio system (tuner, MP3 adapter, speakers, and/or CD player), or a new set of floor mats (either lush nylon for summer or rubber for winter).

Another thing to consider, as the holiday driving season approaches, is your car's safety. If you're going to be driving to Grandma's house in pouring rain and heavy traffic, with all the kiddies in the back seat, you want to be sure that your car is as safe as possible on the road. That's why now is a great time to bring your car to ATLANTIC TIRE AND ALIGNMENT for a tune-up. Our ASE Master-certified technicians will be happy to give your car the preventative care that it needs to get you over the river and through the woods safely, no matter what the weather. Call 781-925-3200 today. We are located at 25 Atlantic House Rd. If you've gotten in an accident, be sure to check out our sister store, Cohasset Collision Center: 179 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy., Cohasset, 781-383-3001.

HINT: Having your vehicle professionally detailed once or twice a year can increase its resale potential and value.

Expired licenses

Please take a moment this weekend to check the expiration date on your driver's license.

We write the "Police Beat" on page three each week that involves interviewing the police about the various incidents around town during the previous week.

There is one particular occurrence that is happening again and again because the Registry of Motor Vehicles — in an effort to manage their costs — is not notifying drivers when their licenses are about to expire. The RMV has given that responsibility to licensed drivers.

In other words, they want us to be responsible for knowing when our own driver's licenses expire.

Here is a typical scenario: if you are pulled over for – let's say – having a headlight out, the officer is going to ask for your license and registration. If your license has expired – police cannot allow you to drive because you are essentially operating without being properly licensed.

There is one particular occurrence that is happening again and again because the Registry of Motor Vehicles — in an effort to manage their costs — is not notifying drivers when their licenses are about to expire.

If you do not have a licensed passenger with you or if no one nearby can come and take possession of your car, it will be towed. You also will be summonsed to court to face the charge of unlicensed operation.

To avoid the potential for all this – check the expiration date on your license!

Should you discover your license has expired, simply go onto the Registry's website at www.massdot.state.ma.us/rmv and you may renew with a credit card. You will receive a confirmation number immediately while you await the mailing of your renewal.

Feel free to contact the Cohasset Police Department if you need assistance.

In another police-related matter, the CPD had launched a partnership with the community with the establishment of the Police Community Liaison Board (PCLB).

The PCLB is comprised of Cohasset residents, police officers, and the police chief and meets regularly with to improve communication between the residents and the police department. The PCLB's mission is to inform, maintain, and continuously improve communication between police and the community to enhance trust and cooperation with an overall goal of superior police services to Cohasset residents.

Airplane noise relief for Cohasset

COMMENTARY

RALPH DORMITZER

Last week on Thursday Nov. 18, the FAA implemented the last of the recommendations of the Community Advisory Committee (CAC) under Phase 1 of the noise study to reduce noise from aircraft arriving at and departing Logan International Airport. Aircraft departing Logan will cross the shoreline in Cohasset and on the South and North Shores approximately twice as high as before and be more equitably dispersed on the South Shore from Hull in the north to Marshfield in the south. The FAA has also implemented a precision guidance system (RNAV) that routes aircraft on highly accurate tracks. As many of you know, Cohasset had been plagued with almost continuous noise from aircraft overflights for many years, with nearly 80 percent of departing flights and 30 percent of arriving flights crossing the town on their way from and to Logan. The changes will result in approximately halving the number of direct shore crossings from departing flights while providing arriving flights the alternative of an over-water approach to be used in the early morning and late evening.

The effort to obtain noise relief began 10 years ago when the towns of Hull, Hingham and Cohasset joined several lawsuits against the Massachusetts Port Authority (Massport) in opposition to the implementation of a new runway (14/32) and new taxiway at Logan. Cohasset appropriated $60,000 at town meetings in 2001 and 2002 while Hull and Hingham appropriated additional amounts to support the suits. In addition, Hingham and Cohasset citizens formed the South Shore Jet Pollution Council (SSJPC), a grassroots organization that independently pursued legal and administrative remedies. Meanwhile, the (CAC), representing 30 greater Boston communities, submitted a set of recommended flight patterns to the Federal Aviation Administration and Massport that had been proposed by members from Hull, Hingham and Cohasset to reduce noise on the North and South Shores.

Although it may not rank with other blessings for which to be thankful on Thanksgiving, it is one for which many others and I are grateful.

In November 2003 Judge Margot Botsford of the Superior Court of Massachusetts found in favor of the Massachusetts Port Authority and against the communities and authorized the construction of runway 14/32. This loss together with additional losses in the two other lawsuits had a chilling effect on the efforts of all of us who had tirelessly sought relief from the incessant aircraft noise. The one ray of hope was a requirement in Judge Botsford's Final Judgment that mitigation measures specified in the FAA's Record of Decision (ROD) of August 2002 be implemented and enforced. That ROD contained specific language that required Massport and the FAA to engage in a study with the following language: "FAA's preliminary assessment of proposals by South Shore communities indicates that changes in flight tracks and possibly other proposals may be feasible," and that the "FAA, Massport, and the CAC (which includes the South Shore communities) will work jointly to develop the scope of a noise study that will include enhancing existing or developing new noise abatement measures applicable to aircraft overflights." Now after 10 years, innumerable disappointments, thousands of hours of dedicated work by Massport, the FAA and consultants from Landrum and Brown and Ricondo, countless hours by citizen volunteers and the CAC, and $8 million later, the first phase of the noise study is complete. It is a pleasure to report to you that I believe it has accomplished its goals and should be judged a success. Although it may not rank with other blessings for which to be thankful on Thanksgiving, it is one for which many others and I are grateful.

It is nearly impossible to identify all the people who contributed to this success, but particular mention should be made of Steve Lathrop, Rod Hobson and Eric Oddleifson, who conceived and funded the development of and technical basis for the routes that have been implemented; Don Levi, Linda Wakeman, Ansley Pearce and Harold Lincoln, who among others formed the SSCPC; Vince Scarano, Gail Lattrell, Terry English, Steve Kelley and Joe Davies of the FAA who committed themselves to the study and its implementation; Thomas Kinton, Betty Desrosiers, and Flavio Leo of Massport who supported the study from the beginning; Jon Woodward of Landrum and Brown upon whom we depended for professional guidance; the CAC members who voted to implement the flight routes even though not necessarily in their interest; and Sandra Kunz the president of the CAC whose dedicated and unselfish encouragement kept us all going. My thanks to all.

Much progress on the paving front

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Little Harbor Project — This past week was a week full of progress. Much paving was accomplished. All of the side roads off of Atlantic Avenue were paved. And, Atlantic Avenue was paved from Whitehead Road at the southern end all the way past Nichols Road, to the start of the causeway, located several hundred yards south of the intersection with Jerusalem Road. There is one unusual aspect of the paving operation we'd like to call to your attention. On Thursday, Nov. 18th, our paving contractor, TL Edwards, showed up with a brand spanking new paving machine. It turns out that it was a machine on loan from the supplier as a demo unit. Edwards was trying it out to see if they were going to add it to their machinery stable. It sure looked good to us, and our road looks great!

Now, about paving the part of Jerusalem that has already been ground and the structures raised. When will that be paved? During a meeting with the paving contractor, it was decided to wait until the problems have been resolved with the drainage system on Jerusalem Road. At first, we thought it would make sense to just skip this portion of Jerusalem, and continue paving Jerusalem to Rust Way. But, if you drive by the construction area you can see some awfully large equipment on site. If we paved on either side there is an excellent chance that the construction equipment would really mess up the new paving. So, on the recommendation of the DPW and the paving contractor, we elected to wait until the drainage work is finished and we know that paving can be done without having it damaged. TL Edwards has assured us that they will return to complete this last section of Atlantic Avenue and this portion of Jerusalem, Road.

What about the rest of Jerusalem Road to Main Street? The news here is not quite so good. As a result of the delays caused by the drainage problem on Jerusalem Road and the new BMP installed at the foot of Jerusalem Lane, there is no longer enough time to grind and lay the final paving on this part of Jerusalem. We estimate that we would need about one month of total time to grind, level, raise the structures and top coat this road. This would take us into the time of year where the probability of a snowstorm increases dramatically. If we were to go ahead and prepare the last part of Jerusalem for paving and then have a snowstorm, the DPW would be incapable of plowing the snow with the raised structures in the road. This would create a genuine safety hazard for our residents and especially for the safety forces whose rapid movement around town is essential. And, we might have to wait months with the structures raised before the pavers can come back. So, unfortunately, we must wait until next spring.

Demo paver on Atlantic Avenue.

Start of digging on Jerusalem Road this past Monday morning.

The pump operator with his joystick controls.

Concrete being poured for sidewalk.

Meetinghouse Pond — This past Monday, the contractor poured the last portion of the new wall and sidewalk that surrounds Meetinghouse Pond. In a previous article we talked about the large truck that pumped the concrete into the forms and how the process is controlled. This week, we've added a few photos to give you a better idea of how it works.

The first picture shows the pump truck operator and his joystick controls (inside the circle). From this controller, he was able to maneuver the concrete hose to the exact spot where the concrete is needed.

The second photo shows the hose carrying the concrete (solid arrow). The dotted arrow points at a worker carrying a gas powered vibrator. The vibrator's gasoline engine is carried on a strap slung over his shoulder and the vibrator is on a flexible hose in his left hand. The vibrator is lowered into the concrete and moved about to cause any air bubbles to rise up to the surface, so that the concrete will be uniform without voids. This leads to a better and stronger concrete structure. This week they took the form off of the new concrete, so you can really see what the finished project looks like, and it is looking good.

The Greenbush office hopes that you and yours had a very happy Thanksgiving!

Power of the Internet

FOR THE RECORD

GREGORY MATHIS

Whether you're easily offended or not, a video shot by a former postal worker in our coverage area on his cell phone in October 2009 is quite shocking.

In the video, which was posted on YouTube a year after the incident took place, a 60-year-old South Shore woman verbally abuses the former postal worker over a piece of certified mail she signed for, then changed her mind. When the postal employee refuses to give the signed card back, she launches into a profanity-laced tirade chock full of racially charged comments.

Regardless of the contents of the letter or the circumstances surrounding why it was delivered certified mail, no human being deserves to be treated or spoken to that way. Not only is the profanity over the top, but the racial nature of the verbal assault was shocking. Surely racism still exists in our country and throughout the world, and even in the towns we cover in southeastern Massachusetts. It's just surprising when it rears its ugly head in our area in such a blatant way.

There are a lot of unanswered questions about this story and video, with the biggest being, why is it surfacing more than a year after the incident took place?

The main reason is because of the Internet.

Soon after this incident was caught on video, the postal worker was fired for an "unrelated" incident, according to the United States Postal Service. According to the man, he's been without a job for more than nine months and wanted to seek some kind of justice. So where does one turn for justice? The Internet. After the formal postal worker posted parts 1 and 2 of his video on YouTube recently, it went viral and ended up on one of the many watchdog websites, reddit. Reddit bills itself as the "voice of the internet – news before it happens." It's user-generated content and topics run the gamut, much like Thesmokinggun.com and Gawker.com.

Don't underestimate the power of the Internet and those watchdog sites.

Once the reddit community rallied around this incident and the video, there was an all-out media blitz to the local and Boston markets late last week. It was a little unsettling to see my name, work number and e-mail address prominently displayed on the website with a message to contact the editor in chief of the newspaper to notify us of this shocking story. The campaign resulted in more than 200 e-mails on the subject flooding my inbox in less than a day, and about 30 phone messages overtaking my voicemail. Most of the e-mails were a pre-written plea that were just copied and pasted from the website, but it sure made for a Friday to remember.

So it became a story because of the simple fact that those on the Internet said so. In this case, reddit certainly lived up to its claim of being the voice of the Internet and getting "news" noticed.

The phrase "power of the press" or "power of the pen" is often tossed around in our business, but this is a clear case of the "power" shifting to the Internet and those who are savvy enough to spin the story – and the Web.

SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

The Simple Things:

the papers are full of pieces describing enormous scientific breakthroughs. True, medical and scientific research are proceeding at a breakneck pace with analysis of all parts of the human body and the various fluids humans use or produce from tears to tannin, bile to blood. One can't pick up a paper without seeing an 'important' development in the field of medicine. And for every new ailment diagnosed there's an analgesic or a potion we are supposed to take to remedy the condition If we accepted and believed everything we see on the media, we'd be filling our bodies with so many fluids and chemicals we would indeed need medical attention.

How about gratitude? According to the Wall Street Journal, giving thanks is good for your health. A growing body of evidence suggests that an attitude of gratitude can improve psychological, emotional and physical well-being. Adults who frequently feel grateful have more energy, more optimism, more social connections and more happiness than those who do not, according to studies conducted over the past decade. They're also less likely to be depressed, envious, greedy or alcoholics. They earn more money, sleep more soundly, exercise more regularly and have greater resistance to viral infections.

Now, researchers are finding that gratitude brings similar benefits in children and adolescents. Kids who feel and act grateful tend to be less materialistic, get better grades, set higher goals, complain of fewer headaches and stomach aches and feel more satisfied with their friends, families and schools than those who don't, studies show. Philosophers as far back as the ancient Greeks and Romans cited gratitude as a human virtue, and may actually help your mental and physical health.

Little Stuff: High tech has appeared even in mundane matters such as bandages, gone is the gauze with adhesive, etc. and in its place is the antiseptic dressing sometimes white with its own adhesive, and sometimes colored. which permits air to reach a wound. The bandage as applied is sometimes quite bulky but compresses gradually to take a form around the wound permitting air to reach it. As the bandage is worn, it becomes more comfortable and more supporting. Some bandages are made with a pink colored adhesive which gradually changes to a light beige color. Easily removed, with no tugging and discomfort of the old sticking plasters; a minor, but important innovation in bandaging wounds.

Thinking Right: We sometimes tend to put too much emphasis on the wrong things. For example nobody likes the high price we are paying for water, but taken in any context, pure water costs more per capita when at any time in the history of the planet. There are this year about 688 billion people on earth. North and Central America consume about 40 percent of the available water supply. Even in comparison with other towns, Cohasset's consumption and costs are neither inordinately out of line or excessive Attitude: The real key to staying healthy is to eat wisely; read the labels of the things you put in your mouth; keep track of your intake of food and think about balancing your nutritional needs with common sense.. Then don't rationalize any change of the pattern if it includes more calories or an exchange of a presumably healthy choice for a less healthy. The labels on foods are useful in counting calories, etc. may be difficult to read and decipher, but someone in your family or circle of associates should be doing it.

But the holiday season approaches, so, let's enjoy our friends and families in the spirit of the season.

Public comment on bullying prevention

A public comment meeting has been scheduled for Wednesday, Dec. 1 from 6:30 to 7p.m. at the Community Meeting Room at the Cohasset Middle High School for the purpose of inviting public comment on the recently drafted Cohasset Public Schools' Bullying Prevention Policy and the Bullying Prevention and Intervention Plan.

The policy and plan were both developed this fall with input from teachers, counselors, administrators, and the district's legal counsel. They were drafted in accordance with the language of the law: M.G.L. c71, s370 An Act Relative to Bullying in Schools, signed into law on 5/3/2010.

Those individuals who wish to be heard on this issue are invited to attend.

The plan and the policy can be found at www.cohassetK12.org under the Health and Wellness section.

"I don't have anything to prove…I can look back and hold my head up high," Marks said.

When Marks first came to Cohasset Middle-High School the high school musical was done very differently. The senior class put on the annual production, from soup to nuts. The seniors chose the musical, chose the director, controlled the finances.

"To be honest, I was quite perturbed by that. There was no way one class had all the talent to put on a musical and the program did not promote or develop any talent in the younger grades," Marks said. He set out to broaden involvement, which involved a big culture change within the school.

The first "all school musical" put on one of the biggest and most popular musicals ever – "Grease" – and it received much acclaim.

"They did a very nice job," Marks remembers with a smile.

A few years after that they started doing the musicals every other year and have continued with that pattern since.

How the school has been able to pull over the musicals bi-annually is one of the accomplishments Marks is very proud of.

"I'm very proud of the fact the musicals are paid for through a self-perpetuating fund. Taxpayers don't pay for any of this," Marks said. The money pays for the sets, costumes, pit players and other expenses, and typically there is a little left over to get the next production off the ground.

"We might not have a big kitty, but it's been enough to pull off some nice things," Marks said.

In recent years, he has teamed up with band teacher Stephanie Moriarty, who directs and choreographs, to put on some fairly large shows. Together Moriarty and Marks have put on productions of "Grease," "Guys and Dolls," "West Side Story" and now, "The Wiz."

"We are blessed to have her and I'm blessed to work with her," Marks said. "I'm so appreciative of the support for the music department and support for me I've received over the years."

"The musical has a good upbeat nature, a good opportunity for dance and the kids are excited about it."

— Bryan Marks, teacher and director

He counts himself lucky that he had been able to stay in touch with many of his students over the years. He's attended countless weddings and keeps up to date with students now far flung from Cohasset.

"My motto has always been I don't teach music, I teach students," Marks said. "I try to be real with them and they seem to appreciate that."

One of his greatest joys in teaching is being able to bring out something in someone, something they didn't know, or even think, they had in them.

"I especially have a knack with guys. I can show guys they can sing when they never thought they could. It's encouraging to know I made a bit of difference for people," Marks said.

Marks, who was once called the "Dick Clark of music teachers" because he acts and looks just as young as he ever was, has always had a passion for music.

"Music has been the love of my life since I was wee little," Marks said. One of his college professors wanted him to go on and be an opera singer, but he didn't that that was for him. Over the years he has sung in a barbershop quartet and done solos in oratorios. He knows music will always be a part of his life even after retirement.

Cohasset High and its students will always be in his heart as well.

While kids have changed over the years, especially in the amount of activities they participate in, he has seen a positive trend this year especially.

"A freshman group walked out of class this year and each one said thank you for the lesson. That's special. I haven't seen that in years, if ever," Marks said.

A privileged education

COMMENTARY

AUGUST ODDLEIFSON

Living in Cohasset is an educational privilege that we, as students and parents, should be explicitly aware of and respectful towards every single day.

This Thanksgiving I would like to reflect on just how fortunate we are in Cohasset to have a thriving school system and to live in a community that understands, supports, and delivers quality education. The state of education throughout the world varies from non-existent in some places to extraordinarily high quality in others and Cohasset has maintained its position in the far-top tier for quite some time. However, surprisingly, the recent public dialogue seems to suggest otherwise. After returning home this summer after my first year at college, I was startled by the negative sentiment I found in the Commentary and Letters to the Editor sections of the Mariner, in responses to Mariner articles online, and in statements made during School Board meetings. Furthermore, the effect of these commentaries was evident in conversations I had with school officials, administrators, and teachers who seemed dismayed at the community's new hostile stance. All things considered, it seemed to me that we, as a community, had collectively lost our "sense of place."

Let me expound upon the many positive aspects of our school system from both a global and local perspective. Most importantly, our children are safe from violence when they are at school: they don't worry about armed religious extremists or cruel, overt discrimination based on race, sex, heritage, or economic background. Our students and faculty are privileged to enjoy a hearty meal at lunchtime and our bathrooms are not only clean but also have both running water and flush toilets. Our classrooms are well-stocked with desks and books and our teachers are generous enough to spend part of their own salary to purchase additional teaching supplies. We have an exceptional athletic program that led to a major Boston Globe columnist wondering why we are "so good." Our music and arts program continues to flourish with major events and concerts throughout the year. Unlike many schools around the world, we have more than sufficient funds for everyday operations and multiple parent support groups supplementing those funds. Furthermore, we live in a society where we can work, earn money, and pay taxes, which our government, free of large-scale corruption, consistently funnels back into our community. And finally, our academics are undeniably strong; the Boston Magazine ranked Cohasset Public School to be 17th in the state (Out of 161 schools!).

When we choose to place our passion around what we think is wrong, we teach our children to passively accept their privileged position and ignore those millions of children around our nation and the world who receive little or no education at all and are exposed to a mere fraction of the opportunities. While there is great value in opinionated discourse, when we fail to articulate and emphasize how strong of an education our children receive, we risk our graduates underestimating both the value of their diploma and the relevancy of the skills they have spent the last 12 years perfecting. Living in Cohasset is an educational privilege that we, as students and parents, should be explicitly aware of and respectful towards every single day.

We are exceedingly fortunate to be surrounded by educators and parents who are truly concerned, above all else, about the quality of education their students and children receive and want nothing but the absolute best. This is a tremendous asset to our community. Without an inherent value placed on education, little can be achieved. However, if we are not careful, our positive passion for quality can easily deteriorate into a powerful force that weakens teacher and administrator morale and ultimately has a very negative effect on classroom activities and Cohasset's reputation outside our immediate community. The letter read at the Sept. 15th, 2010 School Committee meeting is certainly a relevant example.

It is imperative that we continue raise our concerns and feedback through constructive communication. By respecting and valuing the system, we strengthen it well beyond what simplistic protocol improvements or even major staffing changes could achieve. It is our responsibility, as citizens who care about education, our children, and the future of this country, to provide our schools with the respect, confidence, and subsequent strength that they both deserve and require to continue to uphold the high standard of academic quality that exists here in Cohasset.

In conclusion, I would like to thank our educational leaders in Cohasset— specifically, the school administration, faculty, and staff. I would also like to extend my thanks to the vast majority of community members in Cohasset who already provide the positive, constructive feedback and support that a healthy community school system requires.

Schools conducting 'Child Find'

The Cohasset Public Schools are in the process of conducting "Child Find," in accordance with state and federal laws. The school department is seeking Cohasset children with suspected disabilities who may be in need of Special Education services.

Evaluated will be children ages three through high school age who are unable to progress effectively in a regular classroom program due to a suspected disability in one of the following areas: developmental or intellectual delay; sensory, neurological, emotional, communication, physical, specific learning disability, or health impairment. Evaluation will also be arranged for young people ages 6-21 who have not graduated from high school and who are not now attending school.

Also, screenings for three-to-five year olds are held the third Friday of each month at Osgood School. Call the Integrated Preschool staff at 781-383-6117 for more information.

If you have a child who you suspect may have a disability or know a child with a disability who may be in need of special education services, call Dr. Denise Messina, Director of Student Services, at 781-383-6104 for more information about the referral process.

Harborview dedication honors special lady

Mary McNamara was a well-known Cohasset resident. She volunteered at St. Anthony's Food Bank and was always available for anyone who needed help.

The Board of Commissioners of the Cohasset Housing Authority and the members of the Harborview Tenants Association met on Oct. 20 to pay a special tribute to the late Mary McNamara; a longtime resident and a helping hand to all who knew her.

Taffy Nothnagle, chairwoman of the Authority, paid tribute to Mary and a poem was read in her honor. She then revealed a plaque just inside the Community Room commemorating the day's event. A luncheon provided by Mary's family and friends.

Also, landscaping was installed in front of the Community Building and a brass plaque affixed to a large stone that sat in the center of the plat was surrounded by beautiful perennials provided by her daughter, Marie Higgins. Following in Mary's footsteps, Marie, was always available to assist her Mother and was a welcome visitor helping residents to resolve some of their problems. The other family members, daughter Carol and son Bill, were instrumental in providing for and coordinating the dedication.

Mary McNamara was a well-known Cohasset resident. She volunteered at St. Anthony's Food Bank and was always available for anyone who needed help. Mary's was described as a "runaway train" in terms of great energy, which, at 83, was still going strong.

Cohasset welcomes the inaugural CHS Hall of Fame Class of 2010

The Cohasset High School Athletic Hall of Fame Committee is excited to announce the inaugural CHS Athletic Hall of Fame Class that was inducted on November 25-26, 2010.

The inaugural class consists of ten athletes, two coach/athletic directors, and two teams.

Yesterday, there was a Hall of Fame Recipients Reception in the CHS gym lobby, and then the football game. At halftime, the class of 2010 was officially introduced.

Today is the Hall of Fame Dinner at 4 p.m. at Atlantica Restaurant at Cohasset Harbor.

Dinner tickets are still available at the door at Atlantica. The cost is $60. Please call to make reservations.

The CHS Hall of Fame is on Facebook as well.

For more information about the CHS Athletic Hall of Fame and/or ticket information to the HOF Dinner please contact CHS Athletic Director, Ron Ford at 781-383-6103 or email: rford@cohassetk12.org.

2010 Cohasset High School Athletic Hall of Fame Class

Athletes

Gia Baressi, '83, Field Hockey, Basketball, Softball

Gia graduated from Cohasset High School in 1983 with the credentials that Hall of Fames are designed for. While at CHS she captained in three different Varsity sports; Field Hockey, Basketball and Softball. She began her senior year as the captain of the Field Hockey team. In basketball, as a junior she was the MVP of the girls' basketball team. The following season as a senior, she topped that accomplishment by being named MVP & Best Offensive Player. She was named to the Basketball Coaches Assn. All-Academic team as well as a Patriot Ledger All Scholastic and this is just in Basketball.

In Softball, as a junior she was a member of the 1982 team which won the SSL title and was named both a Patriot Ledger and a Boston Globe All-Scholastic. Her senior year she duplicated those accomplishments by again being named a two time All-Scholastic by both the Ledger & the Globe.

Upon graduating from CHS she attended Harvard University where she played both Field hockey and Softball. In Field Hockey as a junior, she was named All Ivy League second team and also a Boston 4 All Star. Her senior year she was voted captain, named her team's MVP, selected to the All Ivy League team and also a Boston 4 All Star.

On the diamond, Gia was an All Ivy League second teamer as a sophomore and junior. Her senior season she was named captain of the Softball team as well and also was named to the All Ivy League first team. Gia's love for the sport started way back in 1976 when she was the first female to play Little League Baseball in Cohasset. Her final year of Little League she was a unanimous choice for the All Star team.

Marina Buckley, '76, Track and Field

Marina Buckley, CHS '76, was not only an outstanding track and cross country runner, but she was a pioneer in girls' athletics on the eve of Title IX coming to fruition.

In cross country she was the only girl to run in the South Shore League her sophomore, junior and senior years. Her goal was to never finish last and she never did. In fact she qualified for the states each year and her senior year she finished third.

As a junior she led a group of underclassmen, including junior high girls on the first ever Cohasset High School Girls Track teams. The year before she ran with the boys and she cultivated enough interest as Title IX was being passed into law, that a girls team was formed and funded. In the first ever meet in the spring of 1975, Marina ran for 1st in the 440 and first in the mile versus Holbrook.. She ran undefeated that year in the mile.

In her senior year, Marina registered double wins in seven meets, again running undefeated not only in the mile but in the 440 as well. She led her team to a first place finish in the South Shore League Championship Track Meet, again garnering the top spot in the mile. She won the 2 mile at the Class C Eastern Mass Meet which qualified her for the State Finals which she ended up winning. 1976, by the way, was the first year the 2-mile was an event for girls in the State meet.

Coaches Ron Mazza and Tom O'Neil both acknowledged during those first two seasons that they could not have done it without the strong leadership and tireless dedication of Marina Buckley.

At CHS, Marina was also a National Honor Society Student and participated in Chorus and Band. After Cohasset she enrolled at Amherst College where she continued to run competitively through her freshmen year in Cross Country. She competed in the Nationals and the Florida Relays where she finished 4th. Throughout her high school and college career she was a member of the Liberty Athletic Club, the oldest women's running club in the United States.

Domenic Campedelli, '82, Ice Hockey

Dominic graduated from CHS in 1982 after four stellar seasons manning the blue line for the Cohasset Hockey team. Known for his tremendous slapshot, Dominic was a four time South Shore League all star, a Boston Globe and Patriot Ledger All Scholastic, the 1982 Hockey Night in Boston E-Mass Division II Defenseman of the Year as well as the MVP of his CHS team. In 1982 Dominic was drafted by the Toronto Maple Leafs in the seventh round of the NHL draft.

Dominic opted to attend Boston College where he was a member of the 1983 Beanpot champions and in 1985 played on the Eagles team which made it t o the final four of the NCAA.

In the 1983-1984 season Dominic was named the team's MVP, the following season Dominic set the record for most assist in a season by a defenseman. He also shares the Hockey East record for most points by a defenseman.

After his junior year at Boston College, Dominic turned pro after Toronto traded his rights to Montreal for a second round draft choice. Dominic also spent time in the Philadelphia and Edmonton organizations.

Dominic's pro career was cut short due to a severe back injury but he will always be remembered for his ability to take over a game while a member of Cohasset High School.

Bob Durkin, '87 Football

A member of the Cohasset High School Class of 1987, Bob Durkin graduated as the school's leading rusher with 2900 yards and the school's leading scorer with a total of 295 points. His career points record and single season mark of 191 points still stand today.

Durkin started for three years and led a resurgence in Skipper football that saw the team win 22 games, the school's first league title in 26 years, and a top 10 ranking for Division IV in the state of Massachusetts.

Head coach Phil Pisano, a 35-year veteran of high school football coaching, called Durkin one of the top five football players he observed in his career. He remarked that Durkin was a complete running back, a powerful runner with impressive agility, quickness, and outright speed.

As team captain during the 1986 season, Durkin helped the squad to a 9-1 record while leading the state of Massachusetts in scoring with 191 points. He reached the end zone 26 times, kicked 26 extra points, and made 3 field goals during this run. He also rushed for 1,419 yards on 205 attempts for an average of 6.9 yards per carry.

Durkin was a South Shore League All Star, Patriot Ledger All Scholastic, Boston Herald All Scholastic, Boston Globe All Scholastic, High School Football Foundation Hall of Fame Scholar Athlete, and was the first Skipper selected to the Shriner's All Star Game.

Off of the gridiron, Durkin was a High Honors student, class officer, member of the Student Council, member of the National Honor Society, and National Merit Scholar.

He continued his football career while attending Harvard University.

Bryan Edwards '88, Basketball

From the class of 1988, Bryan Edwards is recognized as one of the best all-time Massachusetts High School Basketball players and is a member of the Massachusetts High School Basketball Hall of Fame.

A four time South Shore League all star, Bryan was also selected as a Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic

What is your best strength on the football field?
My mobility most likely.

Why did you start playing football?
I started to play because I wanted to. I always loved football and played for SciCoh and wanted to continue playing.

What does this Thanksgiving game mean to you?
It means it's my last time I get to play at Cohasset on the turf and my last chance to play high school football.

Do you plan or to play in college, either football or another sport?
I plan to play lacrosse.

three times and Boston Globe All Scholastic twice. He led the Skippers to four South Shore League titles, four post season MIAA tournament appearances, three Sectional Championships and two State Championships, including a 25-0 undefeated season in1984-85

Most notably, Bryan set the Massachusetts High School scoring record with 2563 points for a high school career, a record that had stood for over 10 years. Bryan went on to play for Boston College and James Madison University, and later played professionally in Europe

Bryan now resides in Florida

Paul Farren, '79, Football, Basketball

A two sport standout for Cohasset from the class of 1979, Paul Farren was a team captain for both Football and Basketball.

His senior year, he led the basketball team in scoring and rebounds, and took the Skippers deep into the post season tournament. Paul was selected a South Shore League All Star and a Patriot Ledger All Scholastic.

At Boston University, Paul anchored the offensive line for the Terriers, where he earned All Yankee Conference and All New England team honors.

In 1982, Farren received The Harry Agganis Award as the Teams Most Valuable Player. Paul was inducted in to the Boston University Hall of Fame in 1995.

Paul was drafted and played ten years for the Cleveland Browns, playing for coaches Marty Schottenheimer and Bill Belichick.

Farren was regarded as one of the National Football League's better offensive lineman, and twice earned the Brown's Lineman of the Year Award.

In 1989 Paul was presented the Gino Cappeletti Award, by the Quarterback Club of New England.

Paul resides in Cohasset and is a very active and strong supporter of Cohasset Sports.

Ray Jones , '93, Football, Wrestling, Track and Field

Ray Jones 1993 graduate of Cohasset High School played football, wrestled, and ran track.

As football player Ray gained 1,000 yards in both his junior and senior seasons. As a wrestler Ray was a New England finalist in 1992 and 3rd in 1993. He was voted most outstanding wrestler of the South Section in his senior year. As a track star Ray was the South Shore league sprint, hurdle and triple-jump Champion. He earned New England Finalist in the triple-jump in 1993.

As College athlete Ray continued to excel in all three sports at Trinity College in New Haven Conn. He was a four year letter winner in Football and gained 1,000 yards in his junior and senior season. He still holds several school and league records for all-purpose yardage and was named the ECAC co-player of the year and a Division 3 All-American in 1996.

In wrestling Ray won the New England Championship as a freshman and went on the reach All-American status twice as a collegiate wrestler. In track and field Ray holds the Trinity College record in the triple jump at 47'5".

Ray now resides in Philadelphia, PA where he trains young athletes as a personal trainer.

Bill Morgan, '51, Basketball, Baseball

While at Cohasset High School, Bill was an outstanding athlete, lettering in both Baseball and Basketball. As a CHS Skipper, William was named three times to the Massachusetts All-Scholastic Basketball Team. Bill scored 1073 career points was a South Shore League record at the time.

He became the first Skipper to score over 1,000 points in his career. He also set two high school tournament scoring records by netting 44 and 55 points in consecutive years at the Boston Garden. Also a tremendous baseball player, Bill batted .470 for his high school career.

In addition to his athletic achievements, Bill excelled academically. He was salutatorian of the 1951 graduating class of Cohasset High School, and was voted Most Studious and Best Athlete by his classmates.

Jim Reidy, '90, Soccer

From the class of 1990, Jim Reidy is still the school record holder for career points in Soccer. With 88 career goals and 46 assists, Jim's scoring record of 134 total points has held for twenty years.

A four year Varsity starter for Cohasset, Jim was also a four-time South Shore League All-Star, a three-time Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic, and a two-time Boston Globe All-Scholastic.

In Reidy's four years, Cohasset had four South Shore League titles, three Sectional Championship titles and made it to the State Final game three years in a row.

Jim went on to play soccer for Williams College, where he once again was a four-year starter and earned All-New England honors. In his senior year, Williams made it to the Division 3 Final Four Championship game, and Reidy was named an All-American Jim and his Family now reside in Minnesota.

Walt Sweeney, '59 Football

Walt Sweeney was a 1959 Cohasset High School Graduate. He was a member of the 1957 undefeated football team and played basketball as well as track.

Walter went to college at Syracuse University where he play offensive and defensive end. He was one of the last collegiate players to do so.

Walt was drafted by the San Diego Chargers in the first round of the NFL draft.

Walt played on special teams his rookie season before becoming San Diego's starting right guard for the next 11 seasons.

Walt was a named as an all-pro a number of times. He started in 198 straight games at one point in his career.

Walt was a member of the Chargers 2 AFL Championship seasons.

Walt is also a member of the San Diego Chargers Hall of Fame. Walt resides in San Diego, CA.

Coach / Teacher/ Administrator

Clark Chatterton was a graduate on Cohasset High School in the class of 1959.

He played football, basketball, and baseball and was quarterback of the 1957 football team. He went on to play baseball at Springfield College.

Clark came back to Cohasset to be a teacher and coach. He took over as Athletic Director in 1982 following for his mentor and CHS legend Evie Dorr and went to become a legend in his own right. Clark served as AD right up until his passing in 2000.

During his 27-year tenure, he was named Massachusetts Athletic Director of the Year, guided Cohasset to numerous league and sectional titles, three state championships and a District C Sportsmanship Award. Clark also spearheaded the campaign to build the original Alumni Field and Davis Track in 1995.

Clark was named the Cohasset Citizen of the Year in 2000 and the South Shore League Team Sportsmanship Award was named in his honor.

For the past ten years the Clark Chatterton Memorial Fund has raised and donated over $100K for programs and projects in Cohasset in Clark's honor including the funding to kick off the CHS Athletic Hall of Fame.

Evie Dorr, Coach and Athletic Director, 1949-1982

Evie Dorr attended Boston University and was a standout football player, but a call to duty to serve in the US Military during WWII interrupted his career.

A devastating injury in Iwo Jima made Evie change course athletically. Although he couldn't run with the ball anymore, he became one of the nation's best kickers, winning the coveted Swede Nelson Trophy in 1947 as presented by the Greater Boston Gridiron Club.

Shortly thereafter, Evie descended upon Cohasset Public Schools, and in 1949 he accepted a position as Gym Teacher. He remained a loyal and steadfast fixture in the Cohasset Public Schools until his retirement in 1982.

He was also the Athletic Director, retiring from that post in 1973.

Evie coached football, basketball and baseball through the years. He guided the 1957 football team, which is being honored later tonight, to an undefeated season. He was football coach for 16+ seasons, highlighted by a much heralded 9-0 season in 1957, May Shore League Champs.

The class of 1960 honored Evie by dedicating their yearbook to him. They cherished his tireless dedication to CHS and athletics. His caring for all of his students made him a very special person in the eyes of those in the class of 1960.

Teams

1957 Football Team

It was 53 years ago that the first Cohasset High School football team went undefeated (9-0).

They outscored their May Shore League opponents 302 to 62, averaging over 30 points per game, including five shutouts.

Those who contributed to this special event are now referred to as the "57 Team".

The late Evie Dorr, assisted by Social Studies teacher, Pat Donahue and the new math teacher, Frank Guiliano, coached the players.

Known for having IQ's higher than their average weights, the players were: Co-Captains: Nat Towle and Eddie Figueiredo; Alan Ingram, Lawrence Figueiredo, Roger Pompeo, Arthur Pompeo, Greg Koval, Whitey Campbell, Dick Conant, Roy MacDonald, Ray Vanderweill, Clark Chatterton, Walter Sweeney, Wally McLarey, Fran Carey, Tony Emanuello, Charlie Henry, Kit Megathlin, Bruce Williams, Bernie Mulcahy, Ian Knowles, Clark Truesdell, Mike Hevey, Dick Scobie, Drew Quigley, Phil Tumey, David Lincoln, Ed Hunt, Bobby Tilden, Dennis Taylor, Richard Silvia, Kent Williams, Ed Davis, Stuart Pratt, Billy Conley, Joe Reynolds, Richard Pope, John Norton, George Littlejohn,.

Team Managers: Peter Barnicle, Dennis Taylor and David Smith.

Cheerleaders: Co-Captains: Janet Lincoln, Marjorie Silvia; Elinor Tower, Marie Anderson, Bonnie Edmonds, Glori Breining, Sandy Reid and Anne Chesworth.

Now, in 2010, this inspirational group is the first football team to be inducted into the Cohasset High School Athletic Hall of Fame.

1988 Girls' Basketball Team

The 1988 Girls' Basketball Team goes down in CHS History as the first ever girls' team state champions. The magical 25-1 season in 1988 capped an incredible five year run for Coach Bill Fallon's girls' basketball team in which the Skippers amassed 96 wins and only 22 losses, three South Shore League Titles, one State Finals appearance and ultimately the State Championship.

The 1988 team will not only be remembered for their Championship legacy but that they were an unselfish, hard working and "true team" in every sense of the word.

Cohasset's Martin leads RPI basketball

Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute sophomore and former Cohasset star Daniel Martin had a solid sophomore debut, scoring a team-high 12 points in the Rensselaer mens basketball team's win over Sage Colleges.

The Engineers are home again this weekend for the ECAV Tip-Off Tournament. RPI will face Lyndon State on Friday, November 19 at 8 p.m., then play Plymouth State or Paul Smith's College the following day.

The tournament will be played at East Campus Area. Live stats for the games can be found at http://www.sidearmstats.com/rpi/mbball/index.htm

Cohasset's Wise with Bowdoin in NCAA Div. III Soccer Championships

Cohasset's Will Wise was talked into joining the Bowdoin College soccer team after starting goalie Dan Hicks was injured.

Soon, Wise was in net pitching shutouts for the Polar Bears and will reap the rewards with a trip to San Antonio's Blossom Soccer Complex as Bowdoin advanced to the semifinals of the NCAA Div. III Soccer Championships.

Bowdoin (15-1-4) will face 19-1-4 Lynchburg on Friday at 2:30 p.m.

The Polar Bears have won four games in the Tournament to get to the semifinals.

If they win, they'll play Saturday in the championship game.

Wise went to the school to play lacrosse, which he helped Cohasset to a state title last year in.

As a goalie, he was in net for three shutouts as a starter at Bowdoin.

Don't get gobbled up by Thanksgiving feast

A Fresh Start Special by Lucie Rice

As many of you know, most Americans overeat during the holidays. From here until January 2, there are food temptations everywhere and lots of stress, which can make it harder to say no. So maybe there is a better approach to this whole issue of getting and/or staying healthy through exercise and diet. In fact, Thanksgiving provides a great opportunity to make real sustainable change. This Thanksgiving Day try to do a few of the following:

- Buy some healthier things this year, add simple vegetables that are healthfully cooked – carrots, green beans, mashed rutabaga, or turnip instead of mashed potatoes; healthier appetizers are another place to focus.
- After putting the turkey in, go for a walk – perfect family activity
- If you love to have a heaping plate on this day – choose big portions of turkey, vegetables, salads, and smaller servings of stuffing, mashed potatoes
- Don't approach the appetizer table hungry; eat something healthy and small for breakfast
- Eat the shrimp, veggies (even with dip) over stuffed mushrooms or crackers with cheese
- Drink one alcoholic drink and then have some water. It's easy to drink lots of calories in alcohol especially over a long day
- Offer to do the dishes or clean up. Not only will your family love it, it will get you moving
- If you love desserts and usually eat more than your share, try a small taste portion of each
- Shoot hoops with the kids or play touch football in the yard, stretch, or take a walk after dinner
- Make Thanksgiving Day the start of your new healthier life. Eat a healthy breakfast and walk by the leftover desserts the next day and out the door for another walk. Even better, start today after reading this article!

Fine time for a first goal

South Coastal Hockey League roundup

By Mark Ducharme
CORRESPONDENT

The Bruins' John Tracy of Hanover picked a fine time to score his first goal of the season in the South Coastal Hockey League.

Tracy broke a 1-1 tie with four seconds remaining to give the Bruins a 2-1 Classics Div. victory over the Rangers for their fourth victory in their last five games. Steve Anzuoni, who set up the Tracy goal scored the first Bruins goal in the second period, while Jay Parker of Hanover scored for the Rangers in the first period.

Both goalies, the Bruins Jim Stone of Pembroke and Hanover's Greg Smith, who was in net for the Rangers both played strong games.

Pembroke's Ken Wingate, Harry Mathews of Duxbury, Mike Stewart of Scituate and Ron DiCecca of Marshfield scored a goal each as the Red Wings held off the first-place Maple Leafs by a 4-3 score in a Classics Div. game.

Marshfield's Dave Denton, Jim Smith of Pembroke and Dave Salvaggio scored for the Maple Leafs.

Pembroke's Paul Lyons, Dave Howe of Duxbury and John Dunn scored two goals each as the Black Hawks broke out to an 8-0 lead and cruised to a 9-3 Classics Div. win over the Canadiens. Norm and Peter Racicot and Vin Joyce added a goal each and Kevin Ryan had three assists for the Hawks.

Pembroke's Mike Fahie scored two goals and John MacLellan scored a goal for the Canadiens.

In the Legends Div., Kevin Coyne of Marhsfield had a goal and an assist. Tom Williams had a goal and Mark Frano of Pembroke stopped 11 shots as the first-place Stingers posted a 2-0 shutout over the Saints.

Peter Cleary of Pembroke, Ray Degaust and Norwell's Patrick Reynolds had a goal each and Gerry DeLuca had two assists in the Toros' 3-1 Legends Div. victory over the Whalers. Paul Flagg scored the goal for the Whalers.

Marshfield's Tim Cruz scored two goals, Jay Faherty, Hanover's Mike Murphy, Norwell's Fred Bickford and Richard Bertone of Marshfield added a goal each in the Sharks' 6-3 Legends Div. win over the Crusaders.

Art Caron scored two goals and Mike Simon scored a goal for the Crusaders.

Inside the 6 – Soccer Power Rankings

Final 2010 Poll

The 2010 soccer season has come to an end, and the final rankings of the season reflect the team's performances during the postseason. Between all the teams in our region, we had four teams – two on the boys' side and two for the girls – reach their respective South Sectional finals. Another four teams reached the semifinals. Ranking the top six on each side proved a tough task to say the least. Congratulations to every team in our coverage area for fine seasons, which provided us with plenty of highlights throughout the season.

BOYS

1. Weymouth – The Wildcats obviously didn't want to end on a losing note, but it came in the Division 1 South Sectional finals to eventual Eastern Mass. champions New Bedford, a 1-0 loss on PKs. The most impressive stat during the postseason for Weymouth – the team only allowed one goal throughout its four games. The Wildcats finished the season with a 14-3-7 record.

2. Duxbury – Moving up one spot in the rankings was certainly well-deserved for the Dragons. The Duxbury boys, the No. 11 seed in Division 2 South, beat No. 6 Randolph and No. 14 Norton before losing to No. 2 and eventual sectional champions, Canton, 1-0, on a goal that came with 13 minutes left in the game. The Dragons ended 2010 with a 12-5-4 mark.

3. Braintree – This team wasn't even on the bubble for a number of weeks, and here we have the Wamps at No. 3, and rightly so. The No. 21 of 22 teams in Division 1 South, the Wamps went on a tear, beating Attleboro, Walpole, and Mansfield to reach the sectional semifinals where they lost, 2-1, to eventual Eastern Mass. champions New Bedford. Braintree ended the season with a record of 10-8-5.

4. Cohasset – A bubble team to end the regular season, the Skippers burst through and up to No. 4 in this week's Inside the 6. What happened between then and now? The Cohasset boys ran all the way to the Division 3 South Sectional finals, losing 1-0 to eventual Eastern Mass. champions Dover-Sherborn. On their way to the finals, Cohasset picked up its most impressive win in the semifinals, a 1-0 win on PKs that knocked off No. 1 seed Cardinal Spellman. Cohasset finished with a 16-4-2 record.

5. Silver Lake – Up one spot from No. 6 in the rankings, the Lakers had arguably the toughest run of teams in the Division 1 South Sectional tournament. They had to beat Wellesley and Franklin to reach the semifinals, and that's where they lost to the No. 1 team Inside the 6, Weymouth. The Lake capped off the season with a record of 13-4-5.

6. Norwell – This was the second year in a row that the Clippers drew a Tri-Valley team in the Division 2 South Sectional tournament, and for the second straight year, they lost in the first round. The No. 3 seed in Division 2 South, Norwell lost, 2-1 in overtime to Norton and finished the season with one of their best records (14-2-3) in school history.

On the bubble: Hingham, Marshfield, Scituate, and Hanover.

Previous ranking: 1. Weymouth, 2. Hingham, 3. Duxbury, 4. Norwell, 5. Marshfield, 6. Silver Lake

GIRLS

1. Duxbury – The Lady Dragons had two of the top playmakers in the state and one of the best keepers in the region, but it took more than three players to lead this team all the way to the Division 2 South Sectional finals. A complete team effort from the back line through midfield and up front helped Duxbury beat Scituate, Cardinal Spellman, and Dedham before losing in the finals to eventual Eastern Mass. champions, Medfield. The Duxbury girls ended a great season with a 16-4-2 record.

2. Plymouth South – This team started the preseason ranked No. 2 Inside the 6, and that's where Plymouth South finishes after an impressive postseason run, the best in school history. The No. 9 seed Lady Panthers beat No. 8 New Bedford in overtime before upending Silver Lake, which had just come off a massive win over Whitman-Hanson. South then advanced to its first-ever sectional semifinals. Despite losing there to Franklin, the Plymouth South girls had a phenomenal season, going 14-4-3.

3. Pembroke – The Lady Titans didn't exactly have an easy path to the Division 2 South Sectional semifinals. They had to beat a Tri-Valley League team and an Atlantic Coast League side that brought a lot to the pitch. In the first round, Pembroke beat Norton and followed that up with a PK shootout win over Sandwich. The girls lost in the semifinals to eventual Eastern Mass. champions, Medfield, and finished the season with a 15-5-3 record.

4. Norwell – The Norwell girls carried their momentum from a strong regular season right into the Division 3 South Sectional tournament where they wiped out Cape Cod Academy and Old Colony in the first two rounds, the Lady Clippers ran into a surging Carver team, a team that tied Norwell during the regular season. This time, Norwell won, advancing to the sectional finals, where it lost to Dover-Sherborn, capping a 17-4-3 season.

5. Silver Lake – Even thought the Lady Lakers didn't make a huge run in the Division 1 South Sectional tournament, it's what they did in the first round that still has people talking. Silver Lake beat Whitman-Hanson, the No. 1 seed in the tournament, No. 1 team in the state, and a team that hadn't lost at all up until that point. It may go down as one of the biggest upsets in the program's history. After losing to Plymouth South in the next round, Silver Lake finished the season with a record of 10-7-3.

6. Weymouth – The Lady Wildcats would've liked to have a better run during the postseason, but they did pull off an impressive win over Natick in the first round of the Division 1 South Sectional tournament. The No. 11 seed Lady Wildcats beat No. 6 Natick in penalty kicks to advance to the quarterfinals where they lost to Oliver Ames. The Weymouth girls finished with a 12-3-6 record.

On the bubble: Carver, Marshfield, Hanover, and Scituate.

Previous ranking: 1. Duxbury, 2. Weymouth, 3. Plymouth South, 4. Pembroke, 5. Marshfield, 6. Plymouth North

The Inside the 6 – Soccer Power Rankings are decided based on a number of criteria: record, strength of schedule, performance against teams in and out of their divisions, goals scored, and goals conceded. The public schools in our coverage area include: Abington, Braintree, Carver, Cohasset, Duxbury, Hanover, Hingham, Holbrook, Marshfield, Norwell, Pembroke, Plymouth North, Plymouth South, Rockland, Scituate, Silver Lake, and Weymouth. Check out your town's Wicked Local website to see the rankings and to comment on them, and feel free to email Ryan Wood at rwood@cnc.com.

Pitching in for Pie in Sky Bakeoff

Atlantica, once again, helping others

With holiday restaurant reservations flowing and dining room prep needs loaded to the rim, you would think most restaurants at this time would be out straight with last minute details of that first big Thanksgiving seating.

Yet Atlantica Restaurant has now for the ninth year straight donated its time, staff and effort to Community Servings Pie in The Sky Bakeoff.

Managing Partner Joe Campbell of Atlantica was busy baking the pies as his wife Janet Campbell and daughter Alyssa Campbell, along with many other interested staff volunteers, mixed the ingredients and pressed the pies in order to meet the pickup deadline for distribution throughout Boston.

For $25, the cost of a single pie, Community Servings will be able to provide a week's worth of free, home-delivered meals to a man, woman or child who is battling a critical illness such as HIV/AIDS, cancer, diabetes or MS.

Director of Events Michelle Scully said with a smile "It just feels right to give back at these times during the year" when asked what motivates the staff to pull together like this every year.

CEF continues its support for Cohasset Schools

The Cohasset Education Foundation announces that over the past four years, the organization has funded over half a million dollars of grants benefiting all of the Cohasset Schools. In addition, the CEF has raised over $400,000 in its endowment fund. The CEF recently added video links to its website at www.cohasseteducation.org to illustrate a sampling of the funded grants at each of the schools. Visitors to the website can see first hand the computer lab at the Osgood School, the Stem Lab at the Deer Hill School, the Middle School Engineering Lab and the High School Foreign Language Lab, the most recent and largest grant funded by the CEF to date.

The CEF's Annual Appeal campaign was mailed to Cohasset residents last week. This year, a group of supporters of the CEF and Cohasset schools pledged $20,000 in matching gifts. The CEF will receive this pledge if an additional $20,000 is raised by Dec. 31, 2010. This is an opportunity for donors to maximize their gifts to the CEF and to help fund much-needed grants in all the Cohasset schools.

Each fall, the CEF runs its Annual Appeal campaign. The Annual Appeal gives the CEF an opportunity to educate Cohasset residents about their mission and achievements. The goal of the CEF is to increase participation to their Annual Appeal and have residents recognize how important their annual donations are in helping the CEF deliver appropriate learning tools to Cohasset students and teaching staff.

This past year the CEF celebrated a major milestone. Through unprecedented community support, the CEF awarded its largest grant to date funding a $223,000 request for state-of-the-art language labs for the Middle/High schools. These two labs were funded and installed in less than a year.

In just four years, the CEF has awarded grants exceeding $514,000 and their endowment fund is worth over $410,000. Mary McGoldrick, President of the CEF states, "Donations to the CEF impact every Cohasset student every week. We are seeking to build on this momentum, and are currently evaluating this year's grant proposals from staff at Osgood, Deer Hill and the Middle/High schools."

For more information on the Cohasset Education Foundation or to donate to its Annual Appeal, you can visit their website at www.cohasseteducation.org.

BUSINESS

SBA loans rebound in Massachusetts

By Steve Adams
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

GARY HIGGINS/THE PATRIOT LEDGER

Custom Machine and Tool Co., Inc., a Hanover business that has received SBA loans this year. This company is using a loan to renovate a new building it bought and will move to later this month. Owner and President Robert Bennett, left, with Engineer John Croto, in his new space Thursday, November 11, 2010.

Robert Bennett is in a better position than many business owners in the current economic climate. His company, Custom Machine & Tool, has been expanding at a rapid rate in recent years and quickly outgrowing its Weymouth plant.

What Bennett didn't have was cash to pay for renovations to the new building he bought this year in Hanover. But a $150,000 loan from Eastern Bank under a Small Business Administration program is transforming a vacant warehouse into a machine shop that will begin operations later this month.

"Our problem is we're looking for money and there's no way (the bank) can repossess Sheetrock after it's on the wall," Bennett said. "The SBA gives (Eastern Bank) the catalyst to proceed with the loan without the risks associated with no collateral."

Across Massachusetts, increased SBA loan activity is helping stabilize the shaky economy.

Bay State businesses have received 1,979 loans totaling $356 million from SBA programs in the federal fiscal year that ended on Sept. 30, a 32-percent increase from the same time period in 2009.

Many businesses took advantage of falling commercial real estate prices to acquire properties or expand, said Robert Nelson, the state's district director for the SBA.

"With softening prices on commercial real estate coupled with extremely low interest rates, they are actually able to buy real estate that costs them less than rent," Nelson said.

Boston-based Eastern Bank was the state's top SBA lender in the past year, awarding 320 loans for $17.5 million. Despite the shaky economy, the bank has received steady demand from businesses charting expansion plans, said Joseph Bator, Eastern Bank's director of business banking.

One of the most popular programs, the 504 loan program, lets businesses borrow money for real estate and equipment. The program had a record-setting year in Massachusetts with 244 loans for $116 million.

Typical loans issued by Eastern Bank averaged around $100,000, with some topping $2 million.

"Usually it's a story where somebody's been an understudy going out on their own to form a start-up, or an existing business such as a corner store where someone else is buying and we have some history," Bator said.

The 504 loans are structured so that the bank takes out the first mortgage equal to 50 percent of the loan, the SBA puts up 40 percent, and the owner contributes 10 percent.

> Bay State businesses have received 1,979 loans totaling $356 million from SBA programs in the federal fiscal year that ended on Sept. 30, a 32-percent increase from the same time period in 2009.

A provision in the 2009 American Recovery and Reinvestment Act spurred more SBA loan activity by banks. It raised the federal guarantee on most SBA loans from 75 or 85 percent to 90 percent.

"What it did was it reduced the risks on the part of the banks, which gave them more incentive to make small business loans," Nelson said.

Funding for the program ran out in May, but the Small Business Jobs Act signed by President Barack Obama in September temporarily restored the 90-percent guarantee and added another short-term incentive, the waiver of fees which typically range from 2 to 3.5 percent of the loan value. Those provisions will expire at the end of the year, but they have already spurred more lending activity this fall, Nelson said.

Rockland Trust was the state's top lender by dollar amount of 504 loans in the fiscal year that ended Sept. 30, with 23 loans totaling $12.5 million.

Gerry Nadeau, Rockland Trust's executive vice president of commercial banking, said many borrowers were businesses that switched from leasing real estate to owning it.

"They're able to get a good buy on the real estate and 90-percen financing at low rates," he said "It's a very powerful tool."

Another SBA program, so called 7(a) loans, has awarde $235 million in loans to 16 Massachusetts businesses thi year, a 45-percent increase fron the previous year. The loans ca be used for a variety of genera business purposes, includin equipment purchases and deb refinancing.

"That program has been ver helpful for companies that hav been doing OK but need t restructure their debt," Rocklan Trust's Nadeau said.

Rockland Trust also awarded pair of loans to local car dealer ships to pay for vehicle inventory Previously, SBA loans for aut dealers were limited to real estat purchases, but the program wa expanded to help the strugglin auto industry this year.

Businesses also took advantag of a one-time program under th 2009 economic stimulus packag designed to throw them a lifelin in the economic crisis Massachusetts businesse received 134 loans totaling $ million under the America Recovery Capital loan program which was designed to help them repay existing debts.

Bennett, the owner of th Weymouth machine shop, sai he and his 15 employees expec to move into their new Hanove quarters by the end of November Their patented machine compo nents are being more widel adopted in the packaging manu facturing, semiconductor robot ics and automated lab sectors, s Bennett anticipates expandin his payroll as the business settle into the 25,000-square-foo space.

"It's a very popular product an it's in high demand, so we're expanding to meet the demand," he said.

Shipyard Holiday Market this weekend

The Launch at Hingham Shipyard and New England Open Markets announce the opening of the Hingham Shipyard Holiday Market on Saturday, Nov. 27, and Sunday, Nov. 28. More than 70 New England artists will be chosen to present an array of handcrafted products including jewelry, handbags, baby clothes, letterpress stationery, pottery, sculpture and more. With the SOWA market now closed for the season, lovers of art, gift ideas and more can find it all at the Hingham Shipyard Holiday Market.

Some vendors/artisans will include:

Artemesia Studio. Located in the Berkshires, Artemesia Studio uses recycled materials for their handcrafted clothing and accessories.

Big Sky Bakery. A Boston favorite, Big Sky is among the many food vendors appearing at the market. Big Sky Bakery is known for its custom made cakes and award winning breads.

More than 70 New England artists will be chosen to present an array of handcrafted products.

Summer House Soaps. Handmade soap from Cape Cod. Using only natural ingredients, Summer House Soaps offer a range of lotions and soap.

Coco & Ruby Makes 4. Created by the parents of young children, all clothing and accessories from Coco & Ruby are made from "upcycled" clothing and new fabrics to create one-of-a-kind pieces for kids.

Sassy Sauces. Located in Natick, Sassy Sauces has been featured at the SOWA Open Market. They create gourmet dessert sauces.

Shoppers can expect to find a gift for everyone on their holiday list. Located at the Hingham Shipyard, home to numerous restaurants and retail stores, the Hingham Shipyard Holiday Market is sure to be a popular South Shore destination. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission and parking are free to the public. Visit www.hinghamholidaymarket.com for more information, including artisan profiles and directions to the Shipyard.

Hingham Shipyard Holiday Market kicks off the month-long Winter Festival of the Hingham Shipyard. Also on this weekend, the South Shore Art Center @ The Shipyard will have artist demonstrations by area painters and holiday tree decorating at their new gallery exhibition at the Shipyard.

Christmas in the Square is Dec. 3 and 4

Santa is coming on Friday, Dec. 3 to the Christmas in the Square celebration, from 6 to 8 p.m. at the corner of Main and North streets. At about 6:30 p.m., the sound of wailing sirens will fill the air as the Hingham Fire Department's Quint truck delivers Santa. The jolly old elf and his entourage will make their way through the crowd to Santa's great armchair where he'll visit with children and listen to their holiday wish lists.

Free family fun will continue on Saturday, Dec. 4, with festivities from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. throughout downtown Hingham. Carolers will fill the streets with song. Free horse-drawn hayrides will leave from the corner of Main and North streets from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. On South Street, woolly alpaca from Maple Brook Farm will delight visitors at the Alpaca Suri shop. Holiday crafts and treats for children will be offered by the Hingham Recreation Department at the Sherwin Williams store. The Festival of Trees wonderland of decorated trees and gingerbread houses will return at Old Derby Academy.

Marriage between piano and voice

CONSERVATORY NOTES

MARK GOODMAN

You are invited to a musical party. Simply Scintillating, a Celebration of the Marriage between Piano and Voice will be presented by South Shore Conservatory on Dec. 5 at our Duxbury campus. I hope you can attend this festive celebration (RSVP not necessary), as it promises to be a wild time.

A recital like this would hardly be complete without the music of Gershwin, one of America's true geniuses of song.

Like any marriage, this one requires all the usual ingredients that make marriages work. Cooperation, listening, sharing of responsibilities and the occasional conflict ("you're too loud!"). When a singer and a pianist are making music together, they are really functioning "as one" – breathing at the same time, finishing each other's thoughts, creating something that could not exist without a true partnership.

Our piano and voice departments have put together a program that reflects the rich abundance of music for voice and piano, and runs the gamut of musical styles, "from Bach to rock." In between you will hear everything from German Lieder, operatic favorites, the American Songbook, Broadway and jazz (with a few piano solos thrown in to boot).

Let me give you a small preview. Bach will be represented by "Blute nur, du Liebes Herz," a beautiful aria from the Saint Matthew Passion, performed by Lorna Jane Norris, Voice Department Chair, and pianist Casey Hannan. Also from the German repertoire we will perform a selection of Brahms' Liebeslieder (love songs) waltzes, scored for a quartet of singers and two pianists. This is Brahms in his most lyrical, charming vein.

From the world of opera we will hear Bizet's beloved "Toreador Aria" from "Carmen," performed by rising star Andrew Garland and pianist HuiMin Wang. HuiMin later teams up with soprano Bonnie Pomfret to perform Rachmaninov's soulful "Vessienije Vodi."

A recital like this would hardly be complete without the music of Gershwin, one of America's true geniuses of song. I will play his lively transcription of "I Got Rhythm," one of several songs he arranged for solo piano. I will be joined by new faculty member Emily Browder singing "By Strauss, where Vienna meets Broadway."

This concert also features some major "letting of the hair down" as Emily is joined by Jimmy Craven and HuiMin for a rousing sing-along rendition of Tears for Fears' "Everybody Wants to Rule the World" (apparently a holdover from HuiMin's 80s dance club days). And Beth Macleod takes on the "supreme" challenge, singing "Stop in the Name of Love," backed up by Jimmy and the Beth-ettes.

In addition to this, there will be performances by Brad Fugate, Furong Gardner, Paul Hoffman, Eric Lane and Jennie Mulqueen, and I wish I had the time and space to describe every one of them. But maybe it's better to have a few surprises.

A free concert, Simply Scintillating will take place on Dec. 5, 4 p.m., at the Ellison Center for the Arts, 64 St. George St., in Duxbury. Join us after for conversation and refreshments. For more information, please visit www.sscmusic.org or call 781-749-7565, ext. 20.

Free horse drawn carriage rides Nov. 27

Bring family and friends to Downtown Hingham on Saturday, Nov. 27, for a horse-drawn carriage ride from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Clydesdale horses will make this a picture-perfect ride, and it's free.

Those attending should meet at the corner of Main and North streets for this holiday tradition. While downtown, visit Hingham's locally owned shops and restaurants, during Small Business Saturday.

Horse-drawn hayrides are made possible by Hingham Downtown Association and the generosity of the following local businesses: Hingham Journal, WickedLocal.com, Carolann's, Linden Ponds, Noble's Camera Shop, La Petite Maison, the Square Café, Talbot's, Tosca and Upper Crust Pizzeria.

For more information or weather-related changes, visit www.discoverhingham.com.

Christine Nava of Timberhill Stables in Kingston directs her horses during one of last year's hayrides in downtown Hingham.

PUBLIC HEARING ON BULLYING PREVENTION POLICY

A public hearing has been scheduled on December 1, 2010 at 6:30 P.M. The hearing will be held in the Community Meeting Room at Cohasset High School. The purpose of this meeting is to invite public comment as the law requires, on the recently drafted Cohasset Public Schools' Bullying Prevention Policy and the Bullying Prevention and Intervention Plan.

The policy and plan were both developed this fall with input from teachers, counselors, administrators, and the district's legal counsel. They were drafted in accordance with the language of the law: M.G.L. c71, s370 An Act Relative to Bullying in Schools, signed into law on 5/3/2010.

The draft plan and the policy can be found at www.cohassetk12.org under the Health and Wellness section. Those individuals who wish to be heard on this issue are invited to attend.

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
NOV. 29, 2010

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Don't feel sheepish about looking to spend more time with that special person during the upcoming holidays. Do it because it's the right thing to do.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Never mind letting misunderstandings repair themselves. Consider speaking up while the healing process can be shorter and sweeter and leave fewer scars.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Romance is easily awakened in the Geminian heart, especially around the happy holiday season. So go ahead and make those plans with that special someone.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Moon Children can glow with their own inner light as the holiday season magic takes hold. It's a very special time for Cancers and Libras together. Enjoy.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) It's a good time for you fabulous Felines to take pleasure in your special gift for, well, taking pleasure! Look for this holiday season to give you every reason to purr.

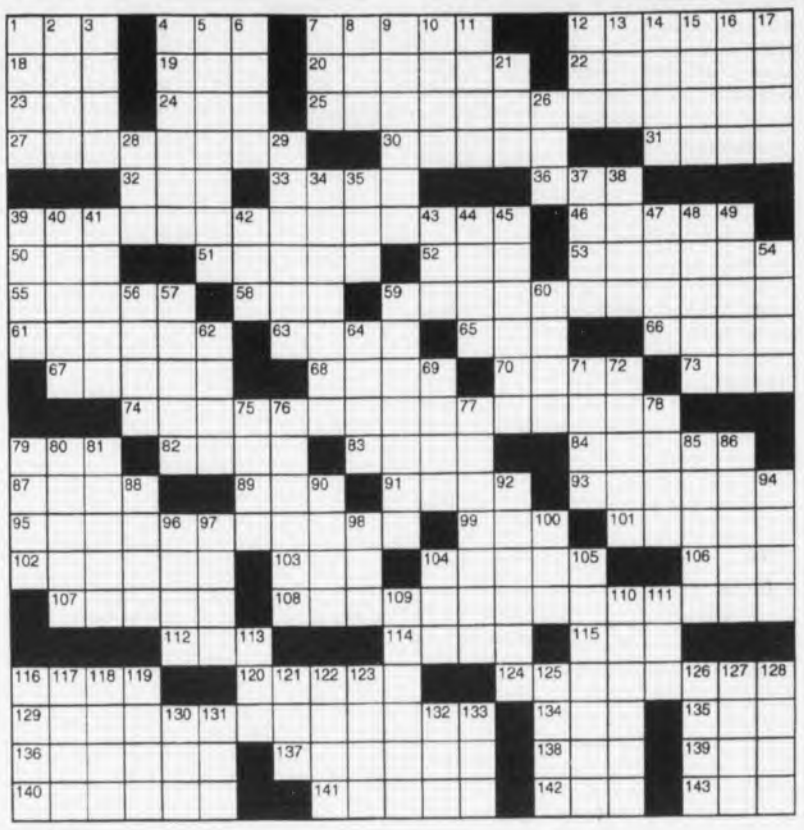
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) This is a good time to let others who are in your life get a little closer to you. You'll both find out what you've been missing for far too long.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Open up your eyes and see some welcome surprises you've missed or overlooked for too long. What you find can lead to other favorable changes.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) What you expect to be potentially troublesome might simply be especially challenging and well worth your efforts to check out. Good luck!

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A friendship might not seem as trustworthy as you'd like. OK. Ask your questions, get your answers and settle the matter once and for all.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A family situation moves into a new area because of (or, maybe, thanks to) some decisions you might have felt you could not avoid making.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You could be cutting it very close if you hope to make those holiday plan changes in time to avoid problems. Get a friend or family member to help.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Friends show how important you are to them. Keep these precious relationships thriving. They affect much that will happen to the fabulous Fish in the new year.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Drew D'Agostino at Beechwood Congregational

Beechwood Congregational Church, 51 Church St. in Cohasset will host aspiring Christian musician Drew D'Agostino on Sunday, Dec. 5, during the 10 a.m. service. Drew is a singer/songwriter from Long Island, N.Y., and he has recorded 20 Christian songs and has written more than 100. He has performed in the past with Casting Crowns and is currently studying business at Northeastern University while performing at various churches in the New York/New England area.

Drew will perform at Beechwood during regular church service at 10 a.m. followed by fellowship in Merritt Hall. For more details, visit www.beechwoodcc.org.

Celebrate 'from Bimah to Broadway' Dec. 5

Cantor Steven Weiss of Congregation Sha'aray Shalom, 1112 Main St., Hingham welcomes Cantor Seth Warner from St. Louis, Mo., Cantor Nancy Kassel from Atlanta, Ga., Cantor Rosalie Will-Boxt from Kensington, Md., and Cantor Diane Yomtov from Buffalo Grove, Ill to join him as they share their favorite music from sacred to good old Broadway at 7 p.m. Dec. 5.

The music will span the scope of time from "Fiddler on The Roof" to "The Prince of Egypt" with of course some Chanukah songs as well. They will be accompanied on the piano by Judy Cole of Atlanta, Ga.

There will be a patron reception beginning at 6 p.m. as well as a dessert reception for all immediately following the concert.

The community is welcome and tickets are available in advance by calling 781-749-8103 or at the door.

Spiritual enrichment programs at Abbey

This fall and winter Glastonbury Abbey will offer a new educational format, a series of spiritual talks and open discussions. Most people did not experience this opportunity when religion first entered their lives. This is an opportunity to explore the history of the Church, the richness of spiritual teachings through Scripture, the relevance and daily application of spirituality, its emotional connections and the place of sacred music in personal and communal relationships to God.

The Abbey provides a spiritual environment to learn, discuss and reflect on the depth of one's spiritual roots. The focus of these Spiritual Formation gatherings is to gain insight into one's own spiritual identity today, create or enhance inner spiritual awareness, and seek knowledge not available during one's early years. Glastonbury Abbey offer courses, lectures and retreats to deepen knowledge of theology and sacred scripture, and to provide opportunities for personal spiritual growth.

The following talks and discussion will be presented by the monks and laypersons in the community of Glastonbury Abbey:

• Dr. John Sheff, "Mental Health/Spiritual Health: A Psychologist's Perspective," will take place Tuesday, Jan. 11, 9:30 to 11 a.m.; or Jan. 11 from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

• Br. David Coakley, OSB, "Holy Clamor and Sacred Song: Our Emotions, Our Inhibitions and Our God," will take place Tuesday, Feb. 1, 7:30 to 9 p.m.; or Thursday, Feb. 3, 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Suggested donation is $20 per class.

Classes given by Fr. Andrew Mark Quillen, OSB will include:

• "An Introduction to Wisdom Literature." Classes will take place Wednesdays, Jan. 12 through April 13, 7:30 to 9 p.m., on Thursdays, Jan. 13 through March 31, 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Suggested fee for the Fr. Andrew's classes is $125 per course.

For more information concerning retreats, Lenten Reflections or the Listening to Other Voices lecture series, refer to the Glastonbury Abbey website at www.glastonburyabbey.org or call 781-749-2155 and ask for the Retreat office. Glastonbury Abbey is at 16 Hull St., Hingham.

Buttonwood Books sponsoring Book Angel Program

Buttonwood Books & Toys, Shaw's Plaza, Route 3A, Cohasset, is sponsoring its annual Book Angel Program to benefit local children. The goal of the program is to promote literacy and give the gift of reading to a local child. The book angel selects an angel from the tree in the store and buys a book for the child described on the angel. Buttonwood will give a 15 percent discount on the book and deliver the book to the appropriate agency.

Program recipients are Wellspring in Hull, Friends of the Homeless in Weymouth and Blue Hills Healthy Families, serving the South Shore. This is the 17th year Buttonwood has sponsored the Book Angel Program and the need is great this year. About 200 books were donated last year. The program will take place through Dec. 23.

For more information, call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665.

Coolidge brings comedy to Broadway

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Jennifer Coolidge will appear in "Elling" at the Ethel Barrymore Theatre in New York City.

Actress Jennifer Coolidge plays not one but four roles in the new Broadway comedy "Elling" – which opened at New York's Ethel Barrymore Theatre on Sunday – adding to the South Shore native's ever-increasing catalogue of memorable characters who are one part loon, one part goddess, all parts appealing. For the busy Coolidge, it was the lure of a good script that brought her back to Broadway for the first time since 2001's Roundabout Theatre Company revival of "The Women."

"My reaction after reading the play for the first time was that it didn't remind me of anything else, which is a very good thing," said Coolidge over a recent post-show supper at a midtown Manhattan restaurant, where she not only discussed her current project but also offered up spot-on, hilariously cross-eyed takes on Bravo's "Real Housewives" from Atlanta to Beverly Hills. "It was the story of 'Elling' that really drew me to the piece. I like that it is very hopeful and sweet, and also very funny. From our first previews, people in the audience have been howling with laughter."

The play – a new English translation by Simon Bent, based on the novels by contemporary Norwegian storyteller Ingvar Ambjornsen as adapted for the Academy Award-nominated film and stage by Axel Hellstenius and Peter Naess, and being directed on Broadway by Tony Award winner Doug Hughes ("Doubt") – has even kept Coolidge checking in to see what the audiences are enjoying. "When I'm not on stage, I watch the play from the wings, and I always end up listening to and enjoying every word." All the while, she has also been developing both respect and fondness for her co-stars, including film actor Brendan Fraser ("The Mummy" trilogy, "Gods and Monsters," "School Ties") and Tony Award winner Denis O'Hare ("Take Me Out," HBO's "True Blood"), who play mismatched but devoted roommates who meet in a mental hospital and go on to share an Oslo apartment.

Norwell native Jennifer Coolidge.

"Brendan Fraser is a big movie star and he is making his Broadway debut, but he didn't come in with even one ounce of attitude. He has been just wonderful from day one. Brendan has this great star dressing room but he offered it to me instead, because I have so many costume changes. I did want it, of course, but I declined and decided that instead of taking it, I would just appreciate the kindness of his gesture. And Denis O'Hare is just hilarious in this. He is truly an amazing actor. Denis went all the way to Norway to research his character and he has been ready to go since our first rehearsal."

Coolidge – who spent the first three years of her life in Cohasset before her family moved to Norwell – is best known to film fans, of course, for her roles as the bending and snapping manicurist in "Legally Blonde," Stifler's amorous mom in "American Pie," and the bodacious blonde poodle owner in "Best in Show." In her latest acting assignment, Coolidge plays a stern psychiatrist, a comely waitress, a pitch-perfect poetry slammer, and the many-months-pregnant-by-another-man girlfriend of Fraser's sweet-tempered character and thorn in the side of his obsessive-compulsive and ever-present poet friend, Elling (O'Hare).

"I really like the message here because it is one we can all understand so well. We've all had a really strange neighbor or someone else in our life who dressed like a clown or was just generally very odd. But then we see that person with his or her boyfriend or husband and we realize that there really is someone for everyone. The characters in this play may be an odd group, but they very much need each other. That feeling of being needed is something that always matters in life. And when someone looks at you like you're it, well that really means something."

Coolidge has had appreciative audiences looking at her since she appeared in Norwell High School productions like "The Madwoman of Chaillot" and "Three Sisters." Currently single, with three rescue dogs to keep her company, Coolidge divides her time between homes in Los Angeles and New Orleans. Her current temporary relocation to New York may turn permanent, however, and not just for professional reasons.

"If you are a single woman, L.A. can be the death of you. I've been single for two years now and I spend a lot of my free time alone just looking at the view from my house. I lived in New York at the very beginning of my career and I think it may be time now to come back to the East Coast. In New York, there is so much more going on all the time. The odds of having a boyfriend are just much better in New York. You can really have a magical life in New Orleans, too, because there nobody wants anything from you."

What the one-time Emerson College theater arts major had wanted this year was to spend the holidays with family in Massachusetts.

"At first when I got this role, I thought, 'Great, I'll be in New York so I'll be able to go home for Thanksgiving and Christmas.' With eight shows a week, though, that just won't be possible. My sister, Susannah, is on the West Coast, but my father, Paul, and brother, Andrew, still live in Norwell. They're both coming to New York to see the show this fall so we'll get to spend some time together then."

In the meantime the actress, who did her stand-up comedy act at Boston's Wilbur Theatre in February, will have to content herself with reminders of home.

"Not long after I arrived in New York to do the play, I was at a Chelsea street fair. I was looking at all these great handcrafted items when I noticed a dog collar with 1960s-era dog tags from Braintree. I knew the minute I saw it that I just had to have it."

Jennifer Coolidge will appear in "Elling" at the Ethel Barrymore Theatre, 243 West 47th St., New York, through March 20, 2011. For tickets and information, call 212-239-6200 or go online at EllingOnBroadway.com

JOYFUL NOISE HAS A LOCAL FLAVOR

Works by Boston's own Leroy Anderson kick things off

ATLANTIC OVERTURES

ROY HARRIS

The French horn section of the Atlantic Symphony Orchestra will be much in evidence at the Joyful Noise concerts on Dec. 4 and 5.

There are lots of reasons to attend the Atlantic Symphony Orchestra Joyful Noise concerts – the traditional holiday music fest presented Saturday evening, Dec. 4, at Braintree's glorious Thayer Academy Center for the Arts, and again the next afternoon at St. Anthony's Church in Cohasset.

But I can tell you my reason in two words: Leroy Anderson.

Longer works by other classical composers – Ravel and Stravinsky – may seem to dominate the program. And some in the audience will be drawn by a carol sing-along that fits so well this time of year. When ASO Music Director Jin Kim decided to open with Anderson's "Christmas Festival" and timeless "Sleigh Ride," though, as the saying goes, "he had me from hello."

I'm an Anderson fanatic. For me, growing up in a musical family in the St. Louis suburb of Webster Groves – my mother was the neighborhood piano teacher – Anderson's work captured the bright and delightful side of modern American concert music. Others thought so, too. His charming "Blue Tango" hit No. 1 on the Billboard charts, and at pops concerts around the U.S., "The Syncopated Clock" quickly became a standard.

Still, it was during the holiday season, in the '60s, that Anderson really held sway for me. Each year my high school choir director paired up boy and girl singers for memorable arm-in-arm moments singing "Sleigh Ride." The partner of this shy tenor was the enchanting Beverly Quist. Sigh. (Bev, where are you now?)

Other Leroy Anderson numbers remain equally evocative in my life. "Trumpeter's Lullaby," for example, never fails to summon thoughts of my father. Dad, you see, never played a musical instrument in his life – until the age of 50, when out of the blue he decided to take up the trumpet. His goal: to play Anderson's sad, beautiful lullaby, along with the rapid-fire "Bugler's Holiday." (The latter posed a special challenge for a beginner, though, requiring as it does the horn's dreaded triple-tonguing technique.)

My own personal favorite was always "The Typewriter Song." Once for the ASO Pops Concert, I actually argued to Maestro Kim that my typing skills should qualify me as soloist for his performance. After all, I'd hammered keyboards for more than 30 years as a newspaper and magazine reporter. To my chagrin, the conductor chose for the role one of his young percussionists – who likely had never seen a typewriter before, let alone "play" one. (Oh well, maybe next year; the Pops Concert will be May 1, at Thayer. Are you reading this, Jin?)

What does our conductor think of Anderson's music? "I'm an avid fan," he says. "The things I appreciate most are its sincerity, clarity and the unpretentiousness within it. I think that is why his simple yet very innovative works resonate with so many listeners of all ages."

Especially mine.

Many of the native New Englander's most familiar works were written for the Boston Pops, where the Harvard-trained Anderson was the long-time composer-in-residence. (He died in 1975, at 66 years of age.) It was he, as much as Arthur Fiedler, who brought the Pops much of its fame. Leroy Anderson himself, though, was an unassuming man who seemed uncomfortable in the spotlight of the Ed Sullivan Show and other national appearances. In a documentary made about Anderson a few years ago, Boston Pops trumpeter Roger Voisin delivered an especially fitting tribute to the composer. "He wasn't a show-off, and didn't blow his own horn," said Voisin. "He let his music do that."

Come and hear the glory of Leroy Anderson – with his famous whip-crack and horse-whinny horn – as the ASO puts Anderson's sleigh through its paces.

An update for Angels

A recent edition of "Atlantic Overtures" discussed the importance of "angels" stepping up to support arts groups like the ASO, which depend on individual donations. Well, a month after the Oct. 16 Opening Night concert the orchestra's annual appeal had raised $38,000 in donations. Pretty good. But with the annual budget being $350,000, it is just a start. Supporting live professional classical music on the South Shore: another reason to come on out to Joyful Noise.

Roy Harris of Hingham is serving as co-president of the board of the Atlantic Symphony Orchestra, along with Vicki Quinn. To support the ASO, contact Executive Director Ronald Vigue at 781-331-3600, or visit:www.atlanticsymphony.org.

The Two Atlantic Symphony Orchestra "Joyful Noise" performances take place Saturday, Dec. 4, 7:30 p.m. at Thayer Academy Center for the Arts, 745 Washington St., Braintree, and Sunday, Dec. 5, 2 p.m. at St. Anthony's Church, 129 South Main St., Cohasset

Civil action

Neighbors take town to court over water tank access

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

A group of 10 taxpayers have taken civil action against the town in an effort to stop an access road off Reservoir Road and a lease contract with a cell phone company.

The legal action comes about two months after attorney and Cohasset resident Virginia Brophy made a presentation to the Board of Selectmen on the same issue. Brophy is now representing the 10 taxpayers, who are all Reservoir Road or Pleasant Street residents.

Under state law a group of 10 taxpayers is allowed to file legal action against the town if they anticipate the wrongful expenditure of town funds, Brophy said. The civil action, filed in Norfolk County Superior Court, seeks court intervention to stop the alleged wrongdoing.

The action seeks to stop the town and the Water Commission from taking any action in regard to the Bear Hill water

At Ellington Field's Hangar 276, NASA astronaut Steve Bowen STS-132 mission specialist, speaks to a large crowd of visitors at the crew return ceremony for space shuttle Atlantis' final scheduled mission.

Astronaut to land in Cohasset

Bowen to visit schools Tuesday

By Jill Michaels
CORRESPONDENT

Astronaut Steve Bowen still remembers receiving an e-mail from a Cohasset second grader in August, routed to him through several people.

Her wish, and more, will be granted: Bowen will visit the Joseph Osgood School and Deer Hill School and Cohasset Middle-High School next Tuesday.

Bowen and his five STS-132 astronaut crewmates launched aboard space shuttle Atlantis on May 14 and landed on May 26. During Bowen's second EVA, or spacewalk, he and Michael Good changed out four of the six 375-pound batteries on the International Space Station's Port 6 truss, one of the mission's major priorities.

The Cohasset Mariner spoke with Bowen via telephone this past Tuesday — by coincidence, the two-year anniversary of his first shuttle landing.

"I look forward to saying hello to a few people. It's always exciting to get back to Cohasset," said Bowen, who grew up in town.

He explained: "It's much different to talk to people in person, instead of through the newspaper. My story is better, more real."

The astronaut joked that he enjoys talking to people who aren't immersed in the space program, unlike those in Houston, his residence for the last 10 years. "It makes me appreciate what we (astronauts) have been allowed to do."

Earlier this year, Bowen stated: "I love coming home (to Cohasset) — the environment, the geography. I appreciate any opportunity to go back. It's a lot of fun."

Cohasset Students in Anticipation

Janet Sheehan, principal of the Joseph Osgood School, wrote via e-mail: "Our students are definitely looking forward to Steve Bowen's visit next week."

She explained: "Like many districts, we have adopted initiatives to increase STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) opportunities for our students.

"Thanks to the generosity of our parents and their fundraising efforts, each of our

Teacher who quit over Facebook posts getting unemployment

School department is appealing the matter

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The Cohasset Middle High School program supervisor who resigned last summer after disparaging remarks about the Cohasset community were found on her public Facebook page is receiving unemployment compensation.

In mid-November Supt. of Schools Dr. Denise Walsh confirmed that Dr. June Talvitie-Siple had sought and is receiving unemployment benefits. However, the school department has taken the position that Siple is ineligible to collect unemployment, and the matter has been appealed.

Siple drew national media attention in mid-August when parents found Facebook posts calling kids "germ bags" and the residents of Cohasset "arrogant and snobby." After confirming Siple wrote the posts and hearing no remorse or apology in request for an explanation, Walsh – who was

by Alan Carney, Director & Jennifer Moran, CSA, Community Liaison

A FRIENDLY REMINDER

Most seniors who are "aging in place" require medications of some sort to be taken on a daily basis. Although a non-medical home healthcare aide is not permitted to dispense and administer medications or determine the time and dosages for the client, he or she can offer valuable assistance by providing the senior with medication reminders. It is important that medication be pre-dosed and placed in pill containers. This is usually done by a family member or visiting nurse. The aide can gently remind the client to take the medications when it is time to do so. If the client refuses to take the medicine for any reason, the aide can alert the healthcare service.

Reminding your loved one to take medications can be just another worry on the long list of daily chores that can take over your day. That's why, if you have a parent who is aging in place, you should call our office to find out how we can help. Our caregivers can lift that burden off of your shoulders, as well as take care of other day-to-day tasks like grooming, bathing, dressing, meals and light housework. You will feel better knowing that your loved one is getting the care and the medication that they need. Call 781-878-2994 today. Our address is 145 Washington St., Suite 11. In-home help for Massachusetts seniors.

P.S. For seniors, many hospital admissions are the result of the incorrect use of medication.

Schools handling student discipline

No criminal charges sought after field vandalism

The incident drew the attention of WHDH Channel 7, which came to town to interview residents and students, and there were plenty of bloggers responding online.

The school department is not going to press charges against three student-athletes who vandalized the back practice field following the 36-12 Cohasset High Thanksgiving Day football victory over Hull last Thursday (Nov. 25).

After a witness called, Cohasset police responded to the rear practice field at the middle-high school at about 1:15 p.m. on Thursday (Nov. 25) in regards to three vehicles that were reportedly driving on the field and damaging the turf. The suspect vehicles fled the scene prior to the arrival of responding patrols, police said.

Investigation at the scene determined that the vehicles may have been associated with the Thanksgiving Day football game between Cohasset and Hull. Police obtained images of the vehicles from the school video surveillance system.

On Saturday (Nov. 27), several readers of Patriot Ledger and visitors to the Ledger and Cohasset Mariner websites sent police information about the identity of those involved.

Police then identified the suspects as three Cohasset high seniors from the football team: two 17 and one 18 years of age.

Police said the victim in the case (the Cohasset School Department) does not want to press charges.

Lt. William Quigley said school system will deal with these three students via their code of discipline and there would be no criminal charges at the victim's request. Police did not release the boys' names because no charges are being filed.

Quigley said the boys admitted to damaging the field but offered no explanation as to what they had done.

School officials cannot discuss the students or any disciplinary action due to privacy laws. Principal Joel Antoloni said school protocols are being followed.

The incident drew the attention of WHDH Channel 7, which came to town to interview residents and students, and there were plenty of bloggers responding online.

One blogger on the Cohasset Mariner website (www.wickedlocal.com/cohasset) tried to put the incident into perspective: "Why doesn't everyone just chill out? It's just grass. No one was hurt, no one was harshly offended...it was just a few kids celebrating their last football game and going out with a bang."

Facility fee increase tabled

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Selectman Leland Jenkins said he would like to see a breakdown of the cost to run the Recycling Transfer Facility.

A $10 increase to the town's facility fee was discussed and tabled, once again.

Following up on a Budget Planning Group recommendation, the Board of Selectmen considered raising the facility sticker cost $10 across the board (for seniors and all residents).

All Facilities sticker would cost $60 instead of $50 (for seniors over 60 the cost would rise from $15 to $25).

The possibility of raising the facility fee was discussed and tabled in early November. It was brought back up again, but some of the selectmen reiterated their need to get more information before making a decision.

Selectman Leland Jenkins said he would like to see a breakdown of the cost to run the Recycling Transfer Facility.

"I don't think the dump is running at a surplus, but we should be taking action to bring (the cost and revenue) in balance," Jenkins said.

He felt the $10 increase felt arbitrary without knowing the actual cost to run the facility the fee is meant to support.

Selectman Paul Carlson agreed the information would be helpful. Carlson said time was on their side because stickers are not renewed until June 2011.

Selectman Fred Koed said he favored separate fees for the recycling transfer facility and the beach because they represented two different cost centers.

Adrienne MacCarthy of Doane Street called for "equity" with the facility fee and called for the removal of the "senior discount." Instead she said those unable to pay the fee due to financial constraints should be offered an alternative, whether it's a discounted fee or waived fee.

"We are becoming a fee for service town, as most communities are. Just because one member of a household is 65 years old they get a discount? It's just not equitable," MacCarthy said. "There are many people in this town, whether they are 65 or 35 who just can't afford a sticker. There should be a mechanism for them."

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley said MacCarthy made a good point.

The Selectmen tabled the discussion until the information on the cost to run the RTF is brought forward.

Constantine's get OK for live entertainment

The Greek and Mediterranean restaurant Constantine's located on King Street (Route 3A) got the OK for live entertainment. The owner of the restaurant, Ralph Constantine, sought an entertainment license from the Board of Selectmen on Monday night.

Constantine said the entertainment would primarily be on Friday and Saturday nights and be something low key.

"I'm thinking a piano, a soloist or a duet, something low key that people can talk over," Constantine said. He hopes the addition of live music will keep patrons at the restaurant and bar later in the evening.

Selectman Lee Jenkins said he was not against the entertainment, but wanted the restaurant to remain attentive to noise and the abutting neighborhood (Fairoaks Lane).

POLICE BEAT

Business break-in, attempted break-in under investigation

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

The 65-year-old owner of a shop on Parking Way in the Town Parking Lot reported last week (Monday, Nov. 22) that someone had broken into his business over the previous weekend and had stolen the cash register. Police said the business was entered through a window; the screen was removed and a pane of glass broken. The cash register contained $150 in cash and some personal checks. Detectives processed the scene. Police sent out a state-wide administrative message to police departments should the cash register turn up in another jurisdiction.

Police believe the report of a suspicious man at 4:51pm on Monday (Nov. 22) on Stagecoach Way at another business could be related. The 43-year-old office there worker reported that a man was attempting to force his way into the business when she apparently startled him and he took off running toward the woods. Police considered bringing in a K9, but none were available from outside jurisdictions. The suspect is described as about 5 feet 10 inches tall, with a muscular build. He was wearing white colored clothing and a tan, canvas fishing cap, with the brim pulled down.

Police grant

Cohasset police have received a $2700 grant from the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security to conduct traffic enforcement to look for drunken drivers from Dec. 16-31, Sergeant Jeffrey Treanor wrote the grant application, police said.

Cohasset police can use $900 to cover overtime for each drunken-driving patrol during the mobilization period. The money will put an extra cruiser on the road just to handle drunken driving enforcement, police said. Additional mobilizations include Memorial Day weekend and the period covering the 4th of July.

OUI arrest

At about 2 a.m. on Thanksgiving (Nov. 25), Cohasset police received a BOLO (Be on the Look Out) from Hull about a hit and run motor vehicle accident on Atlantic Avenue in Hull. Police said the female operator of a Toyota Corolla had struck another vehicle and fled toward Cohasset. Officers on patrol found the car parked near 500 Jerusalem Road with heavy front-end damage and missing a front tire. The 25-year-old Marshfield woman operating the car failed field sobriety tests. She was arrested and charged with operating under the influence of alcohol and negligent operation, police said.

OUI arrest

Police stopped a 2009 Toyota pickup truck for speeding on South Main Street at 11:46 p.m. on Wednesday (Nov. 24). Further investigation revealed the driver, a 45-year-old Scituate man, was under the influence of alcohol. He was arrested and charged with operating under the influence of alcohol and speeding. His truck was towed.

Ex-boyfriend

The current boyfriend of a Cohasset woman, who was in the hospital, reported that her apartment had been entered without her permission by her ex-boyfriend who allegedly stole her wallet from her home and drank a bottle of vodka. Police are looking for the ex-boyfriend, a 44-year-old Braintree man, and want to speak with him. The report came in last Monday (Nov. 22).

Sheldon Road

A Sheldon Road resident reported last Tuesday (Nov. 23) that his neighbor was speeding back and forth in front of his house to annoy him. There have been ongoing neighborhood disputes on Sheldon Road.

Credit card fraud

A 54-year-old Cohasset man reported to police last week that there were three unauthorized charges for airline flights to Spain on his credit card. He cancelled the card when the charges were discovered; the credit card company is trying to determine how his account was compromised.

Parking lot

A woman's grandson reported to police last Wednesday (Nov. 24) that her 2004 Jeep Grand Cherokee may have been hit in the Shaw's parking lot last week after she was transported to the hospital from the plaza. Police said there are no suspects and the Jeep was not caught on video surveillance.

Storage shed

The storage shed on Milliken Field was broken into last week. Police received a call about the shed door being open at 8:43 a.m. on Thursday (Nov. 25). Investigation revealed the three-quarter inch plywood door had been forcibly pried open. Nothing appeared to be missing. The shed contained rakes and field maintenance equipment. There was a beer bottle near the scene, police said.

iPhone missing

A 20-year-old Cohasset woman went to the police station on Friday (Nov. 26) to report that her $200 iPhone was missing. She was not sure if it was lost or stolen, police said.

Unlocked vehicle

A 17-year-old Cohasset girl reported on Saturday (Nov. 27) that her Droid cell phone valued at $200 was stolen from her unlocked 1995 Ford Explorer that was parked in the Stop & Shop parking lot. The phone was apparently taken during the 20 minutes she was shopping at the plaza.

Mailbox taken

A 62-year-old King Street man reported that his mailbox valued at about $100 was stolen. He reported the theft on Saturday (Nov. 27). Police said the mailbox was there when he came home the night before but was missing the next morning. He told police there was nothing distinguishing about the beige-colored metal mailbox.

Weekend party

Renters, who were about to take possession of a house on Whitehouse Road, reported a potential break-in on Sunday afternoon. Investigation revealed a possible miscommunication with the owner. It appeared that the owner's young adult children, who may have not realized the house had been rented, held a party at the house over the holiday weekend, police said.

Toys for Tots drive under way

Cohasset police are joining with the Marines Corps in the annual holiday Toys for Tots campaign through Dec. 24.

New toys and games can be dropped off at the Cohasset Police Headquarters, on Elm Street, 24 hours a day, and seven days a week. Toys and games should not be wrapped.

For more information, call the police station at 781-383-1055.

vacationing abroad at the time – asked her to resign immediately from her $92,000-a-year science and math program supervisor position. Siple, who had held the position for about a year, complied with the request.

When contacted Siple referred the Mariner to her attorney, Beth Myers of the Boston law firm Rodgers, Powers & Schwartz.

"The comments that were made (on Facebook) were made in private and were comments made by people everyday when they feel frustrated at work," Myers said. "It was only when Facebook changed their privacy settings without proper notification that the page became public."

Myers said that the school department attested Siple had quit voluntarily.

"(My client) would not have quit if she hadn't been asked to and (under Massachusetts law) is therefore entitled to receive unemployment insurance," Myers said. "Although you can call it a resignation, it does not disqualify (Siple) from unemployment benefits. (This situation) cannot be categorized as a voluntary quit."

"It would be very sad to pay unemployment to someone who acted inappropriately as (Siple) did."
— Helene Lieb, School Committee

Both parties are currently waiting for a date to be set for the appeal hearing.

Myers said she could not comment on whether Siple was considering taking further action against the school department or Facebook. Siple has made several public records requests of the school department (see sidebar).

School Committee chair Helene Lieb said she was aware Siple was receiving unemployment benefits and that it was under appeal. The issue has not been brought up at an open session of the School Committee.

"I think Dr. Walsh actions were appropriate given the circumstances and (Siple) should not be receiving unemployment. (Siple's) actions were not professional and I hope justice prevails (in the appeal)," Lieb said in a phone interview. "It would be very sad to pay unemployment to someone who acted inappropriately as (Siple) did."

The School Committee is currently reviewing a draft policy that speaks to professional conduct, including interaction on the Internet.

Siple's public records requests

This fall Siple made several public records requests. On Sept. 16 Walsh provided Siple copies of e-mails about the Facebook comments between Walsh and Siple, and Walsh and the School Committee, as well as the School Committee meeting minutes of Sept. 1 (the first meeting held after Siple's resignation).

In October, a second request came from Siple via e-mail to Walsh and superintendent secretary Jean Callahan. She requested any communications between (high school social studies teacher) Jack Buckley and Walsh or the School Committee that mentions Siple by name or position. Additionally, Siple's e-mail requests any documentation received or exchanged with School Committee member Jeanne Astino concerning her (alleged) desire to have Siple fired mid-year or any documentation she possessed that she thought warranted such a request.

In response to the second request, Siple was provided an e-mail sent by Buckley to the School Committee and superintendent. Buckley, who also has children in the school system, was one of several parents who voiced concern to the school committee and administration about Siple after the Facebook posts were discovered.

E-mails from Astino are included as well, indicating she "(has) never said or written anything stating I had any desire to have Dr. Siple (or anyone else for that matter) fired."

When reached this week Astino said she did not know why Siple singled her out in her request and spent several hours combing her e-mails in search for any reference.

"I don't know what she thought she was going to find, but she didn't find it from me," Astino said.

Astino said she knew about Siple receiving unemployment as she is charged with reviewing the school department's bills before the School Committee signs off on them. As unemployment is a growing part of the budget – the fiscal 2011 budget a $240,000 line item for unemployment expense – she said she routinely asks to review the details.

"Unfortunately, (the school department) has no control over whether the unemployment claim is approved or denied," Astino said, adding she hoped the school would prevail in the appeal process.

A final public records request has an enclosure signed by Siple, but came via her attorney, Beth Myers, on Siple's behalf. It requests Siple's complete personnel record.

The Mariner submitted its own public records request to obtain the information about Siple's recent public records requests.

Neighbors take town to court over water tank access

tank cell antenna or access to the land surrounding the water tank. It also seeks to void the Pleasant Street easement reduction and the current contract between the town and AT&T.

"We want the court to issue an injunction to freeze everything in place until it can be reviewed," Brophy said in a phone interview Wednesday.

The civil action is the latest step in a disagreement between the Reservoir Road neighborhood and the Water Commission. Residents of the neighborhood have fought a change in the water tank access road for more than two years.

To understand the issue at hand background is required.

Since 1889 the Water Department has used a dirt lane off Pleasant Street to access its property on Bear Hill. Before the water tank was built in the mid-1960s, a reservoir sat on top of the hill. The access road ran diagonally located across the property at 100 Pleasant St. for decades with little fanfare.

"We want the court to issue an injunction to freeze everything in place until it can be reviewed."
— Virginia Brophy, attorney

Earlier this year that easement was altered during the construction and development of several plots of land. It was moved to another part of the property and reduced in size from 30 feet to 12 feet.

"Basically (we believe) the water department gave away an easement they weren't authorized to give away," Brophy said.

The civil action alleges the town had no authority to enter into a lease contract with AT&T to place antennas on the water tank, or use land surrounding the water tank. It also attests the town had no authority to give up more than 50 percent of the Pleasant St. easement without a two-thirds vote of town meeting.

A representative for the town has been summoned to the superior court in Dedham for a hearing on the matter next week, Tuesday, Dec. 7 at 2p.m.

Board of Selectmen chair Karen Quigley declined to comment on the substance of the civil action, but spoke in general terms about the legal action being taken against the town.

"It's certainly any citizen's right if they feel town government has not acted in a proper manner to take necessary steps," Quigley said in a phone interview. "It's a check and balance on us."

A complete copy of the civil action complaint is on file with the Town Clerk's office.

Selectmen's meetings to move to Tuesday

After the first of the year the Board of Selectmen will move their regular meetings to Tuesday night. The move is largely in response to the difficulty in parking in the Town Hall lot on Monday nights. A regular meeting next door at Second Congregation takes up much of the parking spaces leaving little room for residents looking to attend the Selectmen's meeting, especially if they are coming for an agenda item later on in the evening.

"It's important that there is public access to these meetings," said selectman Paul Carlson. "It's difficult to park, especially for senior citizens who might have to walk a distance."

Meetinghouse Pond renovation update

The makeover to Meetinghouse Pond, the centerpiece of the town common, is nearly complete. Merle Brown, one of the proponents of the project, said a pudding stone with a bronze plaque will be installed near the pond. The plaque will include a brief history of the pond and thank the citizens of Cohasset and the Community Preservation Committee for supporting and funding the project.

The renovation plans include creating a system where water can be re-circulated through the fountain. Right now, the pond is fed almost continuously with domestic water. More controls would be incorporated to limit the waste of water.

The current four-foot wide sidewalk would be extended an additional foot to accommodate a new retaining wall. The disheveled concrete stairs would be replaced with an ADA-compliant ramp for increased accessibility.

The bottom of the pond will be resurfaced with clay.

The last time the pond was rehabilitated was in the late 1980s. Brown said the contractor expected to be complete by next week.

Annual Town Meeting date set

In a break from tradition, the Board of Selectmen voted to move Annual Town Meeting to the end of April. In recent years, town meeting has been held the last week in March. This year, in order to allow for more time to prepare the budget and review the articles, Annual Town Meeting will be held on Saturday, April 30 at 9a.m. The town election will be held the following week on Saturday, May 7.

"This gives us more time to deal with the issues we are dealing with," said Selectmen chair Karen Quigley. A month later the numbers from the state will be firmer and the various boards will have ample time to review the various articles.

"Fiscal 2012 is not going to be an easy year (budget-wise) for Cohasset, or for any other town in the state. We need the extra time to bring the best information forward to the voters," said interim town manager Steve Lombard Citizens wishing to submit a citizens petition must do so by Monday, Feb. 14.

Second forum on Bear Hill issue

The Water Department is hosting a follow-up meeting regarding the Bear Hill tank access road on Tuesday, Dec. 7 at Deer Hill School. The meeting will begin at 7p.m. in the school cafeteria. The department will review its findings from questions raised at the first public forum. All are welcome.

Deficit number still unknown

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"Until the tax deficit is known we can't take any action. Everything is up in the air at this point."
— Steve Lombard, Interim Town Manager

Time is of the essence for the town.

Last week, it was discovered that the town could be facing as much as $1 million deficit in this year's operational budget. The potential deficit is a result of an apparent misclassification of expenses by the water department that was recently uncovered by an auditor.

The town is scheduled to bond close to $1 million of water department related expenses by Dec. 10. In recent weeks, through an independent audit of the water enterprise funds, it has been discovered some of the accounting on these bond issues may include regular operational expense items that fall outside what town meeting authorized the bond to be spent on.

What that means is those operational expenses — and it is unclear at this time how much of it is operational expenses, Lombard said — have to be paid for through the operational budget in this fiscal year. The amount, which could be as high as $1 million, but is likely less, represents a deficit the town and the water department did not plan for in the current year's budget.

The issue right now is the town, as of press time, is unsure what the exact number the deficit is. Earlier this week, the auditor was working to get the town a firm number by Dec. 1.

The effect of this discovery could have a far-reaching impact on the town and its finances, Lombard said. Depending on the severity of the deficit the town's bond rating and interest rates could be negatively impacted.

The town's bond counsel and financial advisors have presented the town with several options to help rectify the situation, but none can be taken until the exact number is known.

"Until the tax deficit is known we can't take any action," Lombard said Monday. "Everything is up in the air at this point."

The town has taken initial steps to address the potential budget gap. Lombard instituted a spending freeze across all town departments last week.

The freeze puts a hold on all capital purchases, discretionary supplies, consulting and professional services. However, there is an exception if the services would affect health or safety or to operate essential municipal services, but even those expenses have to be submitted in writing and approved by the town manager.

The town will continue to honor all existing contracts and legal obligations.

Lombard said he would continue to keep the selectmen and townspeople in the loop as more information is known.

"I want one report hitting the street and not the rumor mill people are hearing. I'm happy to talk to anyone who calls me," Lombard said.

Further, Lombard cautioned everyone not to jump to conclusions.

"I'd encourage everyone not to form an opinion until you read that report. There's nothing firm right now on how this happened, why it happened, or how much it is," Lombard said.

At press time, the key number – the amount that needs to be removed from the bond and put into the operational budget – was still unclear. Check out www.wickedlocal.com/cohasset for updates.

Property taxes are going up

Selectmen keep uniform tax rate for fiscal 2012

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

For the average valued single family home the tax bill will be $9897, up from $9627 – an increase of about $270 or $22.50 a month.

If there is one thing you can count on in this life its that property taxes will rise. The coming year will be no exception. Property owners will see a 37-cent per $1000 valuation jump on the third quarter tax bills.

Property tax rates will stay uniform for both residential and commercial property for another fiscal year, the Board of Selectmen voted Monday night.

The town's property is valued at over $2.4 billion, including residential, commercial, industrial, and personal property, said Deputy Assessor Mary Quill. Only 7.37 percent of the town's total valuation is commercial, industrial and personal property, leaving over 92 percent of the tax burden on residential properties.

"Cohasset has always had a uniform tax rate," said Quill. Given the low percentage of commercial properties, the Board of Assessors did not recommend the town opt for a split rate. A split rate means there would be a higher tax rate for commercial properties. A split tax rate often discourages businesses from locating to a community, said Quill.

While the bulk of the tax burden falls on residential properties, shifting the tax rate even a few cents would add up to thousands of dollars more for the town's commercial taxpayers.

In the uniform tax rate scenario, both commercial and residential property valued at $500,000 pay $5,800 (a $190 increase over the current year) in annual taxes. In one of two split rate tax scenarios, a residence would pay $5,565 (a savings of $235 vs. uniform rate), but the commercial property would pay $8,695 (an increase of $2,895 vs. uniform rate).

Selectmen agreed with the recommendation of the Board of Assessors and voted Monday to stick with the uniform tax rate. The tax rate for fiscal 2011 is anticipated to be $11.59 per $1,000 of assessed valuation. The tax rate still needs to be certified by the state Department of Revenue.

The tax rate for fiscal 2010 was $11.22, so, if approved, this year's tax rate results in a 37-cent jump. The overall valuation of the town has increased minimally over the last year, about .0006 percent. While not great news, it is an improvement over last year when the overall value decreased by 1 percent. In comparison in 2009, when there was an 18-cent increase in the tax rate, the overall valuation increased by 2.2 percent.

In the past year, the average valuation of residential property (including single family homes, condominiums and multi-family homes), decreased slightly from $781,000 (in fiscal 2010) to $779,186. In the same vein, the average tax bill will increase from $8763 to $9031, or a $268 increase.

The average valued single family home is assessed at $853,994, a $4,006 loss from last year's assessed value of $858,000. For the average valued single family home the tax bill will be $9897 up from $9627 – an increase of about $270 or $22.50 a month.

Sales of calendar 2009 are used to establish the fiscal year 2011 assessed values, Quill said.

Estimated new growth is $360,149, which does not include the 27-home Cook Estate development or the Avalon apartment complex.

The new tax rate will be reflected in the third quarter tax bills.

Tax bills vary depending on a property's assessed value. By taking the assessed value of the property and dividing it by $1,000 and then multiplying it by the tax rate, a homeowner can compute his property taxes.

Under Prop. 2-1/2, "new growth" allows a community to increase its levy limit annually by an amount based on the increased value of new construction. New growth is calculated by multiplying the increase in the assessed valuation of qualifying property by the prior year's tax rate.

Prop. 2-1/2 is the state law that caps the amount a municipality can raise its tax levy in any given year.

All the values used in this article are based on estimation from the Deputy Assessor Mary Quill. These values have not yet been certified by the Department of Revenue, Bureau of Local Assessment. Certification is expected within the next couple of weeks.

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

'TIS THE SEASON

Hello Cohasset. I hope that this week finds everyone getting into the season and holidays and wish everyone a happy holiday season. I think it is so important for us all to acknowledge and recognize that it is a wonderful season for all regardless of what they celebrate. Enjoy it all and take in all of the small, beautiful and memorable moments.

MILESTONE

We have some news to share about a great guy who is known and respected by so many here in town. Nov. 29th marked Joe Campbell's 10th Anniversary as Director of Operations at Atlantica and the Cohasset Harbor Inn. Make sure to congratulate him when you see him around town.

THE WIZ

Here is a fun-filled show for families everywhere to attend. The Cohasset High School presents The Wiz which will be held on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 3rd and 4th at 7:30 pm and Sunday, Dec. 5th at 2:30 pm. The show will be held in the Cohasset High School Auditorium. All tickets are $10. Advance tickets are available through Buttonwood Bookstore, Cohasset. The Wiz is a jazzed-up version of the classic Wizard of Oz story, brimming with lively original music including "Ease on Down the Road." The show features Cohasset High School students Megan Burke as Dorothy, Logan Pratt as the Scarecrow, Evan Ackley as the Tin Man, Robert Weiss as the Lion, and Bobby Nahill as the Wiz and also features a number of musical and entertaining students in the ensemble as well.

The production is directed by Stephanie Moriarty; producer and Musical Director is Bryan Marks. Definitely a show that you won't want to miss!

AUDITIONS

Cohasset Dramatic Club is pleased to announce auditions for The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee on Dec. 12 & 13 at 7 p.m. Callbacks, if necessary, will be Dec. 14. Auditions will be held at Cohasset Town Hall Theater. "Spelling Bee" is the hilarious tale of overachievers' angst, as it chronicles the experience of six adolescent outsiders vying for the spelling bee championship of a lifetime. The show's Tony Award winning creative team has created the unlikeliest of hit musicals about the unlikeliest of heroes; a quirky yet charming cast of outsiders for whom a spelling bee is the one place where they can stand out and fit in all at the same time. They are seeking adults 18 and older with strong singing and character acting skills. Of the nine-member adult cast, six actors will play students (approximately 12 years of age) with three actors playing adults.

Auditioners should prepare 32 bars of a Broadway song in the genre of the show. Music from the show is fine. Bring sheet music, an accompanist will be provided.

Visit www.cohassetdramaticclub.org for character descriptions and vocal ranges. For questions, contact Director Mark Bono at 88keys1@comcast.net.

The tastes and sounds of Greece on Saturday

As part of the Cohasset Village Fair, the Philoptochos, friends of the poor, Ladies Charity Society of the Panagia Greek Orthodox Church of Cohasset, will host its annual Greek Christmas Fair at South Shore Community Center across from the pond in Cohasset Village from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., on Saturday, Dec. 4. All money raised will be used to support local, regional and national charities.

Greek homemade specialties will highlight the day, with spinach pie, baklava, sugared almond cakes, butter cookies, honey cakes and doughnuts in honey syrup, to name a few.

These will be available throughout the day for take-out or to sit and enjoy with a cup of coffee, while listening to the sounds of traditional Greek dance music.

The decorated wreaths for which the Panagia Greek Christmas Fair is famous will once again be featured.

In addition, handcrafted goods, Grandma's Attic items and raffle tickets will be available for purchase.

Holly-Day Fair is Dec. 4

The Holly-Day Fair at Holly Hill Farm is taking place on Saturday Dec. 4 from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the heated greenhouse located at the farm on 236 Jerusalem Road.

This fair will feature many fine quality artisans from the local area as well as fun activities for children, delicious food, live music, plus the beautiful setting of an historic New England farm. There will be jewelry, homemade jams, organic skin care products, hand-carved birds and wooden toys, pottery, soaps and candles, infant and baby clothing, stained glass, hand-knitted items, handmade books, artisanal chocolates, rustic furniture made from wood found on the farm, and more.

Admission is free. For more information, visit www.hollyhillfarm.org or call 781-383-6565.

Holiday stroll is a tradition

Events take place on 3A and in village

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The wreaths are hung and the lights are up — it's the holiday season in Cohasset.

This week, the trademark burgundy bow and starfish wreaths appeared on the doors and windows of businesses all over town. The appearance of the wreaths mean not only the holidays are around the corner, but also the Holiday Stroll.

On Saturday, Dec. 11, businesses from the village and Route 3A, where the "holiday stroll" tradition began decades ago, are joining forces to put on a daylong event full of festive activities and holiday cheer.

Sponsored by the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce since the organization's inception, the Holiday Stroll will take in two parts: the participating businesses on Route 3A will have activities from noon to 4p.m. and the village business will hold their festivities from 4 to 7p.m.

"Last year was so successful we're doing the two part stroll again this year," said Chamber of Commerce president Darilynn Evans.

The participating businesses will host open houses and have holiday treats and activities for visitors throughout the event.

"It's really about bringing the holiday spirit to Cohasset," Evans said. "It's also a way to encourage everyone to shop locally and patronage their businesses right here in town. It's also our way of thanking our customers for their support throughout the year."

Village shops and businesses from Ripley Road, Smith Place, Elm Street and South Main Street will join in the fun with each business offering something different to the mix — music, crafts, food, drink.

There will be participating 3A businesses from Jonathan Livingstone Plaza, Tedeschi Plaza, Shaw's Plaza all the way down to her shop near the Cohasset-Scituate border. The involved businesses will be marked with red and green balloons.

All the event's time-honored favorites will be back again this year – and some special additions.

The bells of the Cohasset Carillon at St. Stephen's will play at 4p.m. in the village. The Grinch will make an appearance. Ice sculptures will be set out in front of the businesses on Depot Court.

A mini-parade, led by a team of sled dogs, will kick off the stroll in the village.

New this year is a First Parish is bringing together cheerful voices to sing Christmas carols. Everyone is invited to join in and sing. Organizers said exceptional singing voices are not required and the carols will be familiar and simple. Songbooks will be provided to participants in case the lyrics of "Jingle Bells" have escaped them.

Participants will gather downtown by the Town Pump (in front of the old hardware store) at 4:45p.m. and sing for about 45 minutes.

To complete the true holiday spirit, the Chamber will be taken up a collection for the Cohasset Food Pantry (food donations as well as gift card or monetary contributions) at a table set up between Darilynn's and French Memories.

Come on down to the Village Fair

Event is 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday

The yearly Village Fair tradition continues on Saturday

You are invited to the Cohasset Town Common on Saturday, Dec. 4th from 10am to 3pm for the Village Fair! The yearly tradition continues with shopping, eating, listening to music, and visiting Santa Claus, all to support local churches, charities, and the wonderful outreach of the Appalachian Service Project.

The Cohasset ASP once again presents the "Children's Secret Room" on the first floor of St. Stephen's Church. While their parents shop and eat upstairs in the St. Stephen's Hall, children will make a list of the people for whom they are purchasing gifts. Then, escorted by an ASP teen volunteer, the children will enter the "secret" retail area where they can purchase gifts for their siblings, parents, and even pets, all in a price range of $1 to $5. After purchase, they can wrap and label the gifts so that each is ready for placement under the Christmas tree at home!

Upstairs in the St. Stephen's Hall, stop for a while and browse the fantastic collection of high-quality pre-loved books at the St. Stephen's Book Fair. Find a copy of that recent hardcover bestseller or that famous children's picture book. Go home with a stack of paperbacks to read by the fire. But that's not all: the St. Stephen's Hall also plays host this year to several local artists and craftspeople, who, for the first time, will offer the fruits of their incredible talents to holiday shoppers. If you are in the mood for a hot drink or meal, continue down the room to the Village Fair Kitchen. Finally, take home some sweets at the bake sale!

But your day at the Village Fair is only just beginning. Wander down the Common to Second Congregational Church, which offers piping hot chowder for chilly shoppers. Shop for crafts and cheeses and enter the hourly Surf and Turf raffle. While parents peruse the Silent Auction, children have the opportunity to make their own crafts. (2nd Congregational is also the rain location for the Santa Claus visit.)

Continuing trekking across the Common to the First Parish House on North Main Street for the "ReUUsable Sale," featuring gently used articles at next to no cost. Find bargains in a selection of house wares, linens, furniture, antiques, children's clothing and toys, jewelry, books, sporting goods, and decorative and holiday items. Also, grab a ticket for the raffle of a lovely gingerbread house.

At noon, make your way to the First Parish Meeting House for a free Holiday Pops concert featuring the Rusty Skippers. Folks of all ages with have fun singing along to seasonal favorites. Finally, from 11am to 2pm, visit Santa Claus on the Common. All proceeds from the Village Fair benefit local churches, charities, and the ASP, so please come out, be generous, and enjoy a wonderful day in the center of Cohasset. All the best wishes during this holiday season from the folks at your local churches

Vacation fun at South Shore Community Center

South Shore Community Center is offering vacation fun for boys and girls ages 4 through 9, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., on Dec. 27, 28 and 29. 'Europe • East to West' on view at library

South Shore Art Center is presenting the exhibit "Europe • East to West" at Paul Pratt Memorial Library in Cohasset. The show features Richard Alemian's photographs and Kimberlee Alemian's oil sketches of Poland, Hungary, Austria, the Czech Republic, Italy and France. This is the couple's third exhibition together.

"Europe • East to West" opened during November, and will be on view through Dec. 30. A reception to meet the artists will take place from 5 to 7 p.m., on Friday, Dec. 3.

A reception to meet the artists will take place from 5 to 7 p.m., on Friday, Dec. 3.

Photographer Richard Alemian focuses on bold colors and shapes that explore the textures and vibrancy of the various cities. He sees the world through the lens of his camera picking out compositions that consider the dynamic of the chosen scene.

Oil painter Kimberlee Alemian concentrates on sketches made from site notes and photography. The sketches are resolved to the degree that the image emerges. Her surfaces reflect the vigor and energy of the cities visited.

Luke and Lola are two adorable kittens; their mother, Lorna Doone, is also available for adoption.

Kittens need 'home for the holidays'

Luke and Lola are two adorable kittens that are looking for a "home for the holidays." Hull Seaside Animal Rescue would like these kittens, female calico, Lola, and her brother, white with black, Luke, to be adopted together. They are adorable and are so much fun to watch and to pick up and cuddle. Their mom, Lorna Doone, is also available. She is a tortoise shell and would also like a home, either with or without her kittens.

The shelter has open hours from 2 to 3 p.m., on Saturdays, and 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., on Mondays. If these hours aren't convenient and you'd like to make an appointment, please call Shirl at 781-925-3380 after 10:30 a.m.

The shelter is at 50 L Street, Hull. The mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, P.O. Box 787, Hull, MA 02045, if you'd like to add us to your holiday card list. The shelter phone number is 781-925-3121, and the email address is hsar@verizon.net.

A huge thank you to our many supporters and if you'd like to adopt, please do it soon so a currently homeless feline can be "home for the holidays."

TRIAD helping seniors

Town departments work together on elder issues

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

There's a new group in town devoted to helping and protecting seniors in the Cohasset community.

Representatives from several town departments — Cohasset police, fire, elder affairs, seniors, public health nurse, and the county sheriff's department — have formed a partnership to address issues related to elders in our community.

The goal of TRIAD is to prevent victimization and promote safely and security for older adults in the community, said Elder Affairs director Coral Grande.

TRIAD is not a new idea, in fact is has been in existence across the nation for decades, but it has been recently revived here in town.

In years past, TRIAD councils have received grant funding from the county to support activities and town professional involvement. The money dried up several years ago and without it the program fizzled.

Not to be deterred, Grande and the other town departments have rallied around the cause to bring more awareness and aid to seniors in the community.

"The money is nice, but you don't need it to have TRIAD. It's more about a coordinated effort across town departments," Grande said, who was part of a successful TRIAD group in her previous position in Gloucester. "All of us want to do the best job possible to keep seniors safe."

The group has hit the ground running and has already started in on projects. Recently, the group spent several hours of Sunday afternoon outside Stop & Shop handing out packets containing information about existing programs. For example, seniors should have a "File of Life" with key information, like medical conditions, emergency contacts, insurance and allergies, in case of a medical or other emergency. One file is kept on the refrigerator at home and another in a wallet.

"It speaks when you can't. It's a wonderful program and it saves lives," Grande said.

TRIAD is also looking at ways to create more awareness about scams and fraud that pry on the elderly. In Cohasset, across all age brackets, not just seniors, residents are concerned about identity theft, scams, and other fraud. Many of those types of fraud specifically prey on the elderly.

"It's a huge issue and concern and we only know the tip of the iceberg because no one wants to admit they have been taken advantage of," Grande said.

"All of us want to do the best job possible to keep seniors safe."
Coral Grande, Cohasset Elder Affairs

The police department is an integral part of the TRIAD program. Officer Gregg Hartnett serves as the police liaison to elder affairs and joined TRIAD in September.

"The Cohasset Police Department's goal of the TRIAD group is to expand our outreach to seniors through a town wide multi department effort. Working together with the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department, Cohasset Fire Department, Elder Affairs and all members of Cohasset government to provide the most informative and safe living conditions for our seniors," Hartnett said.

The goal of TRIAD gets to the heart of community policing, something Hartnett said he is passionate about.

"I felt taking on this role would be a great way to get more involved with the community, meet lots of people and make a positive difference in the senior community and the community as a whole," Hartnett said.

Through raising awareness and teaching the older population about simple, commonsense steps they can take to protect themselves is one of the key goals of TRIAD.

Shredding sensitive documents, or even credit card applications, is one of those simple things. The Elder Affairs office has a shredder available upon request for that very purpose, Grande said.

In the coming months TRIAD will continue to work together on other efforts. Planned programs include a day of medication disposal, a speaker series, involvement in the recreation and health fair in March and fire and fall prevention home safety program.

"By promoting safety and security in our older population we're enhancing it for the entire community," Grande said. "It benefits everyone in the community to see information and efforts presented in an organized fashion."

While all the town departments do their individual jobs well, Grande said, there is efficiency and power in working across town departments on issues.

"There's always a better way to do things and when you do them together, it's always better," Grande said.

Members of TRIAD include police Officer Gregg Hartnett, Fire Chief Robert Silvia, Elder Affairs director Coral Grande, public health nurse Mary Goodwin, Elder Affairs outreach coordinator Carol Barrett, and Norfolk Country Sheriff's Department TRIAD director Joe Canavan.

The group is looking for seniors to get involved as well. If interested, contact Elder Affairs at (781) 383-9112.

At Ellington Field's Hangar 276, NASA astronaut Steve Bowen (right foreground), STS-132 mission specialist, signs autographs for some young visitors at the crew return ceremony for space shuttle Atlantis' final scheduled mission.

elementary schools ... has a STEM lab that provides authentic laboratory experiences for our children."

Sheenan said the goal for young students is to motivate and develop an interest in the STEM fields through a hands-on environment.

"A visit from a real astronaut from the children's hometown is about as hands-on as you can get!"

Dr. Jennifer deChiara, principal of Deer Hill School, praised Bowen's demeanor during his last presentation there. She wrote: "His accomplishments are so impressive, and yet he relates to the students like he's their next-door neighbor."

Cohasset Middle-High School Principal Joel Antolini called Bowen, a 1982 CHS graduate, "a great speaker who adeptly merges the realities of daily life with a vision for the future for our students."

Bowen said the underlying theme of his school presentations next week is: "Study hard, because you never know where you will end up."

He can certainly speak from firsthand experience. Before his mission, the astronaut said he hated reading in second grade, because he did not do it very well.

"So I focused on learning to read better. Now I really enjoy it."

Bowen said he likes to encourage students with similar challenges. "If you're not doing well in a subject, it's not time to throw in the towel."

Personalities of the Shuttle Crews

How did Bowen's STS-132 shuttle mission differ from his STS-126 flight in November 2008?

"The personalities of the crew are so different," Bowen replied. "I came to realize how much fun, how exciting, spaceflight can be," if the same surroundings are shared with different co-workers.

To cite an example of their collective sense of humor, the STS-132 astronauts wore blue velvet tuxedo jackets during their traditional post-flight presentation at Space Center Houston.

Bowen said he and his crewmates wanted to share their spaceflight experience in as personal a way as possible. That naturally extends to an astronaut's traditional visit to his hometown after a space flight.

Before launch, astronaut Piers Sellers described Bowen as "tremendous. He's different from most of the astronauts, because he's a submariner. Very calm, very thoughtful, very funny when he wants to be, and very, very competent. He's a pleasure to work with. My desk is right next to his (in the Astronaut Office)."

Sellers also related an anecdote from the crew's NOLS expedition, part of a shuttle crew's pre-flight training to help them bond as a team. The STS-132 astronauts visited the 100-mile-long Desolation Canyon in Utah.

"Steve and I were in a canoe together for one day," narrated Sellers. "We went down these rapids. It was our first time in rapids.

"The whole thing filled with water. But it didn't sink completely. Just went underwater, and our bodies were sticking out of the water still.

"And Steve said, 'Hey, it's just like a submarine. Just don't give up. Keep paddling.' "

"We paddled this thing 50 yards out of the water pretty much to the shore and beached it and brought it home."

Back in May, STS-132 Atlantis Commander Ken Ham called Bowen "the consummate professional. He's the kind of guy that you don't have to give much direction to at all. Like maybe almost none. And he will get everything done.

"That's the best guy to have working for you—trust me as commander. He has done more without being asked that I can possibly imagine.

"As for personality, he's just a joy to be around."

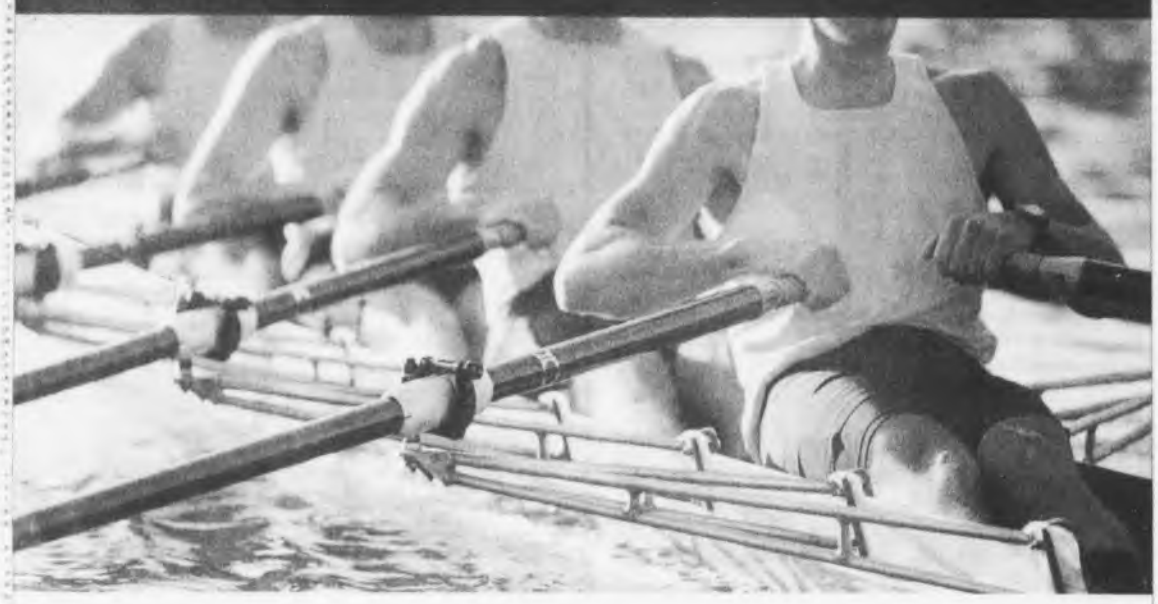
Bowen's Next Mission: Inspiring Young Engineers

Since NASA will soon retire the space shuttle, would Bowen fly an International Space Station mission, if offered that assignment?

"Sure," he immediately replied. "I've been training since February 2007. I'd like to have the opportunity."

He quipped: "I thought that's why they hired me."

Before STS-132, Reisman—himself a former ISS crewmember—commented on Bowen's qualifications as a future space station resident.



"Oh, I think he'd be great," said Reisman. "I really do. With Steve, he's such a laidback, easygoing guy that I think he would really thrive in that environment.

"He's very conscientious and hardworking and capable, so he'd be excellent at long duration."

Meanwhile, Bowen is focused on another kind of future. What does he wish the net result of his latest hometown visit will be?

"Hopefully a few little engineers in New England have been influenced by me."

Frosty Frolic, Reindeer Fun Run at Wompatuck

People are encouraged to take part in the ALS Association Massachusetts Chapter's third annual Frosty Frolic and inaugural Reindeer Fun Run on Saturday, Dec. 11, at Wompatuck State Park in Hingham. Check-in will begin at 10 a.m., the run at 11 a.m. and the walk at 11:15 a.m. – rain or shine. Each step raises funds to support global lifesaving ALS research and provide patient services.

Participants have the choice of a 1-mile walk and 5K run through the trails of Wompatuck State Park. Prior to event day, the registration fee for runners is $20, and day-of registration is $25. All registered runners will get free T-shirts. There is no registration fee to walk, but walkers who raise more than $20 will get a T-shirt. Join others after the race for chili, cookies, coffee and hot chocolate.

Call 888-CURE-ALS or visit web.alsa.org/FrostyFrolicReindeerFunRun for more information. Those who cannot take part at the event can sign up as virtual walkers. For more information, call Sarah Webster at 781-255-8884 or email Sarah.Webster@als-ma.org. To share a personal connection to ALS, contact Jen Natoli at Jen.Natoli@als-ma.org.

Amyotrophic Lateral Sclerosis is a progressive neurodegenerative disease that affects nerve cells in the brain and spinal cord. More commonly known as Lou Gehrig's Disease, ALS causes patients to lose the ability to speak, move, swallow and breathe. An estimated 30,000 Americans are living with ALS, and patients typically die within two to five years of diagnosis.

Special Education Lecture series: Inclusion benefits all

The Student Service Parent and Professional Partnership Series will be presenting Win Win. Together is Better! How Inclusion Benefits All.

This presentation will discuss how the approach of teaching children with different learning styles has evolved over the last few decades and how inclusion promotes awareness and acceptance of others.

The presentation will take place on Tuesday, Dec. 8 at the Osgood School Library from 9:15 to 10:45 a.m.

Lisa Iarossi, OTR/L, Jennifer Mackey, M.A.,CCC-SLP, and Kim Kurker, M.A., will be co-presenting. Lisa Iarossi brings 20 years of experience to Cohasset as an Occupational Therapist.

She has worked in private practice and medical setting, clinical outpatient setting as well as Early Intervention and School settings.

Jennifer Mackey has 16 years of experience as a speech and language pathologist. She is an Adjunct Clinical Assistant Professor at the MGH Institute of Health Professions and has had specialized training in providing communication services for children on the autism spectrum with Barry Prizant.

Kim Kurker, M.A., has a wealth of experience in the area of teaching. She has years of experience as an administrator in the public school system and has had the role of special education teacher at the Osgood school for many years.

For the last three years, she has been the classroom teacher in the Primary Learning Center at the Osgood School.

The presentation will take place on Tuesday, Dec. 8 at the Osgood School Library from 9:15 to 10:45 a.m.

No closure for Cat Dam

Could be back before ConCom soon

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

By the first of the year the Board of Selectmen wants to submit a revised version of its Cat Dam Notice of Intent to the Conservation Commission.

In late October, a majority of the Board of Selectmen voted to withdraw the existing Notice of Intent (NOI) from the Conservation Commission as they felt it was not the best it could be.

The issue of Cat Dam, which is a tidal gate on Nichols Road that limits the flow of water for inner Little Harbor, has been a controversial neighborhood discussion for more than three years.

The Selectmen have devoted hours of meeting time to the issue over the past few years, and it was another hour-long discussion on Monday night.

Yet, at the conclusion, it seemed the neighbors in attendance and the selectmen are making moves to get the issue back on track.

A group of neighbors recently hired an engineer and a scientist to look at Cat Dam and the inner Little Harbor and make recommendations. The results of those experts' work will be presented at this coming Monday's Selectmen meeting (Dec. 6).

In the meantime the selectmen will be nailing down the constitution of Cat Dam governance committee, which is called for in the NOI. The committee will be modeled after one created to manage Strait's Pond tidal gates.

But, it took some discussion to get to these action items.

"This is an important political issue and we want to be sure the solution is acceptable to people on both sides," said Selectman Paul Carlson.

The discussion first began with several of the selectmen expressing a desire to push the issue back to the neighborhood to address.

"The town can not get involved anymore. We've already spent $18,000 on a study," said Selectman Leland Jenkins.

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley did not think establishing a citizen committee was the way to go.

"It's not my opinion it's a fact that the only town entity that has any regulatory jurisdiction over this issue is the Conservation Commission," Quigley said, adding reverting to a citizen board would be like starting back at ground zero. Since the issue was back before the Board of Selectmen she felt it was time for the board to deal with it once and for all.

"(Otherwise) it's just another example of the board kicking the can down the road," Quigley said. She attested there was little new information the residents could provide that hasn't already been submitted.

"Right now the issue is within the Board of Selectmen's jurisdiction to make a decision and I suggest that we do so," Quigley said.

Key to moving forward is bringing the neighbors, of which there are two distinct groups, together for compromise, the Selectmen said.

For selectman Fred Koed the issue came down to the selectmen and the town submitting the best NOI possible.

"As long as both sides get together, that's the key," said Jenkins.

Several members of both neighborhood sides spoke to the issue with Cat Dam and their thoughts on how best to move forward.

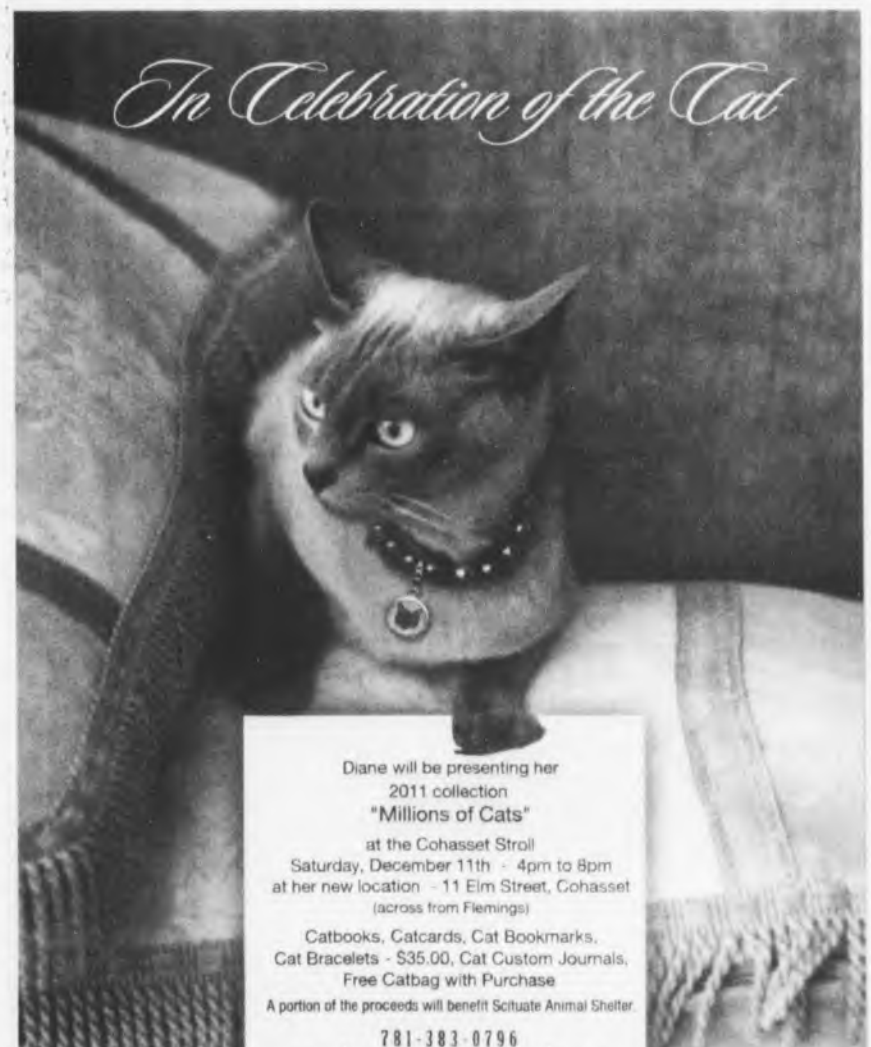
Cat Dam will be the last item on the selectmen's agenda next week (Dec. 6) and the following week, Monday, Dec. 13. Call the selectmen's office at (781) 383-4105 for exact times.

Cat Dam flashback

It's been more than three years since the first time the Board of Selectmen hosted a discussion on Cat Dam – a 50-year old mechanism that limit tidal flow in inner Little Harbor.

At that time the neighbors were at odds over how much flushing the body of water truly needed. Now, three years later, and almost $20,000 later, it's clear the neighbors are still in disagreement over how to move forward.

In 2008, Town Meeting approved spending for an engineering study of Cat Dam and the surrounding area with the end result being brought forward to the Conservation Commission as a Notice of Intent (NOI). A NOI is presentation of information to the Conservation Commission that addresses the operation and maintenance of the tide gates, among other things.



The issue most significantly affects the surrounding neighborhood of Inner Little Harbor, but it is the town that has paid for the consulting engineer to develop the Notice of Intent at a cost of $17,000.

In late October, a majority of the Selectmen voted to withdraw the Notice of Intent (NOI) application that was before the Conservation Commission. Now, the issue is what might need to be changed with the NOI.

"This is an important political issue and we want to be sure the solution is acceptable to people on both sides."
— Selectman Paul Carlson

Second forum on Bear Hill issue

The Water Department is hosting a follow-up meeting regarding the Bear Hill tank access road on Tuesday, Dec. 7 at Deer Hill School. The meeting will begin at 7p.m. in the school cafeteria. The department will review its findings from questions raised at the first public forum. All are welcome.

SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Reprinted with permission from the Friends of Wompatuck newsletter.

With the 65th anniversary marking the end of World War II on Sept. 2 and Veteran's Day last month on Nov. 11, I thought it fitting to share with readers some history of recently deceased veterans who worked at the former Annex in Hingham (now Wompatuck State Park).

I first started contacting former ammunition depot employees in 2001. I managed to reach 37 of them. With 2010 drawing to a close, 13 have passed on in those nine years.

The experience reminds me of Agatha Christie's detective novel "Ten Little Indians" with the characters gradually dying off... "and then there were nine," so on down the line.

I'll begin alphabetically with Allan Andrews. Since I started the Annex reunions in 2002, I could never persuade Andrews to join us. He was an Army veteran who served in the European Theatre during World War II. After the war Andrews packed shells at the Mainside (Bare Cove Park). His son Jimmy has made valuable contributions of photos and artifacts of the ammunition depot to the Bare Cove Park exhibit dock house. Died June 17, 2010, at the age of 88.

Tim Bailey was another Annex veteran I was unable to bring to our reunions. The reason: He had to care for his invalid wife. I thought once she passes on, maybe Tim could join us. But, he died first. Bailey was a brakeman for the ammunition depot and served in the Army during the occupation of Japan after the war. Died July 18, 2010, at the age of 82.

George Bartlett was one of my first contacts starting in 2002. He always carried a smile and would faithfully show up at the reunions. He was an Army veteran who was stationed at coastal artillery batteries from Marshfield to Nahant. Bartlett was an observer and reported sighting a German U-boat off Marshfield in 1943 (it escaped). His most memorable event besides locating the sub was the test firing of the 16-inch guns at Fort Duvall, now Spinnaker Island in Hull. The huge guns managed to break all the windows in the neighborhood. The guns were nicknamed "Big Ben" and "Big Tom." The Army never fired the guns after that shattering experience. After the war, Bartlett worked at the Annex as an Ordnanceman and guard. Died Nov. 2, 2009, at the age of 87.

Tom Beary was a B-17 radio operator and gunner for the Eighth Air Force during World War II. His most near death experience occurred on a mission over Germany when he left his seat to drop metal chaff out of the bomb bay doors (chaff confuses the enemy radar). As he returned to his station, he found a jagged, gaping hole in the airplane where his seat was. He picked up the anti-aircraft shrapnel on the floor and later had it framed. It's still hanging on his wife's living room wall along with his air medals. Beary's battle-scarred B-17 was famous enough to be featured on one of our nation's postage stamps. It also appears on the front cover of the book "The Mighty Eighth" by Gerald Astor. Beary worked as an inspector and Ordnanceman at the Annex after the war. Died Feb. 21, 2008, at the age of 83.

Another colorful veteran was John Bibbo. He served as a Seaman Second Class for the Navy while on duty in the Pacific. Both ships he sailed on, the USS Princeton and the USS DeHaven, were sunk by enemy fire. He was wounded and decorated for his bravery. The deadly encounters didn't end there. After the war while working at the Annex as an Ordnanceman, he witnessed a mine explosion at the Hanover plant that killed one worker and injured 15 others. Besides the blood and guts of his life, John was an excellent golfer and scored three holes-in-one during his tour of the links. He knew golf legend Gary Player. Died Aug. 12, 2009, at the age of 84.

George Clark served in the Army and the Navy Seebees during the World War II era. During his Army stint, George performed as honor guard for actress Shirley Temple, aviator Amelia Earhart and the first commercial Trans-Pacific seaplane "Yankee Clipper." Clark received the Bronze Star medal for his heroism in the Pacific campaign. While at the ammunition depot, he worked as a welder. Died May 20, 2010, at the age of 94.

Henry Donahue was a crane operator at the Annex and the Boston Navy Yard. While in the Navy, he was wounded and decorated for his action serving in the Pacific during World War II. After Donahue retired from federal service, he became a real estate mogul. At one Annex reunion lunch, he picked up the tab and said, "It's my tab because I'm worth 30 million bucks. God's been good to me. I'll gladly take care of our bill." Died April 16, 2007, at the age of 80.

It was a lucky day when George Dwyer showed up at one of the Annex reunions (he died two months later). He cleared up some misconceptions about the atomic bomb stored at the Annex. Many park patrons have heard the legend of the nuclear weapon that destroyed Hiroshima, Japan, was stored at Bunker N9. Dwyer said, "It wasn't the atomic bomb or parts of it that bombed Japan that was stored there. It was a nuclear depth charge (RUR-5 ASROC) that Rebel Vaughan (ordnance supervisor) and myself were in charge of." Dwyer also worked at Building 80 when it produced land mines during the Vietnam War. He was an Army veteran and pilot. After the war, he built and flew his own airplane. Died Dec. 9, 2004, at the age of 78.

Jim Larsh was an inspector at the Annex. He was witness to a fuse explosion at the Mine Anchor Building in 1953 that injured one worker. Jim served with the Navy in the late 40s. Larsh was part Native American. He and I traveled together to the Plimoth Plantation one summer to see what it was all about. Larsh regaled the pilgrim actors with some history on his Chippawa tribe. Died June 1, 2009, at the age of 80.

Dave Lovell saw a variety of action during World War II. He participated in the D-Day invasion, Operation Market Garden and the Battle of the Bulge as a communication specialist for the 101st Airborne Division. His mission during D-Day was to jump into Normandy, France, on June 6, 1944, toting carrier pigeons for backup in case his radio didn't work. Although his parachute was shredded with bullet holes, he and his pigeons survived unharmed and his radio worked. However, his division suffered 40 percent casualties that day. During Operation Market Garden in Holland on Sept. 17, 1944, Lovell defended a vital road intersection with a machine gun. Operation Market Garden was the failed Allied attempt to surround the Germans in the Ruhr Valley and bring the war to a quick end. The battle was later made famous by the film "A Bridge Too Far" starring Robert Redford. At the Battle of the Bulge of December 1944, Lovell was there when the Germans presented to the 101st Airborne Division's General McAuliffe the ultimatum to surrender at Bastogne, Belgium. Although the GIs were surrounded for five days, McAuliffe gave his famous "Nuts" reply to the waiting German party. I asked Lovell, "What did the German faces look like when they heard the general's strange reply?" He responded, "Incredulous! We explained to them it meant to 'go to Hell!'" General Patton's Fourth Armored Division eventually came to the rescue several days later. The German 70-mile wide bulge was later pushed back by the end of January, ending the bloodiest battle of World War II. Lovell worked for the Transportation Department at the Annex and Mainside and served as president for the American Legion and the Disabled American Veterans in Weymouth after the war. Died April 30, 2009, at the age of 85.

Louise Mable assembled detonators and rockets at the Annex during World War II. She also worked at the Hingham Shipyard as a welder and was featured in a movie of the shipyard by WGBH. Died Dec. 3, 2008, at the age of 89.

Leo Parenti is the most important of the departed 13. None of the Annex reunions would have been possible without him. Leo put me in touch with most of the former workers. I met him through park director Steve Gammon. Leo saw action in Europe as a truck driver and artilleryman for the 26th Yankee Division. His experiences of war were comical as well as tragic. On the light side, Leo would heat cans of beans on the manifold of his truck. One day one of them exploded. He ducked for cover, fearing he hit a land mine. After discovering the exploded can, he was relieved but with a messy engine. Leo said, "I always did like refried beans." During the Battle of the Bulge, Parenti was blown out of his foxhole while eating a pork chop. When the shelling stopped, he wiped the mud off the meat and continued eating his juicy morsel. After the war, he claimed and received a disability check for the shelling... saying the bombardment gave him nightmares...more likely it was the U.S. Army pork chop. During a USO show he met actor Mickey Rooney. He had a few drinks with Rooney after the show. Parenti said, "Rooney could throw them down like a pro but ended up three sheets to the wind when I drank with him. We downed a bottle of brandy together." On the dark side, Parenti and his division liberated a concentration camp at Gusen, Germany. Parenti captured an SS Major who was later executed for war crimes. During one convoy mission carrying a load of ammo, Parenti was strafed and bombed by a German plane. He fired at it with his machine gun but the plane dropped its bomb and flew off. The truck ahead of him was blown up and the driver was killed. Unfortunately, the Army sent news to Leo's parents that Parenti was the one killed. Leo shocked his parents at the end of the war when he came through the family's front door and said, "Hey mom and dad, I'm home!" After the war, Leo worked at the Annex in transportation and later at the park as a laborer and assistant supervisor. Died Jan. 9, 2007, at the age of 89.

Dave Sturgis was a former Marine guard at the ammunition depot. Sturgis saw action in the Korean War. He said his most memorable event there was when he walked on a frozen minefield while laying communication wire. Luckily, none of the mines exploded. He said, "I wondered then, 'why were the South Korean soldiers waving their arms at me and yelling gibberish?' It was 'stop!' in Korean." He also said the Marines would fill their walkie-talkies up with booze to take the chill out of the frigid Korean air. I'll always remember Dave saying with a sparkle in his eye, "Once a Marine, always a Marine, Semper Fi!" Died Dec. 27, 2004, at the age of 72.

That wraps it up. The clock struck 13. It's matter of time before we'll say, "Once there were 37. Now there are none." But life goes on. We must cherish and preserve their legacy of devotion, sacrifice and achievement, and learn from it.

Get to know your computer

'Next Chapter' program continues at Paul Pratt Memorial Library

By Linda Fechter
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Turning on the computer and using the basic programs works just fine for most people — however, computers have a lot more features than the average user is even aware of. For this reason the Paul Pratt Library is offering "Get to Know Your Computer" — part of the free series of writing and technology workshops that comprise the Next Chapter Program. All are welcome to attend on Tuesday, Dec. 7. This two-hour program begins at 10:30 a.m. No sign up is required.

All are welcome to attend on Tuesday, Dec. 7. This two-hour program begins at 10:30 a.m. No sign up is required.

This class is designed to help you take full advantage of all of the features and versatility that are available in the Windows operating system. Do you know how to use the "My Computer" program to more efficiently manage all of the files and storage areas on your computer? Did you know that there are built in accessibility options to help users with visual, motor, and other conditions which may hinder their successful use of a computer?

The objective of this workshop is to make using the computer easier for everyone and will be taught by Barbara Andrews. After more than 25 years teaching and working in libraries, Barbara A. Andrews has established Andrews Consulting to provide training and consulting services to libraries and other organizations. Barbara has a Masters in Science Degree in Library and Information Science from Simmons College and a Masters in Administration with a specialization in Business from Framingham State College.

"Barbara is comfortable speaking to the novice technology user, is well informed of the topic, and always gives the participants useful information to take home with them."

— Gayle Walsh, librarian

"Barbara is comfortable speaking to the novice technology user, is well informed of the topic, and always gives the participants useful information to take home with them," says Gayle Walsh, Adult Services/Reference Librarian and Next Chapter Coordinator for the Paul Pratt Memorial Library. "Her classes have all been very well received."

The Next Chapter Grant program funds social networking, computer and writing workshops at Paul Pratt Memorial Library from October 2010 through June 2011. All workshops are free and open to the public. Those who have attended these Next Chapter classes have already been introduced to Facebook, and new technologies such as e-readers. Last week, Andrews instructed participants about the basics of using a digital camera.

The Next Chapter grant program is funded by the Social Service League of Cohasset and with federal Institute of Museum and LibraryServices (IMLS) funds awarded by the Mass. Board of Library Commissioners (MBLC). Goodwin Graphics has also generously supported Next Chapter

HAPPENINGS

CDC auditions for 'Spelling Bee'

Cohasset Dramatic Club will hold auditions for "The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee" at 7 p.m., on Sunday, Dec. 12 and Monday, 13. Callbacks, if necessary, will be Tuesday, Dec. 14. Auditions will take place at Cohasset Town Hall Theater, 41 Highland Ave.

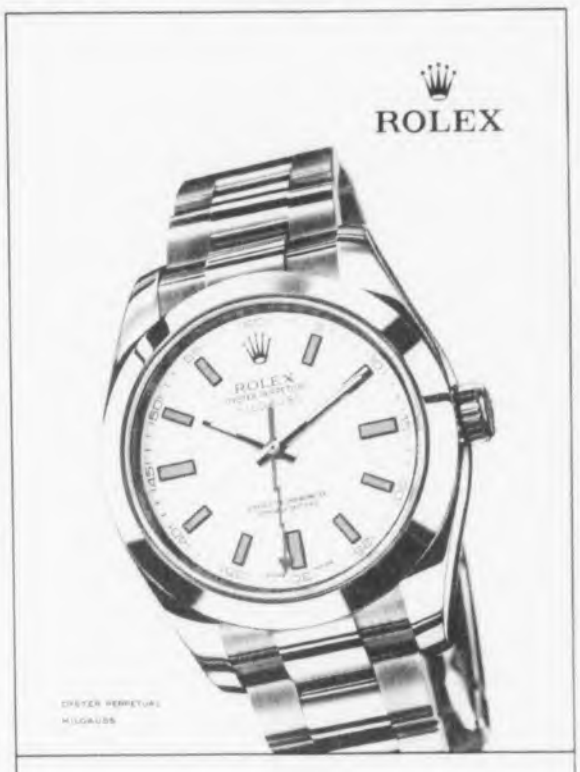
"Spelling Bee" is the tale of overachievers' angst, as it chronicles the experience of six adolescent outsiders vying for the spelling bee championship of a lifetime.

The show's Tony Award-winning creative team has created the unlikeliest of hit musicals about the unlikeliest of heroes; a quirky yet charming cast of outsiders for whom a spelling bee is the one place where they can stand out and fit in all at the same time.

Adults 18 and older with strong singing and character acting skills are being sought. Of the nine-member adult cast, six actors will play students – approximately 12 years of age – with three actors playing adults.

People auditioning should prepare 32 bars of a Broadway song in the genre of the show. Music from the show is fine. Bring sheet music, an accompanist will be provided.

Visit www.cohassetdramaticclub.org for character descriptions and vocal ranges. For more information, contact director Mark Bono at 88keys1@comcast.net.



Historical Society to host Wassail Party

Cohasset Historical Society will host its annual Wassail Party from 2 to 4 p.m., on Sunday, Dec. 12, at the Pratt Building, 106 South Main St. The holiday gathering is open to members and the public. Enjoy convivial conversation, light refreshment and the music of harpist Rachel Eisenhaure while viewing a mini exhibit on World War I. Take a brief respite from the frenzy of holiday activity to greet old friends and make a few new ones.

Santa Claus coming to Buttonwood Books

Santa Claus will be at Buttonwood Books & Toys, Shaw's Plaza, Route 3A, Cohasset, from 1 to 3 p.m., on Sunday, Dec. 5. Santa will pose for photographs so bring a camera. Call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665 for more information. The event is free.

Keeping perspective

Is the glass half empty or half full?

Does every cloud have a silver lining?

Are you an optimist or a pessimist?

As we venture into last few weeks of 2010 and embark on 2011 – we all need to think about our perspective.

Most reports are stating that fiscal 2012, which starts July1, 2011, is going to be the most challenging in recent memory in terms of governmental budgets on all levels: municipal, state and federal.

Cohasset is facing its own unique challenges in terms of the Water Department bond and what the audit report is going to say about that.

This major wrinkle is before the fiscal 2012 budget season begins in earnest. However, with that being said, the school department has already said things are looking bleak budget-wise for fiscal 2012. They are projecting a shortfall of $700,000 to keep the status quo.

At the federal level, our leaders are weighing the options of eliminating the mortgage tax deduction for homeowners and raising the retirement age to 69 – among other proposals – to reduce our federal deficit.

We would also bet that at the state level there could also be cuts and we wonder if local aid will be on the table.

So what's the good news?

While the Cohasset Food Pantry is serving more individuals and families — meaning more people are in need – Cohasseters have rallied to help. We have been mightily impressed with the groups, businesses, individuals and even children who have been collecting groceries and cash for the food pantry.

Here at the Mariner, we plan to continue to run a weekly list beyond the holidays that includes needed food pantry items.

Cohasset is a small town with a lot of smart, creative people. Massachusetts is one of the best states to live in. America is still the best country to call home.

As a town, state and nation, we have faced tough challenges before and have rallied with ingenuity, industriousness, determination and hard work.

Some readers may remember Big Brother Bob Emery – a radio personality turned TV star – whose Small Fry Club was popular in the 1950s and 1960s. Emery would play "The Grass is Always Greener" on his ukulele to the children in the studio and to the TV audience at home.

The song went something like this:

Oh the grass is always greener
In the other fellow's yard.
Little rows, we have to hoe
Oh boy, that's hard.
Now if we all could wear green glasses
Then it wouldn't be so hard
To see how green the grass is
In our own back yard.

Help the Cohasset Food Pantry

The non-denominational Cohasset Food Pantry welcomes donations of nearly all pantry staples. The list below includes many of the items that are collected and distributed quickly and therefore their donation is in constant need.

Donations can be dropped off at the rear entrance of St. Anthony's Rectory on South Main St. from 8:30 to 9:30a.m. on Tuesdays, at Stop & Shop, or at local churches on Sundays. To give a monetary donation, the food pantry mailing address is Cohasset Food Pantry, P.O. Box 297, Cohasset, MA 02025.

Saint Anthony's Parish Center and the police and fire station continue accept food pantry donations.

The Cohasset Food Pantry does not accept expired or already opened food.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dormitzer deserves accolades for airplane noise relief

TO THE EDITOR:

Ralph Dormitzer's piece, Airplane Noise Relief for Cohasset, was hugely welcome news for the town. In his commentary he was kind enough to recognize a number of us that helped bring about this result.

It is Ralph, however, that played the most important role. He was our constant leader, not only of the South Shore Jet Pollution Council (representing Hingham, Cohasset and Hull), but of the entire Community Advisory Committee (representing 30 Greater Boston communities), over the 10 years it took to convince MassPort and the FAA we had a serious problem, and to persuade them to do something about it.

The subject matter – the generation and impact of airplane noise – is a highly technical, complex subject, and the emotions of people living in the various towns impacted by it run high. Ralph was able to understand the issues, and to get people to work together in often highly charged meetings toward the common objective of both reducing the noise level, and spreading it more evenly over the South Shore.

At times during this 10-year period he was working three and four days a week on the problem. Taking on not one but two government agencies seemed a daunting task – but he kept at it – with the results we now experience.

If I had my druthers, I'd build a monument to him on the Common. Failing that, we collectively offer our deep gratitude for having achieved such a successful outcome. When we first moved to Cohasset, in 1999 I thought we had made a terrible mistake because of the constant noise from both arrivals on 33L and low altitude takeoffs heading south, roaring over the house at full throttle. Now it is much reduced, and completely acceptable.

Three cheers for Ralph!

Disillusioned with Water, Sewer Depts.

TO THE EDITOR:

I attended my first Water Planning Group meeting this week and walked away with the feeling that unless major changes are made to the governance of both the Water and Sewer Departments, I will never again vote for anything that either department asks for.

My reason for this is simple. They have lost my trust. Neither commission will consider any other way to oversee their respective departments, other than the status quo. They both have forgotten that in the past, there was always a superintendent. Someone who was held responsible for the final product. Someone who could be dismissed if they didn't deliver what was expected.

You can't do that with a commissioner. If they don't resign, you have to wait until the next election and vote in someone new. I'm not sure why they feel so threatened by an overseer, but they do. What I also heard was the implication that the town should not burden taxpayers with additional personnel costs. What was not said was this position could be funded with the monies that are being paid to the two Assistants to the Town Manager. The duties that they perform now could be done by this new Water/Sewer Superintendent and the DPW Superintendent. Something to think about.

Clay type critical for pond bottom

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Meeting House Pond — Most of the "heavy lifting" construction is pretty much complete as of the past Monday. The new concrete walls and walkway have been poured and the forms have been removed. The largest task to be completed now is the addition of the new clay bottom. We've mentioned this before, but it bears repeating since it is important to the overall success of the pond. The bottom will be constructed of clay material. The exact type of clay is very important. If the clay does not have the correct consistency it will let water pass through and the pond will leak water. Also, if it is not the right material it can cause the pond to be murky. In fact, the project has hired a soil engineer who analyzed various samples submitted by the contractor until the right material was found.

This week, several large semi-trailer dump trucks delivered the chosen clay mix to the job site. The photo shows the truck in the background with piles of clay in the pond area waiting to be spread around and compacted. A second photo shows a vibrating self-propelled machine with wide steel wheels in the process of compacting the new clay bottom. This is process vital to make the bottom dense and impervious.

If you look carefully as you drive by the work suite, you will also notice a new asphalt walkway that has been built from the corner of Robert Jason Road and North Main Street to the walkway around the pond. The slope of this walk way meets the handicapped requirements for access. The prior walkways did not.

Little Harbor Drainage Project — The work continues near 342 Jerusalem Road redoing the in-the-street storm drainage system. This week they started excavating the side trench, which also has the BMP outlet pipe that needs to be lowered. This pipe is much lower than the pipe in the large trench, so the excavation is deeper, but not as long. The digging in this trench is also complicated by numerous other utility lines (telephone, electrical and cable TV) that cross through the trench. So, the contractor has to dig around these lines, slowing his progress a bit. The first photo is an overall view of the side trench work area.

The second photo is a view looking down into the trench, which is about 10 feet deep. It looks pretty complicated, but we'll explain what you see. On the right hand side is the ladder that the workers use to get down to the bottom of the trench. A section of the new pipe is shown dangling from a chain as it is being lowered into place. Most of the other material that is visible is the shoring used to keep the trench walls from collapsing. This is an important safety feature required by OSHA. A section of the new pipe is sitting between the walls of a trench box, which is part of the required shoring. This is a device with large steel side panels held apart by round pipe-like spacers. Placing the new pipe through the trench box is like treading a needle. As the length of pipe is lowered it must be moved back and forth by the crane operator to get it between the trench box spacers. At either end of the section of new pipe being lowered are other utility conduits that pass through the trench from one side to the other that must be maneuvered around.

The two manholes in the foreground of the overview photo are the access to the BMP buried in the road. Later this week these will be removed so that the contractors can access the inner workings of the BMP. These will need to be modified to accommodate the lowered inlet and outlet pipes. With all of this rework, we currently expect that this construction could be completed as early as the end of the week (barring bad weather). If so, paving could restart as early as next week.

Jacobs Meadow Outfall Project — We haven't written much about this project lately, so here is a brief update. If you remember, the Town has a project underway to replace the Jacobs Meadow outfall channel next to the Legion and to replace the three tide gates in the harbor with a single vertical sluice gate. The Town awarded a contract for construction at the end of September. The contract requires the contractor to submit detailed drawings for certain components or systems for our engineer's approval. That submittal work has been proceeding.

As an example, when our engineers developed the plans for the concrete structures that must be constructed in the harbor to house the new tide gate; they allow the contractor (or his subcontractors) to develop the exact details regarding how a specific element like the reinforcing steel is to be fabricated. It is up to the contractor (or his steel supplier) to give our engineers a detailed drawing of that reinforcing steel for approval. After approval, the contractor can proceed with the concrete work. We are at the point where these approval drawings are nearly ready for approval, so construction is about to start.

This week we received a new schedule from the contractor that indicates that construction could start in early December. We will keep you posted as this work progresses.

HEALTH NOTES

Health in the information age

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Please note, a flu clinic will take place from 10 a.m. to noon, on Saturday, Dec. 4, in the Town Hall auditorium. Open to all residents age 9 years and older. Flu shots are free but bring insurance cards as we can bill some insurances for the cost of administration. Vaccinations are administered by registered nurses.

It's a mystery that so many people pay $20 for flu shots while towns like Cohasset and others nearby obtain the same shots paid for by citizen's taxes and administered by registered nurses. Often commercial shots are given by pharmacists and if a patient faints, as is sometimes the case, the individual may not know the appropriate procedure to deal with a problem.

The information overload: We are beset with too much information. The problem in these times is that we receive from the media and our communication devices information relevant to what we need, but not specifically what we want. For example, to boil water, it's nice to have all the details about a stove, but the only information really necessary is how to turn it on. Feeling overwhelmed by the sheer volume of online content? You're not alone. Keeping up to speed can be nearly impossible these days, with potentially hundreds or even thousands of daily postings competing for your attention from services like Facebook, Twitter and other service feeds.

Feeling overwhelmed by the sheer volume of online content? You're not alone. Keeping up to speed can be nearly impossible these days...

If you worry you're missing interesting content, it's probably because you are. The bad news is that there's no way to fix the problem: The amount of online content out there is simply too much to handle, and it's constantly growing. But the good news is there's plenty of entrepreneurial energy going toward tools for helping us, if not eradicate the problem, at least deal with it a bit less ineffectively.

One of the more interesting approaches is the use of prediction. If tools can predict what content you'd like based on what they know about you, they can then use that knowledge to highlight the right content.

Many so-called aps on your communication devices use algorithms to learn about you from the way you behave as you go through your streams. It observes, for instance, which links you click, how long you look at something, and whether you share the content with others.

Thousands of such variables are simultaneously checked for consistent patterns. Along the way, it gets to know you. The longer you use it, the better it gets at figuring out which content you'll likely be interested in. It then puts this content at the top of your streams.

Presumably, no content is filtered out, but items within your content streams are re-ordered. Sometimes the service surprises you. A news article, for instance, might have a headline that does not attract your attention. But the content of that article, or a part of it, could be of great interest to you – something the algorithm can easily predict if it knows you well enough.

Indeed predictive models might become increasingly important to online life, but the constant worry remains. How much information must be at our command for us to be effective as productive individuals?

Special activities planned in December

SENIOR CORNER

STEVE BOBO

Elder Affairs at the Community Center at 3 North Main St. regularly plans activities for seniors and others, providing transportation all over town and visits to stores and other facilities. The service is free, although sometimes a nominal charge is made for handling charges, etc. Special lectures for seniors and others are frequently available at the Center.

Special activities for December include:

Dec. 8, 11 a.m. to noon. Bell concert. Presenters: Collaborative Students.

Dec. 15, 11 to 11:30 a.m. How Do I Pay for Assisted Living?; and 11:30 a.m. to noon, Holiday Sing along with Linda. Presenters: Carol Taylor and Linda Chuckran, Welch Co.

Dec. 22, 11 a.m. to noon. Holiday Sing Along. Presenters: John Campbell, et al.

Dec. 29, 11 a.m. to noon. Bingo with prizes. Sandra Smith, North River Home Care.

Cohasset Elder Affairs has a Christmas Angel Program. Call 781-383-9112 and a gift will be delivered to an elder during the Christmas holiday

The Social Service League can help plan your holiday. They can deliver a meal to your home on Christmas. Call 781-383-0771 for a home delivered meal.

Also, the Norwell Methodist Church has a complimentary dinner on Christmas day. Call 781-826-4763 for reservations.

Willcutt Commons news: The material presented recently in the Mariner was only a sample of the proposal from one of the candidates of a possible eight who are developing senior centers for various towns in the United States. The entire motivation behind the concept of a senior center is that most towns, including Cohasset, have more individuals over age 50 than students in their population and ever more frequently these individuals having, perhaps, lost a partner are alone with few resources and venues which provide much quality-of-life stimulation. A condition becoming ever more prevalent. We will continue to expand this look at our population and its needs as plans progress.

From a local perspective

FOR THE RECORD

GREGORY MATHIS

A major Boston media outlet is having a little fun with our Wicked Local website branding.

One of its radio spots details all the local nuances that make Massachusetts unique and "makes you one of us." As the ad goes on, it jabs at a "national company's annoying" use of the word "wicked."

You don't need to be a media insider to realize that barb is clearly directed at us, and our corporate entity, GateHouse Media.

The website the major media outlet would like you to believe is the local source of news is boston.com. The truth of the matter is, boston.com is the website for The Boston Globe, which is owned by The New York Times Company. To take that one step further, while only two cities are mentioned here – Boston and New York – make no mistake that the New York Times Company is a worldwide company.

In addition to boston.com, a new online competitor to the area, Patch, isn't wicked local either. It's owned, operated, and well funded by AOL, which is AMERICA On Line. Patch is beginning to take seed and grow in Massachusetts, but AOL has already launched local community websites throughout the country.

Full disclosure, our Wicked Local websites and local community newspapers do fall under bigger umbrellas. Collectively, our division is GateHouse Media New England, which covers most of Eastern Massachusetts from the North Shore to Cape Cod and out through the MetroWest area. We roll up into GateHouse Media, which is a national company with daily and weekly newspapers and community and regional websites all over the country.

But none of the corporate layering prevents us from being wicked local, despite what the boston.com ad says. The fact of the matter is many of our journalists have been in the local newspaper business for a long time.

There has been incredible consistency and retention at many of our key editor and local reporting levels over the years. Personally, I've been in the local community journalism business for more than 25 years covering the South Shore. Many of my colleagues have been covering towns in our footprint for decades as well and live here too. The journalists I work with are not only committed to local community coverage, but have the experience and the local knowledge to bring the most comprehensive and accurate coverage possible.

For many of us, we worked for the local newspaper you read when they were still family-owned. We've seen those family-owned newspaper companies sold to big national companies like the former Capital Cities/ABC Inc. and Fidelity Investments, then more recently to larger local media companies such as Enterprise News Media or The Boston Herald.

The journalists and the local journalism, however, have remained remarkably consistent through those changes and transactions.

In fact, the Wicked Local website brand was born before GateHouse Media came into the picture, with the launch of Wicked Local Plymouth back in the mid-2000s. Wicked Local Wareham and Wicked Local Duxbury followed. The Wicked Local branding then expanded at the end of 2006 when GateHouse Media entered the Massachusetts market.

It's clear the competitive landscape has changed dramatically and continues to change. But it's also clear – despite what other national media companies want you to believe – Wicked Local is as local as ever.

Gregory Mathis is editor-in-chief of GateHouse Media New England's South unit based in Marshfield, with offices in Plymouth and Raynham.

Paul DeRensis named Super Lawyer

Cohasset Town Counsel Paul DeRensis was named as one of 2010's New England Super Lawyers in November 2010 along with two other members of his firm, Deutsch Williams Brooks DeRensis & Holland, P.C. The list of 2010 Super Lawyers is assembled by Thomson Reuters in conjunction with Boston magazine based on peer nominations by attorneys, independent research conducted by the Thomson Reuters research staff, and peer evaluations by practice area across the six New England states aimed at selecting as Super Lawyers the top 5 percent of New England attorneys in more than 60 practice areas and reflects both peer recognition and professional achievement verified through selection process to determine New England's best.

DeRensis has achieved recognition as a government/cities/municipalities "super lawyer" six times, in 2004, 2005, 2007, 2008, 2009 and now 2010.

Town Counsel Paul DeRensis.

DeRensis' practice is concentrated in the area of municipal law, and he was one of only 11 lawyers given recognition as a Super Lawyer in the government/cities/municipalities law area throughout the six state New England region. DeRensis has achieved recognition as a government/cities/municipalities "super lawyer" six times, in 2004, 2005, 2007, 2008, 2009 and now 2010.

DeRensis is a graduate of Harvard College and Harvard Law School, and is admitted to practice in New York and Massachusetts and in various federal courts including the United States Supreme Court. He serves as Town Counsel to a number of Massachusetts municipalities. DeRensis has served as Cohasset's Town Counsel for 14 years.

All New England Super Lawyers are listed in November's issue of Boston magazine.

MEMA offers tips to help keep families safe

House fires occur more frequently in the winter due to lack of proper safety precautions when using alternate heating sources such as unattended fires and space heaters.

A winter storm in New England can range from a moderate snowfall over a few hours to a chilling Nor'easter, bringing blizzard conditions with blinding wind-driven snow that lasts several days. People can become stranded in their automobiles or trapped at home, without utilities or other services. The aftermath of a winter storm can have an impact on a community or the entire region for days, weeks or even months. Storm effects, in New England, include large snow accumulation, extremely cold temperatures, heavy, wet snow or icing on trees and power lines, roof collapses, coastal flooding and beach erosion.

Winter storms are also deceptive killers because most deaths are indirectly related to the actual storm. The major causes are automobile or other transportation accidents, exhaustion and heart attacks caused by overexertion, freezing to death and asphyxiation from improper heating sources. House fires occur more frequently in the winter due to lack of proper safety precautions when using alternate heating sources such as unattended fires and space heaters.

"As with most potential disasters, preparedness, monitoring the media and common sense can minimize the danger to you and your family," said Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency acting director Kurt Schwartz. "That is why MEMA is sharing important winter safety information through the media and the MEMA website over the next few weeks."

Areas to be covered in this series will include the proper steps to take to prepare a family and home for the winter season, automobile and driving safety, ice safety, protecting pets, responding to power outages, extreme temperatures, roof collapse and recovering from a winter storm.

Those who already have an All-Hazard Emergency Supply Kit, as MEMA continues to recommend, are ahead of the curve. However, it is important to check the kit, to ensure it is properly stocked with enough supplies to survive on one's own for at least three to five days. Now is also the time to review a family communication plan.

Winter emergency supply kits should include:

- Flashlight and extra batteries.
- Portable radio or NOAA weather radio with extra batteries.
- Charged cell phone.
- First-aid kit.
- Essential prescription medicines.
- Non-perishable food.
- Manual can opener.
- Water – one gallon per person per day.
- Baby items.
- Extra blankets and sleeping bags.
- Fire extinguisher.

Family emergency communications plan

Develop a family emergency communication plan in case family members are separated from one another during a winter storm, a real possibility during the day when adults are at work and children are at school, and have a plan for getting back together.

- Ask an out-of-state relative or friend to serve as the family contact. After a disaster, it is often easier to call long distance than across town. Also, calling outside the area will probably be easier than calling into a disaster area.
- Make sure everyone knows the name, address and telephone number of the contact person.
- Sometimes an emergency could impact your neighborhood or small section of town. Decide on an alternate meeting area for family members.

Be informed

- Become aware of the community's emergency plans, available through the local emergency management director.
- Be familiar with the emergency plans at your children's school and one's workplace.
- Be aware of the location of the community's emergency notification systems, potential emergency shelters and possible evacuation routes.

These steps can help reassure everyone's safety and minimize the stress associated with emergencies.

Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency is the state agency responsible for coordinating federal, state, local, voluntary and private resources during emergencies and disasters in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. MEMA provides leadership to: Develop plans for effective response to all hazards, disasters or threats; train emergency personnel to protect the public; provide information to the citizenry; and assist individuals, families, businesses and communities to mitigate against, prepare for, and respond to and recover from emergencies, both natural and man made. For more information about MEMA and winter preparedness, go to the MEMA website at www.mass.gov/mema. Also, follow MEMA updates on Facebook and Twitter.

Buttonwood Books sponsoring Book Angel Program

Program recipients are Wellspring in Hull, Friends of the Homeless in Weymouth and Blue Hills Healthy Families, serving the South Shore.

Buttonwood Books & Toys, Shaw's Plaza, Route 3A, Cohasset, is sponsoring its annual Book Angel Program to benefit local children. The goal of the program is to promote literacy and give the gift of reading to a local child. The book angel selects an angel from the tree in the store and buys a book for the child described on the angel. Buttonwood will give a 15 percent discount on the book and deliver the book to the appropriate agency.

Program recipients are Wellspring in Hull, Friends of the Homeless in Weymouth and Blue Hills Healthy Families, serving the South Shore. This is the 17th year Buttonwood has sponsored the Book Angel Program and the need is great this year. About 200 books were donated last year. The program will take place through Dec. 23.

For more information, call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: There were no roll call votes in the House or Senate last week.

This week, Beacon Hill Roll Call examines the percentage of times local representatives in 2010 voted with Democratic House Speaker Robert DeLeo in the House on key roll call votes.

Beacon Hill Roll Call uses 124 key votes from the 2010 House session as the basis for this report. These include controversial roll calls that were not unanimous and/or local.

The six representatives who voted with Speaker DeLeo 100 percent of the time are all Democrats including Marcos Devers (D-Lawrence); Patricia Haddad (D-Somerset); Louis Kafka (D-Norwood); Michael Moran (D-Boston); Kathi-Anne Reinstein (D-Revere) and James Vallee (D-Franklin).

The Democratic representative who voted the lowest percentage of times with DeLeo is Rep. Jennifer Callahan (D-Sutton). She supported the speaker only 46.3 percent of the time.

Other Democrats on the list of top ten representatives who voted the lowest percentage of times with DeLeo include Reps. Steven D'Amico (D-Seekonk), 47.9 percent; Thomas Stanley (D-Waltham), 48.3 percent; James Miceli (D-Wilmington), 53.2 percent; Denis Guyer (D-Dalton), 53.9 percent; Colleen Garry (D-Dracut), 56.8 percent; Denise Provost (D-Somerville), 59.6 percent; Matthew Patrick (D-Falmouth), 60.1 percent; William Brownsberger (D-Belmont) and Geraldine Creedon (D-Brockton), both 67.4 percent; and William Greene (D-Billerica), 64.5 percent.

The Republican who supported DeLeo the highest percentage of times is Rep. Donald Humason (R-Westfield). He supported the speaker 45.9 percent of the time.

The Republican who supported DeLeo the lowest percentage of the time is Rep. Karyn Polito (R-Shrewsbury) 33.8 percent.

Other Republicans on the list of top five representatives who voted the lowest percentage of times with DeLeo include Reps. Vinny deMacedo (R-Plymouth), 35.4 percent; Paul Frost (R-Auburn), 37 percent; and Lewis Evangelidis (R-Holden) and Jeffrey Perry (R-Sandwich) both 37.7 percent.

PERCENTAGE OF TIMES LOCAL REPRESENTATIVES VOTED WITH SPEAKER DELEO

Here is how local representatives fared in their support of Speaker DeLeo on 124 key roll calls.

The percentage next to the representative's name represents the percentage of times the representative supported DeLeo.

The number in parentheses represents the number of times the representative supported DeLeo.

Some representatives voted on all 124 roll call votes. Others missed one or more of the votes. Their record is based on the number of roll calls on which they voted and does not count those for which they were absent.

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

PROBE INTO PROBATION DEPARTMENT - The blockbuster report on possible wrongdoing in the state's Probation Department has officially claimed its first legislative "victim" on Beacon Hill. House Speaker Robert DeLeo announced that Speaker Pro Tempore Thomas Petrolati (D-Ludlow) will not seek appointment to that powerful post when the Democrats elect their House leadership team in January. Petrolati refused to cooperate with Independent Counsel Paul Ware, the author of the report, and invoked his Fifth Amendment right to remain silent to avoid self-incrimination.

Ware concluded that corruption in the hiring and promotion process in the Probation Department is rampant throughout the system. The report notes legislators would "sponsor" candidates for Probation Department jobs and that the interview and selection process was often rigged in favor of hiring candidates with political or other personal connections instead of better qualified, non-connected applicants.

The report alleges that Petrolati sponsored 17 candidates for jobs in the Probation Department. Seven of his job-seekers were hired.

BAN LAWMAKERS FROM RECOMMENDING APPLICANTS FOR JOBS - Meanwhile, Rep. Jennifer Callahan (D-Sutton) is seeking co-sponsors for a bill that would bar legislators from recommending individuals for jobs within state government. The prohibition would ban all phone calls, letters and personal contacts on behalf of the job applicant. Callahan, defeated by Republican challenger Ryan Fattman in November, is planning to file the measure soon and hopes to get it passed before the 2010 session ends in January.

COMMISSION ON PREVENTING FALLS (S 2240) - The House gave initial approval to Senate-approved legislation creating a Commission on Falls Prevention to study ways to reduce the number of falls of senior citizens and to review the effects of the falls on health care costs. A similar bill was approved by the Senate in 2008 but died in the House. The measure still needs additional approval by both branches prior to going to Gov. Deval Patrick for his signature.

Y = Yes, N = No, NV = No Vote *President rarely votes

Are you programmed to be an evaluator?

PUSHING THE EDGE

GLENN MANGURIAN

In this simple example, Friend one's simple observation and rhetorical question were greeted with judgment and evaluation.

The other day four friends were walking in a park enjoying the beautiful fall weather.

Friend one commented: Look at the blue sky with the beautiful clouds. Isn't it wonderful?

Friend two said: I prefer a clear sky. The clouds are distracting.

Friend three said: I think the clouds look threatening. I think it's going to rain soon.

Friend four remained quiet but thought to herself: Friend 1 is such an idealist. Who has time to comment on the sky? I need to get back to doing real work.

In this simple example, Friend one's simple observation and rhetorical question were greeted with judgment and evaluation.

Isn't that the way it often is? We listen through a filter of measurement, judgment and evaluation.

Do I agree or disagree? Yes or no? Is it right or wrong? Is it good or bad? Is it less than or greater than?

You have probably been in a meeting where someone was making an observation and another person disagreed with the point before the sentence was completed. Some are habitual evaluators. These people stop listening to what is being said and start forming their response.

Are we programmed to be evaluators? Some, or even many, things just are and do not warrant or need evaluation. By now, some of you are deciding whether you agree or disagree with my premise. What if we did less evaluating and more listening? We might learn to appreciate the blue sky and clouds in the process.

Pushing the edge of your thinking:

1. Do you listen and see the world through a filter of evaluation?

2. Do you experience others evaluating you, your comments and actions?

3. How do we teach our children to be less judgmental and more accepting?

CHS Hall of Fame Committee appreciates support

TO THE EDITOR:

The Cohasset High School Athletic Hall of Fame Committee would like to again congratulate and thank all the Hall of Fame inductees and their families help make the Inaugural Class of 2010 induction a huge success last week. The Thanksgiving reception dedicating our new Hall of Fame Sign and introduction of the Hall of Fame Class along being escorted by our recent alums from the Championship teams of 2010 marked the beginning of a new tradition to truly look forward to every two years. The Hall of Fame Dinner at Atlantica on Friday evening was a great tribute to the inductees and their families. We again would like to thank everyone who attended last week's events especially those who traveled to Cohasset from across the country to be here.

The CHS Athletic Hall of fame Committee would also like to thank the following sponsors and contributors who helped make the Inaugural Class of 2010 such a big success. A very special thanks goes to:

- The Clark Chatterton Memorial Fund for its generous $5000 donation.
- Nancy Kucinski for donating the frames for the team inductees' certificates.
- David and Josh Hassan of Hassan Sign Co., of Cohasset for their creative talents in designing and manufacturing the Hall of Fame sign at Cohasset High School.
- The Cohasset High School Administration and School Committee for their support of the Hall of Fame project.
- Joe Campbell and Michelle Scully of Atlantica Restaurant for helping us plan the Hall of Fame dinner.
- Mr. Al Gallotta for his guidance throughout the Hall of Fame process.
- To all the Cohasset Historical Society and all of the CHS Alumni, Family, and Friends who helped us compile the information on all of our Hall of Fame candidates.
- Nally Awards and Village Greenery for their assistance with the awards and flowers for the Hall of Fame ceremonies.
- The staff at the Cohasset Mariner for helping us publicize the Hall of Fame.

The CHS Athletic Hall of Fame will induct a new class every two years. The next class will be inducted at Thanksgiving in 2012. If you wish to contact the Hall of Fame Committee, make a donation, or would like to receive a nomination packet please contact:

Jingle Bell Walk thanks helping hands

TO THE EDITOR:

The South Shore Community Center in Cohasset would like to express its appreciation to the many merchants and volunteers who lent a helping hand at our 16th annual Jingle Bell Walk.

As the bells rang out from St. Stephen's Church, thanks to Mary Kennedy; Santa and Mrs. Claus accompanied by their many elf assistants arrived at the Community Center. All our volunteers were ready to go with jingle bells, hot cocoa, and cookies waiting.

Mrs. Claus and Santa, along with Frosty, Rudolph and the merry Elves led a community sing-along of traditional holiday favorites. The crowd was delighted to enjoy holiday musical selections from the Rusty Skippers Band and Big Ryan entertained the children with wonderful stories. Photos with Santa, bowling, and crafts followed. Outside activities included hayrides around Cohasset Common and the SSCC Christmas tree was officially lit to signal the beginning of another holiday season.

We would like to express our sincere thanks to the many contributors and volunteers who helped make the day a great success.

FIELD HOCKEY

NAME: Siobhan McCarthy
SCHOOL: Duxbury
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Midfield/defense
STATS: Arguably the strongest defender not only in the Patriot League but on the South Shore as well, McCarthy had the strongest strike on the team. She took nearly every free shot from distance and was practically impossible to get around.

NAME: Sophia Fitzpatrick
SCHOOL: Duxbury
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Goalie
STATS: What more could you ask for in a goalie? Fitzpatrick recorded 11 shutouts, tops in the Patriot League, didn't allow only more than goal in seven games, and at most allowed two goals (and that only happened twice).

NAME: Ericka Stearns
SCHOOL: Hanover
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Midfield
STATS: Stearns is a captain, a leader on the field and a stabilizing force for the Indians. She was also a Patriot League All-Star.

NAME: Kelsey Erler
SCHOOL: Cohasset
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Midfielder
STATS: Kelsey finished the season, including playoffs as Cohasset's leading scorer in an undefeated regular season. Erler was a South Shore League All-Star and scored 13 goals to go with six assists.

NAME: Meredith Barthold
SCHOOL: Scituate
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Center Forward
STATS: The senior captain was a leader on and off the field, and was also third on the team in scoring. She had a big goal in Scituate's first playoff victory in 15 years, with a backhander that gave Scituate a 1-0 lead against Norwell in a playoff game.

NAME: Hannah Murphy
SCHOOL: Duxbury
YEAR: Sophomore
POSITION: Forward/midfielder
STATS: This sophomore put up impressive numbers this season, setting a school record for most goals scored in a single season (28). She also had 14 assists for the Patriot League champs.

NAME: Molly Clark
SCHOOL: Hingham
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Clark is one of the fastest players in the Patriot League and one of the top scorers. The Patriot League All-Star had a hat trick against Middleboro late in the season.

NAME: Natalie Dignam
SCHOOL: Cohasset
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Dignam notched eight goals and had a pair of assists while helping lead the team as one of the squad's five captains. Dignam was named a South Shore League All-Star.

NAME: Alyssa Gunville
SCHOOL: Norwell
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: One of four captains for the Lady Clippers this season, Gunville helped lead the Norwell girls to an 8-7-4 record, and their first trip to the postseason since 2005.

NAME: Beth Findley
SCHOOL: Hingham
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward/Midfield
STATS: Findley had an outstanding season that ended with a selection to the Patriot League All-Star team and her being named to the Best of 60 team that named her one of the 15 best seniors in Southern Mass. Findley capped a great regular season with her first career hat trick in a 3-2 win over Hanover on Senior Day.

NAME: Maggie Travers
SCHOOL: Scituate
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Center Midfield
STATS: Travers was Scituate's second leading scorer, notching 19 regular-season points from the midfield, including nine goals. Early in the season, coach Amanda Bird-Clemmer called Travers the backbone of the team and an unselfish player. She more than lived up to the compliment throughout the entire season and in the playoffs.

NAME: Whitney Jaffe
SCHOOL: Cohasset
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Goalie
STATS: Jaffe allowed just 11 goals in 19 games and had 13 shutouts to lead the Skippers to an undefeated regular season. She stopped 86 percent of the shots she faced during the season, and was truly a last line of defense for Cohasset.

NAME: Olivia Murphy
SCHOOL: Cohasset
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Murphy finished just one point behind Erler in the scoring sweepstakes, finishing with 13 goals and five assists, but in the early and middle part of the season, she was Cohasset's biggest weapon, scoring several game-winners in tight games.

NAME: Nicki White
SCHOOL: Hanover
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: A strong scorer and team captain, Nicki has been one of the top all-around players in the area for the past few seasons. She turned in another solid performance this season for the Indians.

NAME: Megan Kerens
SCHOOL: Marshfield
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Goalie
STATS: With a spot in the postseason hanging in the balance, Marshfield needed its players to step up. Perhaps the biggest one of them all was Kerens. The first-year varsity goalie posted seven shutouts. She shut out Brockton in the next-to-last game of the season to qualify Marshfield for the tournament. Then, she became the only goalie to hold Duxbury scoreless and hand the Dragons their first and only loss of the regular season.

Cohasset's varsity football Coach Pete Afanasiw gets a celebratory bath after winning the Thanksgiving Day game against the Hull Pirates 36-12.

A happy holiday

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

The Cohasset football team put memories of recent losses and last year's Thanksgiving Day loss to Hull to rest with a 36-12 Thanksgiving Day win over Hull at Alumni Stadium.

On a day when the 2010 Cohasset Hall of Fame class was being honored, the Skippers made some happy memories for their outstanding senior class and they did it quickly.

Thomas Flibotte had touchdown runs of 59 yards and 54 yards on the way to a 192-yard game, while quarterback Jeff Cavanaro had touchdown passes of 35 yards (to Jake Kissick) and 55 yards(to Robert Jones) and ran one in for 15 yards on a drive set up by a huge fumble-causing tackle on a kickoff by Bill Mack that gave Cohasset the ball inside the Hull 30 yard line just moments after Cohasset took a 7-0 lead courtesy of Flibotte.

Flibotte's first touchdown, a 59-yarder, came on the second play of the game and Cavanaro scored on a 15-yard run after Hull's fumble on the kickoff.

Kicker, Shane Haggerty gave Cohasset a 15-0 lead with a pass to Robbie Mahoney for a two-point conversion.

All this happened in the first

BASKETBALL

A long tradition of greatness

A look at the All-Time Cohasset girls basketball greats

By Rob Vandenabeele
SPECIAL TO THE COHASSET MARINER

Though schoolgirl basketball in Cohasset dates back to the early 1940s, it enjoyed little fan fare through its first three decades. All that changed in 1972, however, when Title IX (landmark legislation that leveled the playing field for female athletes) was officially enacted. Within a few years the girls had abandoned their antiquated 6-on6 version of the game, demanded their own state tournament just like the boys, and opened the door to unprecedented basketball opportunities for females everywhere. Here's a look back, in chronological order, at some of the all-time Cohasset girls basketball greats who took full advantage:

WRESTLING

Poised for a strong season

With a strong finish last year and a number of veterans returning, the upcoming wrestling season is looking good for Cohasset.

"This team finished very strong last season with a third place in the South Sectionals and we will look to pick up right where we left off with great senior leadership and good intensity," veteran coach Torin Sweeney said. "We have six wrestlers returning that placed in the sectionals last season."

Returners are Thomas Flibotte (Sr.) and Gus Helboch (Jr.) both finished second last year.

CROSS COUNTRY

Good season, bright future ahead

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

For the three years he's been there, Cohasset/Hull cross country coach Brad Mingels has seen his team making strides and improving.

That happened again this season, especially for the girls, who improved on their win total from last year.

"The addition of several new runners had an impact," Mingels said of the girls team. "Izzy Robinson and Olivia Franklin were both new and they really helped us. They're hard workers and they give everything they've got in practice."

Along with the newcomers, Mingels credited leadership.

"Chrissie Secatore is our captain," he said. "She had a solid season. She was nominated as a league all-star."

Other runners who helped the cause included returners Steph Brierley, Ellie Tedeschi, Anya Gruber and Sarah Russell.

"Each one contributed in their own way," Mingels said. "Chrissie set an example. She comes to practice every day and really demonstrated leadership. She's a captain. She brought new runners to us and carries herself well. She helped bring the new girls to the next level. They'll be strong next year."

Mingels said the girls have made strides.

"Each year in the three years I've done it (coaching) they've won one more meet," he said. "They threw a scare into opponents. Other coaches have said we're on the way up."

In the next few seasons there should be even more success.

"There are some younger girls coming to the high school."

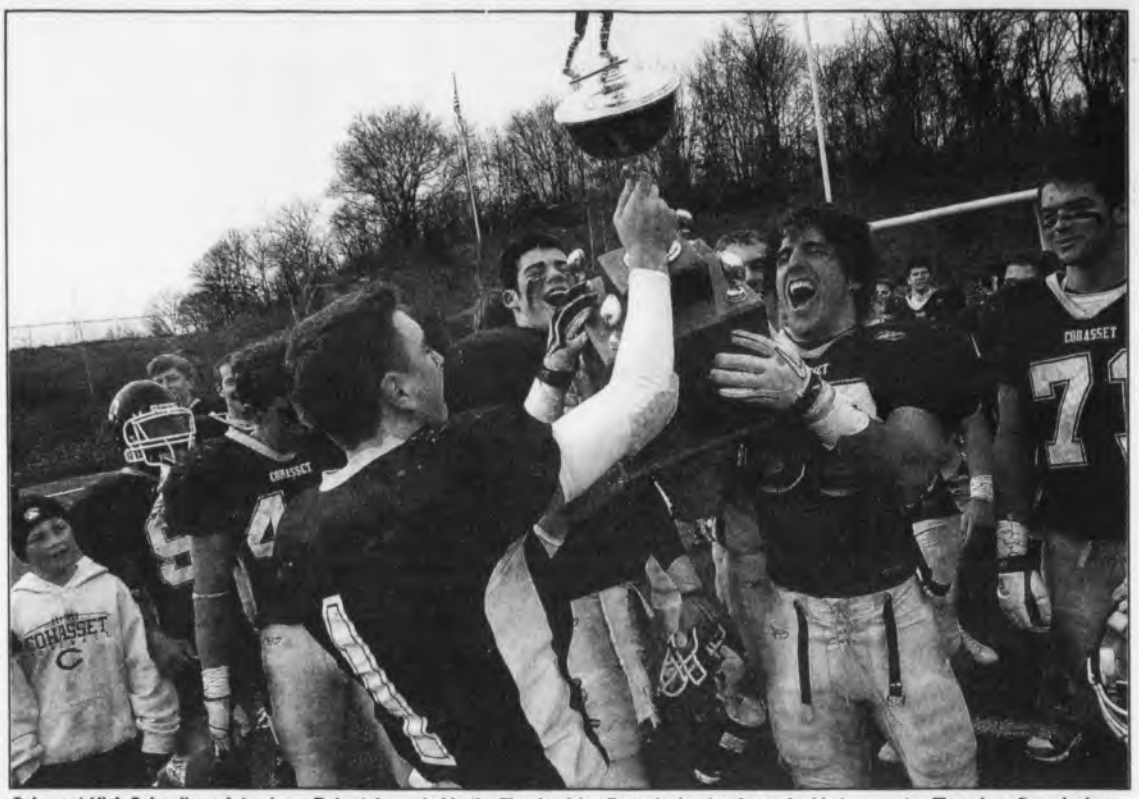
minutes of the game.

"The kids played outstanding football," Cohasset coach Pete Afanasiw said. "They left the letdowns at Mashpee and Abington behind and put a nice finishing touch on their senior season. It was sweet revenge for last year."

Hull answered with a long touchdown run by Connor McGrath, but the Skippers blocked the extra point before the Cavanaro to Kissick score upped the lead to 22-6 with Haggerty's kick.

The touchdown capped a 70-yard drive that covered 14 plays.



Hull followed with a long touchdown drive capped by a Mark Mainini six-yard run, but were stopped on the two-point try right before the half, making it 22-12.

Hull's first possession of the second half almost ended in disaster for the Pirates when Kyle Livingstone ran a punt back for a touchdown, but a roughing the punter penalty gave Hull a second chance.

Cohasset made the stops, and soon it was Flibotte's turn again, and he notched the 54-yard touchdown jaunt and a 29-12 lead with Haggert'y's boot.

Cohasset improved to 7-3 with the win, and gave the Skippers the chance to even the series next year.

After Thursday's game, Hull leads the rivalry 12-11-1.

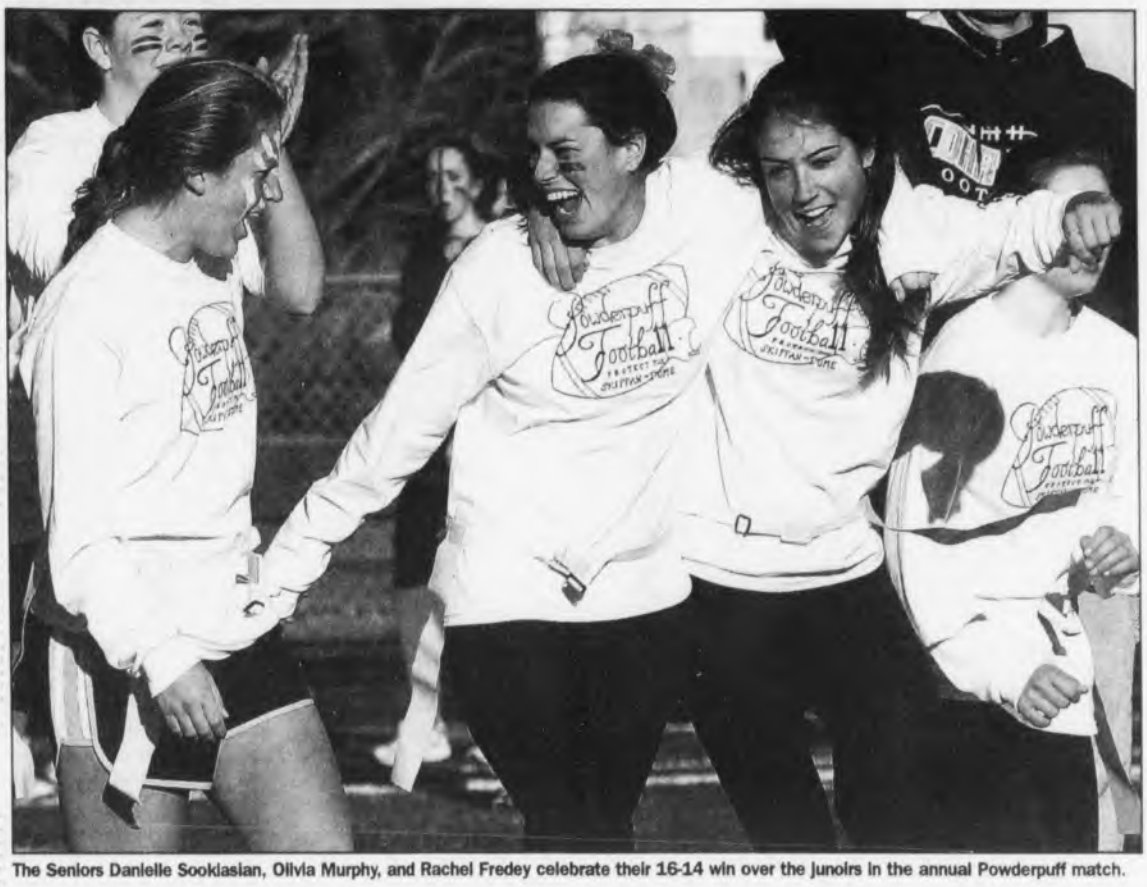
Juniors Harry Braga, Chris Brash and Kimani Hale-Sahd will strengthen the lineup.

Sophomores, Greg Berube, Alex Seppala, Graham Bell, Tommy Ryan, Bill Curry, Nick Tangerlini, Zach Washak and Mike Livingstone all gained great experience last season and all should have opportunities to wrestle varsity.



"I'm looking forward to a great season," Sweeney said. "We also have a couple new seniors, juniors and sophomores trying out. Most importantly we have 10 new freshman out and they look great the first couple of days. This is the first time ever that we have had over 30 wrestlers out for the CHS team."

Mingels said. "If we get a couple of more runners we can compete with Norwell and East Bridgewater."

The girls did well at the recent State Meet at Franklin Park.

"Because we're a co-op team the combined population of both schools pumped us to Division 5," Mingels said. "Most of the South Shore League runs in Division 6. When we were there I looked at the times. As a team we finished 27th, but when I compared the times with Division 6 times, we beat every South Shore League team except East Bridgewater and Norwell. It just confirmed that the girls are on the way up."

On the boys side, the past season was more of a rebuilding year.

"Brian Collins was a senior and our captain," Mingels said. "He's a league all-star. He finished fifth in the league meet. He provided us leadership and experience. Brian is from Hull and sometimes the teams practice separately. Brian made sure to come to Cohasset and helped bring everyone together. There's a really nice dynamic with the two towns. They're all teammates and friends. It's great to see that kind of bonding between the kids."

Graduation hit the boys hard, but Mingels said there's a nice infusion of younger talent.

"I'm very encouraged by the freshmen this year," he said. "Harry Helbock came out for cross country. You can tell he loves to run. He works really hard. He's come a long way. The next three seasons he's going to go up and up. Clark Indek and Brodie Jackish did a good job. Matt Durant is a senior. He was sick a few times during the season and couldn't run, but on the days he couldn't compete he picked up the slack and helped with coaching duties. He'll be missed."

Sophomore Nick Cimetti had a good year.

"Nick is the heir apparent to Brian," Mingels said. "He reminds me of where Brian was two years ago. It's nice to have a successor in place."

Mingels said he misses the sport already, but is excited for the future.

"The end of cross country season is a bittersweet time," he said. "It's sad to see it come to an end, but it was nice the way the team bonded, especially the girls. They'll make some noise."

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse registration begins Dec. 1

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse will open its on-line registration for the Spring 2011 season December 1. To register go to our website www.cohassetlacrosse.com and click on the registration link.

Registrations will be accepted for both boys and girls in grades three through eight. All youth players are welcome, regardless of experience.

Details for players in first and second grade will be coming out shortly.

Registration will continue until January 31. The program is committed to accepting every player who signs up during open registration. Once that sign-up period is completed the program will establish its ideal roster sizes and take late registrants on a first-come, first-served basis only until the rosters are filled. At that point a waiting list will be established, or players may be turned away.

Fees for grades 3-8 in 2011 are $170 per player, with family pricing of $140 for each additional family member. The price includes the field fee of $10 per player that the town charges to CYL.

Scholarships are available for families facing unusual circumstances or financial difficulty.

Please check the appropriate box on the on-line form.

If you have any issues with on-line access, or registration related questions you may contact Joe Fitzgerald at fitzpj8@aol.com.

year of 1983 and jumpstarted a memorable decade for the program by leading them to their first state tournament appearance. Her hardwood accomplishments helped her become the school's first All-Scholastic in girls basketball, as well as the first member of the state's All-Academic team. Also a standout in field hockey and softball, she was part of Cohasset's inaugural Athletics Hall of Fame class.

Tracy Fitzpatrick

The player coach Bill Fallon consistently turned to in the clutch, she was the main cog in the 1985 team that advanced all the way to the Division 3 state final. Not only was she the team's top offensive threat with a 16 point-per-game average, she was also a defensive ace whose regular assignment was to shut down the opposition's best scorer. A three-year varsity starter and a two-time South Shore League All-Star, she was named tri-captain as a senior and selected for the Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic team.

Carla Lucas

An undersized center at just 5-foot-8, she gave opposing post players fits with her ability to score with either hand. Selected to both the Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic and state All-Academic teams, she scored to the tune of 14 points a game while hauling down 12 rebounds per contest during her senior year of 1985. Riding her consistent post play, the team captured its first South Shore League title and then came within two points of winning the Division 3 state championship.

Liz O'Leary

Little more than a contributing player off the bench during her junior year, the promising point guard turned out to be the team MVP during a magical senior season. Described as "jack-rabbit quick" by one sports writer, she obliterated the school record for steals with an astonishing average of more than 7 per game. In the tournament, her defense was the team's best offense, helping her raise her scoring average to 16 points per game and register a career-high 23 in the team's 1988 state title victory.

Cindy Spooner

A 5'10" forward who began her varsity career as an eighth grader, she averaged a double-double during her junior and senior seasons. In addition to being the team's most consistent back-to-the-basket scoring threat, her long on-the-money outlet passes often led to easy baskets for many of her teammates. Despite suffering a serious knee injury at the end of a junior year in which she made the All-Scholastic team, she recovered in time to become an integral part of the team's 1988 Division 3 state title run.

Marge Murphy

A marvelous all-around player with brilliant ball handling and shooting skills, she was the glue that held the memorable 1988 team together as it captured the program's first state crown. That year, she averaged an amazing 12 points, 8 rebounds, 7 assists, and 4 steals per game and made the Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic team. Her stat-stuffing season also garnered honors from the Boston Globe, making her the only female Cohasset basketball player ever to be honored by that newspaper.

Casey Anderson

Along with legendary coach John Levangie, this formidable 5'8" forward helped guide the 2004 and 2005 teams back to the tournament for the first time since the program's decade of dominance ended in the 1980s. She led the South Shore League in scoring as a junior, and struck for a career-high 38 points during a senior year in which she averaged more than 22 per game. Her back-to-back selections to the Ledger's All-Scholastic team in '04 & '05 ended a 16-year drought for Cohasset girls basketball players.

Samantha Lehr

A six-foot center supreme, she was the towering force that took over during the 2008 team's drive to the Division 4 state championship. Though only a junior, she led the team in scoring, rebounding, and blocked shots as they took home the school's second crown 20 years later. She was a double-double machine during her senior year, averaging 13 points and 16 rebounds a game on route to back-to-back league MVP awards and a second consecutive selection to the Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic team.

Tori Lehr

Arguably the most talented player ever to put on a Cohasset girls basketball uniform, she compiled a dizzying array of accomplishments. Her teams won three consecutive South Shore League titles, earned venerable coach John Levangie his 400th career win, captured a state title in 2008, and added another in 2010 with a dream-come-true 25-0 season. The only 3-time All-Scholastic in the program's history, her unstoppable turn-around jumper helped her secure a scholarship to division 2 St. Anselm.

Meredith Kelly

There wasn't much the brilliant 5'9" guard-forward couldn't do during her ultra-successful career. A tremendous two-way player, she led the team in scoring for two years, while at the other end of the floor stifling the opponent's main offensive threat. A huge part of both the 2008 and 2010 Division 4 state championship teams, the culmination of her individual career was becoming the first member of the girls basketball program to earn a spot on the Boston Herald's prestigious All-Scholastic team. Kelly has had a strong start to her young college career at Bates College in Maine, scoring 19 points and the go-ahead basket in the closing minutes of an 84-79 win over Husson on Monday night. Bates improved to 3-1 with the win.

More Cohasset Greats

I know, I know, what about (insert name of your favorite big-time player here)? Here are a few more all-time greats that should have made the cut: Point guard Janet DiGirolamo ran the show for the 1985 team that lost a 2-point heartbreaker to Quaboag in the Division 3 state title game . . . Kristin Ellinger (1989) was a tenacious defender who anchored the last of Bill Fallon's tremendous tournament teams . . . Lindsay Grossman (2003) was the program's first All-Scholastic in 14 years before taking her terrific tennis skills to Colgate . . . Gabriella Flibotte (2006) was the program's only player to make All-Scholastic as a freshman before she left for prep school in Groton . . . Though sometimes overlooked, the versatile Samantha Crough (2010) was a big factor in the 2008 and 2010 crowns . . . And returning All-Scholastic Carli Haggerty (2011) may be the key to this season's dreams.

Check out next week's Cohasset Mariner for the best of the boys.

Student Council gives back to community

LIFE AT CHS

NATALIE DIGNAM

This is the week! Finally, "The Wiz" will be playing this Friday, Saturday, and Sunday and tickets will be sold at lunch or in the high school office. Good luck to the cast and crew. I'm thinking "break a leg" might be a bad omen.

Also this week, CHS is giving back. The Student Council has organized the "Cradles to Crayons" clothes drive and is asking for mittens, hats, coats and new socks.

Also, the annual blood drive will be held on Friday in the gym. The Red Cross will be running the blood drive with trained nurses on hand, and this season there is always an increase in demand, so students don't hesitate to help! Please remember that you must have parental consent to participate.

It's that time of year again at CHS (no, not Secret Santa in band class), winter sports have begun. Remember to get your physical, or all those posters around the school will be staring you in the face until you do and Mrs. Collins will have to come find you (but really, she's probably too busy with winter colds and impact testing, so just go do it already).

This year, the girls will team up with Hingham and hit the ice, but who knows if they will be able to replicate their earlier success on the field. Being able to use both sides of the stick and following rules that everybody understands will definitely be nice.

And while were all waiting for the weather to turn cold, to justify wearing Ugg boots everyday until it snows and we have to wear real snow boots so the Uggs don't get ruined, take a lap around CHS and you'll notice some pretty amazing artistic feats. Did you know that every mural that adorns the walls of CHS has to go through a rigorous process? I didn't, but now that I'm working on one of these masterpieces, I found out that the principal actually has to approve your sketch before you just start painting on the wall. OK, this may seem obvious, but for a few days I was a vandal (even me, the writer of "Life at CHS").

So, I leave you this week with this lesson: If you ever want to get anything done, asking the principal is a good place to start.

Natalie Dignam is a senior at CHS. Her column appears weekly throughout the school year.

Cohasset Public Schools celebrate Inclusive Schools week

Teachers rock! Give them 'Extra Credit'

People know who they are: The motivators. The catalysts. The teachers who open worlds for their students and challenge them to achieve more than they ever thought possible. Student success and effective teachers go hand in hand. Every student deserves a teacher that rocks.

Let a favorite teachers know they rock. Give the gift that lasts – a gift in the name of that special faculty or staff member to the Cohasset Education Foundation's Teacher Appreciation Program, "Extra Credit". A donation to the CEF is a way for parents and students to honor a specific teacher or school employee at the holidays or anytime. In addition, it helps parents give a gift that will not compromise the policy on ethics and gift giving in public schools.

A child's teacher or other special recipient will receive a card acknowledging that a donation has been made in his or her honor with a personalized message. The amount of the gift will not be disclosed.

All proceeds from Extra Credit are earmarked for Professional Development, Classroom and Program Grants, helping Cohasset's teachers affect and inspire students in more ways than they ever thought possible.

To make a donation, select Fundraising, Extra Credit on the website at www.cohasseteducation.org

This holiday season, give a unique gift of a special memory!

Isabella Taft, 6 months, of Hanson meets Santa for the first time at the community center after the Jingle Bell Walk on Friday.

Matthew Keene, 7, of Cohasset reads what he wants for Christmas from his letter while his brother, Sam, 5, looks on.

Jingle Bell Walk

Community Center event heralds the season

Shannon Grady, 3 1/2, of Cohasset waves to Santa while being held by her dad, Paul, after he arrived at the pier for the annual Jingle Bell Walk.

William Synnestvedt, 4-1/2, of Cohasset laughs while dancing with Rudolph the Red Nose Reindeer on Friday.

Thom Koscielniak of Philadelphia, Pa. gets in the holiday spirit while playing Christmas music with the Rusty Skippers and his sister, Leonora Jenkins, on Friday.

Santa reaches out to shake hands with Julia Bianchi, 4, of Cohasset after arriving at the town pier.

Emily Boyle, left 8, of Cohasset checks out the snowflake that Audrey Appleton, 8, of Cohasset made in Santa's workshop at the community center on Friday. They were helping out as elves.

Maddie Miller, 6, of Cohasset pretends to decorate the Christmas tree outside the community center after the tree lighting on Friday.

Michael Crowe, 11, of Richwood, N.J., is in the Thanksgiving Day spirit while visiting his aunt and uncle in Cohasset and waiting for Santa to arrive for the Jingle Bell Walk.

Mrs. Claus, played by Mary Brennock, leads the children in singing Christmas carols at the Community Center on Friday.

These local women are checking out the New Green Resource Guide by the Cohasset Garden Club.

New Green Resource Guide available

Many people are trying to live "greener," using more organic, nontoxic products. But it's not an easy task. Where to shop? What is even available?

Members of Cohasset Garden Club have done the legwork for people. "The Green Resource Guide, Organic Sustainable Resources found Locally and Online," is hot off the presses and available to the public. Included in the guide are listings of all the local farmers markets, where to buy safe cleaning products and pet food, farms producing everything from organic beef and cheese to vegetables and honey. Green building architects, as well as new and recycled building products are listed.

"Every category has a section explaining what we should know before choosing a product or service."

— Sandra Durant, Cohasset Garden Club Conservation chairman

Cohasset Garden Club Conservation chairman Sandra Durant headed the committee that researched and produced the guide. "Every member of the committee spent a lot of time ferreting out the very best green, organic, natural, innovative products and the local businesses that produce or sell them," said Durant. "Every category has a section explaining what we should know before choosing a product or service."

Guides are available at Buttonwood Books in Cohasset and are $12 for one or two for $20. According to Durant, they make great stocking stuffers.

'The Wiz' on stage at Cohasset High School

Cohasset High School will present "The Wiz" on Friday, Dec. 3, at 7:30 p.m., Saturday, Dec. 4, 7:30 p.m.; and Sunday, Dec. 5, at 2:30 p.m., in the auditorium at Cohasset High School, 143 Pond St. All tickets are $10. Advance tickets are available through Buttonwood Bookstore, Cohasset.

"The Wiz" is a jazzed-up version of the classic "Wizard of Oz" story, brimming with lively original music including "Ease on Down the Road." The show will feature Cohasset High School students Megan Burke as Dorothy, Logan Pratt as the Scarecrow, Evan Ackley as the Tin Man, Robert Weiss as the Lion, and Bobby Nahill as the Wiz. The production will be directed by Stephanie Moriarty; producer and musical director, Bryan Marks.

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
DEC. 13, 2010

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) At this time you might want to resist that otherwise admirable Aries penchant for getting to the heart of a matter quickly. Keep in mind that a delicate situation calls for patience.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your aspects favor more diplomacy and fewer direct confrontations when dealing with a relationship problem. Avoiding hurt feelings can help in your search for the truth.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Positive aspects are strong this week. Although you might still have to deal with some problems caused by a recent period of turmoil, you are making progress, and that's what counts.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A family matter could benefit from your counsel. But don't come into it unless invited, and don't stay if you feel uneasy. Just remember to reassure one and all that you'll be there for them.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) As the truth about an ongoing situation emerges, you could find that you were right to defer judgment before you had all the facts. Now would be a good time to move on to other matters.

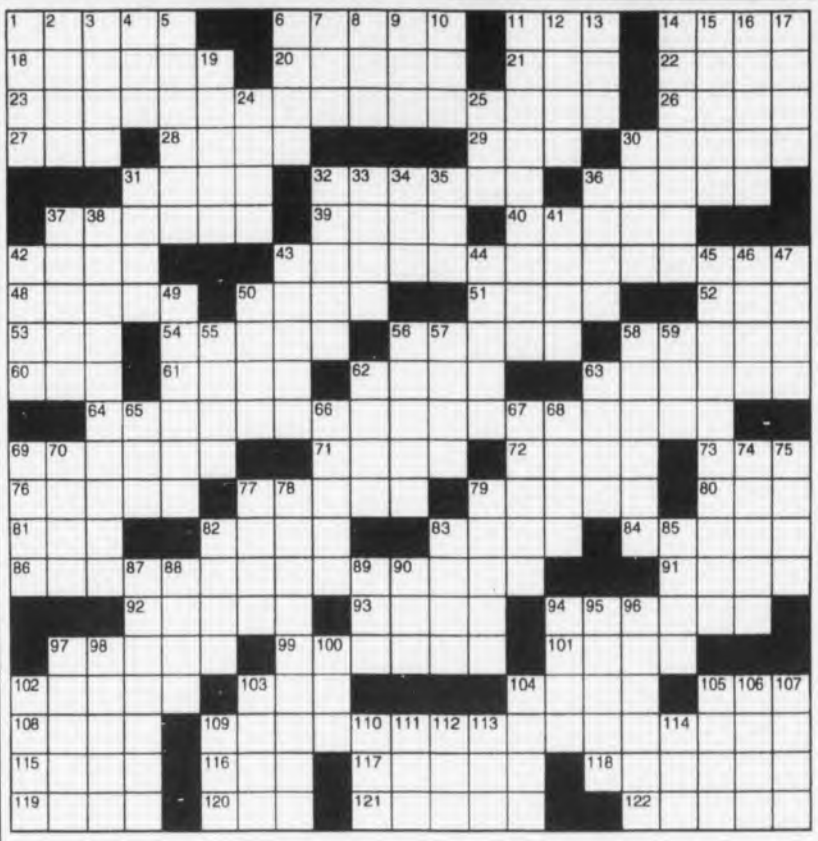
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Your plans to take control of a personal situation because you feel you are best qualified could create resentment. Best to hear what everyone else involved in the matter has to say about it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Uncovering some surprising background facts about that ongoing personal matter could make you reconsider the extent of your involvement. A neutral family member offers advice.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Religious or spiritual themes start to dominate your aspect this week. This can serve as a counterweight to the mounting effects of the season's growing commercialization.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Taking on that recent challenge impressed a lot of important decision-makers. Meanwhile, proceed with your holiday plans, and don't forget to include you-know-who in them.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Disagreeing with an opinion you can't accept could be dicey, and your motives might be questioned. Best to wait to mount a challenge until you have support for your position.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Getting involved in helping others in this increasingly hectic period not only makes the generous Aquarian feel good, but you could also gain a more substantive benefit from your actions.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The Piscean way of thinking clearly and objectively helps you resolve a complex situation without creating any ill will. Don't be surprised if your counsel is requested on another matter.

BORN THIS WEEK:
You have a way of persuading people to look at the positive possibilities that make up any choices they might face.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Abbey offers spiritual enrichment programs

This fall and winter Glastonbury Abbey will offer a new educational format, a series of spiritual talks and open discussions. Most people did not experience this opportunity when religion first entered their lives. This is an opportunity to explore the history of the Church, the richness of spiritual teachings through Scripture, the relevance and daily application of spirituality, its emotional connections and the place of sacred music in personal and communal relationships to God.

The Abbey provides a spiritual environment to learn, discuss and reflect on the depth of one's spiritual roots. The focus of these Spiritual Formation gatherings is to gain insight into one's own spiritual identity today, create or enhance inner spiritual awareness, and seek knowledge not available during one's early years. Glastonbury Abbey offer courses, lectures and retreats to deepen knowledge of theology and sacred scripture, and to provide opportunities for personal spiritual growth.

The following talks and discussion will be presented by the monks and laypersons in the community of Glastonbury Abbey:

• Dr. John Sheff, "Mental Health/Spiritual Health: A Psychologist's Perspective," will take place Tuesday, Jan. 11, 9:30 to 11 a.m.; or Jan. 11 from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

• Br. David Coakley, OSB, "Holy Clamor and Sacred Song: Our Emotions, Our Inhibitions and Our God," will take place Tuesday, Feb. 1, 7:30 to 9 p.m.; or Thursday, Feb. 3, 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Suggested donation is $20 per class.

Class given by Fr. Andrew Mark Quillen, OSB will include:

• "An Introduction to Wisdom Literature." Classes will take place Wednesdays, Jan. 12 through April 13, 7:30 to 9 p.m. on Thursdays, Jan. 13 through March 31, 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Suggested fee for the Fr. Andrew's classes is $125 for the course.

For more information concerning retreats, Lenten Reflections or the Listening to Other Voices lecture series, refer to the Glastonbury Abbey website at www.glastonburyabbey.org or call 781-749-2155 and ask for the Retreat office. Glastonbury Abbey is at 16 Hull St., Hingham.

A 'Wonderful' return

Michael Warner revives role as George Bailey

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

If you're fortunate enough to get a ticket to "It's a Wonderful Life" at Norwell's Company Theatre this holiday season, and lead actor Michael Warner looks familiar, it is probably with good reason – or maybe two good reasons. The Holbrook native is playing George Bailey – a downtrodden man brought back from the brink of suicide by the timely intervention of a guardian angel on Christmas Eve – for the fourth time, so it is possible you have seen him before in this or one of the other 17 or 18 shows he has done with Company. You may also notice that the 36-year-old actor bears more than a passing resemblance to Jimmy Stewart, who, of course, played the beaten-down Bailey in the 1946 feature film of the same name.

When Company's artistic directors Zoe Bradford, Jordie Saucerman, and Michael Joseph decided it was once again time to reprise the popular stage adaptation of the Frank Capra classic, based on Philip Van Doren Stern's short story "The Greatest Gift" and last seen in Norwell in 2006, the trio telephoned Warner immediately – only this time around it was a long-distance call. Warner, a 1992 graduate of Holbrook High School, was on the South Shore no more. He and girlfriend Nicole Mayne had relocated to New York to pursue their acting careers. As any good casting director will tell you, however, you can never underestimate the lure of a good part.

"When Zoe, Jordie, and Michael said they wanted to do 'It's a Wonderful Life' again and they wanted me to again play George Bailey, I said yes right away. I love the part and I love the show." Making the decision even easier, Mayne was cast to play George's loyal and loving wife, Mary. "I couldn't pass up the opportunity to play this role again, to be home for the holidays, and to share a stage with Nicole. We've done 'A Christmas Carol" at Company, but this will be our first time doing this show together."

Frank Plekut as Clarence the angel and Michael Warner as George Bailey in "It's a Wonderful Life" at the Company Theatre through Dec. 19.

Warner first played George Bailey for Company in 1997, which is when he first heard the comparisons with Stewart. He has been taking them in stride ever since.

"I honestly never heard anyone say I reminded them of Jimmy Stewart until I played this role. I never even thought about it until someone came up to me after a performance and said, 'You know, you look an awful lot like Jimmy Stewart.' I'm a big fan of the movie and when you think of the film you think of Jimmy Stewart, so I have always taken the comparisons as great compliments."

Screening the film just before he tackles the part has become something of a tradition for the actor, but it is not the only time he's been known to check in with the good people of Bedford Falls.

"I've watched the movie at least nine or 10 times recently just to get ready to play this role again, but it is timeless so I watch it even when I'm not doing the show. I would probably say that I have seen the movie a couple of hundred times over the years. It translates very well to the stage, too, because, with a few very minor changes, the screenplay is our script. When the guardian angel lets George see what the world would be like if he were no longer in it, it really makes you think about the people in your life. You can't help but get a lump in your throat."

Michael Warner stars in "It's a Wonderful Life" at the Company Theatre, 30 Accord Park Drive, Norwell, now through Dec. 19. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 781-871-2787 or go online at companytheatre.com.

Return from a space odyssey

Cohasset astronaut comes to town

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

In 1975, space exploration was big news. The Apollo program was in full swing and astronauts were landing on the moon and the establishment of space station was under consideration.

At that same time, Steve Bowen was making his way through Cohasset schools and was gaining a passion and aptitude for math and science. When he graduated from Cohasset High in 1982 he knew he wanted to be engineer, but the realization of bigger dreams awaited him.

Astronaut and Navy Captain Steve Bowen returned to town this week and visited all three school buildings to talk about his space flights. Bowen has flown to space twice as a NASA astronaut and done a total of five spacewalks. He is also a highly decorated nuclear powered submarine Captain in the U.S. Navy.

Dressed in his navy blue astronaut jumpsuit and flight jacket, Bowen, talked about his two space experiences, but his purpose for coming to Cohasset schools was about more than sharing his space adventures. Bowen hoped to inspire quite a few of them into careers in math and science, and maybe even find a future astronaut among them.

"Engineering and science improve the way we live everyday and you can be a part of that," Bowen said, adding space exploration brings back research and technology that changes the lives of many.

On Tuesday, Bowen, a 1982 CHS graduate, gave presentations to students at Osgood, Deer Hill, and the Middle School. The Cohasset PSO supported the programs.

"The key is understanding what (the space program) brings back to society," Bowen said. The first laptop computer was used when astronauts landed on the moon. Astronauts on the moon used a cordless drill and cell phone technology that would not be possible without research done in space, he said.

Bowen said there was once a time, when he was in the lower elementary grades, that he was not considered a strong reader. But, he made a decision to learn to read and learn to read well. By the end of the school year he said he was one of the best readers in the class.

Stopping bullying

Cohasset schools draft policy and plan

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Cohasset will not tolerate bullying.

A new policy and prevention plan spells out Cohasset schools commitment to a bully-free environment and methods to deal with situations as they rise.

Last week, the schools bullying prevention plan and policy were presented in a public hearing. The documents and public hearing are in response to state legislation passed last spring requiring a bullying policy for every public school district.

Mike Gill, high school assistant principal, has been leading the development of the policy and has shepherded it through many drafts and reviews.

"What we have right now is pretty comprehensive," Gill said. The documents have been reviewed by various stakeholders, including parents, police, teachers, and legal counsel.

The 10-page bullying prevention and intervention plan includes several sections beginning with definitions specific to the bullying issue (i.e. aggressor, cyber-bullying, hostile environment, and retaliation). It describes the prohibition against bullying of all kinds, as well as retaliation against someone who reports or witnesses bullying. The plan also includes the ways and means of reporting and responding to a bullying and/or retaliation, sets out a framework for an investigation, and methods of response to bullying and retaliation.

Part of the plan is also annual training and professional development for faculty and staff, referrals to counseling and outside services, and an outline of bullying prevention curricula.

The bullying prevention and intervention plan will be printed in the student handbook and other places. The bullying policy will be printed in the school committee's policy handbook once approved.

A key part of the prevention and intervention plan is extending education and outreach beyond the school building.

"This has to be a community effort – all of us have to be involved," said Denise Walsh, superintendent of schools.

Gill agreed that this could not simply be a school effort.

"(The schools) have an very important role here, but we need to have community-wide support and involvement," Gill said.

A community group, Cohasset Coalition for a Caring Community, has been involved in the drafting of the policy and is launching a town-wide pledge drive this month. Students will help carry out the drive.

The pledge is simple, to the point, and speaks to the very heart and source of bullying: "I, (name), pledge to promote respect for human differences and the basic rights and dignity of all, and to avoid behavior that is hurtful to others."

The culmination of the pledge drive will be a parent forum on Tuesday, Jan.

Auditor sheds light on deficit

Water Dept. misclassification of expenses at heart of issue

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

An auditor brought some clarity to the town's financial situation at a special meeting of the Board of Selectmen on Thursday afternoon (Dec. 2).

The town's independent auditor John Sullivan of Melanson Heath, who is currently combing the financial records of the water department over the past five years, has found many cases of misclassifications of expenses.

As a result of these misclassifications between capital and operational, the town could be facing as much as $1 million deficit in this year's operating budget.

There are both short-term issues and long-term issues; the information was preliminary and incomplete; and many questions remain.

Sullivan was on hand as well as the town's financial advisor and bond counsel to offer recommendations and expertise. Several members of the community were also in the audience for the mid-afternoon meeting.

Over the past five years the water department has received Town Meeting authorization to borrow roughly $27 million to finance various construction projects related to capital improvements to the water plant and distribution system. Most of the $27 million in appropriations has been permanently financed, with the exemption of approximately $1 million.

"One million dollars is my best estimate based on what I've seen."
— John Sullivan, independent auditor

Part of the auditor's charge was to examine the costs charged against the bond to ensure they were appropriate and in sync with the bond authorization's language. What he has found is that some of the charges against the bond are not appropriate and were more operational in nature.

"There are expenses charged to the bond that I don't think are eligible," Sullivan said. He has also found the opposite: some of the charges that went against the operational budget are more appropriately classified under the bond authorization.

Although the audit is not complete and several key pieces of information remain unknown (see sidebar) Sullivan's best guess is about $1 million out of the total $27 million water department related bond authorizations was inappropriately classified.

Quincy man faces charges over Craigslist ad

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Cohasset police executed a search warrant last Friday (Dec. 3) at an apartment at 55 Elmwood Park in Quincy during which they seized computers, cellular telephones, and other electronics, including electronic media storage devices. Police are investigating the complaint made by a 21-year-old Cohasset woman last month (Nov. 14) that she had received upwards of 75 obscene, sexually graphic calls on her cell phone.

Police said that the victim had a falling-out with a former coworker, and she now alleges that he posted a sexually explicit ad on Craigslist that included her cellular telephone number. She received 54 calls within an hour after the ad was placed, police said. The suspect, John C. Hurley, 25, of Quincy, is being summonsed to Quincy District Court on a charge of criminal harassment and identity theft.

According to court documents, the alleged victim and Hurley were both employed at Shaw's back in 2006. He was interested in pursuing a dating relationship with the alleged victim. She was not interested. At that time, Hurley was summonsed to court for making annoying phone calls to the girl and was told not to have any contact with her.

The alleged victim told police Hurley had not contacted her in nearly four years until he allegedly sent an email last January to her Facebook page apologizing for his past behavior, court papers state. She did not respond.

She also allegedly received voicemails from Hurley last spring and police warned him to not have any more contact with her.

Police were dispatched to the alleged victim's home on Nov. 14 regarding the 75 phone calls from persons unknown to her responding to an ad on Craigslist.

Seepage

A pump-out truck leaked raw sewage last week (Monday, Nov. 29) leaving a liquid trail down Beach Street, up Atlantic Avenue to Summer Street, Pond Street, Route 3A and into Norwell, police said. The Board of Health was notified. The DPW brought out a sander and put sand down along the trail.

Police said the remainder of the contents of the truck was offloaded in Norwell to another truck. The Board of Health and DPW could bill the company for the cleanup.

Mailbox

A 79-year-old Cohasset man who lives on Atlantic Avenue stopped an officer on foot patrol on Monday (Nov. 29) in the village to report that his mailbox valued at $150 had been damaged apparently with a baseball bat sometime overnight.

Police said a group of five mailboxes on the same post were damaged in the incident.

Telemarketing

A Cohasset resident from Oak Street reported receiving a telemarketing call from a security company last week even though she is on the do-not-call list, police said. Police said it is a good idea to update your phone number on the do-not-call list through the consumer protection section of Attorney General's website.

Marijuana

A nurse at a local nursing home reported last week finding a marijuana joint in the nightstand of a 68-year-old male resident of the nursing home, police said. The incident was reported on Tuesday (Nov. 30). The marijuana cigarette was confiscated.

ID theft

A Cohasset man reported to police last Tuesday (Nov. 30) that the bank had notified him that someone tried to open an account in his name. Police gave the man an identity-theft packet that explains what actions to take and who to notify.

Deer accident

At 4:27 a.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 1), police responded to an accident on King Street by Mary Lou's News involving a 2001 Honda Accord and a deer. Police said a 37-year-old Marshfield woman was headed north on Route 3A when she struck a deer that had darted across the highway. Her vehicle was not towed and there were no injuries.

An officer moved the deer to the side of the roadway and the State DPW picked it up the next morning. However in the interim (time between the accident and 8 a.m.), dispatch received several calls about a dead animal on the side of the road.

Parking problem

Old Pasture Road residents near the rear gate to the Osgood and Deer Hill schools are continuing to complain about illegal parking on their street at the beginning and end of the school day and motorists using their driveways to turn around. Police have talked to the school principals, who have asked parents not to park on Old Pasture Road, but that warning does not seem to be working. Police said they would have to start issuing tickets.

Locked in

A North Main Street woman called police on her cell phone at about 11:13 a.m. last Thursday (Dec. 2) when she accidentally locked herself in a storage area underneath her deck. Police responded and let her out.

Marijuana

A 19-year-old Cohasset teen was issued a civil citation for possessing less than one ounce of marijuana last Wednesday (Dec. 1) following an investigation of a report of four boys in a motor vehicle in the parking lot at the golf club who were acting suspiciously. Police ran the plate number provided by the caller and went to the home on Hull Street where they found the teen with the marijuana.

No license

A 30-year-old Fall River man, who is from Ecuador but has lived in Massachusetts for 10 years, is being summonsed to court for unlicensed operation and an equipment violation. A sergeant on patrol observed a 2000 white Ford van with a badly cracked front windshield and pulled it over on lower King Street at about 9:48 a.m. on Friday (Dec. 3). Further investigation revealed the operator had an Ecuadorian passport but no license. The owner of the car, a 29-year-old Fall River woman, is being summoned for allowing improper use of her motor vehicle, police said.

Land court

Police referred a landscaping business and a North Main Street resident, who are in a dispute over an easement, to land court last week.

Kids took off

A caller reported a group of four kids had just come onto his back deck at 11:33 p.m. on Saturday (Dec. 4) on Forest Notch but took off when he went to the slider door. Police said the kids were apparently ringing doorbells in the area and then running away, as they had several complaints.

Deer hunters

A motorist stopped an officer on Sunday morning (Dec. 5) to report three deer hunters in the woods at Wompatuck State Park. Police turned the matter over to the Environmental Police who handle these matters.

We are currently in deer hunting season. Hunters can hunt deer with shotguns and "primitive arms" (black powder weapons, etc.) in designated areas with the proper permits from the state. Hunting is banned statewide on Sundays.

Warrant arrest

A 19-year-old Scituate man was arrested on a warrant on Sunday. An officer recognized him as he drove past him on Chief Justice Cushing Highway at Pond Street and pulled over his 1988 Chevrolet truck. The officer confirmed the warrant and placed him under arrest. The truck was towed.

Harbor Plan before Selectmen

Over the past couple of months the Planning Board has discussed the possibility of developing a plan for the harbor and waterfront area. A plan that would set the stage for future development and help ensure the changes are ones the town would like to see.

The Planning Board has made some in roads in the development of a harbor plan, but it is the Board of Selectmen that would need to usher the plan through the system.

The Selectmen voted unanimously to pursue the development of a plan for the harbor.

"It would be nice to hear everybody's thoughts, but I'm not sure what the cost is," said Selectman Leland Jenkins.

Locally, development on the harbor is a challenge. There are four different zoning districts — residential, downtown business, waterfront business and light industrial — making it a complicated place to develop even if local zoning was the only consideration. Another layer of federal regulations — Chapter 91, which dates back to colonial days — ensures that water-dependent activities retain access to the water.

The town can develop a harbor management plan in one of two ways. It can be done through a formal regulatory planning method in partnership with the relevant state agencies. The town could also develop a local harbor plan, using a similar method, but that would not involve amending any portion of Chapter 91.

The Selectmen would need to determine which method to pursue.

A meeting on the possibility of a harbor development plan will be scheduled after the New Year.

Cohasset schools draft policy and plan on bullying

18. At the meeting administrators will give a clear picture of the instructional strategies used to curb bullying as well as present information gathered in a recent survey of students.

The School Committee had very few questions or comments about the policy and prevention plan.

School Committee member Jeanne Astino asked how the school planned to address bullying at the upper grades where health education does not hit all students.

While the policy sets up the framework for dealing with bullying in and outside of the schools, Gill said there is still work to be done on how to bring the plan most effectively to the students, especially at the middle-high school.

"We have some preliminary ideas (such as) holding whole school type events," Gill said.

Specific curricula for the middle school and high school is still being developed and fine-tuned, Gill said

School Committee chair Helene Lieb liked that the policy and plan were "education focused." Through her work as a psychologist she has found that in many cases the bully (or aggressor) has often been bullied as well.

Although the School Committee did not raise significant concerns with the bullying documents, they tabled approval until their next meeting on Dec. 15 to allow for the full committee to take action. Both documents need to be sent to the state Department of Elementary and Secondary Education for approval by the end of the month.

To view the complete bullying prevention and intervention plan and bullying policy, go to Cohasset Schools website (www.cohassetk12.org) and click on the health and wellness tab.

Bullying presentation recap

On Monday, Dec. 6 the Health Education Department at Cohasset Middle High School sponsored two assemblies for the middle school students. The girls attended Middle School Bullying and Cyber Bullying presented by MARC (Massachusetts Aggression Reduction Center) at Bridgewater State University. Kristin Schank, a graduate student from Bridgewater State, was the presenter. The assembly approached issues of bullying, cyber bullying, and internet safety in a developmentally appropriate manner. Some issues discussed were relationship bullying, bystander responsibility and the potential dangers in disclosing information online, especially the social websites such as Facebook. The open discussion talked about the social, emotional and economic impacts these behaviors carry into school. The students were given realistic strategies in dealing with bullying and online bullying.

While the middle school girls participated in this special program designed by MARC specifically for girls, the middle school boys also learned about bullying. Cohasset Middle-High School Assistant Principal, Dr. Michael Gill; Dan Feeney, from the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office; Chief, Mark DeLuca, and Lieutenant, William Quigley from the Cohasset Police Department addressed the same topics with the boys. There was a special emphasis on the role of bystanders during acts of bullying.

"One million dollars is my best estimate based on what I've seen," Sullivan said. He said that his estimate will be his opinion based on his research and others may disagree with his findings, or portions of his findings. Sullivan is also waiting on some information, which could increase or decrease his estimate.

While the town has the potential $1 million misclassification, which may need to be covered in this fiscal year's budget, the more immediate issue is with a maturing bond anticipation note of $989,000.

A large amount of the charges against that bond, Sullivan said, may not belong there. Rather, they should have been covered in the water department's operating budget. That means that those operating expenses need to be backed out of the bond before it is permanently financed.

Of the $989,000, Sullivan said about $244,000 was questionably charged to the bond. However, he has also looked closely at recent expenses in the water department operating budget under the "extraordinary maintenance" line item. In fiscal 2010 that line item was about $284,000.

In reviewing those expenses and invoices with Water Commissioner Glenn Pratt he has determined about $145,000 of those expenses could be financed against the bond.

Through this accounting, Sullivan said, the bond contains about $100,000 of questionable expenses that he is recommending be incorporated into this fiscal year's water department budget.

As a result, the town's financial advisor, Cinder McNerney of First Southwest, recommended the town reduce the bond anticipation note by about $100,000 and roll it over to another temporary bond for a period of one year.

"(The town) needs to resolve the problem then bond it (permanently) at a later date," McNerney said.

Interim town manager Steve Lombard said the town could cover the $100,000 now included in the operating budget due to some anticipated savings in the water department's debt service line item.

"But, until we get the full audit report we can't take further steps," Lombard said.

Sullivan expects to have a draft report of his audit findings by Wednesday, Dec. 15.

On Wednesday afternoon of this week Lombard said the official number of the bond to be rolled over will be $839,150, about $150,000 less the original bond amount. The Selectmen were expected to sign the bond anticipation note on Thursday morning as the Mariner went to press.

A $1.2 million bond of sewer related expenses was also to be signed.

Stay tuned to www.wickedlocal.com/cohasset for updates as this issue develops.

Challenges for independent auditor

The auditor, John Sullivan of Melanson Heath and Company, has turned to many sources to gather information on the water department. He has talked to water commissioners, town employees, water department employees and other town officials in an effort to get a clear picture of the water department's expenses and operations over the past few years.

American Water employees, who have been working in the department, some for many years, were one of his key sources of information. He met with several individuals to get an understanding of their roles over the last few years, especially in relation to projects.

Shortly before Thanksgiving, American Water halted their cooperation and said they wanted to speak with their attorneys before having employees meet with Sullivan again.

American Water is under contract with the town to run the water plant and the distribution system.

According to Sullivan, five American Water employees' salaries were charged to the bond during the course of Little Harbor water and sewer project. Sullivan was trying to determine from input from the employees how much of their time was devoted to project-related work and how much was related to normal operational work. The reason being if the employees were actually doing normal operating work within the plant or distribution system, their salaries could not 100 percent be charged to the bond.

In addition, Sullivan had planned to speak with a key American Water employee who had been on vacation to go over several invoices he had questions on. Now, he is unable to do this.

"This is a road block to completion (of the audit)," Sullivan said.

A second challenge Sullivan is facing is the accounting for the various grants the water department has received over the years. He is especially finding difficulty with the older grants.

"The problem is matching up the expenditures related to the revenues," Sullivan said. The risk is that some of the expenditures related to the grant funding ended up being paid out of the operational expenses, or costs that were should have been reimbursed through the grant funds were instead charged to the bond.

He has contacted Norfolk Ram engineering company, which did a lot of grant work with the water department for more information.

"Until I get that information and numbers I can't complete this project," Sullivan said.

With that information Sullivan will be able to determine with some more certainty the amount of misclassified funds over the past few years.

Sam Wakeman, Advisory Committee chair and part of the audit committee helping to shepherd the process, said on Wednesday afternoon that some progress had been made in resolving both challenges.

"He hasn't gotten everything he needs…but, it's getting there," Wakeman said. Sullivan is still working with Norfolk Ram, American Water and other vendors to find out various pieces of information.

Wakeman said he was not sure if the audit would be complete by next week.

Snapshot of last spring's water crisis

In February of last year it came to light that the water department was facing a $760,000 shortfall in the fiscal 2010 budget and, to make matters worse, a projected $1.1 million deficit in the fiscal 2011 budget.

In response, the Board of Selectmen formed the Water Planning Group to analyze the problem and to help develop short- and long-term solutions to the financial and operational issues in the water department. A vote on the water department's budget was postponed at Annual Town Meeting.

Through the work of the Water Planning Group and other town boards it was found the financial crisis was in part due to a perfect storm of causes: an ambitious capital spending program to upgrade the distribution and production systems all approved by town meetings, a very weak economy which caused potential major new users to pull back their construction plans, and rainy weather. There was also a sense from the community and through the meetings that some mismanagement of the funds may have occurred.

In June, a special town meeting was held to address the most immediate budget issues. The town approved a significant water rate hike, the third in four years, and some capital expenditures. Town Meeting also granted more oversight power to the town manager.

By the numbers

$989,000
The amount of the bond anticipation note maturing Dec. 15 during made up of all water department related expenses.

$440,000
The amount of the bond that is American Water related bills.

$284,000
The amount the auditor has determined as being at risk of being as questionable.

$145,000
The amount of expenses in the "extraordinary maintenance" line item that the auditor determined could be financed against the bond.

The equation
$989,000 - $284,000 + $145,000 = approximately $850,000*
The amount to be rolled over in the bond.

*On Wednesday afternoon, interim town manager Steve Lombard said the exact amount to be rolled over in the bond is $839,150.

Home Instead SENIOR CARE
by Alan Carney, Director & Jennifer Moran, CSA, Community Liaison
SPLISH SPLASH
It is important to provide a safe and comfortable environment in which an at-home senior can bathe. A non-medical home healthcare aide can offer some basic yet necessary assistance. Prior to the senior's showering or bathing, the aide can check to make sure the water temperature is at a comfortable level. He or she can make sure there is a non-skid mat in the shower or tub and that clean towels and a robe are handy when the senior is finished showering or bathing. The aide may offer the client assistance in entering and exiting the tub or shower. The senior may choose to leave the bathroom door ajar in case further assistance is needed.
If you're worried about your parent's safety in the bathroom, please call our office for a consultation. Our experienced and compassionate caregivers are experts at dealing with the issues of seniors in the bathroom and can help make sure that your loved one is safe and clean when they take showers or baths. We can also take care of other daily tasks like cooking, grooming and getting dressed. Give us a call 781-878-2994 today because you both deserve to have what you want. Opposition blows into town

Hingham residents have concerns over Turkey Hill turbine

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The honeymoon period is over.

So far in the public hearing process the Trustees of Reservation proposed wind turbine on Turkey Hill has enjoyed little opposition, or even criticism. But all that changed on Wednesday night.

Residents of Hingham, specifically the Turkey Hill neighborhood, came out to voice their concerns over the project, which most of them said they had just found out about on Monday.

The project is located on the west side of Route 3A on the Hingham line. The potentially most impacted residence in Cohasset is Golden Living Center nursing home, located about 1000 feet from the turbine. Yet, in Hingham, there are a number of residents less than a half-mile from the proposed turbine site.

The Hingham residents shared concerns about the potential impacts of the turbine – noise, flicker, and visual – as well as how the Trustees were going to get the massive structure up hilly and narrow Turkey Hill Lane. An attorney representing a group of Hingham residents questioned the Trustees of Reservation right to even build a for-profit turbine.

"This is a 410-foot goliath almost literally in my backyard...it benefits Cohasset 100 percent and burdens Hingham 100 percent," said Charles Dale of 40 Turkey Hill Lane.

This was the second public hearing on the project and the Planning Board was not gearing up for a decision on Wednesday. The hearing was continued until next Wednesday, Dec. 15 at 9p.m. when the board could potentially close the public hearing portion of the process, if they get all their questions answered.

The Trustees of Reservations is a non-profit group dedicated to the preservation of open space and they maintain over 100 properties across Massachusetts. The group's local properties include World's End in Hingham, Whitney-Thayer Woods in Cohasset and Turkey Hill/Weir River Farm in Cohasset and Hingham.

The 80-meter (262-foot), 1.8-megawatt turbine by Vestas is the targeted machine (although the Trustees said they would go out to bid on the project, so that could change). The Trustees would own the turbine. Including the turbine's blades, the turbine will extend 410-feet off the ground. The potential turbine site is surrounded by open space.

Dennis Laria, a mechanical engineer consulting on the project, reviewed some of the outstanding questions raised at the first hearing. He presented several new photo simulations of the turbine from various points in Cohasset and Hingham. He spoke to ice throw concerns and safety measures (signs, directing trail traffic away from the turbine in the winter months, shutting down the turbine in icy conditions) the Trustees would take to mitigate that issue.

Laria also presented updated information on shadow flicker — a strobing effect produced when the sun passes behind the blades of the turbine

The town's consulting engineer John Modzelewski had his consultant develop a worst-case scenario for shadow flicker if there were no cloudy days. The result was a more acutely impacted area.

"The worst case you'll never see, but it's nice to know what it looks like," Modzelewski said. There is not hard and fast standard for shadow flicker, but the generally accepted industry standard is no more than 30 minutes per day and no more than 30 hours per year.

"This is a 410-foot goliath almost literally in my backyard...it benefits Cohasset 100 percent and burdens Hingham 100 percent."
— Charles Dale of 40 Turkey Hill Lane.

Hingham concerns

Many of the Hingham residents in the Turkey Hill area were concerned about the delivery of the massive structure to the side. Turkey Hill Lane is a "bucolic" road with rolling hills and no sidewalk, residents said. There is also a recently reconstructed bridge on Leavitt Street.

It was noted that any plans to transport materials via Leavitt Street and Turkey Hill Lane would require review by Hingham's permitting boards. In this regard, the Cohasset Planning Board may only be able to condition the project to get all applicable permits.

"We're looking at the project as it impacts the community and what residents may face down the road," said Planning Board chair Al Moore. "We're not talking tonight about permitting the delivery of the equipment to the site, of course it is a concern, but it's a one-time delivery (as opposed to a lasting structure)."

Attorney Jeffrey Tocchio of Hingham spoke on behalf of more than 10 Turkey Hill homeowners. He raised concerns about the Trustees' authority to even build a structure like this. A legislative charter established the Trustees of Reservation in 1891 with the purpose of preserving land and open space for all to enjoy.

"We give money to the Trustees to ensure projects like this don't happen," said Hingham resident Charles Dale.

Tocchio questioned the Trustees right to construct a for-profit structure on their land because of their enabling charter.

The Trustees' attorney Richard Henderson said it was outside the planning board's purview to address title issues; and moreover, the Trustees had the "unequivocal authority" to do the project.

The Trustees have established a private corporation, Conservation Wind LP, to lease the land, which according to the Trustees is not under a deed restriction, to construct the turbine. Tocchio questioned the Trustees' ability to create a for-profit arm.

The Planning Board directed town counsel to investigate the claim and whether the planning board could take it into account in their decision.

The public hearing dragged on to after 11:30p.m. with several more Hingham residents airing their concerns. Hingham Selectman Laura Burns and interim town manager Ted Alexiades attended the meeting. Turkey Hill residents raised their concerns about this project to the Hingham Board of Selectmen at their Tuesday night meeting.

This is the second time a wind turbine project has been before the Cohasset Planning Board. The board denied a two-turbine proposal by a private developer located off Route 3A near Hingham Lumber earlier this year.

The hearing was continued until Wednesday, Dec. 15 at 9p.m. in Cohasset. The entire Trustees of Reservations project application can be viewed at the Planning Board office at Cohasset Town Hall on Highland Avenue.

Cohasset ballerinas on stage in 'The Nutcracker'

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

HOLIDAY SPIRIT

Hello Cohasset. The holidays are here and the sights, events and celebrations are here. I hope that everyone is getting in the spirit of the holidays and that you will send any photos, news or celebration stories to me to share with the community. I hope that everyone also can take the time to check in on seniors, people who are having a tough time or, just share a smile with someone who seems a bit down.

NUTCRACKER

When the curtain rises at Derby Academy in Hingham on Dec. 11th, the dreams of nearly 60 local South Shore Ballet Theatre students will come true. After months of rehearsals, these local ballet students' are eager to share their love of ballet and performing with the local south shore community. Come see SSBT's annual production of the holiday family favorite, "The Nutcracker."

Local Cohasset residents Madeline Ronzoni, Olivia Hansen (playing Clara), Kaitlin McGovern (also playing Clara), Maggie Seebeck, Sarah Gruber and Ellie Jackisch are featured in SSBT's Nutcracker production. There will be three performances of The Nutcracker: Saturday, Dec.11th at 2pm and 7pm and then Sunday, Dec. 12th at 1pm. All performances will be at Derby Academy in Hingham. Gold Circle Tickets (reserved seats) are $20, general admission tickets are $10. Stop by the school at 24 Rockland St, Hanover, call 781-312-7224; visit www.southshoreballet theatre.com. Become a fan of SSBT on Facebook for the latest ballet school news.

These local women are checking out the New Green Resource Guide by Cohasset Garden Club.

New Green Resource Guide available

Many people are trying to live "greener," using more organic, nontoxic products. But it's not an easy task. Where to shop? What is even available?

Members of Cohasset Garden Club have done the legwork for people. "The Green Resource Guide, Organic Sustainable Resources found Locally and Online," is hot off the presses and available to the public. Included in the guide are listings of all the local farmers markets, where to buy safe cleaning products and pet food, farms producing everything from organic beef and cheese to vegetables and honey. Green building architects, as well as new and recycled building products are listed.

Cohasset Garden Club Conservation chairman Sandra Durant headed the committee that researched and produced the guide. "Every member of the committee spent a lot of time ferreting out the very best green, organic, natural, innovative products and the local businesses that produce or sell them," said Durant. "Every category has a section explaining what we should know before choosing a product or service."

"Every category has a section explaining what we should know before choosing a product or service."

Guides are available at Buttonwood Books in Cohasset and are $12 for one or two for $20. According to Durant, they make great stocking stuffers.

Scituate mom acts in 'The Fighter'

By Kelly Anne Clinton
KCLINTON@CNC.COM

Erica McDermott of Scituate has gone from being a stay-at-home mom to being in major motion picture acting alongside Mark Wahlberg, Christian Bale and Amy Adams.

McDermott plays Cindy "Tar" Eklund, a tough-girl sister to Micky Ward (Wahlberg) and Dickie Eklund (Bale) in "The Fighter," which will hit theaters nationwide Dec. 17.

"Eighteen months ago, I was a stay-at-home mom and I was looking to go back to work as a registered nurse," said McDermott.

However, McDermott caught the acting bug from her previous experience on stage in "The Best of the MOMologues," which debuted at Scituate High School. After acting in that, she took classes on acting and registered with Boston Casting.

"While taking those classes, my coach, Kevin Lasit, said, 'I think you're really good at this and I think you have a shot,' and so I registered with their online website and I got an e-mail from Boston Casting saying they were looking for tough girls."

McDermott said she got a number of phone calls, and in the last one she received, she was told Sheila Jaffe, in charge of casting for "Entourage" and "The Sopranos," was flying in from Hollywood to watch McDermott audition. Though she said the audition was nerve-wracking, McDermott got the role as Cindy.

"Most people in town won't recognize me in the movie," she said. "I wear fake teeth. My eyebrows move in. I have dyed hair that is 10 different shades of blond, and it's huge hair with black roots, and I'm about 30 pounds heavier than I am now."

Erica McDermott plays Cindy "Tar" Eklund, a tough-girl sister to Micky Ward (Wahlberg) and Dickie Eklund (Bale) in "The Fighter."

"I have found a whole new drive within myself. I don't consider myself a Type A personality at all, but I am when it comes to this."

Erica McDermott

McDermott said that while she was nervous the night before the first rehearsal, once she got there she realized just how normal these famous actors were. She said Bale had his children on set some days, and Wahlberg left one weekend to get married back in California. It seemed that they had a lot in common, more than she thought.

"I didn't know what to expect at first. I thought, 'Oh my gosh, I hope I don't trip and fall or say something stupid,' but once you're there, you realize they are just as normal as you and me and everyone is in the same frame of mind that we're there trying to get this thing done," said McDermott.

McDermott's character is one of nine children and is the middle child who, like her other sisters, is very protective of their family. So protective, in fact, that when Micky starts dating Charlene Fleming (Adams), the sisters get in a catfight with her on their front porch.

"Amy Adams sucker-punches one of my sisters as she's on top of my sister, and I pull her hair and take a few swings at her," said McDermott. "We had a stunt coordinator, which was good because I was really afraid that I was going to pull her hair out of her head."

McDermott was in Los Angeles for the movie premiere Dec. 6, and said she was excited to see the movie that night because she had yet to see it.

"All the write-ups from critics on the sisters' performances have been good, and we have all gotten some great feedback," she said. "We're vital supporting characters in the movie, and we're the comic relief."

After the filming for the movie ended a year ago, McDermott has been busy moving into other areas of the acting industry. She said she has been doing independent films as well as short films at Boston University, and that acting is definitely her new career.

"I have found a whole new drive within myself," she said. "I don't consider myself a Type A personality at all, but I am when it comes to this. You know, I have never been competitive, but this is my drive. It's all so surreal, the fact that we're out here in Hollywood right now. We went from Scituate to Los Angeles."

EVENT PREVIEW

Holiday Stroll kicks off Saturday

What it is:

On Saturday, Dec. 11, businesses from the village and Route 3A, where the "holiday stroll" tradition began decades ago, are joining forces to put on a daylong event full of festive activities and holiday cheer.

Sponsored by the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce since the organization's inception, the Holiday Stroll will take in two parts: the participating businesses on Route 3A will have activities from noon to 4p.m. and the village business will hold their festivities from 4 to 7p.m.

What's not to be missed:

More than 50 Cohasset businesses are participating this year. Each business will offer their special take on holiday cheer. On Route 3A many businesses will be offering refreshments and discounts. Santa will be at Country House Furniture & Interiors and face painting at Village Greenery.

Later on in the village, hayrides (sponsored by local mason Brendan St. John) will leave from in front of Fleming's, an ice sculptor will carve in front of the Depot Court building, a mini-parade will kick off the festivities at 4:30, Mary Kennedy will play the Cohasset Carillon at St. Stephen's beginning at 4p.m., carolers (anyone can join) will sing in front of the old hardware store at 4:45. Santa will make an appearance at Coldwell Banker, the Grinch will be at Atlantic Brokerage, All the Best will offer organic dark chocolate tastings. Holiday treats and specials can be found throughout the village shops.

Why it is important:

According to Chamber president Darilynn Evans, the stroll is a way for the business community to help bring the holiday spirit alive in Cohasset, "it's also a way to encourage everyone to shop locally and patronage their businesses right here in town. It's our way of thanking our customers for their support throughout the year."

Ice Sculptor, Don Chapelle, works on his creation for the 2009 Cohasset Holiday Stroll in front of the FOCUS Gallery at 15 Depot Court. He will return this year on Saturday, Dec. 11 from 4 to 7 p.m.

First Night ice sculptor to carve at Focus Gallery

For a third year, ice sculptor Donald Chapelle, will be returning to the FOCUS Gallery during the Cohasset Holiday Stroll this weekend. Between 4 and 7 p.m. on Saturday, Chapelle will be working with picks, chain saws, blowtorches, etc. to turn several large blocks of ice into a work of art. Cindy Vallino, FOCUS Gallery owner reports that "Don is a true master artist. We always draw a big crowd to see him at work. The final result is amazing - the sculpture looks like it's made of cut crystal rather than ice."

Chapelle is the owner and founder of Brilliant Ice Sculpture in North Andover, Mass. He and his staff of ice artists have participated for more than 20 years in Boston's First Night Celebration making large ice sculptures. Chapelle's professional ice carving career began over 30 years ago with a seven-year post at Brookline Ice and Coal and later as Executive Chef at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. He was later employed as a Chef De Partite at the prestigious five star Hilton International in Geneva, Switzerland and Vienna, Austria, where he created thousands of ice, butter and chocolate sculptures for functions and outdoor events.

Cindy Vallino also mentioned that many people come back on Sunday to see the finished work of art, some to take a holiday photo alongside of it

Says Vallino "Don is planning on a very impressive sculpture this year. We don't want to divulge the details – it's fun to try to guess what he's creating at each stage." Vallino also mentioned that many people come back on Sunday to see the finished work of art, some to take a holiday photo alongside of it. "We're hoping for a long stretch of cold weather so the ice will last!"

For further information, call 781.383.0663 or visit the gallery website: www.thefocus-gallery.com.

Hope would probably be much friendlier in a home of her own, with her very own humans.

Hope needs home of her own

This week Hull Seaside Animal Rescue would like to feature Hope, a beautiful gray female, perhaps with Russian Blue lineage. She's quite regal, but have to admit that she's not the cuddliest cat. She would probably be much friendlier in a home of her own, with her very own humans. She is not aggressive but will occasionally give little love bites. You can check her and all our felines out on our web-site www.hsar.org. HSAR open hours are on Saturday from 2-3pm and Monday from 6:30-7:30. If these hours aren't convenient, you can make an adoption appt with Shirl at 781 925 3380, call after 10:30am please.

HSAR open hours are on Saturday from 2-3pm and Monday from 6:30-7:30.

HSAR is located at 50 L St., Hull; mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, PO Box 787, Hull, MA. 02045. The Shelter telephone number is 781-925-3121. Wishing you all a wonderful holiday season. If you're looking for a last minute gift, stop by the shelter and pick up a Kittendales Calendar, or give someone a membership. Should you wish to gift someone with a feline, HSAR insists you let them select it themselves.

Home Center Sotheby's

In conjunction with this weekend's Annual Holiday Stroll in Cohasset Village, Home Center Sotheby's International Realty is pleased to announce that Mary Anne O'Brien will be exhibiting her unusual ENCAUSTIC and GYOTAKU prints.

According to O'Brien, "Gyotaku was created by Japanese fishermen who produced ink prints to record their prize fish. I incorporate both techniques by printing locally caught fish on rice paper. I then augment the design using a bee's wax compound, oil paint and other mixed media. Often batik or other fibers are added. The merger of these two art forms creates truly individual pieces with unique texture and aroma."

The Holiday Stroll is Saturday, December 11th, 4:00 pm to 7:00 pm.

Home Center Sotheby's is located at One South Main Street. Stop by, enjoy the art, have a cup of hot chocolate and enter to win a fabulous gingerbread house from Ginger Betty's. For more information, call the office at 781-383-8835.

MACY'S DECLARES DECEMBER 10TH, 2010

National Believe Day

Write a letter to Santa and help make wishes come true.

National Believe Day is dedicated to recognizing the generosity and spirit of the holiday season. Bring your stamped letter to Macy's, addressed to "Santa at the North Pole," and drop it into our special Santa letterbox. We'll count them up, and for each letter received, we'll donate $1 to the Make-A-Wish Foundation®, up to $1,000,000. We'll then deliver them to the Post Office for mailing to Santa, and together, we'll collect a million reasons to believe. To learn more, visit macys.com/believe. Plus, don't miss the season's newest tradition: Yes, Virginia, the animated classic feature based on the timeless true story that inspired a whole new spirit of believing! Airs on CBS-TV, Friday, December 17. Check your local listings for times.

MAKE-A-WISH

Double Donation Day

For all letters mailed in Macy's Santa Mail Letterboxes on Friday, December 10th, Macy's will give an extra $1 to the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

Wishes Across America

On National Believe Day, Macy's and the Make-A-Wish Foundation will also be granting special wishes in cities across the country for children with life-threatening medical conditions.

Join us as we embrace the holiday spirit of goodwill. Together, we'll collect more than a million reasons to believe and grant wishes across America!

The heart of writing your memoir

Workshops part of Next Chapter series

By Marylou Lawrence
CORRESPONDENT

Flannery O'Connor once said, "If you've survived your childhood you have enough material to write about for the rest of your life." Everyone has a story to tell, a snippet from life that both suggests something unique about the writer and connects us to the collective experience of humanness. Plumbing those memories is the work of memoir writing.

Well-known author and writing instructor, Lynne Griffin, will lead a six-week workshop in Memoir Writing from Tuesday, Jan. 11 through Tuesday, Feb. 15 at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

As part of the library's Next Chapter series, the workshop is free and open to the public; sign ups are limited to 12. Classes will meet from 10:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. each week. Participants are asked to commit to the full six-week duration.

"Everyone has a story to tell. The key to a writing workshop is to find out what's unique about one's own story."

COURTESY PHOTO

Well-known author and writing instructor, Lynne Griffin, will lead a six-week workshop in Memoir Writing from Tuesday, Jan. 11 through Tuesday, Feb. 15 at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library.

"Memoir is about finding your voice. Whether your goal be a full length book or a personal essay, the end product is always the writer's voice," said Griffin.

Although Griffin has designed a curriculum, which provides the blueprint for the workshop, participants will have some determination over class structure. Each session will focus on a different element of craft — character, theme, setting, voice, plot, and structure — which Griffin will explore with close readings of notable published memoirs.

"The nature of memoir, controversies of memoir, how to make a compelling read, the heart of the story, and steps to getting published are some of the topics that will be covered," said Griffin. "Everyone has a story to tell. The key to a writing workshop is to find out what's unique about one's own story."

Drawing from a rich trove of professional experience as a nurse, a teacher, and family therapist, Lynne Griffin published her first book in 2007—"Negotiation Generation: Take Back Your Parental Authority Without Punishment." Two novels soon followed —"Life Without Summer" in 2009 and "Sea Escape" in 2010. And while Simon & Schuster has just accepted her third novel for publication in 2012, she is already deep into research for her fourth! Griffin teaches family studies at the graduate level and a fiction-writing workshop at Grub Street; she is also a family life contributor for Boston's Fox Morning News.

Library Director Jackie Rafferty said, "We are so fortunate to have found Lynne Griffin, and as a result of funding for our Next Chapter programs, to be able to offer this invaluable opportunity free to our community."

Griffin will also conduct a six-week Fiction Workshop beginning in March.

Visit Lynne Griffin's blog at www.family-life-stories.com. Her most recent entry is a poignant reflection on fear and hope, one that both echoes our own familiar strains of vulnerability as we edge towards the winter season and one that resonates with some sense of a raw and uncertain truth of what it means to be Lynne Griffin right now.

To reserve a place in this workshop, call the library at 781-383-1348.

For more Next Chapter program information, visit www.cohassetlibrary.org; join the library on www.facebook.com/cohassetlibrary and follow the library on www.twitter.com/cohassetlibrary.

Next chapter is funded by grants from the Social Service League of Cohasset and by a federal Institute of Museum and Library Services grant awarded by the MA Board of Library Commissioners.

"I have gone from a size 14 to a size 4."

I joined GISFW a year ago and my goal was to get healthy and fit for my 50th birthday. I was out of shape, overweight, and tired of being tired. I wanted to look and feel better so it was time to take control!
I'm happy to say that I'm in the best shape of my life!!
I've lost 30 lbs, kept it off, and have gone from a size 14 to a size 4.
I have far exceeded my goals and the results have been amazing!!

I couldn't have done it on my own. I tried many other programs in years past with little or no results. GISFW was the answer for me. It has taught me the balance between exercise and nutrition and the need for both. It provided me with an environment and all the necessary tools to make this transformation possible. The small personalized training groups are fun and motivating. My trainer is great and always makes sure I'm challenged so that I continue to get the most out of my workouts.

Thanks you GISFW for helping me make a lifestyle change and become fit and fabulous at 50. It was hard work but all well worth the weight.

School budget to be unveiled

First presentation at Dec. 15 meeting

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

This coming Wednesday the school department will unveil their draft for a fiscal 2012 level services budget. The presentation will mark the start of the public process in what is expected to be a very trying budget year town-wide.

In a recent meeting school superintendent Denise Walsh said the schools could be facing as much as a $700,000 gap between the cost of providing level services and expected revenues.

At their Dec. 1 meeting, School Committee vice chair Alfred Slanetz said the financials on the town side are still very unclear.

"Even without the town situation being considered, there is a $700,000 gap in the school budget. We need to work through the various options," Slanetz said. A budget and finance sub-committee was scheduled for Wednesday (Dec. 8) to begin that conversation.

"Even without the town situation being considered, there is a $700,000 gap in the school budget. We need to work through the various options."

— Alfred Slanetz, School Committee

From the audience Adrienne MacCarthy of Doane Street and a former school committee member encouraged the committee to focus on the schools.

"Don't worry about the town's issues, you've got issues on your own plate," MacCarthy said.

Ed Lappen, the School Committee's liaison from the Advisory Committee, said the School Committee needed to start the conversation with town officials sooner rather than later.

"There ought to be a letter and a discussion about what kind of schools this town is going to have," Lappen said. He laid out several options: an override to provide level services, finding other sources of money or cutting back on educational opportunities.

"It's going to be a day of reckoning," Lappen said.

Looking ahead many of the state and federal aid and grants have dwindled or disappeared, the federal stimulus is not returning, and many costs are still on the rise. Budget offsets like state circuit breaker funding has quietly slipped away, there are more unfunded mandates and health care costs are on the rise, Walsh said at a recent meeting.

According to Walsh, a level services budget requires a 5 percent increase, which translates to about $700,000. With the reduced funding from other sources, Walsh said the School Committee would need to take some sort of action. Next year's budget could mean a reduction in services, layoffs, program cuts, and/or increased fees, she said.

The budget presentation will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 15 at 7p.m. in the community room at the Cohasset High School.

BRIEFLY

Facility fee increase tabled

A $10 increase to the town's facility fee was discussed and tabled, once again.

Following up on a Budget Planning Group recommendation, the Board of Selectmen considered raising the facility sticker cost $10 across the board (for seniors and all residents).

All Facilities sticker would cost $60 instead of $50 (for seniors over 60 the cost would rise from $15 to $25).

The possibility of raising the facility fee was discussed and tabled in early November. It was brought back up again, but some of the selectmen reiterated their need to get more information before making a decision.

Selectman Leland Jenkins said he would like to see a breakdown of the cost to run the Recycling Transfer Facility.

"I don't think the dump is running at a surplus, but we should be taking action to bring (the cost and revenue) in balance," Jenkins said.

He felt the $10 increase felt arbitrary without knowing the actual cost to run the facility the fee is meant to support.

Selectman Paul Carlson agreed the information would be helpful. Carlson said time was on their side because stickers are not renewed until June 2011.

Selectman Fred Koed said he favored separate fees for the recycling transfer facility and the beach because they represented two different cost centers.

Adrienne MacCarthy of Doane Street called for "equity" with the facility fee and called for the removal of the "senior discount." Instead she said those unable to pay the fee due to financial constraints should be offered an alternative, whether it's a discounted fee or waived fee.

"We are becoming a fee for service town, as most communities are. Just because one member of a household is 65 years old they get a discount? It's just not equitable," MacCarthy said. "There are many people in this town, whether they are 65 or 35 who just can't afford a sticker. There should be a mechanism for them."

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley said MacCarthy made a good point.

The Selectmen tabled the discussion until the information on the cost to run the RTF is brought forward.

Be a 'Sustainer of Boat Building'

Be a Sustainer of Boat Building in Cohasset by purchasing a $50 raffle ticket and taking a 1/200 chance of winning CMI's 16-foot Swampscott Dory. The purchase of a raffle ticket will help sustain CMI's boat building program through the winter, and make one a Cohasset SOB – a supporter of boatbuilding in the town's historic Hagerty Boathouse.

This dory can be purchased with the winning $50 raffle ticket. Only 200 tickets will be sold. The purchase of the lottery ticket will help sustain the boat-building program. CMI wants to raise $10,000 to continue building boats at CMI, and the purchase of a raffle ticket is the key to success. More important, CMI wants to see this boat guided by the winner's hand, plying the waters of Cohasset Harbor and beyond. Buy a raffle ticket by sending a $50 check payable to CMI with the memo Raffle Ticket. Include contact information. The drawing will take place at the start of the New Year. Target drawing date: CMI annual meeting on Friday, Jan 7. Send checks to 40 Parker Ave., or notify Jack Buckley by email to buy a ticket at jcbuckleyjr@gmail.com.

CMI is grateful to the following sponsors who have helped get the program up and running: Cohasset Rotary, the 1772 Foundation, Hingham Lumber, Jack Hubbard Fun Run participants and the 1772 raffle participants.

John Gardner describes the Swampscott Dories as "the aristocrats of the dory clan not to be confused with their clumsier, more crudely built cousins, the working dories of the Grand Banks fishermen."

Town manager search delayed

Selectmen will revisit after New Year

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"I don't think it will hurt to postpone it a bit until the town can get back on stable feet."
— Selectman Ted Carr

The Board of Selectmen is putting off the search for a new town manager for the time being.

Amidst the uncertainty with the water department and town finances, as well as the labor-intensive budget process on the horizon, the consensus of the Selectmen Monday night was to postpone the town manager search for a few weeks.

The deadline for applications was initially set for Nov. 30.

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley broached the subject with her colleagues at their Monday night meeting. In a cursory look at the application received thus far she saw two or three candidates worth interviewing.

"I think we should wait until the financial audit (of the water department) and other issues move forward and are stabilized before moving into a time-consuming town manager search," Quigley said.

Selectmen vice chair Ted Carr said it might be prudent to not change the town leadership while so much was going on.

"I don't think it will hurt to postpone it a bit until the town can get back on stable feet," Carr said.

Interim town manager Steve Lombard said he would be willing to stay on with the town, if needed, through the month of June.

The possibility of hiring a consultant to help the board in the town manager search was discussed. Lombard said he would help the board issue a request for quotes from area consultants that do this kind of work.

In the meantime, Quigley asked the Selectmen to take a look at some templates of suggested candidate profiles so the board could get a better sense of what they are looking for in a new town leader.

"It's a good first start," Quigley said. She also asked the Selectmen to start thinking about the possible configuration of a screening committee.

Selectmen Paul Carlson said the town should still begin the process after the first of the year and aim to have a new town manager shortly after town meeting (scheduled for April 30).

"It might take us four months to do it so we have to get moving after the first of the year," Carlson said, adding he would like to discuss the process of hiring a consultant at the next meeting.

The job posting for the Town Manager seeks a candidate with five to 10 years municipal government management experience or equivalent other experience, familiarity with Open Meeting Law and analytical, participatory and interpersonal skills. A relevant advanced degree is also desired.

Wassail Party

Cohasset Historical Society will host its annual Wassail Party from 2 to 4 p.m., on Sunday, Dec. 12, at the Pratt Building, 106 South Main St. The holiday gathering is open to members and the public. Enjoy convivial conversation, light refreshment and the music of harpist Rachel Eisenhaure while viewing a mini exhibit on World War I. Take a brief respite from the frenzy of holiday activity to greet old friends and make a few new ones.

CDC auditions

Cohasset Dramatic Club will hold auditions for "The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee" at 7 p.m., on Sunday, Dec. 12 and Monday, 13. Callbacks, if necessary, will be Tuesday, Dec. 14. Auditions will take place at Cohasset Town Hall Theater, 41 Highland Ave.

OPINION

EDITORIAL

Love your photos, but...

The wonders of the digital age have made old-fashioned film almost obsolete.

Today nearly everyone has a digital camera or will have one soon.

Digital cameras are super devices and can be a lot of fun. All of us "amateurs" can take a slew of photos and delete the ones we don't like.

With film, we used to run out of shots and have to reload. Getting rolls of film developed could be an expensive undertaking especially when only one or two shots were "keepers."

Here at the Mariner we are benefiting from digital cameras. Our photographers no longer spend hours in the dark room developing film but can do all that work on a computer using specialized software.

Our readers are sharing their digital photos with us. We thank our contributors and want to encourage more of you to send us your snapshots.

However, there are a few guidelines that we ask you to follow as you become more adept at photography and using email to deliver your photos.

In the "old days" almost all the photos we received for publication were glossy prints. Under that system, our readers would cull through their photos and only submit the best or most relevant.

With digital photos it is not unusual for a reader to send us dozens of shots and ask us to pick the best ones. While we would love to do that, we simply do not have the time to open and review so many photos. We ask those who are sending photos to do that for us. In other words, send us your best shots.

When at all possible, we also need the names of those in the photograph as well as some text that provides some context. If you put yourself in the position of the reader – ask yourself what the reader (who knows nothing about the photograph) — needs to know to understand what is happening.

Size is also a big issue. Most photos sent from cell phone cameras are too small with low resolution. That means the photo will not reproduce clearly in the paper. We ask our readers to send us high-resolution photos that can be made smaller or larger. Please don't condense the photos or send zip files.

Some readers have more advanced software than we do and are sending us photo galleries from special photo websites that ask us to find and download the photos. Again, this creates a time problem for us.

We also receive photos embedded in word documents. When we receive these, we have to copy the photo to another file and try to delete it from the document. This can be frustrating and time consuming. It is much better to send your word document and photos in separate attachments. Photos should be sent as jpgs.

If you are not computer-literate, it is perfectly OK to submit your photos on a disk or have them printed and drop off the glossies at our office at 73 South St., Hingham Square or at our drop box at Tedeschi's on South Main Street.

If you have questions, be sure to give editor Mary Ford a call at 781-741-2933 or contact her by email at mford@cnc.com.

We could not fill the paper every week without contributions from our readers. We have a partnership with you. We enjoy your photos and want to streamline the process as much as possible so nothing falls through the cracks.

MEETINGS

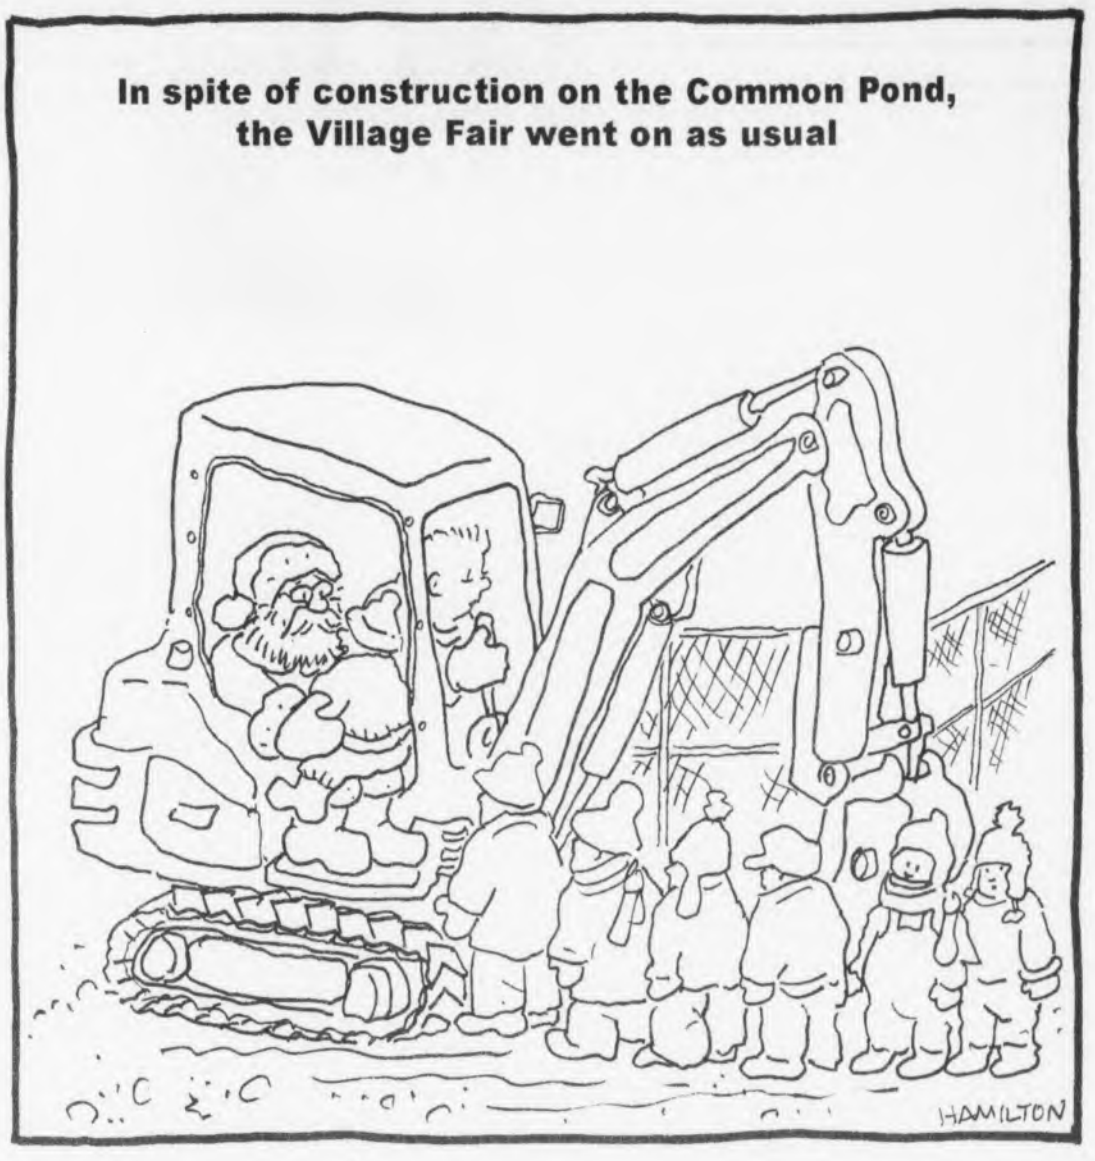
The following meetings are posted at Town Hall:

Cohasset Elder Affairs, Dec. 13, 9 a.m., at 3 N. Main St.

Adhoc Committee on the new senior center, Dec. 14, 8 a.m. at 3 N. Main St.

Selectmen, Dec. 13, 7 p.m.

All meetings take place at Town Hall unless otherwise noted. Call the Town Clerk's office at 781-383-4100 for updates and additions.



Toys for Tots drive under way

Cohasset police are joining with the Marines Corps in the annual holiday Toys for Tots campaign through Dec. 24.

New toys and games can be dropped off at the Cohasset Police Headquarters, on Elm Street, 24 hours a day, and seven days a week. Toys and games should not be wrapped.

For more information, call the police station at 781-383-1055.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Cat Dam revisited

TO THE EDITOR:

As a selectman, I was deeply involved in trying to mediate the differences among neighbors involving Cat Dam over several years. It is uncomfortable to find oneself at odds with friends, but the representative group of neighbors who negotiated a compromise two years ago reached an accommodation with one another that I and the other selectmen supported.

Unfortunately, the Conservation Commission interceded and demanded a reexamination of the issue under a Notice of Intent (NOI). Whether that was necessary or wise is an issue over which reasonable people can legitimately disagree. Nevertheless, the selectmen voted to raise funding for a survey/study of the issue in preparation for an NOI to be submitted to the Con Com.

The survey was not to do original work but to reexamine existing studies that had been performed over the years. Importantly, the definitive study by Camp, Dresser & McKee in March 2000 determined that nearly 70 percent of the pollution of Little Harbor (and the source of nutrients for the algae in Inner Little Harbor) came from failed septic systems. Since all the homes in the Little Harbor district will be sewered in the next two years, the nutrients that feed the algae will disappear and so will the algae. If one believes that further intervention is still necessary, one should be conservative in addressing how to alter the flow of water through the dam. The study/survey resulted in an NOI that recognized neither of the above points. It proposed that one of the three dam gates be opened permanently. This was a technical nightmare — a solution rife with multiple unexamined consequences, one that introduced risks that require still more studies.

In view of the above — the likelihood that the algae problem will disappear naturally, that a majority of the neighbors have agreed on a schedule of increased flow, that no new technical risk be introduced — I strongly recommend to the selectmen that the solution to increase flow through Cat Dam agreed to by the residents be implemented through the NOI and submitted to the Con Com for their endorsement.

'Environmental 20 Proposal' best option for Cat Dam

TO THE EDITOR:

The Board of Selectmen has soon to decide what to do about Cat Dam. The flow between Little Harbor on one side of Nichols Road and Inner Little Harbor on the other side depends upon the rising and falling tides, and provides the flushing necessary to avoid stagnant water and the consequent growth of algae with its unbearable odors.

Part of the channel, which crosses under Nichols Road, is always open, and the flow in the remaining channel can be regulated by the three gates that can be opened and closed to determine the frequency and length of each tidal flushing. When closed, the gates act as check valves (one way valves) to prevent back flow from Inner Little Harbor to Little Harbor, thus prolonging the higher level in the Inner Little Harbor

Allowing continuous flow with a single gate permanently open is undesirable (except in the winter months, when all three are kept open), because it increases the exposure time of the mud flats and would greatly exacerbate the odor problem, which is of great concern to most of the surrounding residents. This proposal, known as the CLE Proposal, appeals to some environmentalists who apparently think it best to just let nature take its course. However, the environmental impact of the much greater odor problem is prejudicial to personal property rights and this increases the liability of the town for lengthy and costly litigation.

A much better method, know as the "Environmental 20 Proposal" provides full flushing (all three gates open) during more of the winter months, and opens all three gates for two days, at intervals of about 15 days. This plan is an improvement of the tried and true "DEQE approved" plan used for many years, by increasing the frequency of flushing from 9 to 15 per year, and can be regarded as a extrapolation and further improvement to the plan suggested in 2008 by the "Committee of Four" (a citizens' committee appointed by the Board of Selectmen).

The labor cost of opening and closing gates admittedly is greater with the preferred plan than with the CLE proposal. However, relying too much on nature, rather than on nature augmented by intelligent human intervention, is not the most effective counter to the problems of odor or the consequent potential for costly litigation. That is why the Environmental 20 Proposal is favored by most of the affected residents.

Water Commission overstepped its bounds

COMMENTARY

VIRGINIA BROPHY

Dear Cohasset Residents:

I am writing to you as a fellow citizen of this pastoral town and not as a representative of the 10 taxpayers in the action.

In my opinion the Water Commissioners over the last couple of years have violated multiple statutes, regulations and Bylaws. As you may know via last week's Mariner I have filed a civil action against the Town [specifically the Water Commissioners] on behalf of some taxpayers due to the wrongful actions of the Water Commissioners. Unfortunately, there is a possibility that we may not prevail, not because we are incorrect, but the law only provides an extremely narrow window through which a common taxpayer may bring suit. In addition, the Courts generally favor Towns in these matters since they feel, correctly, that in the general course of business it is the Board of Selectmen and/or the Town Manager that would ensure each Town Department stays within their mandated authority and does not over reach into other areas. Unfortunately, that is not the case in Cohasset in this particular matter.

The Town obtained the Pleasant Street Easement over 100 years ago by eminent domain; the Water Commissioners have taken it upon themselves to give away 60

Meeting House Pond is looking good

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Meeting House Pond — The Meeting house Pond project is nearing completion and is in its wind-down phase. We've had numerous comments about the distinct improvement in its looks. The work that remains is mostly out-of-sight. For example, a lot of the remaining work is electrical wiring and connections to enable the pump and its controls.

A new pole drop is required on one of the power poles near the intersection of Robert Jason Road and Highland Avenue, at National Grid's pole # 9. A pole drop is the technical term to describe the wire that goes from the top of a power pole to the customer's meter and power panel. This week, the electrical contractor is erecting a power panel adjacent to pole #9 that will feed the electricity to pump motor and controls via underground conduits. When the panel is complete, National Grid will provide the power drop.

As a piece of interesting information, did you know that the electrical power company numbers all of its power poles? This is how the power industry identifies and keeps track of each pole. For example, if you call the power company to report an inoperative streetlight, they will always ask for the pole number where the light is mounted so they can locate the light in their records. If you are walking along near a pole, look at it carefully. More than likely, you will see numbers and/or letters on the side of the pole that describes the pole owner and the pole number. In fact, some of our poles still list old predecessor utility companies, such as Brocton Edison or Boston Edison. These old names live on until the older poles are ultimately replaced.

Little Harbor Project Paving — As we write this on Wednesday of this week, the pavers are very busy completing the paving of the balance of Jerusalem Road, already prepared for paving. TL Edwards brought two paving machines to town and is paving both lanes at the same time. Their plan is to complete Jerusalem by the end of the day. As of 2:00 PM it looks like they will make the deadline handily.

Backtracking a bit, late last Week, LM Holdings completed their two week long Jerusalem Road repair job. One of the included photos shows their workers adding a base coat patch of asphalt over their trench work. This is important so we can add the asphalt top coat when the road is paved.

Another photo shows a new catch basin under construction in the same section of Jerusalem Road. The reason that a new catch basin was needed is that after the road was reconstructed, we found that there was a low spot that collected water. This would be a potential winter freezing and icing hazard. So a new basin was added at the edge of the road to pick up the storm water that was collecting at this low spot.

The catch basin, in the photo, has been formed by stacking tapered circular cement blocks until the correct height is reached. A cast iron frame and grate will finish off the top as the visible portion. The rectangular hole you can see behind the worker is the opening in the side of a manhole into which a drain pipe will be placed. The other end of the pipe will be placed about where the worker has his left foot. Each end of the pipe will be cemented into place as a permanent connection. The outlet pipe from the catch basin is intentionally well above the bottom of the catch basin. This is so that debris from the road will settle in the bottom of the catch basin and not flow into the drain system and clog it up. That's also why catch basins need to be cleaned periodically.

But, let's back up a bit more and explain a little construction that we also did at 555 Jerusalem Road, west of Forest Avenue before its paving. This is an area where water coming off the adjacent ledge perennially made a mess of the road with its wintertime freezing and thawing. Last year, a home at the top of the ledge, to the south, found that they had a long standing leak in their water supply line. We were hoping that this was a significant cause of the water ruining the road. However, after that leak was fixed there was still water coming up through cracks in the road. Upon careful inspection there was a gas service trench, perpendicular to the road, under the area where the water was breaking through. When we see situations like this, our first thought is, how we can channel this underground water to a better place where it can be drained away.

With paving imminent, we had a local contractor dig an underground channel parallel to the gas line and a little deeper and fill it with crushed stone to carry the water to the edge of the road. Fortunately, there is an old swale there that could then carry the water into a downstream catch. Adding this new gravel-filled trench and refurbishing the old swale should go along way toward improving the drainage in this area. When dealing with ground water, nothing is really for certain, but we hope this move will help this part of Jerusalem Road last a bit longer.

Interns and internships in general sometimes get a bad rap.

Depending on what field of work you may want to go into or where you do your internship, your experience can be quite different.

For the unluckiest of interns, it could be a nightmare where job duties involve getting coffee for the boss (and the rest of the staff) and standing at a copy machine for hours and stapling documents all day long. Some internships might be based on shadowing various employees and watching them as they work, but you don't get an opportunity to work yourself. For those looking to do a little more with their time, there are internships that give you actual work-related experience.

As much as I like coffee, our internships involve real, practical work.

We have internships available year-round, although most of the candidates prefer the summer. It makes a lot of sense because many students go away to school and are home for the summer. Summer internships tend to last a little longer than winter or spring semesters, which is good because we put our interns to work. Interns cover meetings, write features, cover sporting events, and even shoot pictures. There may also be some website work involved, and multimedia opportunities including shooting and editing video.

When the six or eight weeks is done with us, the intern will have newspaper clips with their bylines on stories and website links to add to their resume and portfolio.

Our internship program has really taken shape over the last three or four years. It's not by chance or circumstance that it coincides with the reduction in our workforce over that same time period. Interns provide us with a valuable resource almost as much as we provide them with a chance to meet a graduation requirement.

The internship program has also given us a chance to get to know some hard working individuals who have an interest in writing and the journalism business. We've had a couple of cases where we've been able to hire former interns for entry-level reporting positions or they've ended up doing some substantial freelance work for us.

There are very few restrictions for an internship. First, the student – whether in college or high school – needs to be getting credit or it needs to be a graduation requirement. We need proof of that from an advisor or guidance counselor at the school. As mentioned above, the intern will be out and about, reporting and writing stories and taking pictures. So the candidate should have reliable transportation.

While most of our interns are college students, we have worked with high school students as well. We ask the same thing of all our interns – that you commit to the program, contribute while learning new skill sets, and stick with it to the end. Those who do will walk with them not only published writing samples, but valuable work experience that could give them an edge in landing their first job or gaining admission to college as they further their education.

If you're a student looking for an internship or know a student who might be interested in one, please let me know. You can reach me by e-mail at gmathis@cnc.com. Due to limited space in some of our offices we generally have to cap the number of interns we accept for any given period. While we'd like to accommodate most applicants, the reality is we sometimes have to go through an interview process and accept the interns we believe can meet the expectations we've set and succeed in our work environment.

HEALTH NOTES

Gifts from the past: Comments from previous Health Notes

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Nutrition and Children — Ten years ago, the following words were relevant to our students: "This column has argued tirelessly about the need to reduce factors which lead to obesity. The Board of Health is developing programs to enhance exercise, and proper diet, as well as many other inducements. So far, however we have stopped at issuing regulations. Somehow, we balk at issuing a regulation that says: "Thou shalt not eat too much." However, there are other approaches to regulations that may be more helpful. Still relevant:

Preventing obesity in our children is one of the most important public health issues facing the nation. Obesity and its related economic and health impacts require immediate actions, both nationally and locally. Our timely efforts can ensure that our children will grow up to become healthier adults. (Feb. 17 2003).

Travel is fun — However, it's suggested that you put together a travel health kit. You should pack your prescribed medications A health kit should be carried with the traveler at all times, e.g., in carry-on baggage and on excursions. Medications, especially prescription medications, should be stored in carry-on baggage, in their original containers with clear labels. With heightened airline security, sharp objects will have to remain in checked luggage.

Dehydration is a threat even in cooler weather and at times when one doesn't expect it. The conventional wisdom is that dehydration is apt to occur during strenuous exercise or during warm weather through perspiration. Such is generally the case, but the body always needs constant replacement of liquids. Insufficient water and fluids causes dehydration naturally through perspiration, or insufficient water and liquids intake; frequently occurring through inattention. Even sore throat or loss of appetite can cause a fluids imbalance. (March 15, 2007).

Dehydration is a threat even in cooler weather and at times when one doesn't expect it.

Bells and Whistles — There's a widespread impression that our essential services, police, fire and ambulance, are too costly. Last Monday the Fire department answered a 911 call at one of the larger houses along Atlantic Avenue. The owner was away and there had been workers at the building for several weeks. It was a false fire alarm – as usual. Three vehicles were required to attend; a fire engine, a police car and an ambulance. Every year the Town responds to about 1,800 calls of which about 400 are miscellaneous, many false, frivolous, or unnecessary. A number are caused by contractors working on houses who trip alarms, mismanage security provisions or otherwise cause an alert. Last year, there were 141 calls to one nursing home alone.

We have to pay for this wasted energy. Another necessity is the care of those who have lived in Town for a long time and have no desire to leave. For those who have reached that period in life, moving is almost unthinkable, but nevertheless, may have to be done because we have not provided for them. We have a wealthy community. It's been so for a hundred years. However, it was once fisherman and farmers, many of whom have descendants who still live here. We're wrong if we believe it'll be a better place without those from whom much of the strong fiber of the community comes. (Nov. 30, 2004).

Cohasset astronaut visits all three schools

"I worked really hard and tried to figure out why should I learn to read," Bowen said.

Once he realized reading was the key to everything he was determined to be good at it.

"The more things you learn to do well the more opportunities you will have," he said. After graduating from Cohasset High, he went on to earn degrees from the Naval Academy and MIT.

"I did all that because someone at Cohasset Schools convinced me I should learn how to read," Bowen said.

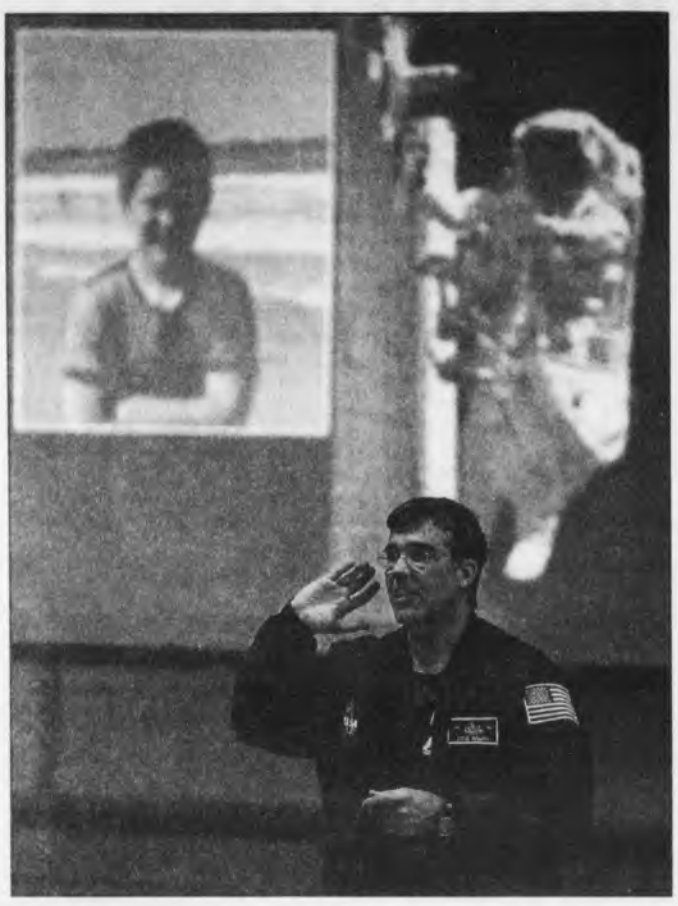
In May Bowen was part of the STS-132 Atlantis mission that helped install new fuel cell batteries at the International Space Station.

Aided by a set of slides and video of his time in space from the launch to the spacewalks to landing back on Earth for both space shuttle flights, Bowen described how it felt to launch from space, to look out the window and see earth down below and have a carpet of stars enveloping them.

"Engineering and science improve the way we live everyday and you can be a part of that."

— Astronaut Steve Bowen

"One of the benefits of being an astronaut is your get to look out the window and see the world below. Every 90-minutes you circle the Earth," Bowen said.



One of the things Bowen stressed is the amount of teamwork required to go to space, not only among the flight crew, but also the training and mission control teams.

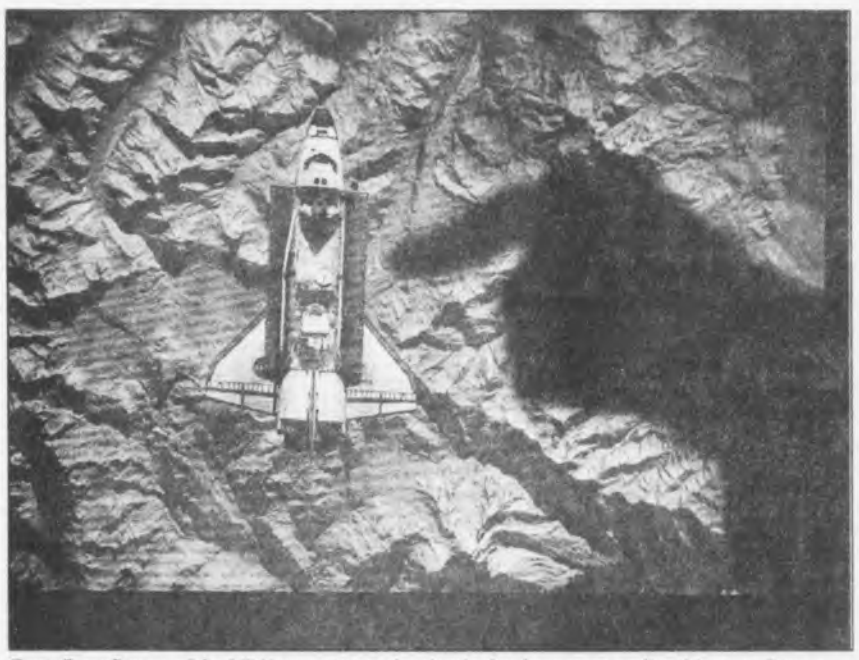
"I'm fortunate to enjoy the view from space when I'm up there, but I always remember the hundreds of people working really hard to be sure we can do our job safely," Bowen said. He showed the students several photos of the "team-oriented crew" – one at the Astrodome and another posing as a band.

When Bowen put a photo of Cohasset on the screen the students erupted in excited conversation. They laughed when he showed a video of the astronauts eating food in space and doing mid-air flips while at the space station.

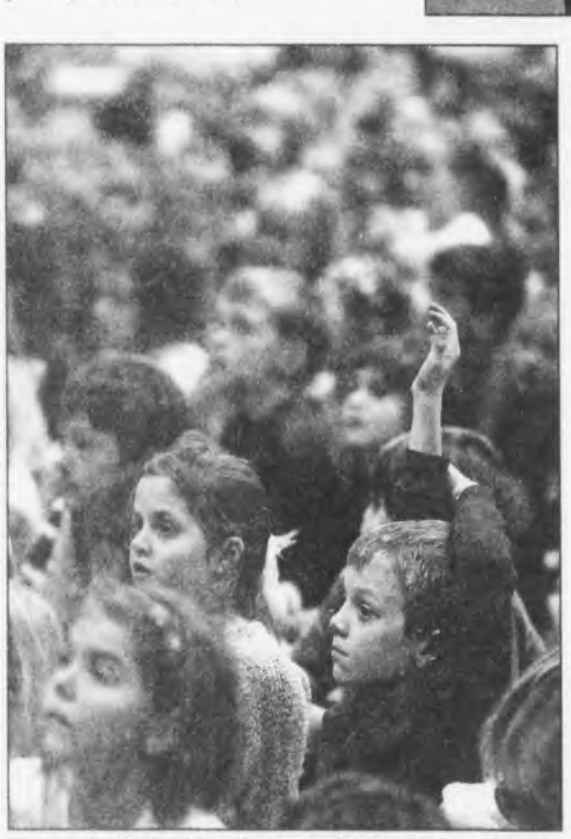
When given the chance to ask questions, the students peppered the hometown hero on everything from space food (it's not bad), how much a space suit costs (several million dollars), and how long it takes to get to space (eight minutes from takeoff to orbiting at 17,000 miles per hour).

On his Atlantis space shuttle voyage Bowen brought a little piece of Cohasset with him. A Cohasset flag, designed and sold by the Cohasset Historical Society, bravely made its way into space. Bowen returned the flag to Cohasset on his recent trip. At a Board of Selectmen's meeting Monday night, Selectman Ted Carr said he'd like the board to discuss a prominent place to display the flag.

Capt. Steve Bowen points to a photo of himself while he was on a space walk during a past mission. It sits next to a photo of him while he was growing up in Cohasset.



Second grader Connie Chapman rocks out to the music of the NASA video that Capt. Steve Bowen played for the Osgood students after his presentation.



Astronaut Steve Bowen was on the last mission of the Space Shuttle Atlantis on May 14-26, 2010. This is a group photo of the historic mission.

Capt. Steve Bowen of the US Navy points to the shuttle that he was on earlier this year. Bowen went to school at the Osgood School from 1969-1972.

First grader Michael Donahue patiently raises his hand hoping to get his question answered during Capt. Steve Bowen's presentation at Osgood.

Cat Dam vote could be Monday

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

It was another lengthy discussion on the Cat Dam Notice of Intent issue at Monday night's Selectmen's meeting. The board devoted an hour and a half to the issue.

The Cat Dam controversy is marked with divisiveness within the surrounding neighborhood. Neighbors said a more than four hour meeting was held on Sunday to present information and attempt to reach a consensus among them. One set of neighbors recently hired an engineer and a scientist to review the Cat Dam situation and develop a competing Notice of Intent (NOI). No consensus was reached.

In late October, a majority of the Board of Selectmen voted to withdraw the existing Notice of Intent (NOI) that was before the Conservation Commission as they felt it was not the best it could be.

The issue of Cat Dam, which is a tidal gate on Nichols Road that limits the flow of water for inner Little Harbor, has been a controversial neighborhood discussion for more than three years.

Both sides of the neighborhood presented new information and opinions over the course of the 90-minute discussion.

The primary disagreement is over the open and close schedule for the Cat Dam tide gates, most specifically the schedule in the warmer months (May to November). All parties agree to leaving the gates open December to April. One set of neighbors, supported by their hired engineer and scientist, would like all three gates to be opened two times a month for two days each time. The other set of neighbors are more closely aligned with the conclusions of the town-hired engineer that recommended the center gate be open everyday.

Both conclusions have advantageous and disadvantageous impacts on aesthetics, environmental, water quality and safety.

The challenge for the Board of Selectmen is distilling all the information provided by the neighbors and engineers and determining what to include in the new NOI submittal to the Conservation Commission. The Selectmen and Conservation Commission have expressed a desire to have a new submittal by the end of the year.

At several points during the meeting Selectmen chair Karen Quigley said the board was not qualified to make this type of evaluation.

"We have two reports that are diametrically opposed, which report to believe I don't think we are qualified to evaluate," Quigley said.

The Selectmen took the information presented to them under advisement and requested that any more information to come be submitted to the Town Manager's office by Thursday.

The Selectmen intend to take a vote on changes to the NOI at their meeting on Monday (Dec.13). Selectmen vice chair Ted Carr said he would look into a possible configuration of the future Cat Dam advisory committee.

After the Selectmen vote on a NOI it will be submitted to the Conservation Commission once again. The Conservation Commission has the regulatory authority over this issue.

"Let's get rid of this. There are too many other critical issues for this board to deal with and this is not one of them," said Selectman Leland Jenkins at the conclusion of the discussion.

Cat Dam will be the last item on the selectmen's agenda next week (Dec. 13). Call the selectmen's office at (781) 383-4105 for exact times.

Cat Dam flashback

It's been more than three years since the first time the Board of Selectmen hosted a discussion on Cat Dam – a 50-year old mechanism that limit tidal flow in inner Little Harbor.

At that time the neighbors were at odds over how much flushing the body of water truly needed. Now, three years later, and almost $20,000 later, it's clear the neighbors are still in disagreement over how to move forward.

In 2008, Town Meeting approved spending for an engineering study of Cat Dam and the surrounding area with the end result being brought forward to the Conservation Commission as a Notice of Intent (NOI). A NOI is presentation of information to the Conservation Commission that addresses the operation and maintenance of the tide gates, among other things.

The issue most significantly affects the surrounding neighborhood of Inner Little Harbor, but it is the town that has paid for the consulting engineer to develop the Notice of Intent at a cost of $17,000.

In late October, a majority of the Selectmen voted to withdraw the Notice of Intent (NOI) application that was before the Conservation Commission. Now, the issue is what might need to be changed with the NOI.

FROM WATER PAGE 14

Selectmen and the Town Manager need to draw the line in the sand and put a stop to the Water Commissioners' practice of exceeding their authority.

percent of that easement [width reduction from 30 ft. to 12 ft.] and, the angle of the easement is such that, according to our Fire Department, the fire and safety trucks cannot make the turn. It is our understanding that the larger trucks required for the periodic maintenance of the Tank are also too large to access the Tank via the newly relocated easement. The statute that the Water Department has violated by not obtaining a two-thirds vote at Town Meeting prior to abandoning any portion of the Pleasant Street Easement was specifically designed for land taken by eminent domain. The courts have stated this,

"A taking by eminent domain is a drastic exercise of the power of government. It should be invoked only after there has been a considered determination that particular land is needed for a specific purpose. Section 15 reflects a legislative policy that before land so acquired can be disposed of there must be a considered determination that the land is no longer required for the specific purpose or for any other public purpose." Muir v City of Leominster, 2 Mass App Ct 587, 595-596 (1974) Emphasis added

The "Section 15" to which the Court refers in the above is M.G.L. Chapter 40 Section 15, which requires a two-thirds vote at town meeting prior to the abandonment of any portion of an easement. The Water Commissioners did not comply with that Statute when they entered into the Agreement, which reduced the width of the easement from 30 ft. to 12 ft. They should not now be able to justify the need for the Town to expand one penny creating a new easement.

The Courts have also clearly stated that an administrative agency, such as the Water Department, is strictly limited to the authority granted to it in their enabling Act [st. 1886 c. 128 as amended]. The Water Commissioners' authority is limited to the business of water only and they are specifically denied the right to convey any real estate. Despite these limitations, they have decided to undertake activities that are strictly within the purview of the Board of Selectmen and/or the Town Manager. An appropriate analogy would be a family where there are young children and those children are provided an allowance and particular chores, which it is their responsibility to complete. Just because the young child is put in charge of decision making regarding their allowance, would you want them to be making the business decisions for the family? – to be entering into contracts on behalf of the family? It is the same situation here; the Board of Selectmen and the Town Manager are the head of this Cohasset family and the Water Commissioners are the equivalent of young family members who have taken it upon themselves to enter into a contract, which has nothing to do with their "chores" of water business, and that contract, for better or for worse will bind the town for a minimum of 10 years if our elected "family head" does not step in to take charge. No one is disputing that it would be a good thing for the Town to generate additional revenue through creative means such as contracting with a cell company. However, it should be done in the proper course of business and done by the right "family member."

As I state above, even if the taxpayer action does not prevail, it does not mean that the substance of the claims are incorrect, it is just that the Court's perspective is that the "Town", i.e., Board of Selectmen/Town Manager is in charge of ensuring that the individual Town Departments are not overreaching outside of their authority. Therefore, I am asking you all to get involved in this issue by contacting as many elected members of the Board of Selectmen as possible to notify them that you elected them to be in charge of the Town business and you elected the Water Commissioners to be in charge of the water business. The Board of Selectmen and the Town Manager need to draw the line in the sand and put a stop to the Water Commissioners' practice of exceeding their authority. It may not be in your neighborhood that the easement was wrongfully given away and where a cell tower will be located but you can rest assured, it will be in your wallet when the poorly drafted contract which favors the cell company is in place for the next 10 years. Please contact your elected members of the Board of Selectman and respectfully request them to take back their authority and run this Town as appropriate. Thank you.

Food Pantry appreciates support

TO THE EDITOR:

Thanksgiving was joyful for families served by the Cohasset Food Pantry. The boxes prepared for each family were fabulous. Each one contained a beautiful turkey, generously donated by Joe and Andrea Kinnealey of Kinnealey Meats. This is a true blessing for the Food Pantry.

We want to thank all of our fantastic bakers. This was the first time each box contained a homemade pie and holiday bread, cookies or muffins. This was truly a special treat.

We also want to express our deepest gratitude and heartfelt appreciation to all our donors. Thank you for responding to our plea for assistance. The kindness and hard work of the community was tremendous. Many individuals and many friends, neighborhoods and local organizations and parishes, helped fill our shelves with desperately needed food items, paper goods and personal care products.

Thank you Cohasset and our friends from Scituate for your kindness, caring and generous spirits.

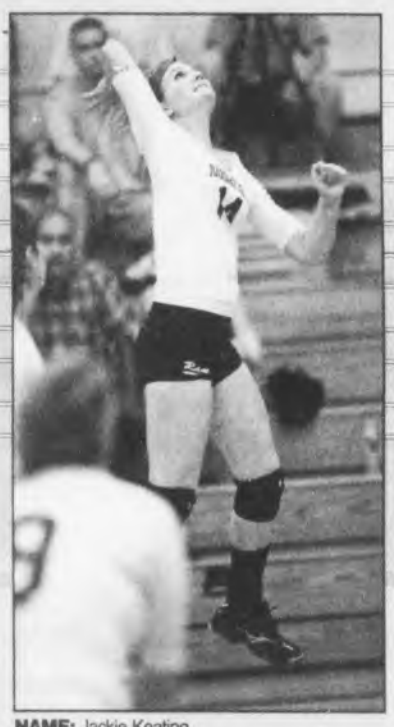
VOLLEYBALL

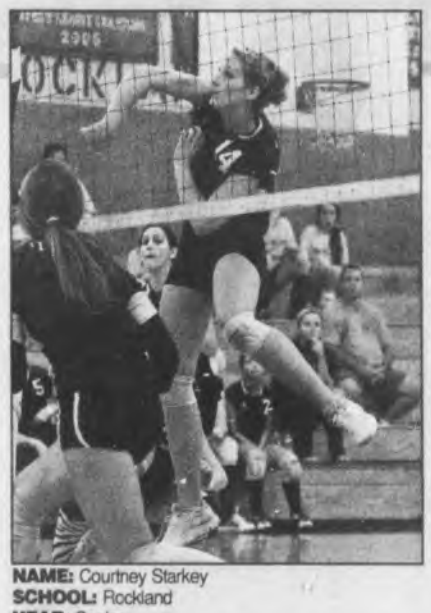
NAME: Mary Donahue
SCHOOL: Braintree
YEAR: Junior
STATS: The younger sister of Ann Donahue, she might have been overshadowed by her older sister, but she was just as lethal at the net, giving the Wamps a deadly 1-2 punch.



NAME: Megan Hall
SCHOOL: Pembroke
YEAR: Senior
STATS: A powerful outside hitter, Hall led the Lady Titans into the postseason once again, and this year she finished first in kills with 133. She also ended the year third on the team with 79 digs.

NAME: Ann Donahue
SCHOOL: Braintree
YEAR: Senior
STATS: A four-year starter and a team captain, the 6-foot-3-inch Donahue was a dominating force at the net. She was a two -time All-Star and set the school record for kills this season with 239.

NAME: Emily Boudreau
SCHOOL: Marshfield
YEAR: Senior
STATS: One of the most dangerous servers in the region, Boudreau also helped bring an Atlantic Coast League title back to Marshfield and bring the team two games into the postseason tournament. The 5-11 middle hitter led the Lady Rams with 123 aces and finished second in both kills (168) and blocks (35).



NAME: Jackie Keating
SCHOOL: Marshfield
YEAR: Senior
STATS: Keating helped lead the Lady Rams to the postseason and a second straight Atlantic Coast League title. The 5-10 outside hitter led the team in kills with 171 and digs with 121.

NAME: Alana Atchison
SCHOOL: Pembroke
YEAR: Sophomore
STATS: What an impact Atchison made on the court this year. Only a sophomore, the middle hitter was a force at the net. She led the Lady Titans in blocks (42), finished second in kills (65), and had a tremendous serving percentage (90.3 percent).

NAME: Alyssa Jasper
SCHOOL: Rockland
YEAR: Senior
STATS: Jasper was Rockland's MVP. "She worked hard this year to become a better defensive player to go along with her deadly hitting skills," said coach Craig Johnson. "She matured greatly over the four years I have coached her and that was the biggest reason for her success this year."

NAME: Courtney Starkey
SCHOOL: Rockland
YEAR: Senior
STATS: Courtney was one of RHS's twin towers in the middle, and had many games where she gave the opposing middles fits. An extremely tough competitor who hates to lose, Starkey is able to focus even more and her play elevates in difficult situations according to her coach, Craig Johnson.

NAME: Elizabeth Muldoon
SCHOOL: Hingham
YEAR: Senior
STATS: Muldoon was a force for Hingham this season. She had 72 kills and 40 service aces to go with 250 digs for the season. The senior captain was Hingham's go-to person all season and was named a Patriot League All-Star, the first for the relatively new program.

NAME: Alex Alicea
SCHOOL: Hanover
YEAR: Senior
STATS: Alicea stepped into the libero position this season and ran with it, playing outstanding team defense while also being a team leader. In a win over Rockland, Alicea had 14 service points while playing virtually mistake free in a game where she had 43 touches.

NAME: Jazna Stannard
SCHOOL: Hanover
YEAR: Senior
STATS: Stannard moved from the setter position last season to the front, where she excelled. Stannard was named a Patriot League All-Star with outstanding kill ratios and a 90 percent receiving number. She was also outstanding on the serve.

A look at the all-time Cohasset boys basketball greats

By Rob Vandenabeele
SPECIAL TO THE COHASSET MARINER

With more than sixty years of history, three trips to the state title game during one of the most successful decades any high school program could ask for, and close to 20 All-Scholastic players over the years, choosing an all-time Cohasset boys basketball team was no easy task. Here's a look back anyway, in chronological order, at some of the all-time greats:

Billy Morgan

Opponents couldn't stop the bespectacled 6'2" forward, they could only hope to contain him - and sometimes, they couldn't even do that. South Shore scoring king for three years running, he beat double and sometimes even triple-teams to average 23, 25, and then 31 points per-game during his unforgettable three-year career that ran from 1948 to 1951. His 44-point outburst on the Garden parquet during his junior year set a building record (schoolboy, college, or pro). As a senior, he scored a career-high 55 points and became the first South Shore player to go over 1,000 for his career.

Jon Sargent

Fulfilling a quest he and his teammates had talked about since the eighth grade, the 5'10" backcourt whiz led his Skippers to the first state tournament bid in school history during his senior year of 1973. In the last game he ever played, he became the first Cohasset player in more than 20 years to surpass the 1,000-point plateau. "The best shooter the school ever had" according to beloved coach and AD Clark Chatterton, his selection to the Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic team was another school first.

Paul Farren

Although best know for his famed football career, his heroics on the hardwood prompted coach John Levangie (in his first stint at CHS) to tout him as "one of the school's finest basketball players ever." A 6'5" behemoth, he averaged 17 points and 14 rebounds while leading his memorable 1979 team into the semifinals of the state tournament. An All-Scholastic in both basketball and football, he became one of BU's gridiron greats and then enjoyed a stellar 10-year career as an offensive lineman in the NFL.

Tony Bogarty

Coach Ed Minelli's 1982 team went 1-19. Then Tony Bogarty showed up. Two years later, after being the only freshman ever to make the South Shore League All-Start team, he led the program to its first postseason birth in five years. During his breakout year of 1985, he was named Globe Player of the Year for guiding his school to their first state crown. He went out in style as a senior, helping his team defend its state title while finishing as the school's all-time leader in scoring, steals, and assists.

James Creed

A chiseled 6'6" center blessed with speed, strength and jumping ability, he was the menace in the middle during much of the program's 5-year stretch of dominance in the mid 1980s. Described by coach Ed Minelli as a "baby Patrick Ewing," he once blocked a school record 15 shots in a single game. He was a Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic three times and made the Globe's team as a senior in 1986. His staggering three-year career totals included more than 1,200 points, 1,300 rebounds and 400 blocks.

Bryan Edwards

Undoubtedly one of the best high school basketball players ever to come out of the Bay State, he led the Skippers to 111 wins during his 5-year reign, two of those triumphs resulting in Division 3 state titles. Three times the Boston Globe Player of the Year, he scored a school-record 61-points while only a sophomore and averaged a state-leading 35 points per game during a historic senior year. His remarkable career came to a fitting end when he became the state's all-time leading scorer, amassing 2,562 career points by the time he finished in 1988.

Linc Marsac

So versatile that he played nearly every position possible, his coach Arnie Repucci once remarked that "he did everything for us but collect tickets." At 6-foot-3 he was big enough to be a forward and quick enough to play guard, helping him compile more than 1,000 points during his three-year varsity career. A two-time All-Scholastic, his greatest game may have been his career finale when he scored 29 points and collected 14 rebounds to lead his 1991 team to an upset over one of the state's top teams.

Paul Bilodeau

Arguably the best of the talented Bilodeau basketball clan, this big-time scorer averaged 20 points per game during his senior year of 1993 despite having to come off the bench most nights because of asthma. According to coach Ron Ford, "he carried the team to the sectional semi-finals on his back," erupting for a career-high 38 points in an early-round tournament game. Selected by the Patriot Ledger for its All-Scholastic team that year, he is likely the only sixth player ever to earn that distinction.

Jared Hardwick

A high-flying 6'5" forward, he was instrumental in helping the 1995 and 1996 teams capture back-to-back sectional titles. Referred to by coach Ron Ford as the team's "go-to player" during his senior year, his inspired play led the team to a thrilling tournament upset of unbeaten rival Scituate and earned them a return trip to the Boston Garden. Sporting averages of 23 points, 7 rebounds and 5 assists per game, he garnered league MVP honors and made both the Ledger and Globe All-Scholastic teams.

Paul-Michael Quintin

A sharp-shooting guard who one college coach called "a very gifted offensive player," he enjoyed tremendous team success as an underclassmen, but had to settle for individual accolades as a senior. Despite missing the postseason during his senior season of 1998, he managed to average 21 points and 9 rebounds a game, along with leading the team in taking charges. Late in the year he drained a 3-pointer to join the school's 1,000-point club, and after the season was named to the All-Scholastic team.

More Cohasset Greats

But what about all the other great CHS players? Okay, okay, here are a few more all-time greats that should have made the cut: Coach Clark Chatterton called Dave Infusino, co-captain of the 1973 tournament team, his best all-around player . . . Brian Keating and Matt Salerno were atop the ladder when the 1979 tournament team cut down the nets in Sullivan Gymnasium . . . Joe Slotnick and Peter Bishop formed the formidable frontcourt that advanced all the way to the 1995 Eastern Mass. title game before losing a heartbreaker in triple overtime . . . 6'9" tower of power Ryan Bishop (1997), a tenacious defender, led his team to a league title . . . According to coach Ron Ford, 1999 All-Scholastic Jamie DeMichele never failed to rise to the occasion . . . All-Scholastics T.J. (2001) and Chris (2004) Bilodeau both led their teams to postseason births . . . Big-hearted big man Dan Martin (2009) sparked the program's recent resurgence . . . And Robert Jones (2011), who still has a year to go, has already made the league All-Star team twice and the All-Scholastic team once.

Like many in the story above, author Rob Vandenabeele grew up playing basketball at his neighborhood playground. He later became a coach and referee at the high school and college levels. His first book, Mass Hoops: The Best of the Bay State's High School Basketball History, was published in 2010 and is available for purchase at Buttonwood Books in Cohasset, or on-line at Masshoops.net and at Amazon.com.

Globetrotters bring basketball's first-ever 4-point shot to Worcester

Harlem Globetrotters, who have contributed more innovations to the game of basketball than any other team in history, have implemented the first-ever 4-point shot as part of all of its games on the team's 2011 "4 Times the Fun" North American tour, the team's record 85th season of touring.

The Globetrotters debuted the 4-pointer to a national audience on Sunday, ESPN2 telecast the Globetrotters' game against the Washington Generals from the ESPN Wide World of Sports Complex at Disney World in Orlando, Fla.

This game-changing innovation will be on display closer to home when the Globetrotters take on the Washington Generals for two games at DCU Center on Friday, March 18, 2011 at 7 p.m. and Sunday, March 20, 2011 at 2 p.m. Tickets, starting at $22.75, are on sale at www.ticketmaster.com, the DCU Center box office, or by phone at 800-745-3000.

Information on group and scout tickets can also be found at www.harlemglobetrotters.com.

"The Globetrotters have been at the forefront of basketball's evolution throughout the sport's history," said Globetrotters CEO Kurt Schneider. "From the alley-oop to the slam dunk to the behind-the-back pass, the Globetrotters have long brought innovations to basketball that are now staples of the game, and we're confident the 4-point shot will change the game of basketball going forward."

Throughout the 2011 North American tour, which will travel to 220 cities in 46 U.S. States and six Canadian provinces between December 26 and April 17, every Globetrotters game will now feature two designated 4-point shooting spots on each side of midcourt, each located 35 feet from the basket (the spots are 12 feet beyond the NBA's official 3-point line). The 4-point option is expected to further open up the playing floor for the Globetrotters as well as their opponents, the Generals, and is expected to generate even more high-scoring action and competitive play.

"Bring it," said Washington Generals President Red Klotz, whose team has not beaten the Globetrotters since January 1971, when Klotz himself sank a game-winning shot in Martin, TN. "Long-range marksmanship is a Generals trademark, and we've already installed several new plays to take advantage of the 4-pointer. If anything, this only makes us stronger."

"I only wish they had this shot when I was playing," said Globetrotter Legend Curly Neal, one of only five Globetrotters in history to have his jersey number retired. "I could have lit up that scoreboard all night long."

Sponsored by Campbell Soup Company, Howard Johnson Hotels, America's Best Contacts and Eyeglasses, Greyhound Lines and Spalding, the Original Harlem Globetrotters continue a world famous tradition of ball handling wizardry, basketball artistry and one-of-a-kind family entertainment that continues to thrill fans of all ages.

Throughout their history, the Globetrotters have showcased their iconic talents in 120 countries and territories on six continents, often breaking down cultural and societal barriers while providing fans with their first-ever basketball experience. Proud inductees of the Naismith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame, the Globetrotters have entertained hundreds of millions of fans—among them popes, kings, queens, and presidents—over more than eight thrilling decades.

Cohasset's Teague wins field hockey national crown

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

McKenna Teague wasn't a starter for the Bowdoin College field hockey team, and for that matter, she didn't play much in the Division III National Championship game against Messiah College, Nov. 21 at Newport News, Va.

When Teague got in the game, she made the most of it and more, knocking in the winning penalty stroke goal that gave her Polar Bears their third national title in four years, and Teague's second.

Teague, a Cohasset native who went to school and played field hockey and lacrosse at Notre Dame Academy, said it was an exciting moment.

"I was extremely nervous," Teague said. "But excited to help the team out. It was pretty unbelievable. It was a very long season. Everyone worked really hard."

Teague, a junior midfielder, said her teammates had a say in her getting the shot.

"It was the coach's (Nicky Pearson) decision," Teague said. "We practiced during the week. Coach hadn't seen me that much. My teammates said I should be the one. I'm really proud of the team. It's been fun."

With the season done, Teague is taking some time off from sports, but plans to be at it again soon to rest up.

It won't be a long break.

"I've got a week and a half off," she said. "Then I start speed training and lifting. Lacrosse starts Feb. 15"

No, Bowdoin, which is about one and a half hours north of Portland, doesn't have an indoor field.

"It's cold," she said of the winter training. "The field is usually covered in snow. They plow it every day."

Teague is a two-year starter with the lacrosse team.

"It's funny," she said. "I play more lacrosse at Bowdoin, but I played more field hockey in high school."

Along with her sports, Teague is also active in other endeavors at the school, as a tour guide and with Special Olympics. She also speaks to teen regularly.

She's hoping to spend the summer working an internship in sales marketing or P.R. in either Boston or New York.

Off the fields, Teague majors in History with a minor in English. She's enjoying her college experience.

"I love it here," she said.

As for picking a favorite sport, Teague enjoys both.

"The teams are very different," she said. "The girls are different. The coaches are different. It's rewarding being able to be a part of both."

Cohasset's Kelly wins rookie honor at Bates

Bates College first-year guard Meredith Kelly (Cohasset, Mass.) was named the State of Maine Rookie of the Week on Monday by the Maine Women's Basketball Coaches Association.

Kelly averaged 14.8 points, 3.8 rebounds and 3.3 steals per contest in Bates' 4-0 week, as the Bobcats extended their win streak to six games. She shot 47 percent (27-for-58) from the floor and came just short of a triple double against UMPI, scoring 18 points, grabbing seven rebounds and collecting nine steals.

Another Cohasset star, Sammi Lehr has been helping Colby-Sawyer in New Hampshire to a 4-2 start, averaging 7.2 ppg and 5.8 rpg in the first six games while starting five games at forward.

The sophomore has averaged 24.2 minutes per game and has a .529 shooting percentage.

Endicott freshman Samantha Crough recorded her first collegiate double-double with 18 points and 10 rebounds against Daniel Webster.

The performance earned Crough The Commonwealth Coast Conference Rookie of the Week on Nov. 29.

Crough also scored 18 points in a win over Lyndon State College earlier this season.

It was the first time a freshman earned a double-double since Ashley Vitale did it back on February 6, 2008 against Colby-Sawyer with 10 points and 11 rebounds.

Everyone in the gymnasium sang Happy Birthday to Meredith Kelly during introductions during the student/teacher game last season. Teammate Samantha Crough is seated beside Meredith. Both Kelly and Crough have been playing well in their freshman collegiate seasons.

Cohasset Youth Baseball and Softball registration now open

The Cohasset Youth Baseball and Softball Association will hold its annual registration for the upcoming baseball and softball season beginning December 1, 2010 through February 10, 2011.

Visit www.CYBSA.net to register online.

Please be advised that returning players already assigned to Major League teams are still required to register. Please direct any question regarding registration to info@cybsa.net.

Men's South Coastal Hockey League roundup

By Mark Ducharme
CORRESPONDENT

There is only one playoff spot left in both divisions in the Fall session of the Men's South Coastal Hockey League and it will be decided on Sunday.

The Saints and the Sharks will meet to decide the final Legend's Div. playoff position as the Saints have a one point lead for the final post season spot.

The Whalers got two goals each from Rob Dennis of Cohasset and Mike Verrochi in their 4-2 win over the Saints. John Currie and Frank Elwood scored for the Saints.

Dave Christensen of Pembroke, Paul Smyth, Marshfield's Kevin Coyne, Chris Poudrier and Steve Lemish also of Pembroke scored a goal each in the Stingers' 5-1 win over the Sharks. Mike Zucarelli scored for the Sharks.

Duxbury's Brian Murphy scored three goals and Dave Currier added a goal and an assist to lead the Toros to a 6-0 Legend's Div. win over the Crusaders. Ray Degaust and Joe Spagenberger of Scituate were the other goals scorer and Ken Menkello recorded the shutout for the Toros.

The four-playoff teams in the Classics Div. have decided as the Bruins rolled past the Maple Leafs, 6-3 to clinch the final spot after the Black Hawks were shutout by the Rangers, 3-0.

Abington's Dan Sloan, Jim Mulhern of Pembroke, Jim Reilly, Steve Anzuoni, Jim Toner of Hanover and Frank O'Donnell had a goal each for the Bruins in the win over the Leafs. Mulhern and Anzuoni both had an assist.

Pembroke's Mike Bartlett had a goal and two assists while Jim Smith also of Pembroke had a goal and an assist and Norwell's Don Studley had a goal for the Leafs.

Jim O'Toole of Rockland, Pembroke's Bill Sawtelle and Joe O'Connell scored for the Rangers, while goalie Greg Smith of Hanover recorded the shutout in the 3-0 win over the Black Hawks.

Glen Hamisch of Marshfield scored two goals and assisted on another to lead the Canadiens to a 4-2 Classic Div. win over the Red Wings. Mike Fahie and Mike Martin, both of Pembroke added a goal each for the Canadiens.

Tom Pipenbrink and Kevin Barnard scored for the Red Wings.

Youth lacrosse registration begins Dec. 1

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse will open its on-line registration for the Spring 2011 season December 1. To register go to our website www.cohassetlacrosse.com and click on the registration link.

Registrations will be accepted for both boys and girls in grades three through eight. All youth players are welcome, regardless of experience. Details for players in first and second grade will be coming out shortly.

Registration will continue until January 31. The program is committed to accepting every player who signs up during open registration. Once that sign-up period is completed the program will establish its ideal roster sizes and take late registrants on a first-come, first-served basis only until the rosters are filled. At that point a waiting list will be established, or players may be turned away.

Fees for grades 3-8 in 2011 are $170 per player, with family pricing of $140 for each additional family member. The price includes the field fee of $10 per player that the town charges to CYL. Scholarships are available for families facing unusual circumstances or financial difficulty. Please check the appropriate box on the on-line form.

If you have any issues with on-line access, or registration related questions you may contact Joe Fitzgerald at fitzpj8@aol.com.

COHASSET RECREATION

Lego engineering over winter break

Cohasset Recreation Center is at 41 Highland Ave. For more information or to sign up for activities, stop by the office on the first floor of Town Hall, visit www.cohassetrec.com or call 781-383-4109.

Play-Well Technologies Lego Engineering

Pre-Engineering – For ages 5 through 7. New projects, create, play and learn. Build a town, city or star base with houses, buildings, pyramids, bridges, tunnels, towers and more. Build motorized cars, trains, buses and trucks; race them; crash them; repair them. Explore the many possibilities of LEGO building systems while learning construction techniques. Takes place at the Recreation Center from 9 a.m. to noon, Dec. 27 through 30.

Bashem' Bots – For ages 8 through 12. New program. The Play Well Engineering instructors will guide students in this advanced Play Well engineering camp as they re-engineer standard vehicles into mechanized machines that can traverse challenging obstacles, battle against fellow bots, and take on Play Well instructors' colossal creations. Meets 1 to 4 p.m. Cost is $144 per four-day program; Monday through Thursday.

Vacation Xtreme – Just because the kids have the time off from school doesn't mean parents have time off from work, so Cohasset Recreation is picking up the slack with vacation week programs for children in grades six, seven and eight. Expanding on the Summer Xtreme program, the Xtreme Team will offer vacation week trips to all new destinations. More information to come. Call or check the website for details. Meets Dec. 27 through 30. Fee to be determined.

December Rec-cation – For children ages 6 through 10. A variety of arts, crafts, stories, and games will be enjoyed. It's the best way to spend one's December vacation, right here in Cohasset. Takes place from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., Dec. 27 through 30, at Town Hall. Fee is $80.

Grades four through eight 8 Recreation Center Events – Open to Cohasset Residents. Online pre-registration closes at 5:30 p.m. Fee is $8 for pre-registered students and $10 at the door; space permitting. Grades four and five party will take place from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Recreation Center, on Fridays, Jan. 7 and Feb. 4. Pizza and drink included. Hats off to the 'Wiz' cast

One Act Play auditions coming

LIFE AT CHS

NATALIE DIGNAM

And just a reminder that Cradles to Crayons still needs our help, so send in some gently used coats, hats, mittens, and new socks!

First off, congratulations to the cast and crew of "The Wiz" for three great shows over the weekend! Highlights included a hilarious and sassy wicked witch played by Jenna Neer, a real "mean ol' lion" played by Robert Weiss, and a groovy Tin man played by Evan Ackley. Erika Burke lead the show with her amazing voice and was supported by the good witch (really, the diva of the show!) played by Colby Smalzel and the clueless, and comical, scarecrow played by Logan Pratt.

And speaking of drama, the One Act Play will be holding auditions in the upcoming two weeks, so please stop by Mrs. Noble's room in the middle school and pick up a copy of the scrip. The One Act Play has been a tradition at CHS, and every year the cast and crew competes with schools across the state at the Massachusetts Dramafest. Last year, the CHS One Act made it through semifinals with their performance of "Check Please". It's a really fun experience, and as an actress myself, I can say it really honed my skills (okay, so I had a non-speaking role and I really just walked across the stage, but that's not the point here!).

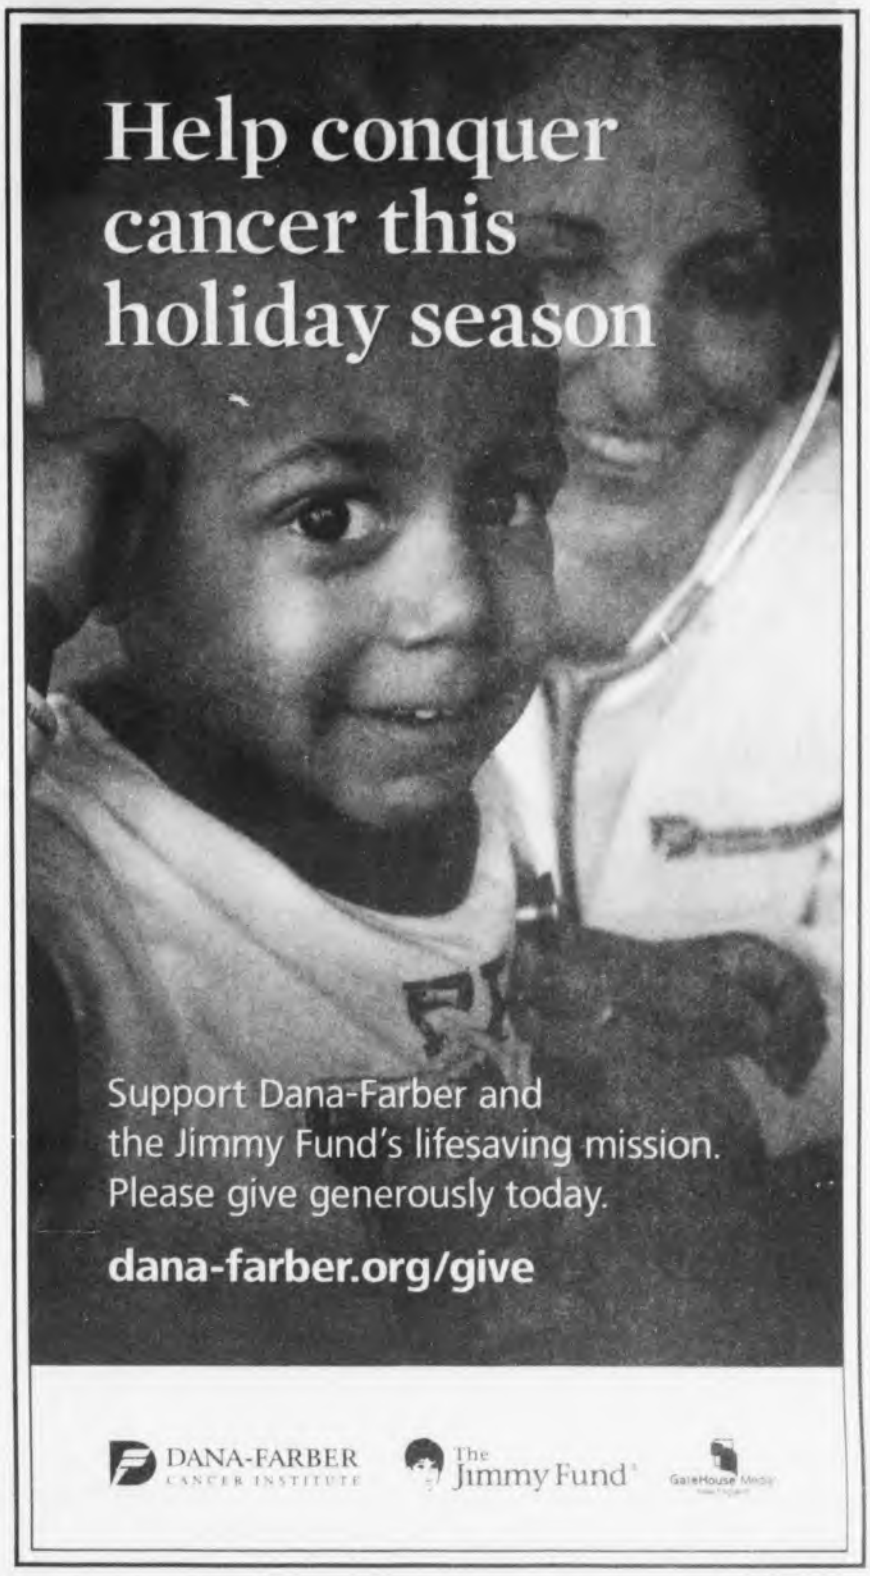
The Red Cross Blood Drive last week was also a huge success, although some students who were not able to give the gift of life did find a way to get some cookies and orange juice. And just a reminder that Cradles to Crayons still needs our help, so send in some gently used coats, hats, mittens, and new socks! This week CHS will give back by sharing the holiday spirit through the annual Holiday Tour. The band and chorus will be performing at the Deer Hill and Osgood elementary schools, Linden Ponds, and Sunrise Assisted Living.

And with winter sports well under way, you may have forgotten about the Debate Team, which has their first meet this Wednesday at Old Rochester Regional High School. Good luck to the Great Debaters of CHS! Also this week the CHS Ski Team was reassembled and will soon resume their trips to Blue Hills, giving everyone a good reason to wish for a white Christmas (or Hanukah, or Kwanza, or pagan celebration with a tree in you living room and fat man breaking into your house). And on that note, Happy Holidays and have a great weekend!

Natalie Dignam was the star performer of the One Act play as an old woman named Sofie who walked, I mean used a walker, to cross the stage without speaking.

Teachers rock! Give them 'Extra Credit'

A child's teacher or other special recipient will receive a card acknowledging that a donation has been made in his or her honor with a personalized message. The amount of the gift will not be disclosed.



People know who they are: The motivators. The catalysts. The teachers who open worlds for their students and challenge them to achieve more than they ever thought possible. Student success and effective teachers go hand in hand. Every student deserves a teacher that rocks.

Let a favorite teachers know they rock. Give the gift that lasts – a gift in the name of that special faculty or staff member to the Cohasset Education Foundation's Teacher Appreciation Program, "Extra Credit". A donation to the CEF is a way for parents and students to honor a specific teacher or school employee at the holidays or anytime. In addition, it helps parents give a gift that will not compromise the policy on ethics and gift giving in public schools.

A child's teacher or other special recipient will receive a card acknowledging that a donation has been made in his or her honor with a personalized message. The amount of the gift will not be disclosed.

All proceeds from Extra Credit are earmarked for Professional Development, Classroom and Program Grants, helping Cohasset's teachers affect and inspire students in more ways than they ever thought possible.

To make a donation, select Fundraising, Extra Credit on the website at www.cohasseteducation.org

This holiday season, give a unique gift of a special memory!

12-year-old Dalton LeTorney, who at 11, had his middle school performance of "Don't Stop Believin'" posted on You Tube. It's gotten more than 40,000 hits already.

'Don't Stop Believin' ' in yourself

CONSERVATORY NOTES

DALTON LETORNEY

When people hear me sing they assume I've been singing my whole life, but that isn't true. I never thought I could sing.

It has been an exciting past five or six months for me musically. It all started back in June with my performance of Journey's "Don't Stop Believin'" at my fifth-grade spring concert, which ended up on YouTube. Being on YouTube was very exciting and having people from all over the world view my performances is awesome.

In August, my dad entered me in my first competition at the Hard Rock Cafe in Boston for the Debra Crosby Talent Quest TV Show. I won the "Top Entertainer" trophy for the night, which was such a great feeling. In September, I performed in two more talent shows: I won first prize at Braintree's Got Talent, and the Grand Prize at Wachusetts Got Talent, which was a spot on Community Auditions at Foxwoods Resorts Casino in Connecticut. That was so much fun and the experience has been great for me. I'm getting more comfortable performing in front of people and judges.

When people hear me sing they assume I've been singing my whole life, but that isn't true. I never thought I could sing. One day last year, my mom heard me singing, told me I had a nice voice, and encouraged me. I was always too self-conscious to sing in front of anyone, including my parents. An opportunity came up this March at my school talent show and my music teacher suggested I perform a duet with my younger brother Dylan. At first I was only going to sing chorus, but my mom urged me to alternate singing verses. We were the opening act that night in front of about 600 people and I loved it. I wanted to continue singing after that performance.

Although I only took up singing recently, I have been involved in music for many years. When I was 7 years old, my grandmother heard about the Suzuki method for teaching piano and paid for my first semester at SSC. She also bought me a small keyboard to practice on. I loved playing the piano from the beginning and have been playing for over four years now. I've learned that if you really want something, you have to put in the effort and time.

Music isn't my only interest. I enjoy playing baseball, swimming, computers and I love my iPod. Another thing I really enjoy doing is volunteering my time at Linden Ponds in Hingham where I perform every two weeks for the senior residents. I love putting smiles on their faces every time I go there. Also, academics is very important to me, and school comes first.

I want to thank my parents for their support and believing in me, and thank my brother Dylan and sister Isabella for going to all my events and cheering me on. And of course, I also want to thank my piano teacher Eric Lane and vocal teacher Beth MacLeod, both at South Shore Conservatory, for encouraging me and helping me get to this point.

Dalton Letorney, age 12, is a sixth-grader at Abigail Adams Middle School in Weymouth. In addition to taking piano lessons and voice lessons at South Shore Conservatory, he also participated in the Conservatory's Summer Vocal Institute 2010, Saturday Stage Club and is a regular at the Conservatory's Open Mic nights in Duxbury. He hopes to one day be discovered, have a recording deal and perform in large arenas to screaming fans. You can also visit his website at www.daltonletorney.com.

Take a walk in the woods Dec. 12

All participants are invited to warm up after the walk with mulled cider and cookies inside the Mt. Hope building.

Maxwell Conservation Trust, a Scituate-based land trust, is sponsoring A Walk in the Woods from 1 to 3 p.m., on Sunday, Dec.12

During the past 10 years, the Maxwell Trust has been instrumental in the preservation of more than 200 acres of open space in Scituate, particularly in the west end of town where there is a large tract of un-fragmented forest that was privately owned by several different families.

Steve Ivas, an environmental scientist who specializes in wetlands, will lead a fun and informative walk through the Litchfield, Maxwell and Carl Pipes Memorial Trails starting at the Mt. Hope Improvement Society, which is at the corner of Clapp Road and Cedar Street in Scituate. All participants are invited to warm up after the walk with mulled cider and cookies inside the Mt. Hope building. Overflow parking is available in the Robbins' field opposite Mt. Hope on Clapp Road.

This free event is an opportunity to experience these trails under the guidance of a local expert. Come and see this land that has been preserved through the efforts of the Maxwell Trust, the Community Preservation Committee and the people of Scituate.

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK
OF DEC. 20, 2010

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although taking advice isn't always easy for the headstrong Sheep, you might want to consider what someone you respect says about an upcoming decision.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) A new offer is tempting, but don't be bullied into a quick decision. Rely on your keen Bovine business sense to alert you to anything that might be questionable.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Your Gemini Twin nature rallies to help you deal with this week's hectic schedules, both in your personal and professional lives. One caution: Watch your diet.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Avoid rushing to make up for time lost on a stalled workplace operation. Best to set up a schedule and pace yourself. Welcome the help of colleagues.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Despite those glittering holiday distractions you love so well, be sure to keep your feline senses set on high to alert you to anything that might require fast action.

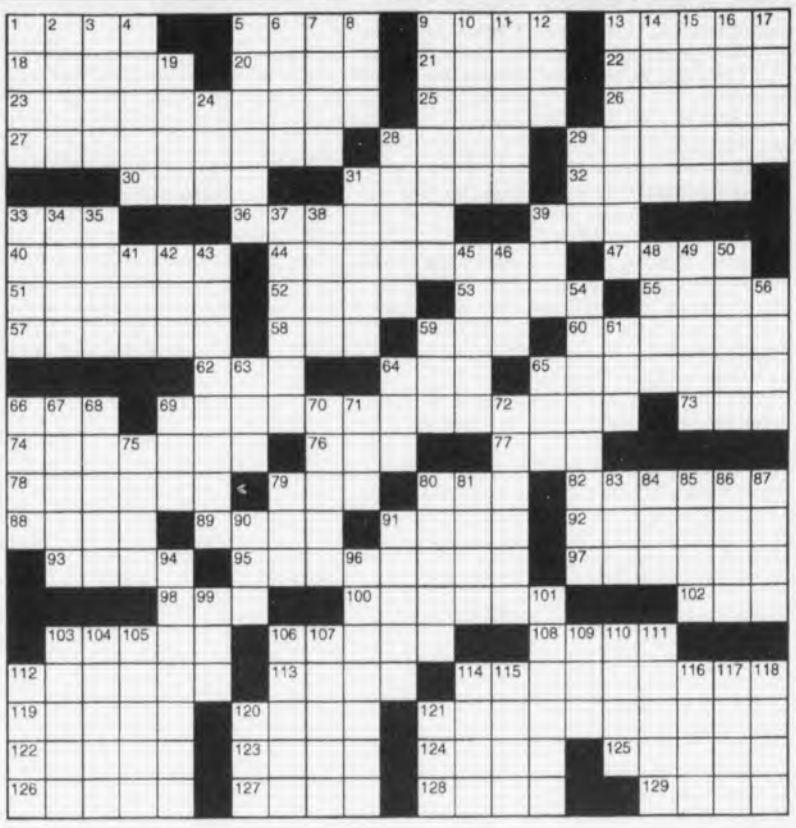
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Making an effort to restore fraying relationships proves to be more successful than you dared hope. The holidays also bring new friends into your life.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Private and professional matters compete for your attention. Be honest in your assessment of which should get more of it, and for how long.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A seemingly endless list of must-do tasks is best handled by tackling them one by one, and taking energy-restoring timeouts between each job.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) A vexing relationship seems destined to deteriorate no matter what each side tries to do. A third party's advice just might prove helpful.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Reach out to ease any tensions caused by home or workplace pressures before they threaten the relationship-building progress you've made.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You often go out of your way to show kindness to others. So, don't be surprised if other people want to do something nice for you this week.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) People in your life respect your Piscean wisdom, so don't hesitate to speak up about a matter that you feel isn't being handled quite the way it should be.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Spiritual enrichment programs at Abbey

Glastonbury Abbey offers a new educational format, a series of spiritual talks and open discussions. Most people did not experience this opportunity when religion first entered their lives. This is an opportunity to explore the history of the Church, the richness of spiritual teachings through Scripture, the relevance and daily application of spirituality, its emotional connections and the place of sacred music in personal and communal relationships to God.

The Abbey provides a spiritual environment to learn, discuss and reflect on the depth of one's spiritual roots. The focus of these Spiritual Formation gatherings is to gain insight into one's own spiritual identity today, create or enhance inner spiritual awareness, and seek knowledge not available during one's early years. Glastonbury Abbey offer courses, lectures and retreats to deepen knowledge of theology and sacred scripture, and to provide opportunities for personal spiritual growth.

The following talks and discussion will be presented by the monks and laypersons in the community of Glastonbury Abbey:

• Dr. John Sheff, "Mental Health/Spiritual Health: A Psychologist's Perspective," will take place Tuesday, Jan. 11, 9:30 to 11 a.m.; or Jan. 11 from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

• Br. David Coakley, OSB, "Holy Clamor and Sacred Song: Our Emotions, Our Inhibitions and Our God," will take place Tuesday, Feb. 1 7:30 to 9 p.m.; or Thursday Feb. 3, 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Suggested donation is $20 per class.

Classes given by Fr. Andrew Mark Quillen, OSB will include:

• "An Introduction to Wisdom Literature." Classes will take place Wednesdays, Jan. 12 through April 13, 7:30 to 9 p.m., on Thursdays, Jan. 13 through March 31, 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Suggested fee for the Fr. Andrew's classes is $125 per course.

For more information concerning retreats, Lenten Reflections or the Listening to Other Voices lecture series refer to the Glastonbury Abbey website at www.glastonburyabbey.org or call 781-749-2155 and ask for the Retreat office. Glastonbury Abbey is at 16 Hull St. Hingham.

Working his way back to you

Star of 'Jersey Boys' returns to Boston for 'repeat' performance

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

With family all over the Boston area, performer Joseph Leo Bwarie – who has been playing Frankie Valli in the national tour of the musical mega-hit "Jersey Boys" since 2007, including a sold-out Boston run last summer at the Shubert Theatre – wasn't about to let somebody replace him at center stage when he learned that the Tony and Grammy award-winning musical would be returning to the Hub, this time at the Colonial Theatre, next week.

"My contract was to end in Philadelphia on Dec. 12, but I extended because I said there was no way anyone else was going to play Frankie Valli in Boston. This will be the tour's first ever repeat city in four years on the road which is momentous. We finally get to use 'Working our Way Back to You' as our advertising slogan," explained Bwarie, a 1999 graduate of Emerson College, last week by telephone. "I grew up in southern California, but my family on both my Mom's and Dad's sides are all from greater Boston – from Westford, to Arlington, Belmont, Brookline, and Braintree. I have family all over Massachusetts. When 'Jersey Boys' played Boston last summer, we did one show where the entire Shubert mezzanine was filled with just my family members."

Knowing someone in the cast may have helped them get tickets to the musical based on the lives of Frankie Valli & The Four Seasons, one of the most successful pop rock groups of the 1960s and '70s. Fueled by a score that includes a double-digit long list of hits by "The Four Seasons" from "Sherry," "Walk Like a Man," "Oh, What a Night" and "My Eyes Adored You," to "Let's Hang On," "Bye Bye Baby" and "Who Loves You," "Jersey Boys" has been playing to sold-out audiences on Broadway since 2005 and also on national tour and in sit-down engagements in San Francisco, Chicago, Las Vegas, London, and Sydney and Melbourne, Australia. Singing lead on 27 out of 34 songs eight shows a week has naturally led to comparisons between Bwarie and the music legend he portrays.

Joseph Leo Bwarie sings "Can't Take My Eyes Off You" in "Jersey Boys" returning to Boston at the Colonial Theatre.

"As a singer, I'm very honored to be compared to Frankie Valli. To me, the voice people hear in the show is just me, Joe Bwarie. This is just what I sound like. I had always been cast to sing the high parts, but I had never performed any of this music before I got this role and no one had ever told me I sounded like Frankie Valli. If I can come close to what he sounds like then that, of course, is the goal."

Show business has been a career goal of the 33-year-old performer since childhood.

"We lived in Sherman Oaks and NBC, Universal and other studios were all right there. I didn't know then that for a kid to be singing in a recording studio in the legendary Capitol Records building in Hollywood wasn't a normal thing," says Bwarie who has recorded with Michael Feinstein and Manhattan Transfer and also played small roles in feature films ("The Addams Family," "Batman Returns") and on episodic television ("Highway to Heaven," "Mama's Family") as a child actor. It was while he was in college in the late 1990s that Bwarie – whose recent feature film credits include the 2010 release "Valentine's Day" – first realized that a full-fledged show business career could have more than one focus.

"I can still remember going to see the national tour of 'Cabaret' at the Colonial twice in the spring of 1999 and just being amazed to see how good Teri Hatcher was as Sally Bowles. I only knew her from 'Lois & Clark' on television and had no idea she could also sing and dance. I realized then that you could do theater and TV. You just needed to have the skills and be prepared to work your butt off, which is something I learned at Emerson."

Bwarie hasn't made up his mind yet whether or not this Boston engagement will be his last with "Jersey Boys," but he does know he'd like to see his own name on the marquee one day in the future.

"My biggest dream is to be on the road with a show called 'Joseph Leo Bwarie in Concert.' I am a singer, that's just who I am, so I would really love to have my own concert and recording career and join the ranks of Harry Connick, Jr., and Michael Buble. People ask me all the time, 'If you could have dinner with anyone, living or dead, who would it be?' My answer is always the same – it would be people like Frank Sinatra, Ella Fitzgerald, Dean Martin, Dinah Shore, Nat King Cole, and Peggy Lee. They are the people I would most like to party with and to sing with, too."

Joseph Leo Bwarie will star in "Jersey Boys, The story of Frankie Valli &The Four Seasons" at the Colonial Theatre, 106 Boylston St., Boston, Dec. 16-Jan. 30. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 1-800-982-2787 or go online at BroadwayAcrossAmerica.com/Boston.

Bear Hill legal action denied

Town prevails over residents' civil action

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The town prevailed in a recent civil action filed by residents to stop the creation of an access road off Reservoir Road and a lease contract with a cell phone company.

The group of 10 taxpayers, all residents of Reservoir Road and Pleasant Street, sought court intervention to stop what they alleged was wrongdoing by the town.

Judge E. Susan Garsh at the Norfolk County Superior Court denied the motion for a preliminary injunction on Wednesday.

A hearing had been held last week on Tuesday, Dec. 7.

Wear art on your wrist

Arts Boosters selling guitar string bracelets

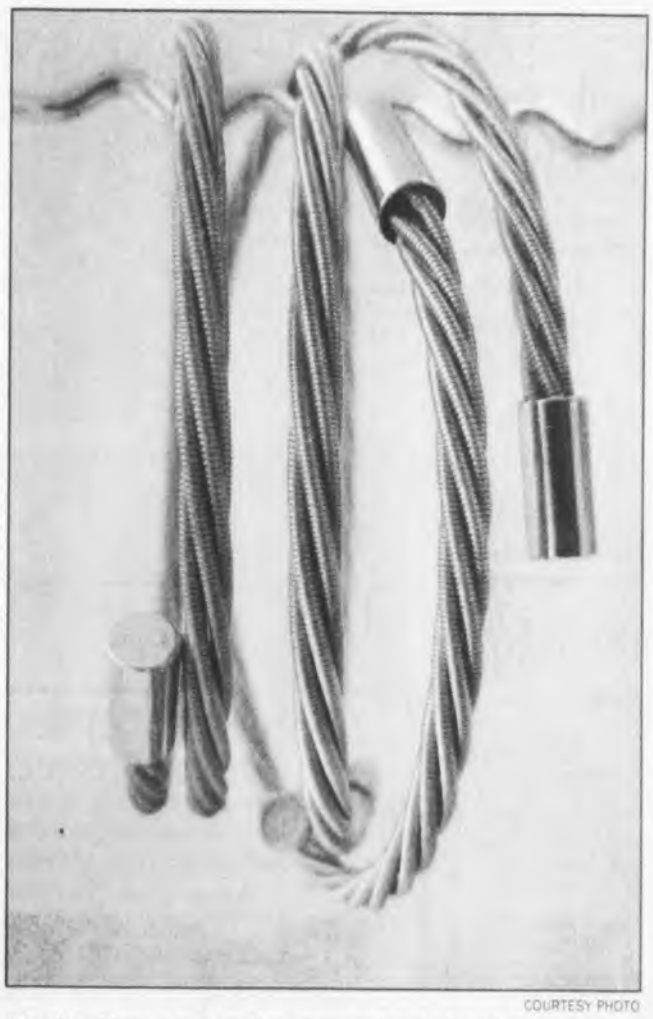
By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The arts are flourishing at Cohasset Middle-High School. Music, visual art, drama are indispensable in the lives of many of the students and is a huge part of school life.

At each step of the way, the Cohasset Arts Boosters, an organization dedicated to supporting the arts education at the middle-high school, is there.

Earlier this month, the Boosters began what could be their hippest fundraising effort to date – guitar string bracelets. The colorful fashion statement, which are unisex, could be an a ideal stocking stuffer this holiday season.

Sheila Toomey, an Arts Booster board member, saw the guitar string bracelets and thought they might make a good fundraiser for the organization. A little online research later and the Arts Boosters had its newest mechanism for raising money.



Wear Your Music, a non-profit company, makes the bracelets specifically for charity fundraisers. All the bracelets are made from recycled and painted guitar strings. They are available in a variety of colors to fit every taste: red, hot pink, sea foam green, black, gold and silver.

The fundraiser is a natural fit for the Arts Boosters because of its connection to arts.

"You can't just wear one," said Diane Kennedy, an Arts Booster parent. She has the bracelets in both the silver and gold. "They're hip, they're fun, they're just really interesting."

The bracelets sell for $10 a piece, or 3 for $27. All the profits go to the Arts Boosters. The mission for the Arts Boosters is to provide essential support for all the fine and performing arts from grades six through 12.

Cat Dam conclusion

Resident-sponsored NOI heads to ConComm

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The issue of Cat Dam is heading back to the Conservation Commission. But, the notice of intent will have a different look this time around.

For the last three weeks the Board of Selectmen devoted more than an hour of their agenda to this issue. More than 20 residents from the area surrounding inner Little Harbor — Nichols Road, Atlantic Avenue, Jerusalem Road — attended each meeting. Cat Dam is a tidal gate on Nichols Road that limits the flow of water for inner Little Harbor.

A majority of the selectmen voted to send the notice of intent developed by an engineer and scientist hired by a group of neighbors to the Conservation Commission. That report calls for a much different, and less drastic, operating schedule for the tide gates that the previously submitted notice of intent (NOI).

The Cat Dam controversy is marked with divisiveness within the surrounding neighborhood and has been before the selectmen off and on for more than last three years. In 2009, Town Meeting authorized $18,000 in funding for an engineer to develop a notice of intent, which is in essence an operation and maintenance schedule for the tide gates.

In late October, a majority of the Board of Selectmen voted to withdraw the existing NOI that was before the Conservation Commission as they felt it was not the best it could be.

It was the same three selectmen (Paul Carlson, Fred Koed and Leland Jenkins) who voted to withdraw the NOI application from the Conservation Commission that voted in favor of the Pond nearing completion

The Meetinghouse Pond restoration is almost done and the town hopes to have water in the pond in the next couple of weeks. Residents are itching to have the pond available for ice skating.

In order to put the water into the pond several things need to be done. The pond bottom needs to be compacted a bit more. It has to be dry to do this and it is much too wet now.

As part of the restoration a system was installed where water can be re-circulated through the fountain. Before the work began the pond was fed almost continuously with domestic water. More controls have been implemented to limit the waste of water.

The sidewalk has been extended an additional foot from four-feet to five-feet to accommodate a new retaining wall. The disheveled concrete stairs were replaced with an ADA-compliant ramp for increased accessibility.

According to town engineer Tom Gruber, other punch list items to get done before water is added is the new electrical box at the power pole on Highland Avenue needs to be inspected, then National Grid needs to run power from the top of the pole to the new box. Then the final connections can be made on the pump.

"All of this is underway, but when the pond bottom can be compacted is weather dependent," Gruber said in an e-mail. Best estimate is another couple of weeks.

Town Manager search

Interim Town Manager Steve Lombard will seek four bids from search consulting firms over the next few weeks. Lombard presented the Board of Selectmen a draft scope of services to distribute to the consulting firms. He said he would solicit quotes from four firms that advertise in The Beacon, the monthly Massachusetts municipal magazine, and encouraged the board to meet with the firms once their bids were submitted.

"Don't let price be determining factor," Lombard said.

The estimated cost is between $5000 and $10,000 and is not subject to the more formal request for proposals bid process. The Advisory Committee will have to authorize a transfer from its reserve funds.

At an upcoming meeting, the Selectmen will discuss the composition of a screening committee.

RTF closed on holidays

The Recycling Transfer Facility will be closed on Christmas Day, Saturday, Dec. 25 and New Year's Day, Saturday, Jan. 1. The RTF will be open on both Sundays with normal hours.

Selectmen's meetings to move to Tuesday

After the first of the year the Board of Selectmen will move their regular meetings to Tuesday night. The move is largely in response to the difficulty in parking in the Town Hall lot on Monday nights. A regular meeting next door at Second Congregational Church takes up much of the parking spaces leaving little room for residents looking to attend the Selectmen's meeting, especially if they are coming for an agenda item later on in the evening.

CPR, traffic stops, MV accidents make for busy week

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

CPR

On Wednesday (Dec. 15) at about 11:17a.m., the Cohasset Police and Fire departments' Emergency Dispatch Center received a cellular 9-1-1 call from a caller in the Shaw's Plaza parking lot off Route 3A reporting an unresponsive elderly man in a 1988 Cadillac.

Police Officer Patrick Reardon and Detective Garrett Hunt, who were on patrol in the area of Shaw's, arrived within a minute of the call. They found an 84 year-old Scituate man slumped over his steering wheel and not breathing. Both officers immediately removed the man from the driver's seat of his car and began CPR. Officers continued with CPR until paramedics from the Cohasset Fire Department arrived and initiated advanced life support treatment, which included the use of a defibrillator.

The Scituate man was transported to South Shore Hospital in Weymouth where he is listed in critical condition, police said.

"The actions of Officer Reardon and Detective Hunt saved a life today and for that I'm extremely proud of them as well as the members of the Cohasset Fire Department," Police Chief Mark DeLuca said.

Unlicensed

An officer on patrol on Beechwood Street at 1:17 p.m. on Monday (Dec. 6) ran a random registry check on the plate of a 1999 Chevrolet van that revealed the registered owner did not have a license. After the officer stopped the van, the owner/operator, a 36-year-old Somerville man, provided a Brazilian passport but no license. The man is being summonsed to court for unlicensed operation, police said. The van was towed.

Suspended license

At 4:58 p.m. on Tuesday (Dec. 7) an officer ran a random registry check on the plate of a 2006 Toyota Scion that revealed the registered owner's license was suspended for failure to pay a speeding ticket. The owner/operator, a 52-year-old Hull woman, is being summonsed to court for operating after license suspension. Her car was towed, police said.

Parking lot mishap

A 64-year-old Scituate woman called 9-1-1 last Monday (Dec. 6) at 2:40 p.m. after a 71-year-old Cohasset man in a 1986 Crown Victoria allegedly hit her parked 2000 Honda Accord in the parking lot at Stop & Shop. Police said she had pulled into a parking spot and the Cohasset man hit the side of her car when he pulled in beside her. She told police that the man in the Crown Victoria denied hitting her car. They had words and she dialed 9-1-1. Police said scrape marks on her car were consistent with the bumper of his car. Police prepared a report and they exchanged paperwork.

Deer

A female caller reported hitting a deer with her vehicle on King Street at about 10:50 p.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 8). She reported she thought that the deer was still in the road but police found nothing.

Train lot

The operator of a 2007 Jeep Grand Cherokee reported scraping the side of a 2002 Nissan Xterra when he was pulling out of a parking spot in the MBTA lot at about 5:50 p.m. on Friday (Dec. 10), police said. The other vehicle was unoccupied and he left a note for the owner, police said.

Single car MVA

Police responded to a report of a single car motor vehicle accident at Jerusalem Road and Forest Avenue at 749 p.m. on Saturday (Dec. 11). Upon arrival police found an unoccupied 2000 BMW 323i that had gone off the road and hit an outcropping of ledge. A short time later an 18-year-old Cohasset teen and his father arrived and were attempting to have the car towed. The teen had been driving. Police took a report and had the vehicle towed.

Border Street

At 6:47 a.m. on Sunday (Dec. 12), police received a 9-1-1 call about a motor vehicle accident on Border Street involving a 2003 Nissan Maxima that had crashed. As it turned out the accident was in Scituate but Cohasset police found the mother of the 19-year-old driver, who had left the scene, attempting to pick her son up on Border Street in Cohasset. They were ordered back to the scene to meet with Scituate police.

School bus

A school bus driver in Scituate got the plate number of a red Durango that passed it while its lights were flashing and stop sign was extended at about 8:49 a.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 8) on First Parish Road. The plate number came back to a Cohasset resident; police went to her house on Pond Street and advised the 39-year-old Cohasset woman that Scituate police wanted to talk to her.

Police said the fine for illegally passing a school bus is $200.

Argument

An officer escorted a 52-year-old woman on a bicycle back home after a concerned citizen reported seeing her sobbing while riding her bike on Beechwood Street near Chief Justice Cushing Highway at about 10:45 a.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 8). Police said she had just had an argument with her boyfriend. No physical harm had occurred, police said.

Arrest

An officer on patrol on Chief Justice Cushing Highway at about 6 p.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 8), observed a 2002 Dodge Stratus with an expired inspection sticker. The officer stopped the car on Route 3A and further investigation revealed the operator, a 30-year-old Weymouth man, did not have a license and he was wanted on a warrant out of Hingham District Court for failure to pay a fine. The man was arrested and charged with the warrant, unlicensed operation and for not having a valid inspection sticker, police said.

Taxi cab

A taxi cab driver out of Watertown drove to the police station at 11:07 p.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 8) to report that his customer was intoxicated and could not say where he lived. Police notified the 49-year-old man's wife who came to pick him up.

Suspicious man

An employee at a local coffee shop reported to police on Saturday at about 3:30 p.m. that a disheveled man in baggy clothes, who appeared to be drunk, may have stolen something from the store. The man who was driving a 1999 Pontiac van, was stopped by Scituate police who did not find anything that might have been taken on his person. The staff at the store was unsure whether a crime had been committed, police said.

Winter parking

Winter parking regulations are in effect from Dec. 15 through April 1.

No overnight on-street parking between the hours of 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. is allowed during winter parking regulations.

Violators are subject to a fine of $25.

Resident-sponsored NOI heads to Conservation Commission

The Cat Dam controversy is marked with divisiveness within the surrounding neighborhood and has been before the selectmen off and on for more than last three years.

NOI sponsored by the group of neighbors.

The final decision on the operation and maintenance schedule lies with the Conservation Commission. The public hearings before the Conservation Commission will likely begin sometime in January.

Selectmen Karen Quigley and Ted Carr voted in favor of submitting the town-sponsored NOI report as supplemental information, but the other selectmen opposed that motion.

"I think as applicants we have to let the Conservation Commission know which (NOI) we prefer," Koed said.

The primary disagreement between the engineers and the neighbors is over the open and close schedule for the Cat Dam tide gates, most specifically the schedule in the warmer months (May to November). All parties agree to leaving the gates open December to April.

The to-be-submitted NOI chosen by the selectmen recommends the gates be opened two times a month for two days each time during the warmer months. The withdrawn NOI had recommended one of the gate be open all the time during the warmer months.

The Selectmen also discussed the composition of the Cat Dam Advisory Committee, which will help to implement, and potentially modify, the NOI in the future.

Koed proposed having a nine-member committee: three independent and professional experts and six neighbors from the surrounding area (four from the group that paid for the engineer and scientist to develop the second NOI and two from the opposing group). The Selectmen would appoint the committee members if the Conservation Commission approves the composition.

The vote on the composition was 4 to 1. Selectmen chair Karen Quigley voted against the composition, "if there is not independent, regulatory people on the advisory committee I can't vote for it."

The final issue discussed was who would present the NOI to the Conservation Commission and how would the town pay for it. A professional engineer must present a NOI. With the original NOI, done by CLE Engineering, the presentation of the NOI to the Conservation Commission was included in the contract. Now that the Selectmen have voted to apply with a different NOI developed by Lucas Engineering and Harbor Engineering and paid for by a group of residents, they will need to assume the cost of the presentation.

Koed said the town should solicit a written estimate from Lucas Engineering and request a transfer from the Advisory Committee's reserve funds for the cost.

Tax bills could be delayed

Potential deficit is crux of issue

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

To ensure the audit is complete the town is trying to help the auditor get all the information he needs in short order.

With the end of the calendar year approaching the town should be gearing up to send out the quarterly property tax bills. But, the currently underway water department audit could hold up the process.

The Department of Revenue, which certifies the tax rate each year, won't certify the number until, at least, the audit is complete, interim town manager Steve Lombard told Selectmen this week.

"Because of the potential for a deficit (as a result of the audit) we can't get the tax rate certified," Lombard said. The town's values related to the tax rate have been certified.

If the New Year comes without a certified tax rate, the town may have to seek a revenue anticipation note based on the expected revenue from property taxes, Lombard said in a phone interview.

Once the audit is complete — and assuming there is a finding for a deficit — the town will need to identify funds from the available revenues to cover the deficit. A special Town Meeting will need to be called to appropriate the revenue to balance the deficit.

Lombard expects there to be a 30-day turnaround from the time the town finds out definitively about potential deficit and holding a special Town Meeting.

The town's independent auditor John Sullivan of Melanson Heath and Company who is currently combing the financial records of the water department over the past five years said in a recent meeting he has found many cases of misclassifications of expenses.

At a recent Board of Selectmen's meeting Sullivan said as a result of these misclassifications between capital and operational, the town could be facing as much as $1 million deficit in this year's operational budget.

Sullivan is still working the exact number on and many questions remain.

Lombard is clear he doesn't want to speculate at the point about the results of the audit or the deficit number, "I want to make sure the audit is complete and the results definitive."

To ensure the audit is complete the town is trying to help the auditor get all the information he needs in short order. At Monday night's selectmen's meeting Lombard said the town and auditor are currently working through two challenges.

American Water Works, the company under contract to with the town to run the water plant and the distribution system, has ceased communication with the auditor after several weeks of cooperation. Sullivan needs more information on how American Water employees were involved in the Little Harbor project.

On Monday, Lombard told Selectmen there is a clause in the town's contract with American Water Works that may help them get the information they need: a consulting engineer can request copies of invoices paid to American Water.

"It might require some arm bending and looking closely at the contract," Lombard said. The consensus of the selectmen was to get Town Counsel involved.

A second challenge is being worked on as well with the help of town engineers Tom Gruber and Mark Brennan, Lombard said. In recent years, the water department has received various grants to do certain projects and the accounting is a little fuzzy with these grants, especially the older ones, Sullivan said at a recent meeting.

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley said the board might need a special meeting before their next regularly scheduled meeting in January to address any issues of an urgent nature.

January Veterans' Agent visiting hours

The Cohasset Director of Veterans' Services will be at Paul Pratt Library, Room 2B, in January as follows: Monday, Jan. 3, 6 to 7:45 p.m.; Wednesday, Jan. 5, 10 a.m. to noon; and Saturday, Jan. 8, 10 to noon.

Just drop in, or call ahead of time if preferred. Visiting hours are not only for veterans, but also for spouses/surviving spouses and those concerned with veteran/spouse aging parents as well as for general advice.

If the aforementioned schedule does not meet one's needs, the veterans' agent will meet people at a convenient location and time; for example, the library, his home, one's home. The Veterans' Agent is Joe McElroy and he may be contacted at 781-383-0505 or by email @ cohjoe@aol.com.

Pan-Mass. Challenge

On Friday, Nov. 12, the Pan-Massachusetts Challenge presented a check for $33 million to Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. The 2010 fundraising total was $2.6 million, or 8.6 percent, more than the organization gave in 2009.

On Aug. 7 and 8, 5,000 cyclists from 34 states and six countries rode up to 190 miles over one or two days on 10 different routes. With the support of friends, neighbors, family members, and colleagues, the riders enabled the PMC to make the largest single contribution to the Jimmy Fund in 2010. The funds raised by the cyclists in the 2010 PMC brought the organization's 31-year Jimmy Fund giving total to $303 million.

This summer, eight Cohasset residents raised $28,904 for cancer research and treatment at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute by riding up to 190 miles in the Pan-Massachusetts Challenge. Their effort helped the PMC raise $33 million and bring the organization's 31-year total Jimmy Fund contribution to $303 million

The check was presented to Dana-Farber President Edward J. Benz, Jr., MD, at a Fenway Park event which nearly 500 PMC cyclists and volunteers attended. The contribution represented 100 percent of every rider-raised dollar, a charity pass-through rate that is nearly unparalleled within the $3 billion athletic fundraising event industry. Approximately 3,150 volunteers worked throughout the year on behalf of the PMC.

"The 32nd annual PMC is set for Aug. 6 and 7, 2011. Registration opens online on Jan. 11 for alumni and Jan. 18, for newcomers. For more information about the PMC, visit www.pmc.org.

The civil action was the latest step in a disagreement between the Reservoir Road neighborhood and the Water Commission.

In her decision, which was supplied to the Mariner by Water Commissioner Peter DeCaprio, Garsh found that it was unlikely the residents would be able to establish standing if the motion moved forward.

"The alleged expenditures referenced in the complaint refer to a road not yet authorized and it is not clear that, if it is, the Town will bear the cost of such construction," Garsh wrote in her decision. "I do not find it would be in the public interest to issue the requested preliminary injunctive relief."

The action sought to stop the town and the Water Commission from taking any action in regard to the Bear Hill water tank cell antenna or access to the land surrounding the water tank. It also sought to void the Pleasant Street easement reduction and the current contract between the town and AT&T.

The civil action was the latest step in a disagreement between the Reservoir Road neighborhood and the Water Commission. Residents of the neighborhood have fought a change in the water tank access road for more than two years. The Water Commission is currently seeking to create an access road to the Bear Hill water tank off Reservoir Road; the Board of Selectmen has the final say on whether the road is created.

Water commissioner DeCaprio said in an e-mail, "Judge Garsh took the time to draft an order that picks up on most of the salient issues argued and briefed. She could have just said 'denied'. Her order speaks directly to the merits of the plaintiffs case."

Attorney for the resident group Virginia Brophy said she could only speak for herself, but was disappointed in the court's ruling. She said this was a case where a court judgment was not an accurate reflection of the legal reality; rather it was dismissed on technicalities.

"Frankly, at the end of the day, the true judgment will ultimately lie with the residents of Cohasset — all of us that will have to live with the consequences of the misdeeds, of which there are many, of the water commissioners," Brophy said.

HISTORY LESSON

Non-medical home health aides can provide invaluable companionship to their senior clients. An aide can encourage the senior to reminisce about the past. Recalling cherished memories can be comforting, stimulating, and highly enjoyable for a senior. Sitting together and looking at old photographs and scrapbooks, and rereading correspondence that the senior has saved can prompt discussions about the senior's past. Discussing the senior's recollection of certain historical events can elicit many memories as well. The home health aide can assist the senior to fill a scrapbook with photographs, newspaper clippings, and other memorabilia that the senior has accumulated over the years. Such activities provide opportunities for the senior to exercise his or her mind.

Mental exercise has been linked directly to physical health. That's why we place such a premium on the compassion and companionship that our caregivers offer. In addition to talking about fond memories, our caregivers can also read magazine and newspapers, to keep your loved one up-to-date on current events, as well as stimulate their mind with novels and lively discussions. And you can feel better knowing that your loved one isn't lonely and isolated all day. Don't you both deserve that? Call 781-878-2994 to find out more about how we can help you. We are located at 145 Washington St., Suite 11. In-home help for Massachusetts seniors.

P.S. Asking seniors to describe where they grew up can encourage them to talk about their past.

Budget season in full swing

Schools get preliminary budget presentation

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"We know this budget year is going to be challenging so we need to come together as a town to decide what kind of schools and, more globally what kind of services, people really want."
— Alfred Slanetz, School Committee

It's no secret that the fiscal 2012 budget is going to be a difficult one to balance for the town and schools, here and across the state.

The School Committee got its first taste of what next year's budget could look like — and what tough decisions they may be facing.

The proposed fiscal 2012 budget is preliminary and will evolve through several other drafts over the course of the budget process.

"This is an overview. It's a level services budget that does not add new staff or programs, but it does continue with what's in place," said school business manager Dave DeGennaro. Superintendent Denise Walsh was not at the meeting due to illness.

The preliminary fiscal 2012 budget is $15,732,294, which includes negotiated salary increases with the teachers' union, transportation costs and unemployment costs, but does not include other school-related, town-budgeted expenditures, such as building maintenance and health insurance costs.

The proposed budget is a 4.64 percent increase, or $697,816 over this year's budget.

The budget proposal assumes a significant loss in the number and amount of offsets available over the current fiscal year and past years.

"Because the increases (from the town and state aid) have been so small we've been leveraging some of the offsets (over the past few years)," said Alfred Slanetz, school committee vice chair. In fiscal 2012 many of those offsets are significantly smaller, or none at all.

For example, the schools have utilized a Medicaid offset the past two years to help cover school nurses salaries and other related expenses. Last year Medicaid offset $65,000 in the budget. Yet, DeGennaro said, it had taken several years to build up that account.

"It only comes in periodically and a little at a time," DeGennaro said.

Similarly in fiscal 2011 the schools utilized a $70,000 offset from the athletic revolving account, an account that has been building for several years.

The schools anticipated losing their state full day kindergarten grant of $46,400. The schools also don't anticipate a renewal of the stimulus money for special education — a total of $98,284 — that was used for special education out of district tuition and professional development.

For the past two years, the teachers' contract included a negotiated furlough day, which translated to a savings of $50,000. The third year of the current contract does not include a furlough day.

In all, the school department estimates a $359,758 loss in offsets (grants, negotiated savings) from last year's budget. This loss accounts for roughly half of the increase over the current year's budget, school committee member Paul Schubert said.

"In prior years we had the other revenue sources and that's part of the reason for a larger percentage increase," DeGennaro said.

The past two fiscal years (fiscal 2010 and 2011) there was 2.8 and 2.2 percent increases over the prior year. As a result of the reduction in offset money the schools will likely seek a greater percentage of town funds.

School Committee member Linda Snowdale asked the key question: is it reasonable to expect the town to pay more to us?

Slanetz said that was the discussion the school committee needed to begin with the selectmen and the town as a whole.

"We know this budget year is going to be challenging so we need to come together as a town to decide what kind of schools and, more globally what kind of services, people really want," Slanetz said, adding there were options to balance the budget, some more painful than others. He mentioned switching the high school to a modified block schedule (which would involve collective bargaining), looking at increased fees, analyzing health care costs (also a collective bargaining item) and only providing transportation up to grade six.

School Committee chair Helene Lieb said a town-wide forum might be the best approach to start the budget conversation. The School Committee also agreed to write a letter to the Board of Selectmen to state the schools' needs and ask for support.

Lieb said the best thing the school committee can do over the next few weeks is to get to know the proposed budget intimately.

"Everything that's in there we need to be able to justify. We have to be the experts," Lieb said.

The School Committee will hear from the school principals, student services, and the athletic director during the line item budget presentation on Wednesday, Jan. 5.

"This is just the first overview; we have a lot of work in front of us," DeGennaro said.

Community participation sought in search for superintendent

The Cohasset School Committee has an exciting opportunity for the community to participate in the search for the school district's next Superintendent of Schools. To that end they are looking for community volunteers to be a part of the screening committee being established for this purpose.

If you would like to learn more on how you can participate in the search, please email Jeanne Astino for more information and a timeline for participants. The time commitment is approximately 20 hours in the month of January and involves several weekend and night meetings. All who are interested should respond by Monday, Dec. 20, 2010; Jeanne's email is jeanneastino@gmail.com.

Gold medals in World Masters Rowing Regatta

Marj Burgard, an 81-year-old Village at Duxbury resident and Cohasset native, recently brought home four first-place medals from the World Rowing Championships in St. Catharine's, Ontario. She also placed fourth in a doubles race, partnering with her son, Dick Burbridge of Hingham.

More than 3,000 rowers from 33 countries competed in the World Masters Regatta sponsored by The Fédération Internationale des Sociétés d'Aviron, or FISA for short.

A lifelong sailor, Mrs. Burgard began to row recreational shells in the 1960s, after her late husband, Arthur Martin, a naval architect, developed the famous Alden Ocean Shell. Wider and more stable that a racing shell, this boat that Mrs. Burgard helped pioneer – and continues to champion – has introduced many people to the sport of recreational rowing.

Decades later, after Martin had passed away, Mrs. Burgard decided to master the single racing shell when she was 65 years old. By this time, she had married another rower, Ralph Burgard. She became a certified rowing coach, and won when she raced for the first time in the Head of the Charles in 1999, at the age of 75. She rowed three more years in the Head of the Charles before deciding to test her skills against other rowers from around the world in the 2001 FISA World Masters Regatta. That year, she won five gold medals, including the mixed doubles race with her husband.

During the final ceremony of this year's World Masters Regatta, Mrs. Burgard was the only woman to be inducted into the Ancient Order of the Oars, an honor bestowed upon rowers older than 80 who have competed in at least one world's race. She shared the podium with men from Japan, Germany, Switzerland and the United States.

"The adrenaline rush that comes from pushing oneself to the limit, so all those endorphins are bursting within you – there just isn't any feeling like it," said Mrs. Burgard. "I row because I can't help it."

Winter Solstice Poetry Circle to meet Dec. 20

The Winter Solstice Poetry Circle's 15th annual poetry circle will take place at 7 p.m., on Monday, Dec. 20, at Old Ship Meetinghouse, 90 Main St..

This season's Crossing Time is the Winter Solstice, the longest night of the year, which heralds the return of light. People are urged to leave the holiday rush and come share and replenish creative energy. Bring a poem to read or speak or simply come and listen. Choral quintet Crossroads will perform some winter carols and poetry set to music.

Calligrapher shares her craft

Creates works of art using age-old techniques

By Carol Britton Meyer
CMEYER@CNC.COM

Calligrapher Maryanne Grebenstein uses centuries-old techniques and tools to create custom designed, painstakingly hand-lettered works of art.

These include one-of-a-kind books to commemorate weddings and other special occasions, recognition awards for volunteers and benefactors, testimonials of appreciation, citations of honor, and personal gifts of poetry, Scripture, and memorials. "It's unique in today's age of electronic art and instant gratification," Grebenstein said with a smile.

Grebenstein, who established The Abbey Studio in South Hingham in 1982, has been designing her own Christmas cards for the past 20 years in addition to the works that she creates for others. Those on her card list look forward to receiving yet another unique creation each year.

The Abbey's most distinctive product is the "Heirloom Tribute," a hand-lettered scroll on vellum (calfskin) using Japanese Moon Palace Sumi ink and 23-karat gold leaf and vine illumination to decorate the lettering. The approximately 16- by 20-inch scrolls are custom framed and matted.

"These keepsakes outlast us and keep the family memories going," Grebenstein said.

She also works on paper, depending on her vision for the final piece and the project budget.

Basic tools include paper or vellum, pencils, a T-square, a "dip" pen versus fountain pen, and gold leaf.

Grebenstein taught herself calligraphy until she realized she could benefit from some formal training. While working in an art studio in Washington, DC, in the early 1980s, she took some courses from Sheila Waters, whom some consider to be the "guru" of calligraphy. She also studied illuminated manuscripts, including religious documents from the Middle Ages, while visiting museums. "I wanted my lettering styles to be as historically correct as possible," she said.

Lettering with pen and ink has been used to record the written word since the fourth century, Grebenstein explains. "Calligraphy really flourished during the 15th and 16th centuries — a period during which many elaborate manuscripts were created."

Despite the invention of the printing press and the later arrival of the personal computer, calligraphy continues to thrive, Grebenstein is happy to note.

She teaches this ancient craft at the North Bennet Street School in Boston, at MassArt, and as a visiting artist at The Corcoran College of Art & Design in Washington, D.C.

In collaboration with Grebenstein, North Bennet is presenting a new, one-semester full-time course in calligraphy, manuscript illumination, and bookbinding.

A sampling of different styles of calligraphy that Maryanne works with.

In addition, Grebenstein organizes group trips, domestic and abroad, to visit museums that house collections of illuminated manuscripts. The next one is planned for Spring 2011.

"We'll be going to Paris to see manuscripts at Musee Cluny; Mont Saint Michel and Avranchesto see manuscripts made in the Mont Saint Michel scriptorium; London to the British Library to view the Lindisfarne Gospels, the Bedford Hours, and many other famous manuscripts; and Dublin to see the Book of Kells," Grebenstein said.

Next May she will conduct a workshop, "Calligraphy as a Path to Prayer," at Glastonbury Abbey in Hingham. This will include a retreat portion led by Father Andrew.

"Since many of the original illuminated manuscripts were private devotional books and Bibles, it's the perfect way to combine prayer and meditation with the art of writing," Grebenstein said.

She will also be teaching a two-day workshop at the Museum of Russian Icons in Clinton, Mass. in January. Their website is www.museumofrussianicons.org.

One of Grebenstein's more memorable pieces was an honorary degree from Fairleigh Dickinson University in New Jersey for Paul Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve under Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan.

Grebenstein also created an appreciation scroll for actor/dancer/singer Ben Vereen from the Kessler Institute for Rehabilitation in New Jersey in recognition of his fundraising efforts.

In November, one of her hand-lettered manuscripts, a small collection of William Morris poems, was featured at the Boston Book Fair at Hynes Convention Center.

"It's fun to be involved in recognizing people's accomplishments," she said.

Grebenstein shared one of her favorite job-related anecdotes. Several years ago, a young man came to her studio around Christmastime wanting her to create some kind of special proposal for his girlfriend, whom he hoped to make his fiancée at Christmas.

"We talked about a couple of possibilities, and he mentioned that 'their song' was the Rod Stewart hit (written by Van Morrison) 'Have I Told You Lately?'" Grebenstein said. "I suggested a small book with the lyrics written out, and he liked the idea. I designed a book, about 5 by 7 inches, and on each page was one phrase from the refrain. The last page contained a special message."

The wording in the book went something like this: Page 1: "Have I told you lately that I love you?" Page 2: "Have I told you there's no one else above you?" Page 3: "You fill my heart with gladness." Page 4: "Take away all my sadness." Page 5: "Ease my troubles, that's what you do." Page 6: "Heather, will you marry me?"

"I had tears in my eyes the entire time I was working on it!" Grebenstein recalled. "It worked – she said yes, and what a treasure she has to hold on to and share with her children!"

Much of Grebenstein's business comes from word of mouth. Her first job was for a corporate customer, global pharmaceutical company Schering Plough – a retirement scroll for founder Abe Plough.

"I was living in New Jersey at the time and a mutual friend introduced me to the art department there," Grebenstein recalled.

She has been interested in calligraphy since childhood. "I used to love looking at books, admiring their pretty logos, and noticing different letter styles," she recalls. "I always liked handwriting letters, too."

In 2006, Grebenstein wrote a book entitled "Calligraphy: A Course in Hand Lettering," featuring detachable guide sheets. The book is a comprehensive beginner course, created especially for students with little or no experience in the lettering arts.

In the introduction, Grebenstein explains that calligraphy requires intense concentration, some skill, and a lot of patience.

Some people find calligraphy to be therapeutic "— akin to yoga or meditation — because it forces them to stop rushing," she said. "The concentration demanded to perform each individual stroke makes us let go of some of our everyday busy-ness."

Students using her book are encouraged to slow down and not to worry about creating a masterpiece. "Relax — and enjoy the process of learning," she states.

Grebenstein and her two sisters, Maryland residents Christine Hartline and Kathy LaVeck, recently created Heart-Lines, featuring books, greeting cards, small one-of-a-kind posters, and bookmarks to commemorate life's important milestones — "heartfelt expressions for life's most important moments."

Calligraphy is "a skill that can be learned if you have an interest in it," Grebenstein says modestly. "It requires a lot of practice, just as making beautiful music on an instrument is up to the player."

"We really do value the arts in this community and we want to keep that energy going. (As Arts Boosters) we don't want there to ever be an opportunity teachers or students miss out on because of money," said Kennedy.

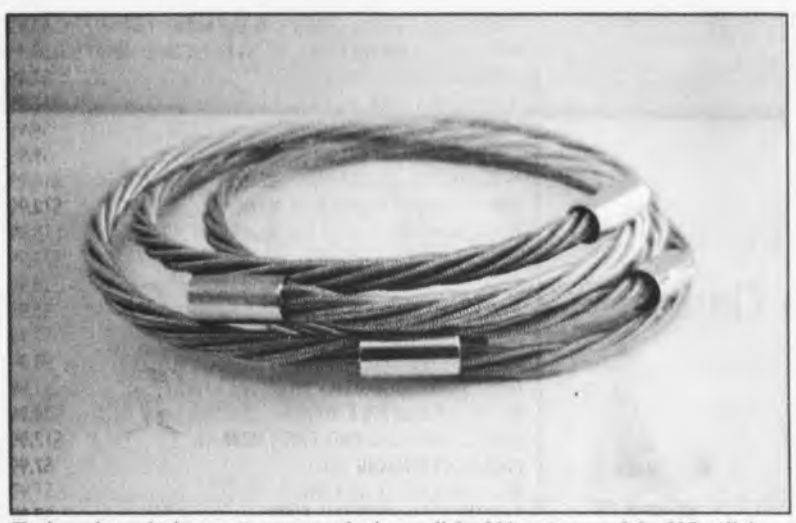
The fundraiser will run through Valentine's Day. A table will be set up at each of the upcoming middle school and high school arts-related events

"Over the past couple of year the programs have gained steam. The arts program is so vibrant right now at the middle school and the high school so there's more for us to do, more to get involved with and excited about," Kennedy said.

One the upcoming goals of the Boosters is to establish and fund a visiting artists program at the middle-high school. Professional artists from across the disciplines would visit, speak, and interact with students.

"That type of interaction can really inspire students," said Sally Sisson, Arts Boosters parent.

In recent years the Arts Boosters has helped to fund various programs, supplies and events. Last year they funded teachers' arts awards and senior arts award. They provided support for the annual Jazz Night, funding the mailing of the Arts Magazine, successfully wrote and received two grants, purchased t-shirts for arts events and funded supplies for a music department holiday CD.



To purchase the guitar string bracelets, e-mail Diane Kennedy at devline@juno.com or Sally Sisson at salsisson@comcast.net.

A student can make a fashion statement by wearing several of the guitar string bracelets.

The bracelets, which come in a range of colors, sell for $10 a piece, or 3 for $27. All the profits go to the Arts Boosters.

'Europe • East to West' on view at Library

South Shore Art Center will present "Europe • East to West" at Paul Pratt Memorial Library in Cohasset. The exhibition includes Richard Alemian's photographs and Kimberlee Alemian's oil sketches of Poland, Hungary, Austria, the Czech Republic, Italy and France. This is the couple's third exhibition together.

"Europe • East to West" opened during November, and will be on view through Dec. 30. Photographer Richard Alemian focuses on bold colors and shapes that explore the textures and vibrancy of the various cities. He sees the world through the lens of his camera picking out compositions that consider the dynamic of the chosen scene.

Oil painter Kimberlee Alemian concentrates on sketches made from site notes and photography. The sketches are resolved to the degree that the image emerges. Her surfaces reflect the vigor and energy of the cities visited.

GIMME SHELTER

Shy 'Trixie' looking for quiet home

Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is featuring Trixie, a female tortoiseshell cat. She is a year and a half old and has been at the shelter for quite some time. She is a bit timid and it takes her a while to warm up to folks. She is petite, quite the little beauty and looking for a fairly quiet home. She is hoping for a loving home with or without children or other pets. She is Miss November in HSAR's 2011 Kittendales Calendar. If you'd like to give Trixie a home for the holidays, call Shirl at 781-925-3380. The shelter has open hours on Saturday from 2 to 3 p.m. and Mondays from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

The shelter is located at 50 L St. Hull; our mail address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, P.O. Box 787, Hull, MA 02045. HSAR is offering low cost spay/neuter on Wednesday, Jan. 5. If interested, call Mary Ann at 781-925-3121 to arrange an appointment. Check out the HSAR website at www.hsar.org to meet many adoptable felines.

Wishing you all a Happy holiday season. A huge thank you to the Journal and the Mariner for their continued support in featuring our adoptable felines and helping to find shelter for many of them.

If you're looking for that last minute gift, our Kittendales Calendar is still available. It's a gift that gives twice, once to the recipient and again to the shelter. HSAR invites you to stop by during open hours to visit its NO KILL shelter.

She is Miss November in the 2011 Kittendales Calendar. If you'd like to give Trixie a home for the holidays, call Shirl at 781-925-3380.

Our winter installations are fast, efficient, and for the first time ever, free.

November was the first time we've ever offered Free Installation on our replacement windows. More people took advantage of this offer than we even expected, and some saved up to thousands of dollars! Folks are usually hesitant to have replacement windows installed in the colder months—around the craziness of the holidays—but we're extending this Free Installation offer for one more month only. Now through Dec. 31st your installation will be FREE when you buy five or more windows. And if you think a winter installation will be difficult for you, know that giving it away for free is much harder for us.

Not only will your installation be absolutely free, with our Winter Installation Method™ the entire process, from removal to clean-up, often takes just one day. And our team of Expert Installers works room-by-room, closes the door, and replaces only one window at a time. One installer works outside while another works inside, installing our energy-efficient windows as quickly as possible to minimize your home's exposure.

Our FREE installation can save you up to thousands — and costs us dearly.

Renewal by Andersen is the exclusive start-to-finish replacement window subsidiary of Andersen Windows; the most recognized name in windows. In this economy, the only way to keep our installers working through the cold months is to have an irresistible deal, but we can only afford to offer this deal for a very limited time.

You don't need yet another home improvement company making empty promises.

A positive home improvement experience is hard to come by, but our Certified Installers are respectful of both your time and your home. Each member of our installation teams averages 10+ years of window installation experience, which is why most jobs are completed in just one day.

Wind bylaw revisions

Increased setbacks, decreased height requirement are highlights

"The lower height and increased setback requirement should decrease the effects on neighboring homes and businesses."
— Andrew Willard, Alternative Energy Committee

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

For nearly three years hardly a month has gone by where a wind turbine proposal or the wind bylaw has not made a headline.

As the Trustees of Reservation proposal to place an 80-meter wind turbine on Turkey Hill works its way through the Planning Board special permit process, the Alternative Energy Committee is making final rounds to various boards with a revised wind conversion facility bylaw.

The revisions address many of the major concerns brought up through the permitting process for the two-turbine project proposed by private developer CCI-Energy during 2009 and 2010.

The original wind turbine bylaw passed in a unanimous vote at the 2008 Annual Town Meeting. It is a town-wide zoning bylaw establishing regulations for commercial size wind turbines. The projects go through a special permit process, overseen by the Planning Board. The bylaw establishes the parameters for a wind turbine and the revised bylaw places clearer and in some cases more stringent regulations on turbine construction in Cohasset.

Andrew Willard, chairman of the Alternative Energy Commission (AEC), said the bylaw has been adjusted to address concerns of height, setback and noise. Over the summer the Alternative Energy Committee held two public forums on the bylaw to gather input and opinion from the public. Many of the changes clarify the bylaw and could potentially make it easier to interpret.

The maximum height for a turbine (from pre-construction grade to the highest point reached by the nacelle) has been lowered from 100-meters (350-feet) to 80-meters (260-feet) in the revised bylaw.

Setbacks have been increased substantially. A turbine cannot be sited within a distance equal to the total height of the turbine from buildings, critical infrastructure, or private or public ways. Additional protection for residential buildings is included: turbines must be sited at least three times the total height of the turbine from the nearest existing residential structure. The final setback addition is the turbine must be sited 1.5 times the total height of the turbine from the nearest property line.

"The lower height and increased setback requirement should decrease the effects on neighboring homes and businesses," Willard said.

Other changes include a clarification of the noise requirements. An expansion on the Massachusetts state law on noise is included. A definition of "ambient" was added. The revised bylaw also calls for a noise analysis to be completed within 90 days of initial operation of the turbine. It also contains a clause to address the noise regulations as it might mean for two turbines within a half-mile of each other.

The portion of the bylaw related to shadow flicker, the blinking effect caused when the sun passes behind the moving rotors, has been quantified. The original bylaw left a lot of subjectivity in the hands of the applicant and the Planning Board. It said the "turbines shall be sited in a manner that does not result in significant shadowing or flicker impacts."

The revised bylaw offers a concrete number for shadow flicker: "The maximum allowable worst-case daily shadow flicker for each applicable structure shall not exceed 30 minutes for each day."

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley asked Willard if with the increased setback requirements there were still parcels where a wind turbine was possible.

"We made a conscious decision not to look at any specific parcels when revising the bylaw. We wanted to focus on coming up with verbiage that we think is reasonable," Willard said. "We kept the discussion away from whether wind would be possible (under the revised bylaw) on this site or that site."

Selectman Paul Carlson raised some questions about how the bylaw protects the town when the time comes to dismantle the turbine. He questioned whether more protections should be put in place so the town doesn't end up footing the bill.

Willard said they could look into the issue a little further.

The estimated life of a wind turbine is 20 to 25 years.

The next stop for the revised bylaw is a formal public hearing before the planning board. The Alternative Energy Committee is aiming to put the bylaw before Annual Town Meeting on April 30.

Public hearings close on turbine

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

As of early Thursday morning, the Planning Board will no longer be accepting public comment or more information on the Trustees of Reservations' wind turbine proposal on top of Turkey Hill.

The third session of public hearings held on Wednesday night began at 9p.m. and finished at 12:45 a.m. with a majority vote to close the public hearing portion of the process.

A large contingent from Hingham – mostly from the Turkey Hill neighborhood – came out to voice their concerns on the project. Noise, shadow flicker, visual impact were all questioned and discussed at length.

The town's noise consultant Jim Barnes of Acentech confirmed he was satisfied the noise generated by the turbine would be within the town's zoning bylaw and state regulations for noise.

Yet, residents were concerned the topography of the area would further propagate the noise of the turbine.

"Sound is different where I live. I'm very worried I'm going to be hearing this turbine all day long," said Hingham resident Julie Dale of 40 Turkey Hill Lane. She said she could hear a Hingham High football game (over a half-mile away), the commuter rail train and even the Hull II wind turbine on occasion.

"No one is saying there will be no impact, no sound, but what we are trying to determine is does it meet the guidelines in the bylaw," said Al Moore, planning board chair. "We've got experts and we're trying to come up with informed opinions."

The Trustees are proposing an 80-meter (262-foot, 410-feet, including the height of the blades), 1.8-megawatt turbine by Vestas is the targeted machine. The potential turbine site is surrounded by open space and would be sited south of the existing cell towers.

The proposed site for the turbine, including setbacks, is entirely in Cohasset, but Hingham residents could potentially be more impacted by the turbine than Cohasset residents. The closest Cohasset residence is the Golden Living Center off Route 3A.

Also a concern for Hingham residents is the delivery of the massive turbine. Any plans to transport materials via Leavitt Street and Turkey Hill Lane would require review by Hingham's permitting boards.

Hingham residents and the Hingham Board of Selectmen requested the Cohasset Planning Board postpone closing the hearing to allow for more time for review of the technical data and to address Hingham residents' concerns. Many of the Turkey Hill residents said at the public hearing on Dec. 8 that they had only recently found out about the project.

The Planning Board will deliberate on the application and potentially make a decision on Wednesday, Jan. 12 at 8p.m.

This is the second time a wind turbine project has been before the Cohasset Planning Board. The board denied a two-turbine proposal by a private developer located off Route 3A near Hingham Lumber earlier this year.

Teacher's gifts

This is the season of giving and our children's teacher or teachers are very likely on the list.

However, parents need to be aware that the updated Massachusetts Conflict of Interest Law prohibits teachers from accepting gifts that are valued $50 or more.

A Dec. 3 memo from the Hingham-based law firm Long & DiPietro, LLP, that was sent as an advisory to local school departments, including Cohasset's – enumerates the amendments to the law approved by the State Ethics Commission — related to gifts for public school employees.

In a nutshell, the law prohibits public school employees from accepting gifts valued at $50 or more from a parent or student and that includes the aggregate of all gifts from that source within a 365-day period.

The legal memo, which is available on the Internet, states: "Therefore, gifts given by parents, whether for the holidays, end of year or any other occasion, will be added together and if the aggregate value from any one parent/student is over $50 in one year, the gifts will be considered of 'substantial value'" and subject to the law.

Substantial value does not necessarily mean face value. The Long & DiPietro memo states: For example, if a concert ticket is $40 – but due to the scarcity of such tickets, the fair market value is $500 at the time of the gift, the value of the ticket is $500.

The newly amended law is 20 single-spaced pages and can be found on the Massachusetts State Ethics Commission website.

We do not think parents need to read the law but they do need to be educated on its effect.

A class or "group gift" of up to $150 per year from the teacher's class is allowed as long as it is identified as being from the entire class and the identity of the contributors and amounts given are not identified.

A teacher may accept a gift to the classroom to be used by the class and which will become property of the school district.

We ask that parents put themselves in the position of the teacher. No one wants to refuse a heartfelt gift but under the amended law – a teacher could put his or her job in jeopardy by accepting a gift valued at $50 or more.

The Long & DiPietro memo concludes by stating: "Even an inadvertent violation can be the source of Ethics Commission complaints, embarrassment and potential fires. The Rockwellian day of teachers receiving gift apples from students are over."

While gift giving this time of year helps make the holiday season festive and fun – a heartfelt thank you note might be the nicest gift of all. Teachers should be appreciated. A nice note from an appreciative student, parent or family can be saved and read again and again, long after a material gift has lost its luster.

MEETINGS

The following meetings are posted at Town Hall:

All meetings take place at Town Hall unless otherwise noted. Call the Town Clerk's office at 781-383-4100 for updates and additions.

Community participation sought in search for superintendent

The Cohasset School Committee has an exciting opportunity for the community to participate in the search for the school district's next Superintendent of Schools. To that end they are looking for community volunteers to be a part of the screening committee being established for this purpose.

If you would like to learn more on how you can participate in the search, please email Jeanne Astino for more information and a timeline for participants. The time commitment is approximately 20 hours in the month of January and involves several weekend and night meetings. All who are interested should respond by Monday, Dec. 20, 2010; Jeanne's email is jeanneastino@gmail.com.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Thank you friends and neighbors

TO THE EDITOR:

My son, Bryan M. Healy is serving over in Afghanistan as a MP in the U.S. Air Force.

We would like to thank all our friends and neighbors and the George H. Mealy Post for all the care packages and cards you have sent to our son and troops.

People can write to: Bryan M. Healy, ISAF MP, APO AE 09355.

Thank you so much, and have a Merry Christmas.

People can be extraordinarily good

TO THE EDITOR:

Veterans and their families are like everyone else; that is, sometimes they need a helping hand. The past two months have been extraordinary. It began with individuals calling to find out how they can send Christmas gifts to service members overseas. One group of neighbors, to include their children, decided to "go light" on Christmas gifts and give to those serving their country. A local resident, who works in a neighboring school district, was so overwhelmed with gifts that they needed additional names of service members protecting us in distant lands. An entire company, in a neighboring community, offered the time of all their employees to help local service member families prepare for the winter months. The owner of the company and his family members as well as company associates have been installing storm windows, cleaning gutters, or doing whatever is needed. The American Legion and Sons of the American Legion bought supermarket gift certificates for each service family(done anonymously) who needed financial help. I could go on and on, but you get the idea.

May you have a blessed and happy holiday season.

Cat Dam decision praised

TO THE EDITOR:

I am writing this letter to applaud the Selectmen for so adeptly handling the delicate issue of managing Cat Dam. They demonstrated fine leadership in allowing both sides of the issue to air arguments over the last few weeks and to provide a summation at this past Monday's meeting so a decision could be made. Sorting through the technical reports and understanding the concerns of citizens was not an easy process, and ultimately deciding to submit the Environmental 20 proposal for submission to the Conservation Committee was not unanimous.

The selectmen next had to deal with divergent opinions on the proper governance of Cat Dam going forward. The main question centered around ceding control to an outside regulatory body or maintaining local control by the citizens but with expert advice and consultation. There were sensitivities and concerns on both sides. This was an opportunity for the Board of Selectmen to demonstrate leadership and they did so with aplomb. A committee of 9 will be formed consisting of 6 abutters and 3 independent advisors. The advisors would be town residents, with expertise in water quality, engineering, conservation or related sciences. The 6 seats would be assigned to abutters to assure those factions concerned with algae, odor, and safety, have appropriate representation to advocate for their concerns.

The committee will not only be responsible to submit the annual schedule for gate openings but will also manage the collection of vital data that measures water quality, and to use that information to guide future decisions on the health of Inner Little Harbor.

Congratulations to all the Selectmen for their hard work and dedication to this very important community issue.

Cat Dam: Complex issue calling for fairness

COMMENTARY

ANNY NEWMAN

A copy of this letter to the Cohasset Board of Selectmen was provided to the Cohasset Mariner.

Since a medical condition precludes my attendance at tonight's Board of Selectmen's meeting, I request that this statement be entered into the official record.

As a veteran of a life under non-democratic regimes, I observe rigorously my civic obligations and guard jealously the privileges afforded by our Constitution. Foremost here are issues of justice and fair play, especially as executed by our elected officials.

Hence, the inclination to reduce the complex issue of the Cat Dam to a neighborhood dispute needing an arbitrary vote by our Board of Selectmen is neither accurate nor, indeed, fair.

Without exaggeration, your vote today bears importance for the entire town and its future deliberations on the subject of Inner Little Harbor.

...I can truthfully state that the lagoon, filled with fish and fowl, turns into a dangerous source of infestation and an offensive body of mud when emptied of water.

We have lived at the edge of the Inner Harbor since 1974, abutted the water since 1983, and I can truthfully state that the lagoon, filled with fish and fowl, turns into a dangerous source of infestation and an offensive body of mud when emptied of water.

Given the propensity to adjudicate this state of affairs as a subjective observation, I invite the Board of Selectmen to examine several professional analyses at your disposal. Moreover, it is my understanding that the conversion of septic tank to town sewer is still outstanding on several properties, rendering any immediate assessment of water quality moot until subsequent examination, especially when considering additional contributory elements.

As to the "dispute" between neighbors, which embarrasses us personally, I wish to emphasize two points within the general acceptance of fairness:

- Democracy recognizes the voting rights of individuals, where majority prevails. The abutters' heavy majority votes regarding the Cat Dam is based on well-documented analyses of the Inner Harbor. While concerns of dissenting neighbors must not be ignored under any circumstance, these concerns appear to be based on some erroneous premises. More importantly, the number of these abutters is indeed a handful. I cannot subscribe to such domination at any time.

Paving all done for the season

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Little Harbor Project — On Wednesday, Dec. 8th, our paving contractor completed the last paving for the season. They started on Atlantic Avenue at the northern end of the causeway and continued along the ocean to Rust Way. They brought two paving machines to town and operating them side by side, they paved the whole length in one day, about 4500 feet. For those of you who like to know about quantities, this took forty-two trucks of asphalt, most of which were large semi-trailer type dump trucks, as seen to the left side of the photo.

Included in this paving, but not a part of the Little Harbor Project, was a small section of Jerusalem Road just beyond Wadleigh Park (at the intersection of Forest Avenue and Jerusalem Road). This section of paving was paid out of the remainder of funds that the state allocates to us for road maintenance.

Perhaps the most difficult decision that we had to make was to not start the paving on the section of Jerusalem from the ocean to North Main Street, especially in light of the fact that we had spoken many times about completing all of the Little Harbor paving this year. However, the construction project at the base of Jerusalem Lane took such a long time to get started; that when it was completed there was just not enough time to get the Jerusalem Road paving finished. Had we started the paving preparations and had a snowfall, the town would not be able to plow the road. This could create very hazardous driving conditions for our residents and especially for the safety forces. Our paving contractor has assured us that we will be a very high priority on their list of paving jobs in 2011 and should be ground and paved in the spring.

Update on other projects

Let's spend a few paragraphs updating the status of the major projects we have been working on this past year.

Meetinghouse Pond — The Meetinghouse Pond reconstruction is nearly complete. If you drive by you can see what a nice looking job our contractor, Dandel Construction, has done. The contractor's storage shed is gone and the Common area he used for equipment access has been repaired, although it may need a bit of touching up next spring. The perimeter fence should be removed shortly. National Grid connected the electrical power to the newly installed power panel at the base of the power pole adjacent to the pond this past Wednesday. Even the tree inside of the compound has its lights shining brightly. Things will be back to normal as soon as the weather lets us complete compaction of the pond bottom clay so the pond can be filed for skating. Unfortunately this work is very weather dependent.

Jacobs Meadow Outfall — We'd like to end this report on a high note. This past Monday, we actually "broke ground" and started construction on this very important project. To refresh your memory, this project is intended to address several major issues associated with Jacobs Meadow. (Jacobs Meadow is the tidal salt marsh area surrounded by Elm Street, Summer Street, South Main Street and Brook Street.) This marsh tidally exchanges water via a channel adjacent to the Legion Building on Summer Street. Over the years this channel, originally of stone construction and later reinforced with a thin coat of concrete has begun to collapse. In addition to this channel supplying salt water to the marsh, it also allows storm water from a large portion of the Town to drain to the harbor.

If this channel were to totally collapse storm water would just build up in the Meadow and cause major flooding of the surrounding properties. In addition, the health of the salt marsh would be further compromised for lack of salt water. So, this is really a vital project and it has been strongly supported by residents, the Town and permitting agencies, both state and federal. We were fortunate enough to receive a grant from the Commonwealth in the amount of $450,000, which should cover the vast majority of the costs. What's not to like about that?

This past week, construction was started on the harbor-side construction. This will ultimately replace the three tide gates with a single vertical sluice gate that is fully controllable. Unlike today, we will have full control over how much water we can allow to drain out of the meadow and how much salt water we can allow back into the meadow. Of course, these flows are also controlled by the tides. But, we will be able to maximize both inflows and outflows, to the extent that the tides allow. The photo shows large sandbags about be placed in the harbor at the edge of the construction site to help control the tide. This will extend the amount of time the contractor can work on the floor of the harbor before the incoming tide will flow into his work area.

A second portion of the project will be to replace the collapsing channel with a larger smooth precast concrete channel. Between the change in gate structures and the larger channel, the engineers estimate that the peak water flows could be as much as 300 percent greater. This will be especially important to get rid of storm water during large rain events such as the Mother's Day storm in 2006. Those of you who were around in 2006 may remember that caused extensive property damage to some of the adjacent properties.

Well we've used many more words than normal in this update, but this will be our last column for a while. We will be taking our winter hiatus like we did last year. We'll catch up with you in the spring. We really appreciate your kind words and hope you continue to find our missives informative and useful. And, the Greenbush Guys wish you Happy Holiday Greetings and a very Happy New Year!

The 'Golden Age' of Maya civilization

FAMOUS BIRTHDAYS

MARY KENNEDY

We are from the land of Maia…

In 1502 Columbus recorded these words spoken by natives in a canoe off the coast of Honduras.

The first temple builders in the Americas, the Maya chewed gum, admired cross-eyed women, filed their front teeth needle sharp and wore jade ornaments in their ears, lips, and nostrils.

Their priests were astronomers and mathematicians who discovered the concept of zero centuries before the Europeans; used whole numbers to more than a billion; and could probe, mathematically, 90 million years into the past. They were predicting eclipses of the sun and moon at a time when Europeans feared such events as punishment from God.

No other people in history were more obsessed with time, or, more specifically, the passage of time, which they devoutly recorded on stone slabs and the walls of tombs. The calendar they devised is more accurate than the one we use today. Their concept of time was cyclical rather than linear (like ours). They concluded that time has no end, and that history repeats itself. In fact, they believed that the world had been created five times and destroyed four times, the last by a flood that left few survivors.

Theirs was a civilization with a sophisticated system of reservoirs and irrigation. Roads were paved with stucco or cement and raised above ground, two to four feet in some places. Evidence exists that highways connected their great urban centers. Chichén Itzá, a major regional capital, was the most powerful city in Yucatan, Mexico, around the tenth century. The temple pyramid and surrounding area, once the city's center of worship, today a UNESCO World Heritage site, are also one of the New Seven Wonders of the World.

The "Golden Age" of Maya civilization lasted some 600 years (about 300 to 900 CE). Unlike the Aztecs of central Mexico, the Maya have maintained their cultural identity, language, customs, for over 3700 years. And yet, we know so little about their early civilization. What did they call themselves? Where were they from? What was their system of government? What caused their "melting away" as some archaeologists call it? Why did their great centers disappear into jungle obscurity more than 500 years before Columbus arrived? Did the Maya, asked one archaeologist, "excel in the impractical, but fail in the practical?"

COURTESY PHOTO

Chichén Itzá: Yucatan, Mexico.

No other people in history were more obsessed with time, or, more specifically, the passage of time…

The answers were all in their books, the accumulated knowledge of hundreds of years, meticulously documented on deerskin or tree bark, folded like screens. These books were carefully preserved by the Maya, for they held information on agriculture, astronomy, the dramas of their past, the prophecies for the future. Once numbering in the 1000s, only three books remain today, each carefully preserved in a museum in Madrid, Paris, and Dresden. They reveal much about astronomy, rituals, mathematical computations, but nothing of historical occurrences. And what of all the other books?

One day in 1562, Spanish Bishop Diego de Landa, full of the fervor of the Inquisition, wrote in his journal about the Maya codices: "As they contained nothing but lies and superstitions of the Devil, we burned them all." He also mentioned, the outraged priest, that the destruction caused the Indians "some great affliction and they wept for hours."

And what of all the dire predictions about the "end of civilization" on December 21, 2012? Not to worry. Astronomers tells us that during the winter solstice in 2012, the sun will be aligned with the center of the Milky Way for the first time in 26,000 years. Certainly, a major astronomical event. According to the Maya prophecy, however, 12/21/12 will signal not the end of civilization but a time of transition from one world age into another. It's as much about beginnings as endings. What more can we do than wait – and speculate?

Circulating theories on newspapers

FOR THE RECORD

GREGORY MATHIS

We have a pretty good idea what you're looking at on our websites. Not to scare you, but our analytics tell us what stories are getting the most page views, how long people are staying on our websites, what Web browser they're using, and even the state or country they're from.

Don't worry. It's not exactly "Big Brother," but it does provide us with valuable information about what we should be focusing on when it comes to our Wicked Local sites.

The bottom line – and it shouldn't come as much of a surprise – is cop news is tops. Car accidents, drug busts, fires, any kind of arrest, gets a lot of attention. While the media often get chastised for "only" reporting the bad news, the truth is, people are mostly interested in the bad news. Call it human nature, or maybe it's just a heightened sense of curiosity.

As we learn more and more about what makes our websites tick – or click, in this case – it's seems we know less and less about what our readers are looking for in our newspapers.

We do know our circulation figures continue to decline in some of our papers and we're pretty convinced some of the dip has to do with how robust our websites have become. But we know it's not the only reason. While we have specific data to help us guide our online strategy, we have a lot of veteran newspaper people sitting around our newsrooms making best guesstimates as to what we think our print readers want.

So I ask you, … what makes you want to read a newspaper?

Here are some observations that may or may not be right, or maybe partially correct.

• It's a generation thing. You don't need market research to understand that the older you are, the more likely you are to read a newspaper. The younger generation has grown up with the Internet and has no idea what life was like before computers and Smartphones.

• It's still pretty cool to clip something out of the newspaper and place it on the refrigerator or in a scrapbook. It's hard to gather up 10 or 12 photos from an online photo gallery and piece it together like we can with a photo spread in the newspaper. Our newspapers are filled with that type of content each week.

• You can take more time with a newspaper, especially a weekly community newspaper. We tend to have short attention spans when surfing the Web. A newspaper can sit around a house for several days, allowing readers to take their time with the important stories or the longer features. And it gives everyone in the household a chance to have their turn with the newspaper.

• The newspaper is a neatly packaged collection of what you may have already seen on our websites. Or in some cases it could help you catch up on something you may have missed. We're so focused on multiple posts each day, there's a chance you may have missed something important. Regardless, the bits and pieces of the week's news that have appeared on the website can be packaged in a more orderly fashion in print. And going back to the previous point, you can spend more time with the news you're most interested in.

So those are a few theories as to what makes community newspapers important in this age of technology. I'd like to hear from you, though. Why do you read the newspaper? Or more importantly, perhaps, why have you stopped reading newspapers?

You can e-mail your responses to gmathis@cnc.com, or go to my For the Record blog, http://blogs.wickedlocal.com/fortherecord/, and post a comment. I look forward to hearing what you have to say.

Next Chapter offers Bloggy Boot Camp

By Marylou Lawrence
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

"If you can write a word document, then you can blog," said Diane Danielson about the prerequisites for her upcoming Next Chapter workshop, Blogging for Business, at the Paul Pratt Memorial Library on Tuesday, Jan. 5, at 10:30 a.m.

This workshop is tailored for all newcomers to the blogosphere, a place that gives voice to anyone who wants to engage in authentic conversation. Danielson will begin with the basics of what constitutes a blog. She will then explore issues such as why and how individuals and businesses use blogs, what makes a successful blog, and how blog writing differs from other types of writing. Ultimately, participants will learn how to create a blog and grow its readership.

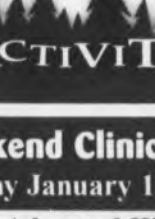
In a recent article she wrote for Forbes.com, Danielson extolled a group of bloggers who understands the potential of a blog's power and uses it – "Mommy Bloggers." "It's not just businesses that use blogging to reach customers," said Danielson. "Parents are using blogs to advocate for safety standards, share parenting concerns, review products, and some are even making money to help tide their families through the recession."

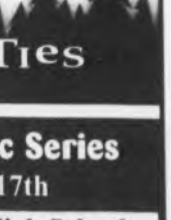
Danielsor, works with public figures, individuals and traditional businesses (retail, real estate, consultants and authors) to find their voice and build online markets for their businesses.

Danielson will begin with the basics of what constitutes a blog.

For the individual, blogging is a powerful tool that can be used to create community awareness, to connect with others about mutual interests, to promote what we care about and change what doesn't work.

In "Julie and Julia," Nora Ephron's recent film about Julia Childs, Julia says in 1950s Paris, "I could write a book. I can cook." Julie says in 2002 New York, "I could write a blog. I have thoughts." So, if you have thoughts to blog, mark Jan. 5 on your calendar, and come to the library to attend Danielson's workshop.





For more information about Danielson, visit www.dianedanielson.com. For more Next Chapter information, call the library at 781-383-1348; visit www.cohassetlibrary.org, join the library on www.facebook.com/cohassetlibrary, or follow the library on www.twitter.com/Cohassetlibrary.

Next Chapter is funded by grants from the Social Service League of Cohasset and by a federal Institute of Museum and Library Services grant awarded by the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

By Bob Katzen
bob@beaconhillrollcall.com
December 10, 2010

QUESTIONS

	Senator Robert L. Hedlund (R-Weymouth) (617) 722-1646 Room 413F	Representative Garrett J. Bradley (D-Hingham) (617) 722-2120 Room 472

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week. The 2009-2010 legislative session is winding down and ends in early January. This week, Beacon Hill Roll Call begins a series of reports highlighting legislation approved by the House and the Senate and signed into law by Gov. Deval Patrick in the 2009-2010 session.
PENSION SYSTEM CHANGES (S 2079)
House 150-0, Senate 40-0, approved and Gov. Patrick signed into law the conference committee version of a bill making changes in the state's pension system. The House and Senate had originally approved different versions of the measure. The committee resolved many differences including adopting the Senate version which applies the changes to current and future workers. The House version was more limited and applied only to future employees.
Other provisions include prohibiting elected local officials from counting toward their pensions any year in which they were paid less than $5,000; eliminating a current policy that allows elected officials to claim a "termination allowance" that increases their pensions if they are not re-elected; raising from six to ten the number of years elected officials must serve before being vested in the state's pension system; prohibiting housing, car and travel allowances from being used to boost a pension; and eliminating a current policy that allows elected officials to add an entire year of "service" to their pension calculations even if they only worked one day that calendar year. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill.)	Y	Y
CHANGES TO ETHICS, LOBBYING AND CAMPAIGN FINANCE LAWS (H 4133)
House 157-0, Senate 40-0, approved and Gov. Patrick signed into law a proposal making changes in the state's ethics, lobbying and campaign finance laws. The measure bans all gifts to public officials and makes it a civil violation for gifts up to $1,000 and a felony for gifts of more than $1,000; increases the penalty for bribery from $5,000 and/or three years in prison to $100,000 and/or 10 years in prison; increases the penalty on all ethics law violations from $2,000 to $10,000 per violation; and raises the penalty for violating lobbying laws from up to a $5,000 fine to a $10,000 fine and/or a five-year prison sentence.	Y	Y
Other provisions require that all bribes be subject to the state income tax in order to give prosecutors another avenue to go after corrupt public officials; prohibit the use of campaign funds for payment of fines levied for ethical violations; prohibit the name of a candidate from appearing on a state ballot if a civil action has been initiated against him or her for failure to file reports or statements; and give the Secretary of State subpoena power. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill.)
EDUCATION SYSTEM CHANGES (S 2247)
House 98-47, Senate 23-12, approved and Gov. Patrick signed into law a lengthy and complicated measure making changes to the state's education system including implementing mechanisms designed to improve underperforming schools.
The bill creates Innovation Schools that are district schools with increased autonomy and flexibility to operate. It raises the state's spending cap for charter schools from 9 percent to 18 percent of new school spending in the lowest 10 percent of performing districts and eliminates the cap that limits the state's total charter school population to 4 percent.	N	Y
Other provisions require all public high schools to include a mandatory course on the correct use, display and etiquette relating to the American flag and allow the Education Department to designate up to 72 schools as "underperforming." These schools would be targeted for aggressive intervention including making it easier to dismiss and replace poor teachers and administrators and to reopen and amend collective bargaining agreements. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill. A "No" vote is against the bill.)
CHANGE CORI AND SENTENCING LAWS (S 2583)
House 131-22, Senate 30-9, approved and Gov. Patrick signed into law the bill making changes in the state's Criminal Offender Record Information (CORI) and mandatory sentencing laws.
The measure allows certain entities access to CORI information on felony convictions for ten years after the offender's release from jail and on misdemeanor charges for five years. Currently, records are sealed after 15 years for felonies and ten years on misdemeanors. Under the bill, murderers and Level 1 and Level 2 sex offenders would be permanently ineligible for sealing. Another provision would prohibit employers from asking on initial job applications whether an applicant has been arrested or convicted. The bill retains the right of employers to ask about an applicant's criminal history, but delays this inquiry to ensure that applicants are considered for their qualifications before being screened for a criminal record.	Y	Y
The measure allows some non-violent offenders serving mandatory minimum sentences for drug-related crimes to be eligible for parole upon serving one-half of their sentences in a house of corrections. Other provisions add certain illegal gun possession charges to the list of crimes for which a prosecutor may move for pre-trial detention based on dangerousness and prohibit convicted sex offenders from working as ice cream truck vendors. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill. A "No" vote is against the bill.)
STOP SCHOOL BULLYING (S 2404)
House 159-0, Senate 37-0, approved and Gov. Patrick signed into law legislation requiring all public and private schools to develop and implement a plan to prevent bullying from occurring and to discipline bullies. The measure prohibits bullying on school grounds, at any school-sponsored event or activity on or off campus, through the use of the school's computer system while on or off campus and through the use of any personal digital device on campus and in any non-school related situations if the bullying affects the school environment or creates a hostile environment at school for the victim. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill.)	Y	Y
FREEZE UNEMPLOYMENT TAX (H 4470)
House 152-0, Senate 35-0, approved and Gov. Patrick signed into law a proposal freezing the unemployment insurance tax paid by employers at the 2009 level through 2010 instead of allowing a scheduled increase to take effect. The payments go into a fund that provides benefits to laid-off workers.
The contribution that employers pay into the fund was scheduled to rise dramatically because of the increasing number of laid-off workers collecting unemployment benefits.	Y	Y
The average 2009 employer contribution into the fund was $584 per employee. Without this freeze, the 2010 per-employee assessment would have jumped to an estimated $852. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill.)
ALLOW CITY OF LAWRENCE TO BORROW $35 MILLION (H 4516)
House 101-49, Senate 31-4, approved and Gov. Patrick signed into law legislation authorizing the city of Lawrence to borrow up to $35 million to help solve its fiscal crisis. The measure calls for a fiscal overseer to develop a three-year operating and capital financial plan. The overseer could also determine at any time that the city cannot balance its budget, at which point the state would remove the overseer and install a more powerful financial control board with broader powers.	N	Y
APPROVE MUNICIPAL MANAGEMENT BILL (H 4877)
House 137-15, Senate 32-6, approved and Gov. Patrick signed into law a measure that would give cities and towns more management flexibility and options.
Provisions include extending the pension funding schedule for municipalities from 2030 to 2040; allowing cities and towns to lease public buildings for up to 30 years instead of up to 10 years; establishing a statewide mutual aid agreement to allow municipalities to share fire, police and other emergency services in the case of a public safety or public works incident; allowing cities and towns to reduce the current 8 percent interest rate that must be paid on any property tax deferrals based on financial hardships; creating an optional early retirement program for city and town workers; and giving local communities the option to use electronic billing of taxpayers and to implement a tax amnesty program.	N	Y
(A "Yes" vote is for the bill. A "No" vote is against the bill.)
NATIONAL POPULAR VOTE (H 4156)
House 116-34, Senate 28-9, approved and Gov. Patrick signed into law a bill that would make Massachusetts a member of the Agreement Among the States to Elect the President by National Popular Vote. The agreement would require states that join the pact to cast all of their electoral votes for the presidential candidate who wins a majority of the national popular vote in all 50 states and the District of Columbia. The pact would become effective when states representing at least 270 electoral votes - a majority of the 538-vote Electoral College - join this compact. States currently have a number of electoral votes equal to the number of senators and representatives that the state has in Congress. This endeavor is led by Fair Vote, a national group that says Hawaii, Illinois, Maryland and New Jersey, with a total of 50 electoral votes, have already joined the agreement.	N	Y
(A "Yes" vote is for the bill making Massachusetts a member of the pact. A "No" vote is against the bill.)
AUTO INSURANCE APPEALS BOARD (S 2022)
Senate 39-0, House 156-0, approved and Gov. Patrick signed into law a measure establishing a board that hears appeals from drivers who are found more than 50 percent at fault in accidents. These drivers lose safe driver points and pay an insurance surcharge unless their appeal is successful. The board already exists under a state regulation but the amendment would make the board permanent by putting it into state law. Former Insurance Commissioner Nonnie Burnes earlier had announced plans to scrap the board and replace it with an alternative means of addressing at-fault accidents. Following an outcry from legislators and the public, Burnes changed her mind and left the board intact.	Y	Y

Sensible holiday food habits

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Don't let exercise take a break during the holidays. A 20-minute brisk walk after a meal can help burn off excess calories.

Perhaps a few useful hints about eating can enhance the character of your holiday season. Moderate indulgence will help you enjoy the time. It's not always easy to practice forbearance during the holidays and not even usually necessary. Don't deny yourself the foods you enjoy, but be sensible and don't focus on the buffet as being your entire meal.

Before you leave home, have a small, low-fat meal or snack to help you avoid overindulging. Since spicy foods seem to quiet the appetite better than blander ones, look for items that give your taste buds a zing.

Control portions: Skip the large platters that may encourage you to "load up." You should be most comfortable eating an amount of food about the size of your fist. Avoid a "tasting" serving. Doing so will make it less tempting to be eating constantly as your appetite is stimulated by the sight of food.

Eat slowly and savor: Eating may be a time for tasting or sampling a range of foods. Eat at a leisurely pace.

Fill up beforehand on water-based soup and raw fruit or vegetables. Dip raw vegetables and fruit in a yogurt dressing rather than cream and cheese sauces.

Drink a large glass of water before you eat to help you feel full.

Count the calories in alcohol. Research shows that alcohol is fattening because of its calories and how it interferes with the body's process of burning fat.

If you have a sweet tooth, try mints, hard candies and fruits. They don't have the fat content of creamy desserts and chocolate.

Avoid high-fat foods. Dishes that look oily or creamy may have a generous amount of fat. Choose lean meats like turkey or roast beef. Substitute mustard for mayonnaise on sandwiches and save 50-75 fat calories. Sample or ignore pates and cheeses. Fill your plate with salad and green vegetables. Use lemon juice instead of dressing or butter.

Maintain physical activity. Don't let exercise take a break during the holidays. A 20-minute brisk walk after a meal can help burn off excess calories.

Don't transmit germs; clean your hands often. When available, wash your hands – with soap and warm water – then rub your hands vigorously together and scrub all surfaces. Wash for 15 to 20 seconds. The soap combined with the scrubbing action helps dislodge and remove germs. When soap and water are not available, use alcohol-based disposable hand wipes or gel sanitizers found in most supermarkets and drugstores. If using a gel, rub it into your hands until they are dry. The gel doesn't need water to work; alcohol in the gel kills germs that cause colds and flu.

Avoid close contact and stay home if you're sick.

Avoid touching your eyes, nose or mouth. Germs are often spread when a person touches something contaminated with germs, then touches their eyes, nose or mouth. Germs can live for a long time (some can live for 2 hours or more) on surfaces like doorknobs, desks and tables.

Practice other good health habits. Be physically active, manage your stress, drink plenty of fluids and eat nutritious food. Practicing healthy habits will help you stay healthy all year long.

Participate in all decisions about your general health and its treatment. You are in charge, so have a healthy happy holiday.

• Another important point is the recent Town funding for the most recent Cat Dam analysis. This last expenditure was initiated by the same handful of dissenting neighbors, rather than as a result of a substantial neighborhood's request. I am concerned by the fact that opinions intimated in print suggest that the Town, having expended such a relatively high sum, should get satisfaction for its money. This is a fallacy in logic. In return for its expenditure, the Town is entitled to receive a report. The evaluation of the respective merit of such a report must lie with the experts, who should adjudicate whether the said report allows implementation. It is not an automatic charge for blind acceptance so as not to have "wasted" people's money.

Political expediency or personal proclivity has no place in this important deliberation. Therefore I urgently request that the Board of Selectmen consider their individual vote in this matter on the strict merit of comprehensive data, closely studied, expertly evaluated, and weighed by implicit fairness.

Anny Newman, PhD, lives at 26 Little Harbor Road.

Memorial service for retired Fire Chief Piepenbrink

It is with deep regret and sorrow that the Town of Cohasset Fire Department announces the death of retired Chief Charles Piepenbrink. Chief Piepenbrink died Saturday, Oct. 16, 2010, at Citrus Memorial Hospital in Inverness, Fla.

Chief Piepenbrink joined the Department as a Firefighter in 1948 and retired as Chief of the Department in 1982. Chief Piepenbrink served as Chief of Department for 28 of the 34 years he was with the department.

A memorial service for Chief Piepenbrink will be held at Cohasset Fire Department Headquarters, 44 Elm St., Cohasset Saturday, Dec. 18, commencing at noon.

All who wish to celebrate his life are welcome to attend.

Cards and letters may be sent to Chief Piepenbrink's family care of James Piepenbrink, 25 Greenleaf St., Amesbury, MA 01913.

Selectmen look at costs to run RTF

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

"I don't think we should be making a profit, but we should be covering our costs."
— Selectman Leland Jenkins

Is the Recycling Transfer Facility covering its cost? And if not, should it?

This was one of the key questions on the table Monday night as the Selectmen continued their discussion on the potentially raising the facility fee.

The facility fee permits resident access to the recycling transfer facility as well as parking at Sandy Beach, Government Island and Lightkeeper's Residence.

Selectman Leland Jenkins has requested a cost/revenue breakdown of the recycling transfer facility at the last discussion of the topic in November.

The total cost to operate the RTF is $641,000. The town collects about $351,000 in revenue related to the RTF (facility fee, blue bags, recycling, bulk waste). That means approximately $290,000 of the cost to operate the RTF is covered by funds from the operating budget.

"I don't think we should be making a profit, but we should be covering our costs," Jenkins said. In particular, he said, the fees for bulk waste removal should match the associated cost. For example, residents looking to get rid of a refrigerator must pay $10, but is the cost to deal with the removal actually $10?

Jenkins said he would like to reconvene the recycling committee to take a close look at the RTF fees to ensure they are in line with the cost.

"I want to know what is the real cost of each process," Jenkins said.

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley said they should also look at the fees in comparison to other local towns. She said the issue might fall under the budget planning group's charge.

Quigley said there was a big picture issue as well that came down to two central questions: to what extent should revenues come from fees and how much should a resident reasonably expect to receive through property taxes. Jenkins also suggested the town move toward a no cash exchange system and install credit card machines at the RTF and town hall.

"Any well run town does not accept cash," Jenkins said.

The Budget Planning Group's recommendation to increase the town's facility fee by $10 across the board (for both seniors and all residents) will be referred back to the committee for further review.

"I think the whole thing needs to be looked at," Jenkins said.

NAME: Cooper Davis
SCHOOL: Scituate
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Sweeper
STATS: Davis scored the tying goal in Scituate's playoff game against Milton, but more importantly, was Scituate's MVP and a huge reason the Sailors only allowed 18 goals all season.

NAME: Justin Gardner
SCHOOL: Hanover
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Defense
STATS: Gardner was a leader for Hanover's dominating defense.

NAME: Tom Koch
SCHOOL: Norwell
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Keeper
STATS: Arguably the best keeper on the South Shore, Koch, a South Shore League all-star finished the year with a career-high and league best 11 shutouts. He allowed one goal or less 18 times in Norwell's 19 games.

NAME: Zak Stuart
SCHOOL: Weymouth
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Stuart is the epitome of team player for the Wildcats, playing any position on the squad where he was need. As a junior, he earned All-BSC honors as a goaltender. This year Weymouth needed more scoring up front and he moved to forward and earned BSC All-Star honors at that position.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

A new campaign

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

The Cohasset girls basketball team has had a lot of success over the past few seasons, including two state championships in three years.

For the 2010-11 team, those titles are nice, but not something to think about this year.

The Skippers won their opening game against Hull 66-59 on Tuesday night, to start the season on the right track, but this team does have something in common with previous groups - work ethic and a desire to constantly improve.

"We scored 66 last night, but the defense gave up more than we're used to," Cohasset coach John LeVangie said. "Hull is always tough. We were up 15 with 1:20 left to play. They played us tough."

The 59 points allowed led to a serious practice on Wednesday.

"The girls work really hard in practice," he said. "Today they worked exceptionally hard. We went two-and-a-half hours. The work is something that comes from the seniors. I have real good senior leadership. The seniors catch the concept from the kids before them, and the others pick that up."

Cohasset lost three star players from last year's squad, in Tori Lehr, Meredith Kelly and Samantha Crough.

All three are playing college basketball this year and all are faring very well.

No matter. The new group is ready to pick up.

This year's seniors are tri-captains Carli Haggerty, Lindsey Davis and Rachel Fredey.

All three started on last year's title team.

"Carli is an excellent inside player," LeVangie said. "She's my center, but she can also handle the ball. She has a good inside game."

Haggerty is a complete athlete.

ATHLETE OF THE MONTH

★★★ Anna Serakis ★★★

"She is by far our toughest player on the field and her position is one that demands fitness, strength and patience. Her performance in our league games earned her a spot on the South Shore League All Star Team this fall. I am very pleased she will be returning next fall ready to carry on a much larger role on this team." - Coach Deb Beal

PHOTO CREDIT

Anna is a competitior and rarely veers off track. She is a smart player who understands her role as the last defender. She played big when the team needed it and just did her job when that was what was needed. Her consistency on the defensive end was a big reason Cohasset won three tournament games and made the Div. 3 semifinals.

YEAR: Junior

OTHER SPORTS: Basketball, lacrosse

BEST GAME: Anna didn't have one standout game. It was her consistency and steadiness that was her greatest asset, according to coach Deb Beal.

Opening night victory

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

Robert Jones scored 31 points and Sam Richardson chipped in 15 as the Cohasset boys basketball team beat Hull 70-42 in the season opener for the Skippers.

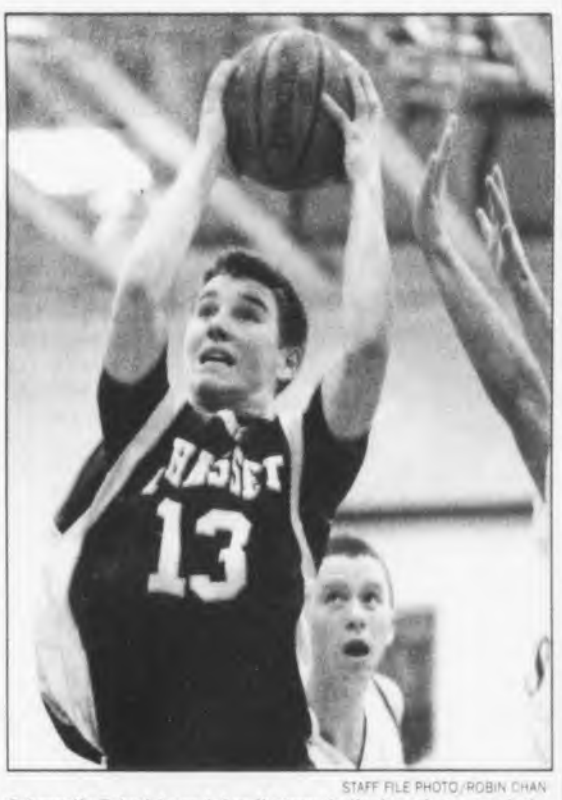
Jones, who was mentioned in a story in the Cohasset Mariner last week about the school's all-time great players, notched 14 points from the floor to go with four three pointers and a perfect five-of-five from the free throw line.

"He's a two-time South Shore League all-star," Cohasset coach Bo Ruggiero said of Jones. "He played a terrific game."

Hull opened the game with an 8-1 run before Cohasset picked up the pace.

"We started to get fast breaks. Shane (Haggerty) had a deuce and a three and we got right back," Ruggiero said. "The press took effect."

Cohasset ended the first quarter with a 21-13 lead and upped it to 42-23 at the half.



"We got a tempo going in the first half," Ruggiero said. "The tempo was in our favor. I was pleased with that. In the second half it started somewhat sloppy. They outscored us 8-5 in the third quarter. Then we exploded in the first three minutes of the fourth period."

Six players scored for the Skippers and all 12 players got in the game, including Cohasset's four freshmen.

The Skippers got five points from Haggerty and Chris Murphy added six.

Freshman Joe Buckley added three points for Cohasset.

Skippers pin one on B.C. High

By Matt Brooks
SPECIAL TO THE COHASSET MARINER

The Cohasset Wrestling team faced down B.C. High this Wednesday and were victorious with a 38-27 win at Cohasset .

The match started at the 125-lb weight class, and the agile and skilled captain Gus Helbock (Jr.) won by major decision to score Cohasset early points. Two unfortunate losses followed, but 140-lb Graiden Foley (Jr.) was able to pin his opponent in the first period and the Skippers were back on board.

Cohasset faltered again and B.C. High gained a strong upper hand, but 160-lb captain Justin Yeager (Sr.), with stalwart posture, danced around the mat (as well as his opponent) and used his raw strength to drive his opponent down, coming within an inch of a pin, but was unable to touch shoulder-blade to mat. During that match, Anders Goetz, a senior soccer and hockey standout at Cohasset High School was in the room.

"Justin is a tank," Goetz said

Everything lining up

The opening game for the Cohasset boys hockey team didn't go as well as some may have planned, a loss to Div. 2 power Mansfield, but in the long run the game could have been a game that helps the Skippers down the line.

Coach Bob Walsh said one game wasn't nearly enough to press the panic button. He certainly wasn't.

"One of the reasons I booked them for the first game is because they're a good division 2 team," Walsh said. "If you win that game, it can be a big boost, but if you lose, you can see a lot of things you need to work on and you learn from good competition."

That said, Walsh found positive in the game and is excited about what his team can do this year.

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse hosting open houses

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse (CYL) will be holding the first of two open houses this Sunday December 19, to provide information about the boys lacrosse program in spring 2011.

The second open house will be on January 16.

These information sessions will be held at the Cohasset High School cafeteria from 10:30am-1pm. Coaches and Board members will be available to discuss some exciting improvements we will be implementing in 2011.

Parents and players of boys in grades 3rd through 8th grade are welcome, so please take a few moments to stop by and see us.

Please direct questions/ comments to Chris Arnold, coarnold@comcast.net and Joe Fitzgerald, fitzpj8@aol.com.

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse registration open

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse will open its on-line registration for the Spring 2011 season December 1.

To register go to our website www.cohassetlacrosse.com and click on the registration link.

Registrations will be accepted for both boys and girls in grades three through eight. All youth players are welcome, regardless of experience.

Details for players in first and second grade will be coming out shortly.

Registration will continue until January 31.

The program is committed to accepting every player who signs up during open registration. Once that sign-up period is completed the program will establish its ideal roster sizes and take late registrants on a first-come, first-served basis only until the rosters are filled. At that point a waiting list will be established, or players may be turned away.

Fees for grades 3-8 in 2011 are $170 per player, with family pricing of $140 for each additional family member. The price includes the field fee of $10 per player that the town charges to CYL. Scholarships are available for families facing unusual circumstances or financial difficulty. Please check the appropriate box on the on-line form.

If you have any issues with on-line access, or registration related questions you may contact Joe Fitzgerald at fitzpj8@aol.com.

Cohasset's Nestel reaches finals at Scottsdale

Teaming with Jesse Ponwith (Phoenix, AZ) in Scottsdale Arizona at the Fiesta Bowl, Cohasset's John Nestal reached his first National Tournament Tennis Finals at age 43.

"I worked hard to get in shape this year and put in my best effort and was happy to reach the finals at the last national tournament of the year," Nestal said. "At 43 it is difficult to keep up with players 8-9 years younger and I will look forward to playing in 45's in another year."

Nestel who has endured ankle, shoulder, knee and back surgeries will reach No. 1 in the New England Men's 35's Final Rankings 2010 and is the highest nationally ranked New England 35's player cracking the top 15 National Singles and Doubles ranking.

Nestel is a USPTA/USPTR Tennis Certified Coach and Head Tennis Coach for Thayer Academy and Mount Ida College in Newton, MA.

He played collegiate tennis at Boston College and two years on the ATP Satellite Tour in 1992.

He is also an entrepreneur operating a real estate development business(Peach Properties) for ten years and has returned to tennis coaching over the last few years, coaching the local Grandslammers team.

"It was a great crowd and a good solid effort by Cohasset," Ruggiero said. "Hull played 14 or 15 guys. They never gave up. It was a good all-around basketball game."

The Skippers will look to senior co-captains Jones and Richardson this season to lead the way.

Jones has shown his mettle with two South Shore League All-Star selections and along with being a leader can fill the net and play defense.

Richardson is coming off a soccer season where he dominated for the Skippers, helping lead them to the South Sectional Finals.

That said, soccer coach Jim Willis had said from the start that Richardson's calling was basketball.

At 6-2 with a long arm span, Richardson can create all kinds of trouble on both ends.

They'll have help from Kyrel Jaundoo, a 6-1 junior and 6-3 junior Robbie Mahoney.

Other members of the team are Christian Davis, Connor O'Brien, Rocco Languelle, Chris Haggerty and Mark Rattenbury.

The Skippers are back in action Tuesday when they host East Bridgewater at 6:30 p.m.

Cohasset's Leong helps NDA to hockey win

Cohasset's Elle Leong, a junior at Notre Dame Academy, scored a hat trick to help NDA to a 6-3 win over Auburn in their season opener on Saturday.

Leong knocked in all three of her goals in the first two periods to lead Notre Dame.

NDA was in action Wednesday night at Arlington Catholic.

She recently finished a successful soccer season with big praise from coach Deb Beal.

"Carli Haggerty was in one single word "amazing" for us this fall," Beal said recently. "I knew coming in that Carli would play a large role for us primarily defensively. I never thought her season would progress the way it did. A quadriceps injury early in the season sidelined her quickly, but it also created an opportunity for her that I hope looking back she would not change. She stepped into a difficult role as goalkeeper and took advantage of the opportunity to play. Carli came to preseason more than prepared physically and mentally to be a senior leader, she was ready to do great things. When I recognized that I could not let the opportunity to name her a captain slide by, it was a no brainer decision for me and I am thrilled that the opportunity presented itself. I'm just so happy she embraced her role and went with it. Her attitude and commitment are impressive and merit her all the praise she receives."

Haggerty brings those attributes and ethic to the floor as well.

Davis is a legitimate threat from outside, while Fredey runs the point.

"Lindsey is our quarterback," LeVangie said. "She runs the show."

Once again, Cohasset has size on its side.

Allie Farren is a 6-2 junior forward and Kaye Slamp is also 6-2. Haggerty is 6-0.

"We have good size," LeVangie said. "We have coordinated kids. They still have a lot to learn though. We still have to work on the defense."

Other players who are expected to make an impact are juniors Anna Serakis (our Nov. Athlete of the Month), and Allie Farren.

LeVangie said an undefeated season isn't a thought at the moment, but making the MIAA Div. 4 Tournament is.

The South Shore League is really tough this year," he said. "Rockland just came into the league. Norwell is tough. Hull is strong. Abington is very good. There are no easy games. Almost anyone can win on any night. To go 25-0 would be really difficult. We just want to survive the league. If we do that, playing all the good Div. 3 teams, it will help us in the tournament in Div. 4.

"We don't think about a winning streak. Three of four years ago we won 40 in a row. We only look at the next game. This is a new group of kids. They're 1-0. That's what they look at. They keep their focus on the next game."

That philosophy has worked for the Patriots, and it has worked in Cohasset.

For LeVangie, coaching this group is a joy.

"They're great kids," he said. "They're good students, hard workers, just good kids. It's a unique run we've had here. Not just on the court, but off the court as well. I have fun doing this."

As for the departed players, LeVangie doesn't get to see them play too often, considering some play in Maine and New Hampshire and elsewhere, but he follows their progress.

"That's what the whole thing is about," he said. "To see them moving on and doing well."

Skippers pin one on B.C. High

during that match. "But I can't wait to see Thomas Flibotte."

A tank indeed, Justin won his match by decision, bringing the score to 14-18, B.C. High in the lead. After Chris Brash (Jr.) succumbed to his opponent at the 171-lb weight class, Flibotte, a senior captainstepped onto the mat, ready to live up to Anders' expectations. At 189 lbs of solid muscle, Flibotte, the Cohasset running back and Lacrosse All-Star All-American, is a force to be reckoned with on the mat. His opponent, sporting a shaved head, oak-like legs and biceps like barrels, and certainly looking unfriendly, was no match for Flibotte's ferocity and speed on the mat. T-Bone, as all call him, went on to win by pin, ducking underneath the adversary and twisting him to his back, leaving the score at 20- 24.

Jack McEllegun (Fr.) took a forfeit at 215 lbs, and Cohasset took the lead, 26-24. There were only a few matches left, and tension was high. As captain Alex Kinnealey (Sr.) battled his opposition at heavy-weight (285+, coaches and wrestlers alike were sitting on the edge of their seats, shouting advice and encouragement, filling the gymnasium with a chorus of hoots and hollers, whistles and well-done's, aw's and oh no's. The crowd would erupt into a symphony of fanatic satisfaction when one wrestler gained the advantage, and cringe together at some of the more brutal wrestling moves being used. Kinnealey won by pin in the second period, ensuring Cohasset's lead.

At 103 lbs, Harry Helbock (Fr.) grappled as Coach shouted to get his attention, hollering advice like, "Ankles, wrist, ankles; toes and drive!" A loss for Helbock by one point brought B.C. High three points, but brought the night to its conclusion, following Greg Berube (Soph.) taking a quick forfeit to secure a Cohasset victory.

After the match, Graiden said it was a "good win overall, and hard work pays off." Justin Yeager said he "had a lot of fun," and that "it was a great match, and a lot of kids stepped up." Chris Brash was pleased to mention the "good team enthusiasm."

Head Coach Torin Sweeney was pleased with the meet.

"B.C. High matched up with us really well, and we've always had good matches with them," Sweeney said. "It's been that way for 20 years. It was a great match overall and the B.C. kids wrestled well. There were things that we did well, both on the team and individual level, but there are things that we still need to improve on."

Assistant Coach Peter Buckley had no comment, but he looked pleased.

The Skippers also wrestled against Pembroke, Plymouth North, and Foxboro last Saturday, seizing victory against Plymouth North, tying Foxboro, and losing to Pembroke. Coach Sweeney was also "pleased" with the weekend's results. Cohasset takes on Canton, Marshfield, and Milton this Saturday, December 18.

A fine legacy

POPPIN' OFF

WILLIAM WASSERSUG

Stew Curran coached at Cohasset High School for seven years.

In that time, he coached three teams to state titles, and even after announcing his departure for Thayer Academy, left the program in good shape for another run.

While Will Wise, Dean Driscoll, Jack Murphy, Ian Quinlan and Dana Valentine are gone to graduation, whoever is fortunate enough to get the position will still have the area's top faceoff man in Alex Kinnealey.

Thomas Flibotte, Jack Kissick, Dean and Mitch McNary, Kyle Livingstone are all expected back as is a new goalie who recently moved to town.

"They lose almost 300 points of offense, but they can make that up in different ways," said Curran Wednesday night after checking in on a few of his now former players at a wrestling meet at Cohasset High School. "They still have seven or eight really good middies, good defensemen and a good goalie."

Curran said the team should also benefit from a strong schedule.

"I set it up so they play very good teams," he said. "Ron (athletic director Ron Ford) has always been very supportive and let me schedule who I wanted to play. We have teams like Falmouth and Nobles and Catholic Memorial in the Chowda Cup. That will help the team again when it comes time for the tournament. I think the kids enjoy playing a tougher schedule. Nobody enjoys playing a game where they're out by the half because they're ahead so much."

Curran wasn't planning to leave, but felt the time might be right due to a combination of factors.

"My kids are grown or in college or North Carolina in the Marine Corps," Curran said. "My son Vinnie is a sophomore at Lynchburg and it looks like he's played himself into a position. I didn't get to see my older son play much. With the schedule at Thayer, I have March free so I can take some trips to see him play. At Cohasset we'd be practicing."

Curran also felt the team could use a fresh look.

"I had a sense this fall that the kids needed to hear a different voice," he said. "When you keep hearing the same dog barking you can get tone deaf to the noise. I felt if I were going to leave, it would have to be for a great opportunity. Thayer gave me that. I actually knew about the opening for a while and didn't pursue it. Then I talked to people I knew in the Thayer community and realized it was an attractive offer."

Curran said he originally planned to stay at Cohasset for three or four seasons.

"I went in thinking three, maybe four years," he said. "Then the fourth year came and went and it was a fifth, and another. There was a lot of perspiration on that practice field."

Looking back, he's proud of what he's done in his time with the Skippers.

"We've done some great things," he said. "I won't stroke my ego, but I'm proud of what we've accomplished. It's not me, but we. It's the parents who bring little Johnny to indoor games in four feet of snow. It's the kids who put in the work, youth lacrosse. Everyone who works to make it happen. That's the legacy."

BOYS LACROSSE

Coach Curran leaving Cohasset

By Eric McHugh
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

Stew Curran sees a bright future for the Cohasset High School boys lacrosse program.

Even without him.

Curran, who last spring won his third Division 3 state championship with the Skippers, has left Cohasset to coach at Thayer Academy in Braintree. Curran, a 58-year-old Hull resident, replaces Mike Higgins, who took a job at Trinity College in Hartford.

"It's a great school, right here in everyone's backyard," Curran said of Thayer, which competes in the Independent Schools League. "For a few years it's been been playing pretty good lacrosse, sort of under the radar. The challenge to take them to a top tier in the ISL is something I wanted to take a shot at."

Curran, who spent seven seasons at Cohasset, gave a few other reasons for his move:

Thayer is closer to his full-time job in Weymouth, where he works in sales at Mass Hauling and Capital Paper Recycling.

The shorter ISL season might allow him to catch more of his youngest son's games. Vin, a Cohasset grad, is a sophomore at Lynchburg (Va.) College.

Curran said a change might benefit Cohasset, noting, "After a period of time, sometimes young men respond to different voices better."

Thayer Athletic Director Matt McGuirk said many members of the local lacrosse community gave Curran rave reviews. Among the supporters – McGuirk's own brother, Chris, whose first season as head coach at Norwell last spring ended with a 10-7 loss to Cohasset in the Div. 3 state final at Harvard.

Stew Curran is leaving Cohasset to take over as lacrosse coach at Thayer Academy.

"What Stew brings us is that he's got a great track record for college placement for lacrosse players," Matt McGuirk said. "He also is a big character guy, in terms of teaching great life lessons through sports. A great hire for us. We're really looking forward to having him on board."

Curran called Thayer, which went 8-6 last season (7-5 in the ISL), a "budding power," and Matt McGuirk agreed.

"We've got a lot of great returning players, so it's a great time for Stew to come in," McGuirk said. "We're not in a rebuilding phase."

Neither is Cohasset, which has a wealth of returning talent, even without graduated stars Will Wise and Dean Driscoll. The Skippers were 20-2 last season, and Curran called that team perhaps his deepest ever.

Curran also guided Cohasset to back-to-back state titles in 2006-07 and Div. 3 runner-up finishes in '05 and '08. Since 2007 the Skippers are 68-16.

"Awfully good run," Curran observed. "And as I've said to a couple of people, I don't think the cupboard is bare there. There are five or six Division 1 (college) lacrosse players in the junior and senior classes over there right now that are just champing at the bit to win again. There are some great, great kids in the program.

"That clearly was a (negative about leaving). I'm like, holy mackerel, I'm leaving a potential state title team. But an opportunity like Thayer only comes along every so often."

Curran said his Cohasset players expressed a "little bit of surprise" when he told them he was leaving. "They didn't see it coming," he acknowledged. "A month ago I didn't see it coming. But things started to heat up over the last few weeks."

"It was definitely disappointing because we just came off a state championship," Cohasset senior middie Alex Kinnealey said. "(The players) didn't know why (he was leaving) because we have a really good team coming back. You'd think he'd stay another year to try to win it (again).

"He was a good coach. He really connected with a lot of us. Sometimes he'd come to our houses and check up on us (to make sure we were keeping up with our) off-season (work). He'd come to our wrestling meets or football games to see how we were doing."

Saints march in

By Mark Ducharme
CORRESPONDENT

The Saints will be marching into the South Coastal Hockey League Legends Div. playoffs for the first time on Sunday.

James McNeil scored two goals and assisted on another while Todd Roach had a goal and an assist as the Saints edged the Sharks, 4-3 to clinch the final playoff spot in the Legends Div.

Hanover's Tom Shaughnessy also scored for the Saints, while Jay Faherty scored two goals and Mike Murphy of Hanover had a goal for the Sharks.

The Saints will play the top-seeded Toros at 7:50 p.m. at the Hobomock Arena in Pembroke.

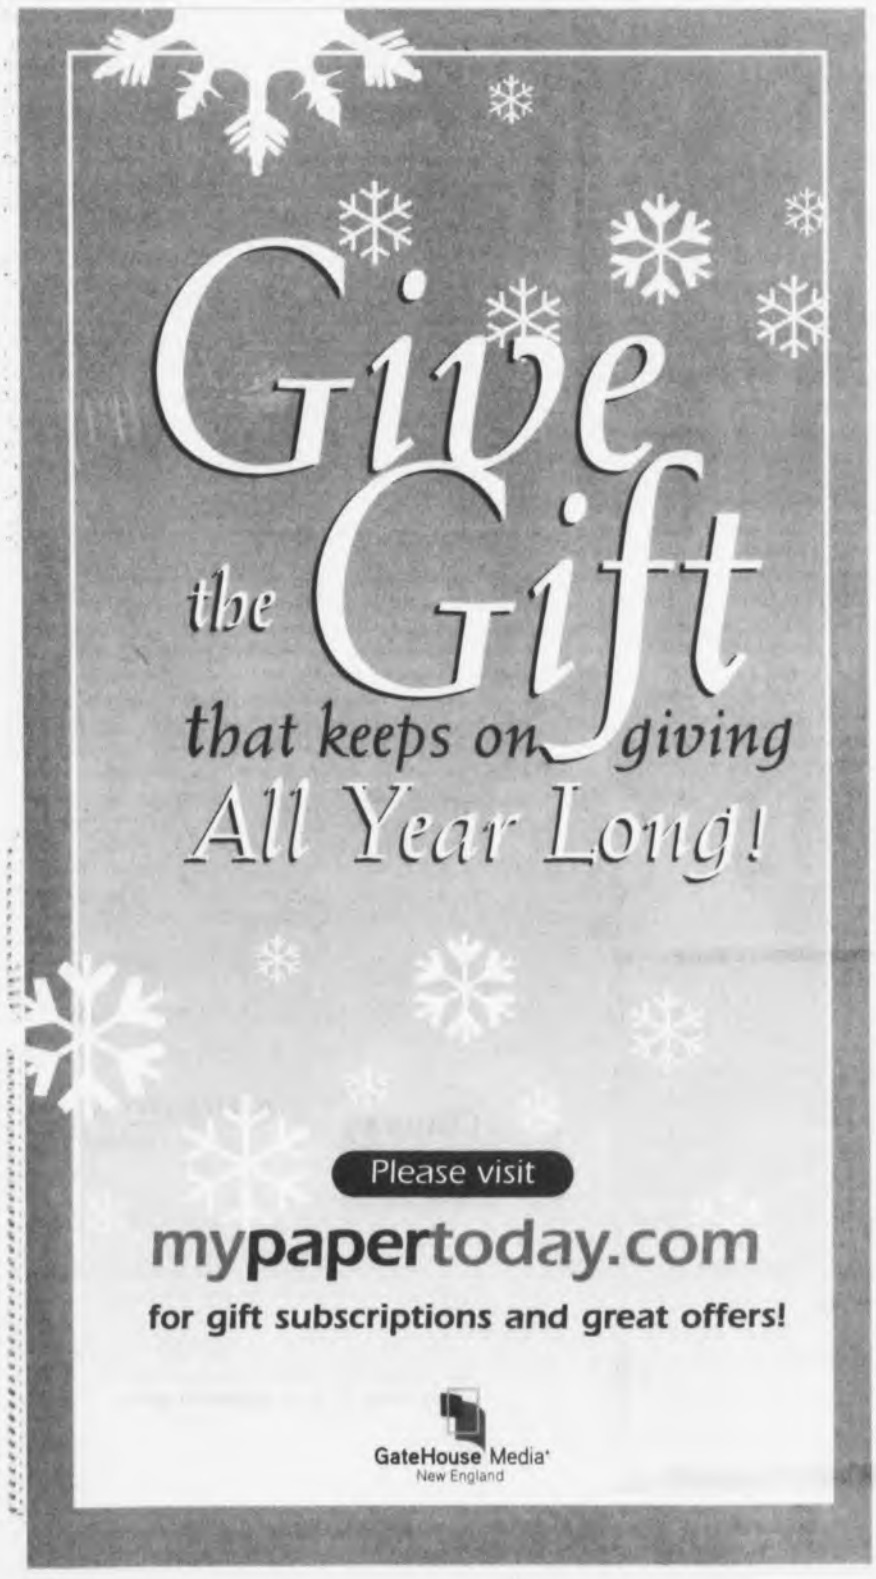
The Toros got a goal and an assist from Brian Murphy of Duxbury in their 4-1 win over the Stingers. Jim Holmes, Ray Degaust and Dennis Yates added a goal each for the Toros.

Pembroke's Peter Tamborella scored for the Stingers.

Skip Tufts and Mike Rober scored a goal and an assisted on another as the Whalers defeated the Crusaders, 4-1 in a Legends Div. win. Norwell's John Maguire and Chuck Morrison of Marshfield added a goal each for the Whalers, who will play the Stingers at 9:40 p.m. at the Hobomock Arena in the other Legends Div. semi final.

Mike Simon scored for the Crusaders in the game.

The Bruins got two goals apiece from Steve Anzuoni and Frank O'Donnell in their 4-1 Classics Div. win over the Canadiens.



Marshfield's Tim McCrystal scored for the Canadiens, who will face the Bruins in the semi finals at 9 p.m. at the Hobomock Arena.

Hanover's Andy Pelly recorded the shutout and Pembroke's Jim Smith scored two goals and Don Studley of Norwell had one goal as the Classics Div. top-seeded Maple Leafs defeated the Rangers, 3-0.

The two teams will meet in the semi finals at 8:30 P.M. at the Hobomock Arena.

Kevin Barnard scored two goals Ron DiCecca of Marshfield added one as the Red Wings hung on for 3-2 Classic Div. win over the Black Hawks.

Duxbury's David Howe and Peter Racicot scored one goal each for the Black Hawks.

Blazers Reffue wheeling and dealing

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

Doug Reffue doesn't have the big budget that the Boston Red Sox or Miami Heat have, but as the president and general manager of the Boston Blazers professional indoor lacrosse team of the National Lacrosse League, he does the same wheeling and dealing to put together a winning team.

This offseason, Reffue has done the same kind of building to bring three of the top players, Casey Powell, Dan Dawson and Josh Sanderson, in the NLL together at the Garden.

That makes Boston the first professional team to have the No.'s 1-3 vote-getters in an MVP race together on one team the next season, along with Anthony Cosmo, one of the top goalies in the league.

After an 8-8 campaign last season that ended with a first round loss in the playoffs, Reffue went right to work, picking up Casey Powell through the dispersal draft from the Orlando Titans.

Powell, the 2010 MVP and the first US-born player to win the award joins the Blazers after recording a career-high 44 goals and 36 assists.

A seven time All-Star, Powell is one of the most acclaimed and recognizable names in the sport and has accumulated a career 567 points (246 goals and 321 assists).

"Casey Powell is from a dynastic family in lacrosse," Reffue said. "He has two brothers who both played. Casey is regarded as the best American player ever."

Reffue was also able to resign Dawson, who has been with the team since 2008 to a two-year deal and traded for Sanderson, sending youngsters Jon Harnett, Kyle Ross, Daryl Veltman, and the Blazers third overall pick in the 2010 entry draft.

Sanderson is a 13-year veteran a six-time All-Pro and the 2009 Champion's Cup Most Valuable Player. He's been in the top 10 in scoring for the last 10 years.

"We've made a couple of big moves," Reffue said. "We sacrificed some youth for experience. We put all the chips on the table. The fans are in for a treat this winter. The New England Lacrosse Journal did some research and they found that we are the first team to have the top three in MVP voting in any sport. It's a crazy lineup"

But unlike the Heat, with LeBron and friends, there was no backlash.

"The players didn't scheme to be together," Reffue said. "But when they found out they were ecstatic. Josh and Dan have both led the league in assists. They're unselfish leaders."

Reffue said there have been some questions and positive feedback as well from others in the game.

"Some say wow, you've put together a powerful team," he said. "Other have said there's only one ball."

Reffue said he and his staff have put in tireless research on who would be the right players to bring in.

It's not just numbers, but geography plays a role.

Players generally average $17,000 a season, but the team also factors in the cost of flying players to and from games.

"Geography makes a difference," Reffue said. "To fly players in and out of locations, you have to have some local American players. The travel budgets are tough. You have to keep things tight. For away game, players fly straight to the game. For some players in Canada we ask them to come to Buffalo to fly. We're at a point where the big four leagues were years ago."

For the players, the salary is nice, but most play for the love of the game.

"Casey works at a private school in Orlando," Reffue said. "He runs a lacrosse program. Dan Dawson is a firefighter in Ontario. Then we have local guys like Jack Reed who's in Hartford and Sean Morris who lives in Boston and is from the South Shore (Marshfield). There's a balance there."

When it comes to the numbers, that's where scouting and stats came into play.

"You need a good mix of righties and lefties," Reffue said. "And we looked at the statistical analysis. The whole concept of statistical analysis is new in the league.It isn't the same as what you see in baseball, but we looked at teams who have won. We checked to see if they had two or three scorers or was it even. We worked to break it down and isolate the key attributes of a championship team."

When the numbers came out the moves made sense.

"The best thing about the three guys is that they all want to win," Reffue said. "They can score 10 goals or no goals. They just want to win. Two of the three have rings. Sanderson has a couple of championships."

Reffue said the Blazers are still growing a fan base, which is especially strong in Hingham.

"Hingham brings more fans than any other town," Reffue said. "And the growth of the sport there is soaring."

His family could add to that statistic.

"My daughter Lauren is seven," he said. "She plays lacrosse and soccer. My wife loves the sport and my kids do too. That's satisfying."

Satisfying fans is the biggest key.

Whether it's through reverse pricing for season tickets, pricing the best seats at the lowest prices, or the entertainment through music, dancers, promotions, availability of players to sign autographs, meet fans and even hold clinics, many right in Cohasset, Reffue hopes fans will come and enjoy the experience.

"we're harnessing the power of lacrosse," he said. "We're putting it out there and watching it grow. To do it in an area of business people are so passionate about is exciting."

The team's home opener is Jan. 15 at 7:30 p.m.

FROM HOCKEY, PAGE 19

ty squad, he has the numbers to roll out four lines and at the same time let a number of new players, especially some talented freshmen grow and pick up the speed of the game.

For Walsh, he has a good mix of experience and youth.

To start, he has senior goalie Jack Nelson back from the team that missed the tournament last year by just one point while playing without star Brendan Doonan, who was injured just three games into the season.

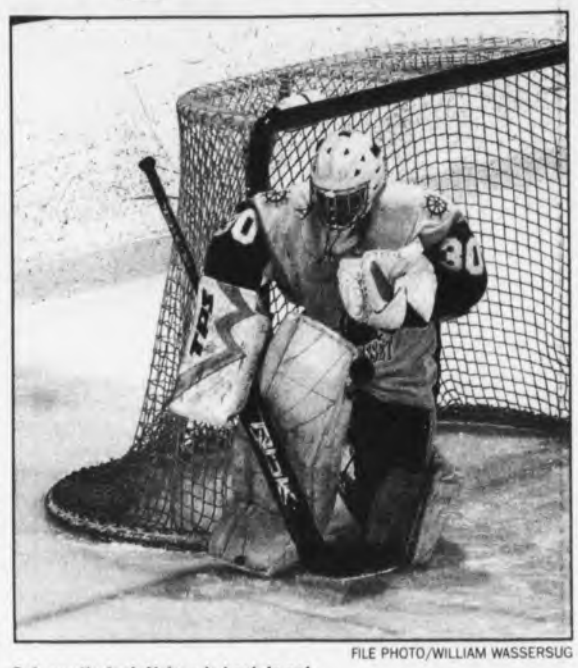
Nelson was outstanding in net last season and looks to do it again.

He'll have backup from freshman Brandon Winn, who played well in the second half against Mansfield.

Senior Anders Goetz will be the guy this year.

Goetz picked up his 99th career point against Mansfield and will be on the first line, paired with juniors Alex Evans and John Collins.

"Last year Anders was part of the Goetz, Doonan, (Andy) McKenna line," Walsh said. "They were our bread and butter. Those two graduated, so the question was, who do you put with Anders who can match his intensity and skill with the puck. Right now Alex and John Collins match up well. John fits right into the way they play. He breaks down with the other two well. It will take a week or two to really get in synch together and get comfortable knowing where each other will be, but I think they'll do well."



Another line is Vinnie Colorio, Jamie Faber and Andrew Whitney.

"Those three played most of the season as a JV line," Walsh said. "They came up at the end of the season, scored goals and grew together. It was fun to watch them. They're looking good."

Beyond that, Walsh plans on rolling out two more offensive lines and hopes he can keep the timing up.

"When you have four lines, the timing is tight," he said. "Even one penalty can throw everything off and change the ice time.

When it comes to numbers, Walsh has nine seniors and eight juniors to go with 11 freshmen.

Cohasset's Jack Nelson is back in net.

The freshmen could see playing time soon with some work.

"They have to learn our defensive system," Walsh said about the freshmen. "Usually you learn that by playing on the JV. Some will be swing players and will play both. We have some pretty talented kids. They're quick skaters with good hands. It's good having kids like that. It's fun. It puts a little pressure on the upper classmen."

Defensively, senior captain Brian Scott leads the charge.

"He's a very skilled player," Walsh said of Scott. "He plays great, tough defense."

One youngster who might see some time is Chris Lund, who reminds Walsh of Scott.

Tommy O'Brien could also break into the big time.

"Tommy has been playing competitive hockey for years," he said. "He played against older, bigger kids with his club team."

The speed of the game is the biggest thing freshmen have to learn.

"Most kids play with their town teams against kids their own age," Walsh said. "When they get to high school it's a different feeling having a kid who' 6-3 coming down the ice. I had a couple of freshemn on the bench against Mansfield and they were all talking about how fast the high school game is."

The biggest key to success this year, which means making the tournament and not having to battle for the last point, is health.

"We have to stay healthy," Walsh said. "Brendan Doonan is an example of what happens if you have injuries. I think this year is a little different. The past few years we've had a few heroes, kids who were the moneymakers. This year I think we're more balanced as a team. On paper we look good."

That said, Walsh said the South Shore League is loaded and will be a challenge.

"Abington/East Bridgewater looks strong. Norwell is always tough to play," Walsh said. "Rockland just joined the league. It's a great league. The coaches are all great. I like to think we're poker buddies. We're all friends, but when we play poker, we want our friends to go home broke. We have a lot of fun in the league."

Cohasset opens league play on Saturday in Orleans against Harwich.

The game is at 4 p.m.

Teachers rock! Give them 'Extra Credit'

People know who they are: The motivators. The catalysts. The teachers who open worlds for their students and challenge them to achieve more than they ever thought possible. Student success and effective teachers go hand in hand. Every student deserves a teacher that rocks.

Let a favorite teachers know they rock. Give the gift that lasts – a gift in the name of that special faculty or staff member to the Cohasset Education Foundation's Teacher Appreciation Program, "Extra Credit". A donation to the CEF is a way for parents and students to honor a specific teacher or school employee at the holidays or anytime. In addition, it helps parents give a gift that will not compromise the policy on ethics and gift giving in public schools.

A child's teacher or other special recipient will receive a card acknowledging that a donation has been made in his or her honor with a personalized message. The amount of the gift will not be disclosed.

All proceeds from Extra Credit are earmarked for Professional Development, Classroom and Program Grants, helping Cohasset's teachers affect and inspire students in more ways than they ever thought possible.

CHS students cannot be categorized

LIFE AT CHS

NATALIE DIGNAM

The athletes are also dedicated students, the artists are also athletes, and the same kids on the math team are in the art magazine or pep band

One more week until Christmas! And what is decking the halls of CHS this holiday season? First off, this Monday was eighth-grade Curriculum Night, so some real CHS seniors (and one lonely junior) presented the attributes of attending CHS to middle school parents and students.

As the "Life at CHS" columnist, I (obviously) know everything there is to know about attending high school in Cohasset and there's really only two words to describe it: Turf Field. Just kidding, there's a lot more to CHS than academics or athletics. After I spoke with my fellow seniors at eighth-grade Curriculum Night, I realized that, despite the individuality of each CHS student, none of us could be categorized. The athletes are also dedicated students, the artists are also athletes, and the same kids on the math team are in the art magazine or pep band. So, you might be wondering, with such a busy student body, there must be something amazing being created at CHS right this minute! And of course you would be right, because the Spinnaker will be coming out next Thursday, with special insights on winter sports and the holiday season. More importantly, however, is this Wednesday (or possible Monday) when the early decision and early action notifications are sent out. Good luck seniors, and to the college bound, get you letters up on the "Wall of Fame" so that people will stop asking you whether you got in or not!

Moving on from the promising future (or impending doom) of CHS seniors, this Thursday the high school band will be performing the annual Winter Concert in the auditorium from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Now that the Winter Concert is almost here and "The Wiz" is over, it may seem that entertainment opportunities at CHS are becoming scarce over this long (and sometimes cold?) winter. But have no fear! Auditions for the One Act Play will be held next Monday (at an undetermined time), so pick up a script from Mrs. Noble's classroom in the Middle School.

To CHS students, enjoy the half day this week, because this year that poor excuse for a winter break is only eight days long and progress reports will be coming out Wednesday. On a more positive note, Happy Holidays!

Natalie Dignam is a senior at CHS. Her column appears weekly during the school year.

S.S. Community Center Nursery School registration

The nursery school's program goal is to provide a happy, safe environment where children will develop trust and have a positive school experience.

South Shore Community Center Nursery School announces applications for the 2011-2012 are available at the Nursery School and the Community Center offices. All families on the South Shore are eligible to apply. The registration process is based on a lottery system. All applications are due back to the nursery school office by Jan. 21.

Included in the envelope should be a copy of the child's birth certificate and a $100 registration fee. Application envelopes should be clearly marked "nursery school registration." The lottery will be drawn the week of Feb. 1 and acceptance letters will be sent via mail the following week. Any child who does not get a placement in the program will have their registration fee returned.

South Shore Community Center Nursery School offers three levels of programs to meet the needs of children age's 3 through 5. The morning programs take place from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and the afternoon programs are from 12:30 to 3 p.m. There are many extended day options for children enrolled in the school including lunch bunch, dance, computer and sports. The youngest program, the Nursery Program, is for children who will be 3 years old by Nov. 1. The Pre-Kindergarten Program is for children who will be 4 by Nov. 1. Also offered is an Enrichment Program for those children who have already had two years of school. This program is designed for older 4s and 5s whom are looking for a challenging year before they enter kindergarten.

The nursery school's program goal is to provide a happy, safe environment where children will develop trust and have a positive school experience. Children will have the opportunity to recognize their own talents and abilities and they will be encouraged to approach new experiences with a spirit of enthusiasm and self-confidence. The Guidelines for Preschool Learning Experiences created by the Early Childhood Advisory Council to the Massachusetts Board of Education are followed. It is based on the standards set up for the Massachusetts Curriculum Frameworks.

The nursery school has observation mirrors in each classroom so people can stop in any time to see all of the things that occur in the program. For information or to set up an appointment to meet the director, call Ann Madden at 781-383-0036. The director can also be reached by email at amadden@southshorecommunitycenter.com. South Shore Community Center Nursery School is licensed by the Massachusetts Department of Early Education and Care and is at 3 North Main St., Cohasset Village.

Green Resource Guide available

"The Green Resource Guide, Organic Sustainable Resources found Locally and Online," is hot off the presses and available to the public. Included in the guide are listings of all the local farmers markets, where to buy safe cleaning products and pet food, farms producing everything from organic beef and cheese to vegetables and honey. Green building architects, as well as new and recycled building products are listed.

Cohasset Garden Club Conservation chairman Sandra Durant headed the committee that researched and produced the guide. "Every member of the committee spent a lot of time ferreting out the very best green, organic, natural, innovative products and the local businesses that produce or sell them," said Durant. "Every category has a section explaining what we should know before choosing a product or service."

Guides are available at Buttonwood Books in Cohasset and are $12 for one or two for $20. According to Durant, they make great stocking stuffers.

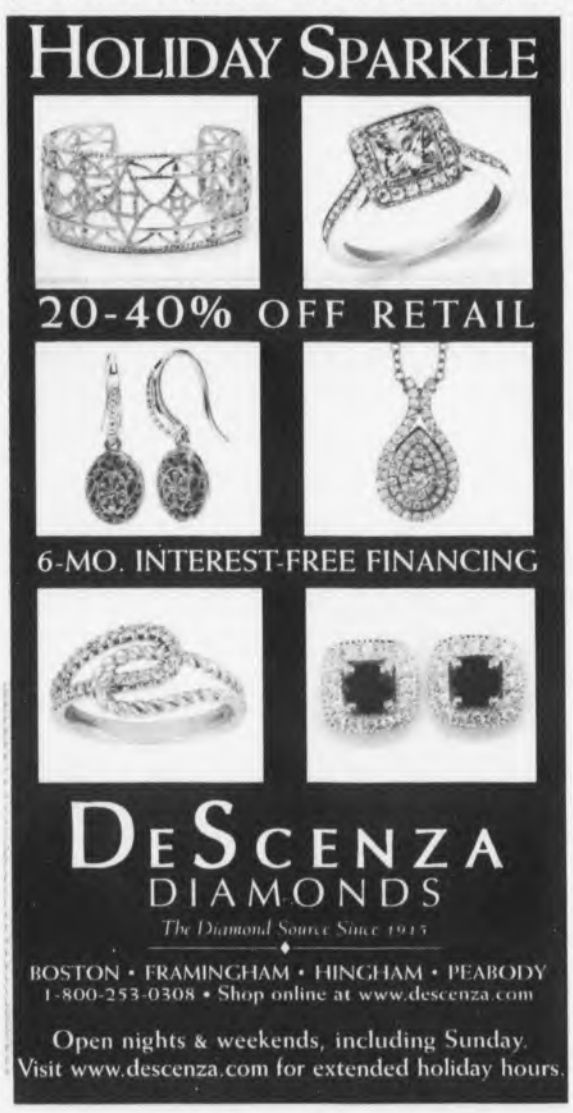
Buttonwood Books sponsoring Book Angel Program

Buttonwood Books & Toys, Shaw's Plaza, Route 3A, Cohasset, is sponsoring its annual Book Angel Program to benefit local children. The goal of the program is to promote literacy and give the gift of reading to a local child. The book angel selects an angel from the tree in the store and buys a book for the child described on the angel. Buttonwood will give a 15 percent discount on the book and deliver the book to the appropriate agency.



Program recipients are Wellspring in Hull, Friends of the Homeless in Weymouth and Blue Hills Healthy Families, serving the South Shore. This is the 17th year Buttonwood has sponsored the Book Angel Program and the need is great this year. About 200 books were donated last year. The program will take place through Dec. 23.

Program recipients are Wellspring in Hull, Friends of the Homeless in Weymouth and Blue Hills Healthy Families, serving the South Shore.

For more information, call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK
OF DEC. 27, 2010

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Handle a potentially awkward situation by warming up your confidence reserves and letting it radiate freely. Also, expect an old friend to contact you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's not too early for the practical Bovine to begin planning possible changes for 2011. A recent contact can offer some interesting insights.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A request for an unusual favor should be carefully checked out. Also check the motives behind it. Your generosity should be respected, not exploited.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Party time beckons, but for some Moon Children, so do some workplace challenges. Deal with the second first, then you'll be free to enjoy the fun time.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A warm response to an earlier request might be a positive indicator of what's ahead. Meanwhile, Cupid could pay a surprise visit to single Leos looking for love.

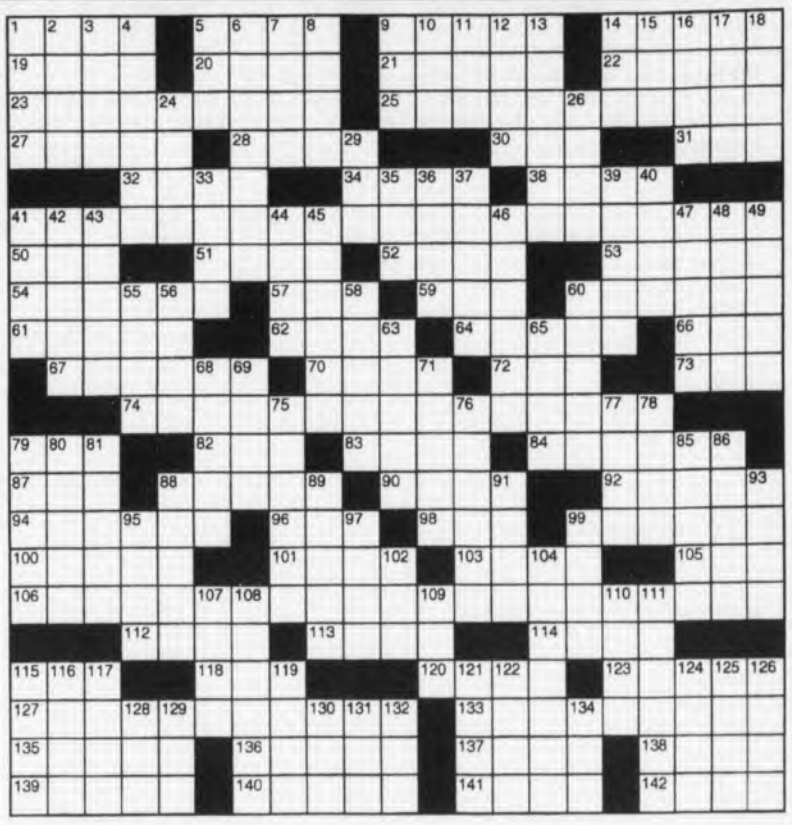
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) How you respond to a proposed change in a project could affect your situation. Be prepared to show how well you would be able to deal with it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) The revelation of a secret could cause some changes in how to deal with a workplace matter. It very likely also validates a position you have long held.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) An attempt to get too personal could upset the very private Scorpio. Make it clear that there's a line no one crosses without your permission.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The savvy Sagittarian might be able to keep a family disagreement from spilling over by getting everyone involved to talk things out.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Be careful not to push people too hard to meet your ideas of what the holiday weekend's preparations should be. Best to make it a cooperative, not a coerced, effort.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) An unexpected request could make you rethink a position you've had for a long time. Meanwhile, plan a family get-together for the weekend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Someone might find that it was a fluke to try to use your sympathetic nature to get you to accept a situation you're not comfortable with. Good for you.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

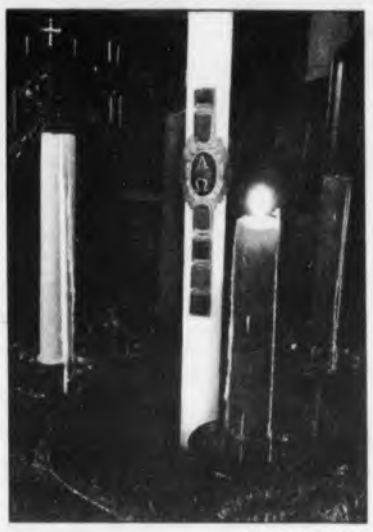
Christmas Blues got you down?



While many are whistling Christmas carols, swilling eggnog, and gearing up for holiday parties, many of us find the holidays especially difficult. Some may be grieving loved ones, memories, or personal losses. Others may be dreading the annual family gathering and the stressful emotions they sometimes generate. Still others may be anticipating the disappointment of unrealized hopes and expectations.

St. Stephen's offers a special service tonight at 7 p.m. (Friday) for those in the community who are struggling with the holidays because of personal loss, grief, or the "Christmas blues."

Offered for the second time this year, "Christmas Losses, Christmas Light: An Advent Service of Anticipation," is a "quiet and contemplative way of recognizing how difficult this time of year can be, particularly with the added stress of economic loss that so many are experiencing," said the Rev. Margot Critchfield, rector of St. Stephen's. "It's a service that creates a very sacred and safe space in which to acknowledge our feelings of sadness, loss and grief—while anticipating the coming Light of Christmas."

The Rev. Critchfield was introduced to this service at a parish she served in Washington, D.C., where members of the prayer team and the clergy designed the service together. "It includes quiet music, scripture readings, a lovely and gentle ceremony where folks are invited to light a candle in memory of a loved one, and the sacrament of Holy Communion," she said.

Christmas Losses, Christmas Light is open to everyone in the community, regardless of where they are on their faith journey. St. Stephen's Episcopal Church sits on the hill in the Village at 16 Highland Avenue. For more information, call 781-383-1083.

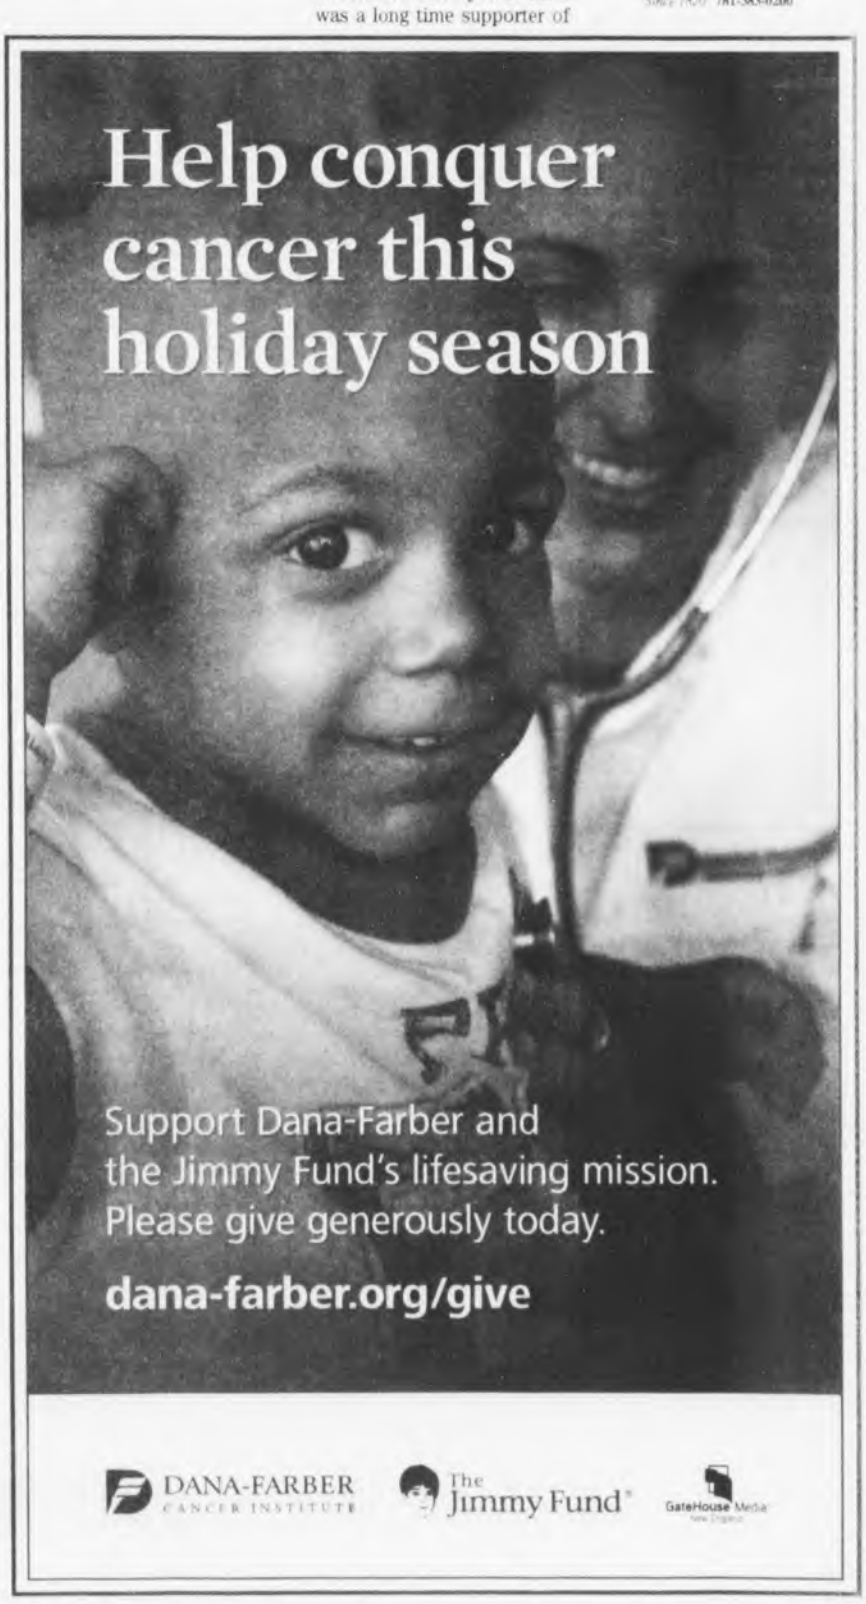
Mary-Ellen Maich

Mary-Ellen Maich

COHASSET – Mary-Ellen "Mimi" Maich, age 59, of Cohasset, MA and Kiawah Is., S.C. passed from this world after a lengthy, courageous battle with cancer on Dec. 10, 2010.

Mimi is survived by her beloved husband of 31 years, Peter, and her loving son, William. She is also survived by her brother, Joseph Massimino, his wife Jody; her nephews Jason, Joseph, and his wife Cindy; her mother-in-law Marie Maich; her sister-in-law Patricia Maich; her brother-in- law Paul Maich, his wife Jessica; her nieces Kate, Hilary, Emily and her husband, Chris.

Mimi was born June 21, 1951 in Newark, NJ. After graduating from the Laboratory Institute of Merchandising in New York City, she pursued a successful career in the fashion industry, where she traveled to Europe and Asia for over a decade. Mimi and Peter moved to Boston in 1978 and then to Cohasset in 1982. In 1985 Mimi left her job as Vice President. Namco Sales to begin a new career as a full time mother to her son.



Mimi loved helping others as exemplified by her involvement with Dana Farber Cancer Institute, volunteering there for over 20 years and also served as the President of the Jimmy Fund Council of Boston for three years. Mimi was a long time supporter of the Cohasset Educational Foundation and member of the Board of Trustees of South Shore Hospital. Mimi enjoyed golf, working in her beautiful garden and especially enjoyed the arts. She was a long time supporter of the South Shore Arts Center and was a gifted painter. In addition to her passion for travel, Mimi loved Sandy Beach, Cohasset, was a voracious reader, and above all, cherished a good movie and a glass of wine. She was a devoted, loving wife and mother, who cared so much about her family and her many wonderful friends.

A service to celebrate Mimi's life will be held on Dec. 18, 2010 at 2 p.m. in St. Anthony's Church, 10 Summer St., Cohasset.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Dana Farber Cancer Institute to honor Dr. Patrick Wen and his staff who valiantly waged the battle with us.

'Dreamer' lands duo at White House

South Shore performers help kick off holiday season in Capitol

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Composer Cinzi Lavin and vocalist Jennifer Love outside the White House following their performance by invitation.

Two South Shore performers – composer and pianist Cinzi Lavin of Hull and vocalist Jennifer Love of Hingham – helped the nation's capitol usher in the holiday season with a Dec. 3 performance at the White House.

"We gave a two-hour performance in the grand foyer for about 2,500 visitors who attended the invitation-only holiday open house and private tour of the White House," explained Lavin last week. "We were the first performers to kick off the White House's holiday season of entertainment."

Lavin and Love, both members of the choir at Hingham's St. John the Evangelist Church, are among 30 musical acts from around the country invited to perform during this year's open house events at the executive mansion. President Barack Obama and his family did not stop by during their set, but Lavin and Love did get to meet Bo, the Portuguese water dog given to the first family by the late Massachusetts Senator Edward M. Kennedy. The special booking came in response to a letter Lavin sent to the White House about "Dreamer," an album of music by American composer Stephen Foster, which she and Love recently recorded.

Composer Cinzi Lavin at piano with vocalist Jennifer Love in the Grand Foyer of the White House, performing selections from their album, "Dreamer," a collection of songs by American songwriter Stephen Foster.

"I looked through literally everything Stephen Foster ever wrote and chose several songs which I then updated with modern piano arrangements. The original arrangements done in Foster's time seem hokey by today's standards, unfortunately, but his melodies and lyrics are still strikingly beautiful," says Lavin of the Pennsylvania-born Foster (1826–1864), known as the "Father of American Music" for songs like "Oh! Susanna," "Camptown Races," and "Beautiful Dreamer."

"I have always loved Stephen Foster's music and I think it is tragic that he died of alcoholism at such a young age. Hearing Jennifer's raw and stirring vocal interpretations just really made his music come alive for me even more. Jennifer moved me to tears in the recording studio. I got all choked up, because her voice was just so powerful. And that never happens to me. Jennifer just brings so much energy and emotion to the pieces – her sound is so compelling it makes you want to listen to every word."

Foster didn't write any songs specifically for Christmas, but he did write one that Love found especially appropriate for this season given America's current involvement in two military conflicts.

"I wish that I could sing Foster's 'Was My Brother in the Battle?' for the men and women of our armed forces," explains Love. "I only wish they could all know how much I was thinking of them as I sang that song at the White House. They did have a special station set up where I was able to write out postcards for our troops in Iraq and Afghanistan. I thanked them for having our back, and I also told them that I wished that they could be home for the holidays."

For Lavin – composer of the official Town Song of Hull, "Under a Hullonian Sky," which was featured in her musical "On This River" – performing at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue meant sitting down at a Steinway grand piano previously played by everyone from Presidents Harry S. Truman and Richard M. Nixon to Harry Connick, Jr.

"I brought along a picture of Foster at his piano that I kept in my music folder so I could glance at him every once in a while as I played. I was so proud to be able to honor him and his work. Like me, he struggled with alcoholism. It took him at an early age, so I am especially grateful that I have been able to get the kind of help that just wasn't available in his life time. It meant so much to me to be performing his music at the White House. I couldn't help but wonder, had he lived longer, if he might also have performed there."

The glory of live music

At the holidays and beyond, recorded sounds just can't compare with what you hear at a concert.

ATLANTIC OVERTURES

JIN KIM

ATLANTIC SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

Music is everywhere, especially during this time of year. From coffee shops to shopping centers to our car radios, all kinds of holiday tunes surround us. For me, I tend to notice it most at the checkout counter. As you wait in line, do you ever stop and notice your reactions to the music being played? Depending on my mood, I find myself reacting in different ways to this background music. And sometimes the music surprises me, and changes that mood. Live performances, though, have much more of an impact on all of us.

After receiving a rousing standing ovation from the audience for the Atlantic Symphony's second holiday performance last Sunday afternoon in Cohasset – the first of the "Joyful Noise" concerts was in Braintree the previous night – I drove up to Boston to hear Andrea Bocelli's performance at TD Banknorth Garden. There, I spent two-plus hours listening to the famed Italian singer put his smooth tenor voice through its paces. From opera arias to Christmas carol arrangements, Bocelli and his guest artists held the audience's attention through one fine performance after another. These days, with so many people focused solely on the "fun factor" of performances, it was great to see such numbers large turn out for what was essentially a classical opera performance, complete with a symphony orchestra and a chorus.

There was one major difference – other than Bocelli's larger audience size and much higher ticket price! – between his production and the ASO's holiday concerts. While his was wonderful, it took me a very long time to adjust to the Garden-style amplified sounds coming from the speakers.

Atlantic Symphony Music Director Jin Kim (left) conducted the ASO behind Aerosmith's Steven Tyler at the October 2008 inauguration of Thayer Academy's Center for the Arts. The ASO's Discovery Concert, featuring a performance of Rob Kapilow's Dr. Seuss-inspired "Green Eggs and Ham," returns to Thayer on Saturday, Jan. 30, at 7:30 p.m.

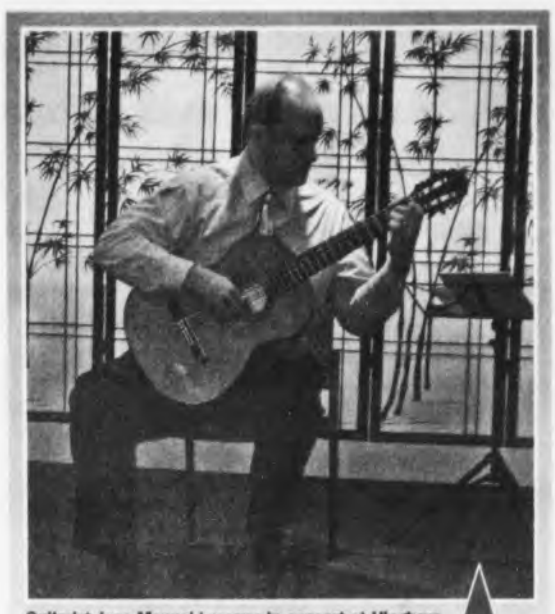
As conductor of the Atlantic Symphony, I'm the first to point out that I have the best "seat" in the house. Given that, I believe our good-sized, but still intimate venues give you nearly the same experience that I have. At Braintree's Thayer Academy Center for the Arts and at St. Anthony's Church in Cohasset – along with our other major ASO South Shore venue, the Duxbury Performing Arts Center – only a little air separates you from the glorious sounds made by the ASO's extraordinary musicians. The music washes over all your senses – much the way cutting into the contents of a basket of your favorite fresh fruit bombards you. Nothing is lost between the music being performed, and you who experience it.

With our holiday concerts now having delighted nearly 700 people in two locations, you will have two more chances to hear ASO performances soon. First, an intimate "Classical Uncorked" event on Saturday, Jan. 23, at Bridgeman's Restaurant in Hull. Then, on Saturday, Jan. 30, our annual Discovery Concert, aimed at the entire family – at the beautiful Thayer facility in Braintree – features a delightful orchestral presentation of Rob Kapilow's enchanting "Green Eggs and Ham," based on the Dr. Seuss children's tale. Kids will love it; but expect a treat for grown-ups, as well.

In the meantime, though, I encourage you to experience as many live performances as possible. Any – amplified or not – will do. But personally, I am looking forward to experiencing as many "acoustic" events as I can. From simple carol sing-alongs with friends, to touching choral/orchestral performances in the South Shore or in Boston, such experiences are sure to nourish your spirits.

A special thank-you goes out to all who continue to include the Atlantic Symphony Orchestra in your lives. Our record audiences so far are indeed an inspiration for the ASO's professional musicians.

And for those who have yet to experience our orchestra, I hope you will come and join us soon. The entire schedule is posted on our website at www.atlanticsymphony.org. Don't be afraid to experience what classical symphony music is all about. Once you hear us, you will be so glad that you made that leap of faith.



On behalf of the ASO family, Happy Holidays and all best wishes for a New Year!

Jin Kim, for 14 years the music director of the South Shore's Atlantic Symphony Orchestra, has conducted the National Symphony (Washington, D.C.), National Arts Center (Canada) and Bucheon Philharmonic (Korea) orchestras. At the invitation of Maestro David Zinman, Kim spent the past summer as a conducting fellow at the Aspen Music Festival. For tickets, visit www.atlanticsymphony.org or call ASO Executive Director Ronald Vigue at 781-331-3600.

"Discovery Concert" Atlantic Symphony Orchestra family educational event, Sunday, Jan. 30, at 3 p.m., featuring Rob Kapilow's Dr. Seuss-based "Green Eggs and Ham" and more, Thayer Academy Center for the Arts, 745 Washington St., Braintree. Adults and Seniors $20, 18-and-under $10.

Guitarist Jose Manuel Lezcano in concert at Hingham Public Library, 66 Leavitt St., Hingham, on Dec. 18, 3 p.m. The Hingham Public Library and the Boston Classical Guitar Society will present a free concert with guitarist Jose Manuel Lezcano as its featured artist in its Saturday Sounds Special Series.

Audit saga continues

Water Commission meets with auditor

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The water department audit is not complete.

That's the bottom line at this point in time.

Over the last few weeks some information has come out in a piecemeal fashion, largely in response to several deadlines the town faced, but the auditor's conclusions and findings are not yet fully fleshed out.

On Tuesday afternoon the Water Commission met with the auditor, John Sullivan of Melanson Heath and Company, to discuss the process involved in the audit and concerns they have.

At some points during the meeting it seemed like battle lines were drawn as the water commissioners shared their concerns with the information, and what they perceived as incomplete information, appearing in the press as a result of the auditor speaking at several recent public meetings.

The meeting marked the first since the audit began that all three members of the Water Commission sat down as a group

Great War had Cohasset connections

Two CHS students launch WWI exhibit

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Two high school students have gone back in time.

Senior Prescott Coughlin and junior Whitney Jaffe spent dozens of hours over the past few months immersed in Cohasset history — and they enjoyed it.

The duo volunteered at the Cohasset Historical Society this semester as part of their Civics and Community Service class. The result of their volunteer work — an exhibit focused on World War I — is currently on display at the Cohasset Historical Society headquarters.

Artifacts culled from the society's extensive textile collection and archives have been knit together for the exhibit.

"The more we got interested in it the more we kept finding. There really is an endless amount of stuff," Whitney said. "It's been a rewarding experience."

The exhibit makes special highlight of late Cohasset resident Margaret Hall who served in the Red Cross during World War I. She snuck a camera in her pack and took more than 200 snapshots over the course of her service. Hall also kept meticulous diaries of her time spent with the war's wounded in France.

There is a table display featuring Cohasset men who served in World War I and two Navy uniforms circa World War I from Hingham resident Ames Loden.

"My favorite part was getting to touch something that was a part of World War I," Prescott said. He plans to pursue history as a course of study in college.

The exhibit has not been without its

Avalon Breaks ground

First units to be available June 2011

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The 220-unit Avalon apartment complex — almost a decade in the making — is under construction and full speed ahead.

This week a sign went up at the future Route 3A entrance to the Avalon complex across from Good Sport.

Scott Dale, Avalon vice president and project manager for the Avalon Cohasset, said construction began in earnest in early November.

"We're well into construction, so it's exciting," Dale said in a phone interview. "The next phase is to see the construction go vertical, the marketing of the apartments and eventual occupation."

Dale said the current timeline could have residents in apartments by June 2011, "we're on track and we're excited to be moving forward."

The entire project is slated to be complete by March 2012.

The Avalon project has been making headlines since the early 2000s. It went through a nearly two-year-long comprehensive permit process before the Zoning Board of Appeals and multiple appeal processes in the court system over the course of several years.

This past spring, the Avalon project became a local initiative project (LIP), or friendly 40-B, when the town signed an application to send to the state. The switch to a LIP enabled Avalon Bay to fund the project with its own capital — and authorized the addition of 20 additional units to the project.

Avalon pulled 43 building permits (one

PICTURE THIS/Howie Turkenkopf

Name: Howie Turkenkopf.

Occupation: Director of Marketing (South Shore Music Circus and Cape Cod Melody Tent).

Best day of your life: The day I met my fiancée.

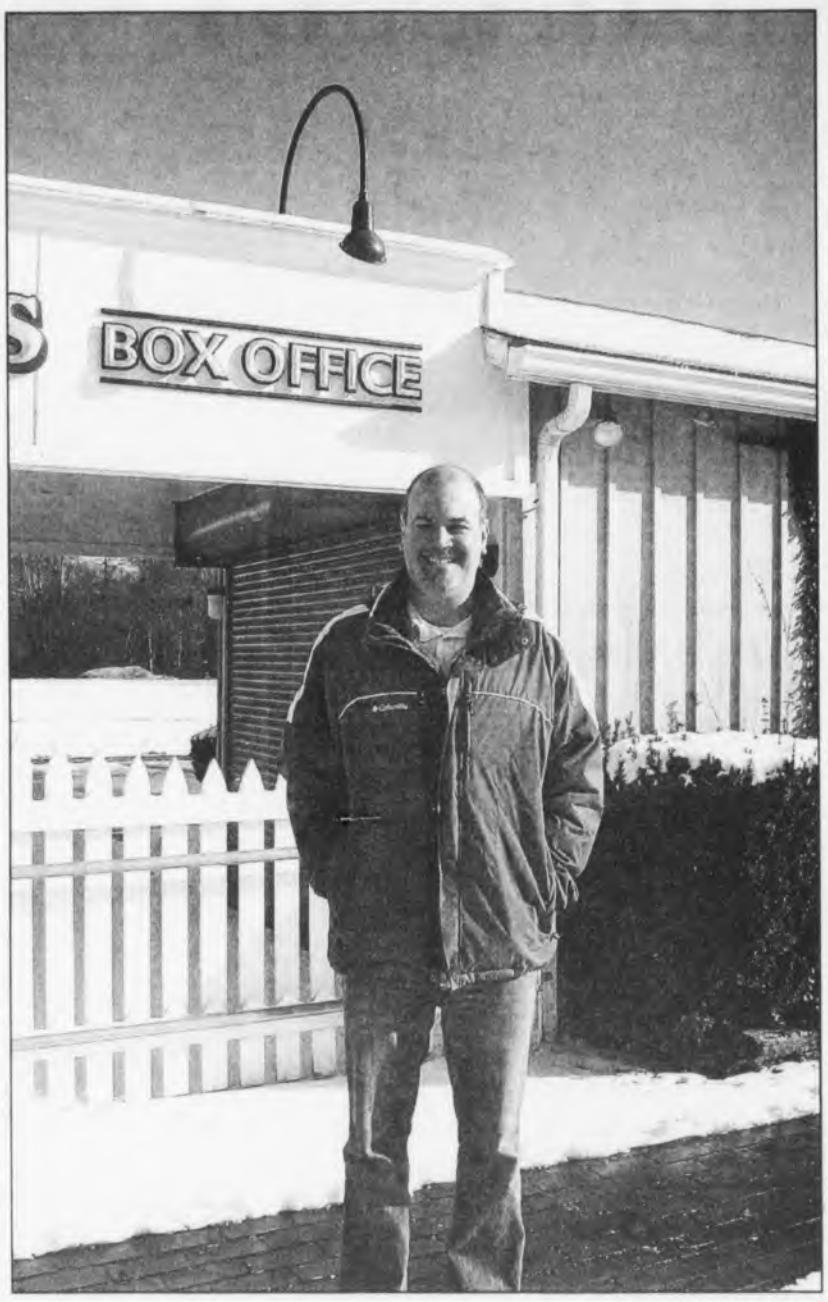
Best vacation: Almost 10 years ago my now fiancé and I went to Costa Rica. We had some, let's say challenges at the beginning and end of the trip but the middle 6 days were amazing. Walking through rainforests; monkeys all over the place; eating amazingly fresh pineapple while on a leisurely canoe trip; seeing Arenal — an active volcano; and taking a sunset boat cruise in the Pacific Ocean.

Favorite season: Summer — I love the warm weather, the long days, and getting to see music in the great outdoors.

Favorite holiday: Halloween.

Favorite junk food: Anything dark chocolate.

Best book: "The World is Flat" by Thomas Friedman



Best movie (or actor): Favorite Actor – Kevin Spacey

Best TV show: Probably the "Law and Order" franchise

Best music, group, or artist: all time favorite – Pink Floyd, current favorite – The Heavy Guilt.

Pet peeve: "So didn't I." I'm not originally from New England and I've gotten on board with other New England-isms like, "wicked" and candlepin bowling, but I just don't get when people respond in the affirmative with "So didn't I."

Fun fact: For roughly 10 years I worked at the National Scrabble Championship. The championship was held in different cities each year and was covered by national media including ESPN and the Today show. I ran the data center making sure all scores were imputed correctly and that standings and pairings were computed and posted.

Howie Turkenkopf stands by the box office on a snowy Tuesday morning at the South Shore Music Circus.

Goal: To start and run my own business.

Person you'd most like to meet: Thomas Friedman – Reading "The World is Flat" definitely changed the way I think about the world.

Biggest worry: That people have forgotten how to truly listen to each other and be open minded. Too often we all (myself included) come into a conversation or discussion with our own mind made up and never give other points of view a chance.

Best part of Cohasset: To be honest I'm new to the area, I still live in Watertown and commute to Cohasset, so for now I'd have to say the South Shore Music Circus seems like a great opportunity to see some amazing artists right up close in a small community.

Winter update for DPW

Cohasset DPW reminds residents that a sand and salt mixture is available in the upper corner of the town parking lot.

When snow is forecast, residents are asked to not park on streets plowed by the town to expedite snow removal.

Vehicles that obstruct snow removal operations will be towed at the owners expense.

Residents and contractors are reminded not to move snow, ice or water onto roadways that may impede traffic.

The town is not responsible for damage to mailboxes, driveway aprons, walkways, stone walls, grassed areas, shrubs, trees or fences that fall within the town layout.

POLICE BEAT

First snowstorm brings spate of accidents

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Police remind motorists that winter parking regulations are now in effect.

Cohasset police responded to six motor vehicle accidents during Monday's snowstorm that wreaked havoc on roads throughout the region. There were several other accidents in town – mostly vehicles that slid off the road — that did not require police response. Police had to close off a portion of Sohier Street during the storm.

In one accident a DPW sander slid backwards down Atlantic Avenue and struck a vehicle. Police said the sander went round the vehicle while going up the hill but then slid back down. There were no tows and no injuries.

Other incidents included a car into a hydrant on Pleasant Street; police said the hydrant was sheered off in the incident. A vehicle took down a stop sign at Cushing Road and in still another incident, a vehicle damaged a wall at Atlantic Avenue and Howard Gleason Road.

Police remind motorists that winter parking regulations are in effect through April 1. No overnight, on-street parking between the hours of 2 a.m. and 6 a.m. is allowed during winter parking regulations. Violators are subject to a fine of $25.

Cut off

A 32-year-old Salem woman, who was late for an appointment, was cited for failure to yield to an emergency vehicle after she drove around a fire engine with its lights on that was backing into the fire station on Elm Street at about 10:34 a.m. on Monday (Dec. 13). The engine was returning from an emergency call. Police said a firefighter saw the 2006 Jeep Liberty that went around the engine pull into the parking lot at the Cohasset Harbor Inn. Police found the woman and issued her a $200 citation for failure to yield to an emergency vehicle and for following an emergency vehicle too closely.

Minors charged

Two Cohasset young adults, one 19 and the other 20, were arrested and charged with being minors in possession of alcohol on Sunday (Dec. 19) on Whitehead Road. An officer was checking a house on that road that is a known party house when a vehicle approached at a high rate of speed. He stopped the vehicle and further investigation found a large bottle of grape vodka on the front, passenger floor. The case was disposed of Monday in Quincy District Court and the two young men were put into a diversion program and will not have a criminal record, police said.

Lost purse

A 49-year-old Cohasset woman reported that she lost her Vera Bradley purse at Stop and Shop on Dec. 13. She reported the incident to police on Sunday (Dec. 19). She cancelled her credit cards and ordered a new driver's license. She lost $60 in cash in the purse, police said.

Racial graffiti

A 44-year-old employee at a medical building off Chief Justice Cushing Highway reported last Wednesday (Dec. 15) there was some graffiti of a racial nature in one of the bathrooms. No one knows who wrote the message. Police said the incident is under investigation.

MV accidents

• At 4:48 p.m. on Thursday (Dec. 16), police responded to a two-vehicle accident at Chief Justice Cushing Highway (3A) and Beechwood Street. Police said a 48-year-old Cohasset woman in a 1997 Toyota 4Runner was headed south on 3A when she attempted to turn left onto Beechwood Street at the lights and was hit by a 2008 Volvo XC70 operated by a 57-year-old Scituate woman. Police said the crash occurred in the middle of the intersection. There were no reported injuries and neither vehicle had to be towed. The Cohasset woman was cited for failure to grant the right of way.

• At 4:59 p.m. on Thursday (Dec. 16) there was a two-vehicle accident at Lower King Street and Chief Justice Cushing Highway (3A). Police said a 2001 Ford Escape, operated by a 19-year-old Cohasset man, was attempting to pull out from lower King and make a left on to Route 3A south. The Ford pulled in front of a northbound 2004 Volvo XC90, operated by a 46-year-old Hingham woman, and a collision occurred. The 19-year-old was cited for failure to grant the right of way, police said. There were no tows and no reported injuries.

• At 11:56 p.m. on Friday (Dec. 17), police responded to a single-car accident at Jerusalem Road and Forest Avenue. Police said a 1997 Mercury Mountaineer, operated by a 21-year-old Scituate man, was coming out of Atlantic Road in Hull at a high rate of speed; the Mountaineer crossed over into the opposite lane, hit a curb, causing the vehicle to spin and crash through a stonewall at Jerusalem Road and Forest Avenue. Police said the car was totaled and had to be towed. The driver and his 21-year-old passenger, a Scituate woman, were transported to the hospital with non-life-threatening injuries. They were subsequently released, police said. The driver was cited for negligent operation, speeding, failure to drive within marked lanes and failure to stop for a stop sign.

Mirror gone

A 50-year-old Cohasset woman reported that the side mirror on her 2000 Chevrolet pickup truck was missing. She said she discovered the apparent vandalism after eating at a village restaurant on Thursday night (Dec. 16). Police said there was no debris at the scene so it did not appear the mirror was struck by another vehicle.

Warrant arrest

An officer conducting traffic enforcement at about 5 p.m. on Friday (Dec. 17) on Beechwood Street pulled over a 1992 Geo Storm that had passed by with a headlight out. A computer check revealed the operator, a 21-year-old Scituate man, had a default warrant for his arrest out of Hingham District Court for shoplifting. He was arrested and his car was towed.

Unlicensed

An officer on patrol at about 9 p.m. on Saturday (Dec. 18) on Chief Justice Cushing Highway (3A) observed a 1997 Honda Civic with ice on the windshield. Police said there was only a small, cleared area for the driver to see through.

The officer stopped the car but the operator could only produce a Brazilian passport. He was arrested for unlicensed operation and unsafe operation. He was able to contact a licensed driver to take custody of his car, police said.

Needles

A concerned caller reported seeing several needles on the ground on Beechwood Street on Saturday (Dec. 18) as well as some cotton. Police said the needles, which were unused, appeared to be insulin needles. They were dropped off at the fire department that has a sharps container for proper disposal.

Missing wallet

A 74-year-old Cohasset woman reported to police last Tuesday (Dec. 14) that she believed she had left her wallet at CVS while having a prescription filled. When she arrived home, her wallet with two credit cards and her driver's license was missing.

Abandoned car

A business in an office complex off Chief Justice Cushing Highway reported last Wednesday (Dec. 15) that a 1994 Chevrolet Astrovan with a note on it saying it would be picked up had been in the parking lot for two weeks. The caller wanted the vehicle removed since no one had come to pick it up. Police said the business could have the vehicle towed because it is on private property but to let them know when they do so.

DPW tackles snowy streets

Likely to be a white Christmas

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The DPW is responsible for clearing about 37 miles of accepted roads, 10 miles of private ways, and about 10 more miles of common driveways and parking lots.

The first snowstorm of the season was a little late this year, but if the temperatures remain in the freezing range the area will have a white Christmas.

Carl Sestito, DPW superintendent, responded to the snowstorm with the plan he has executed in countless other snowstorms throughout the years.

"It's tried and true. Same old stuff," Sestito said.

The snow started in the late morning and continued until the later hours of the evening. Sestito sent out some trucks around 1p.m. to begin treating the roads in anticipation of the bus fleet heading out on their routes. Around 8:30p.m. he dispatched its eight plows and sander trucks to the streets of Cohasset. Sestito relies on 12 to 14 outside hired trucks to help him clear the snow off the streets during storms.

"It was just a long night, nobody slept," Sestito said.

The DPW is responsible for clearing about 37 miles of accepted roads, 10 miles of private ways, and about 10 more miles of common driveways and parking lots.

"In total we have about 60 miles of stuff to take care of," Sestito said.

During the course of the snowstorm Cohasset police responded to six car accidents. There were several more instances where vehicles slid off the road. A portion of the hilly Sohier Street was closed off during the storm.

Despite the accidents there were no injuries and no cars had to be towed.

The first snow is not a joyous occasion for Sestito; rather it is the beginning of long days and nights as his department wages battle on snowstorm after snowstorm during the winter season.

"My favorite time of year is April," Sestito quipped.

January Veterans' Agent visiting hours

The Cohasset Director of Veterans' Services will be at Paul Pratt Library, Room 2B, in January as follows: Monday, Jan. 3, 6 to 7:45 p.m.; Wednesday, Jan. 5, 10 a.m. to noon; and Saturday, Jan. 8, 10 to noon.

Just drop in, or call ahead of time if preferred. Visiting hours are not only for veterans, but also for spouses/surviving spouses and those concerned with veteran/spouse aging parents as well as for general advice.

If the aforementioned schedule does not meet one's needs, the veterans' agent will meet people at a convenient location and time; for example, the library, his home, one's home. The Veterans' Agent is Joe McElroy and he may be contacted at 781-383-0505 or by email @ cohjoe@aol.com.

The Cohasset Avalon property is the former location of several manufacturing companies, most recently the Webb-Norfolk Conveyor, an airport conveyor belt manufacturer that occupied the site from 1975 to 1995.

for each structure) in July that include 37 residential permits and six for auxiliary buildings.

The Avalon project has always been a Chapter 40B affordable housing project. The state law Chapter 40 allows developers to skirt local zoning regulations in exchange for providing affordable housing in municipalities that fall below the 10 percent "affordability" threshold.

With the additional 20 units, Cohasset will likely meet the 10 percent affordable housing threshold required by the state law. Because the state encourages rental units, all 220 units will "count" toward the town's affordable housing percentage. Cohasset has hovered around three percent affordable housing stock for decades.

"The next phase is to see the construction go vertical, the marketing of the apartments and eventual occupation."

— Scott Dale, Avalon

On Dec. 1, the state department of Housing and Community Development certified two additional affordable housing units from the mixed-use development of Old Colony Square. Cohasset now has 3.31 percent affordable housing stock (91 out of 2,752 housing units).

A lottery of qualified applicants will be held for the affordable units at Avalon. Dale said the affordable units would be available at each step of occupancy. Typically, the process begins 60 to 90 days prior to the units being available.

The current Avalon property is the former location of several manufacturing companies, most recently the Webb-Norfolk Conveyor, an airport conveyor belt manufacturer that occupied the site from 1975 to 1995. It was also the site of D.S. Kennedy, one of the world's leading antenna manufacturers in the 1950s. It is located on 62 acres on the west side of Route 3A on one of the highest points in Cohasset.

"We'll definitely have some ocean views (from the complex)," Dale said.

to talk with auditor. Other town officials were present as well.

The Water Commission had concerns that Sullivan did not have, or was not taking full consideration of, information the commission possessed. Water Commission chair Chris Seebeck said he wanted to ensure Sullivan had all the information possible so the final result is the "most fair and complete audit possible."

The nearly two-hour discussion ranged from points of contention over specific issues and details to a more broad debate on the auditing process.

The Advisory Committee commissioned the audit over the summer; the $65,000 cost out is coming out of the reserve fund. Town Meeting voters called for the audit in June in conjunction with approving a water rate increase. The audits for both the water and sewer departments, the town's two enterprise funds, include a review of past operations, verification of financial statements and assistance in developing recommendations for improvement in operation and future budget projections.

The results of the audit could have short- and long-term effects on the town's financial health.

Sullivan has been working on the audit since mid-September. A deadline has been set for him to reveal a draft findings document by Jan. 15.

In recent weeks, preliminary findings have been provided due to some town deadlines: the setting of the tax rate and the rollover of a bond related to water department expenses.

Seebeck said he was concerned information has been put out there without the complete picture. Typically, he said, in other financial audits he has been a part of interested parties are able to review the auditor's draft findings and refute them if necessary. The Water Commission has not had that opportunity yet.

Town Meeting voters called for the audit in June in conjunction with approving a water rate increase.

Sullivan said he was asked to give preliminary findings because of the town's impending deadlines

"In both cases there were some issues and concerns (coming out as a result of the audit process) that impacted those events," Sullivan said. "I did not want to give an estimate. I was put in the position where I had to give ranges…still at this point I don't have a number."

In November, he told the Board of Selectmen the town could potentially be facing a $1-million deficit as a result of misclassifications of expenses in a worst-case scenario.

"I'm going as deep as a I can (to get to the correct answer)…I do not have an agenda; I don't want to hit the town of Cohasset with a $1-million bill," said Sullivan, who said he needs to have all the pieces of information before making his findings.

Water Commissioner Peter DeCaprio, who spent much of the meeting leaning back in his chair with his arms folded as others talked, came armed with a set of documents that he felt refuted some of the issues and concerns Sullivan has raised during the course of the audit.

DeCaprio said the Water Commission should have been utilized to get the information Sullivan needed. In recent weeks, DeCaprio said the commissioners have been able to provide much of the documentation he needed – and they could have provided it without the need to raise the alarm town-wide.

"We've filled in blanks since then, so we could have filled them in back then," DeCaprio said.

Sullivan said there has been opportunity for the water commissioners to present information to him.

"It's not like you don't know what I'm working on…I've talked to (all of you) about the issues," Sullivan said. During the course of his audit he has consulted with the water commissions, most often with commissioner Glenn Pratt because he has the most institutional knowledge. Pratt is in his fourth term as a water commissioner.

Sullivan described the auditing process, which has taken longer than anyone expected, as "overwhelming." He has spent much of his time trying to reconstruct what happened over the past few years, especially in relation to the $27 million bonding associated with the water department over the last decade.

Invoices and contracts that should have been easily accessible in the town accountant's office have had to be sought from vendors and other sources.

"There is an incredible amount of issues. I'd love to have another six months, or even three months, to work on this project," Sullivan said. "I was not hired to reconstruct the town's records, but that's what I have to do to do a fair job for the town of Cohasset."

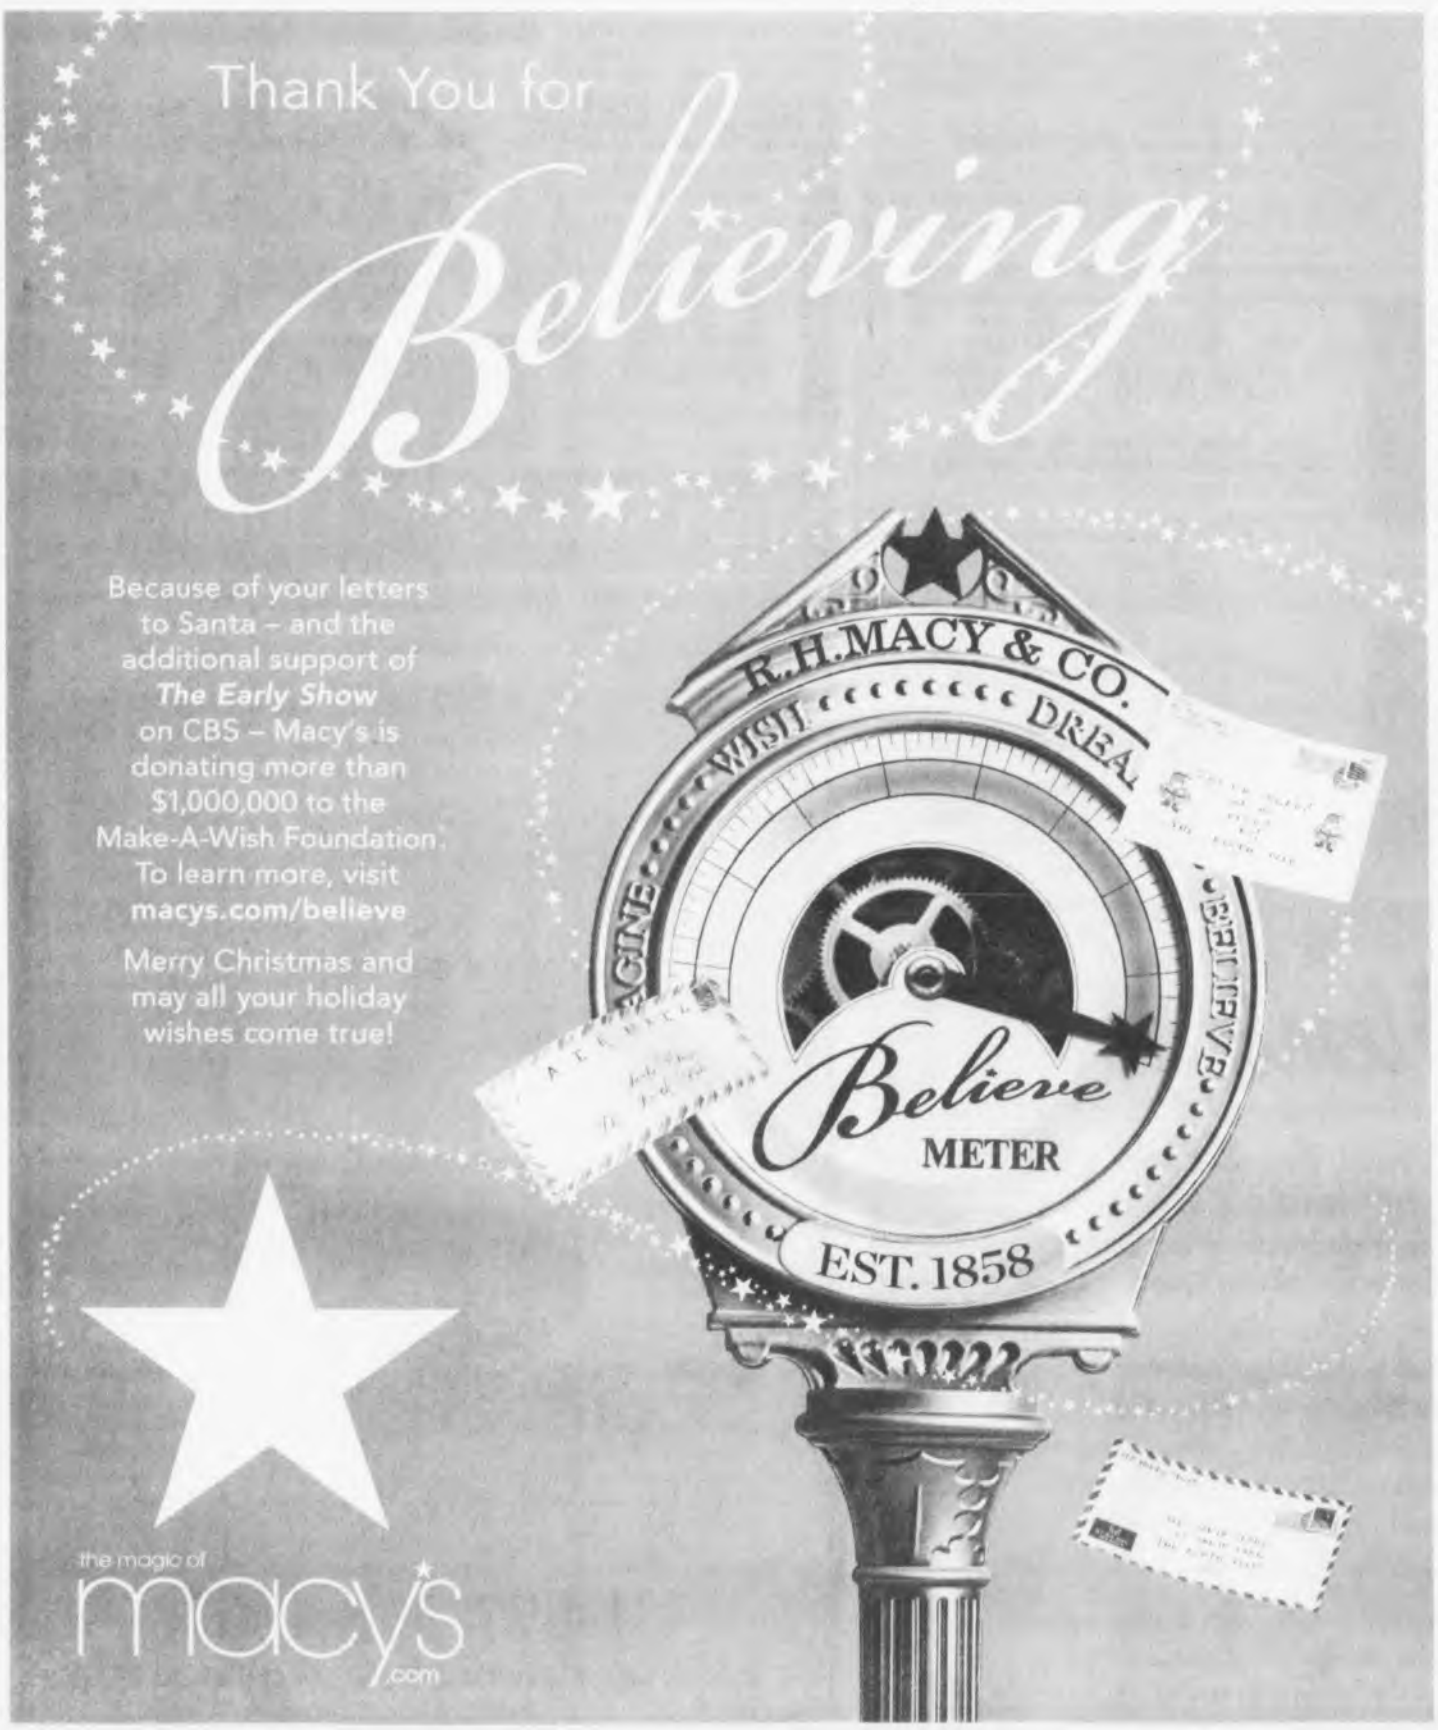
Moving forward

Several weeks ago auditor John Sullivan told the selectmen he was facing several challenges in the verification and information gathering process of the audit. Since that time those hurdles have been cleared and he expects to get all the information he needs in the coming week.

One of the challenges included American Water, the town's contracted company to run the water department's operation, temporarily ceasing to talk with Sullivan while consulting with their in-house legal counsel.

The pause was a reasonable thing to do, given the circumstances, Sullivan said at the Tuesday meeting and at a previous meeting with the board of selectmen.

Sullivan reported the issue has been resolved with American Water and he planned to meet with several employees next week.



The Water Commission requested Sullivan develop a list of the major issues, outstanding questions, and missing information. They planned to schedule a public meeting to discuss this list next week. Then, the group would meet again to review any information the Water Commission was able to come up with in relation to the list of issues.

"You're going to need to budget a lot of time for it," DeCaprio said.

Sullivan would then be able to consider any information presented before he submitted his draft findings to the town in mid-January.

Seebeck emphasized that he and other commissioners wanted the same outcome as the town as a whole.

"I have 28 more months of this (serving on the Water Commission) so, for me, (the audit) is incredibly valuable information. I'm a huge proponent of the audit and I'm looking forward to the final documents," Seebeck said.

School lunch program update

For about two years the school department has been keeping a close eye on the revenues and participation rates of the school lunch program.

The program is doing better in some ways, but stayed flat in others. At the Osgood School the participation percentage (the percentage of kids purchasing lunch) was relatively flat over 2009. But, the month generated slightly more profit than last year.

At the Deer Hill School participation numbers were up three percentage points over the same time period last year. Profit was also on the increase.

Both elementary schools were in the black for the month of November (Osgood had a $2,350 profit and Deer Hill, $1,408).

The Middle-High School has largely been the focus of new initiatives. Participation rates still hovered in the low 30 percent range. The middle-high school ended November nearly $1,950 in the red.

School business manager Dave DeGennaro floated the possibility of purchasing a point of sale system for the Cohasset Middle-High School.

"It would be a touch screen computer and it would track what the kids are buying," DeGennaro said. "It could also speed up the serving line."

The system would come with software, two stations for checkout, an associated web component so parents can add money to student ID card, two touch screen monitors and onsite training.

DeGennaro sought quotes from three different vendors; the low bidder was NutriKids at $8700. He said there was still roughly $15,000 in the foundation reserve budget that could be used for this purchase.

The cost, however, was still too much for the School Committee to consider.

"In these budget times the educational goals of the system need to come first," said School Committee chair Helene Lieb.

The committee agreed to table the discussion until closer to the end of the fiscal year (end of June). If the lunch program runs a profit, they said they could consider investing the money in the point of sale system.

Finalizing super-search screening committee

The School Committee is still waiting for a few more names to finalize the superintendent screening committee. The screening committee will have more than eight meetings during the month of January as they narrow down the field of superintendent candidates. The committee, which will be between nine and 13 representatives, will review the applications and decided which ones to interview. The group will also conduct the first round of interviews and recommend between three and five finalist candidates to the School Committee.

The sessions of the screening committee are not open to the public. But, the final interviews with the school committee will be. It is the sole responsibility of the school committee to choose the next superintendent.

The School Committee said they would rely on various town boards and community groups to nominate citizens for the screening committee. At the very least the following groups will be represented on the screening committee: teachers (one elementary, one high school), administrators, PSO, CEF, Special Education Parent Advisory Council (SEPAC), school councils, Board of Selectmen, Advisory Committee, School Committee and students.

There was some confusion on how the School Council would choose their representative. All three school councils had their monthly meeting recently and did not choose a representative (they were not aware they had to choose a representative at the time). After some discussion it was determined the school councils would choose their representative at their next meeting the first week in January. Sessions of the screening committee begin on Jan. 8.

School committee member Jeanne Astino will serve as the school committee representative to the screening committee.

Nothing small about retired officer's effort

Is force behind Toys for Tots collection in Cohasset

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

This year and in many years past, Christmas morning for hundreds of children in the greater Boston area has been a little brighter thanks to the efforts of John Small.

Each year since 1986 Small has helped to collect thousands of toys for the Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots program.

Small began the annual project with his grandfather, the late Herbie Jason. They started doing it with a local car club, then the American Legion, and then in conjunction with the Cohasset Police Department. Another man in the car club was a Marine and he introduced them to the Toys for Tots program.

"When we first heard about it we just thought it was a good thing to do," Small said.

Small retired as a full-time police officer earlier this year, but did not retire from his commitment to the Toys for Tots. The police station has served as a Cohasset toy drop-off center for many years. In years past, Small took most of his vacation time during the month of December to devote more time to the Toys for Tots collection.

In his nearly 25 years of working with the Toys for Tots program it's hard for him to say how many toys he has collected.

"Oh my god, I don't know. Some years we would be bringing eight to 10 pick-up trucks full of toys," Small said. He estimates over the years he has collected more than $200,000 worth of Toys for Tots. Many times people would donate money and he would go out and buy the toys.

The toys collected in Cohasset are brought to South Boston to the Boston-area Toys for Tots distribution center.

This year, Small said, he has brought two truckloads of toys into Boston.

In 2007, Small received the Police Chief's Community Service Award in recognition for his work with Toys for Tots and other volunteer efforts in the community.

John Small, now retired from his career as a full-time police officer, stands by the sign letting passersby know the station is a drop off center for the annual Toys for Tots drive. Small has been spearheading the drive in Cohasset for about 25 years.

"I know there are a lot of happy kids out there that otherwise wouldn't be."
— John Small

On Christmas morning Small takes time to think about all the children opening the toys he collected.

"I know there are a lot of happy kids out there that otherwise wouldn't be," Small said.

Cohasset police are joining with the Marines Corps in the annual holiday Toys for Tots campaign through Dec. 24 (that's today!).

New toys and games can be dropped off at the Cohasset Police Headquarters, on Elm Street. Toys and games should not be wrapped.

The Toys for Tots program brings a "message of hope" to needy youngsters through a shiny new toy at Christmas. The stated mission of the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve Toys for Tots Program is to collect new, unwrapped toys during October, November and December each year, and distribute those toys as Christmas gifts to needy children in the community in which the campaign is conducted. Through the distribution of the toys, the Marines hope to motivate the youngsters to grow into responsible, productive, patriotic citizens and community leaders.

Heaven is friendly and is looking for someone to cuddle up with during these cold winter months.

Heavenly feline is very friendly

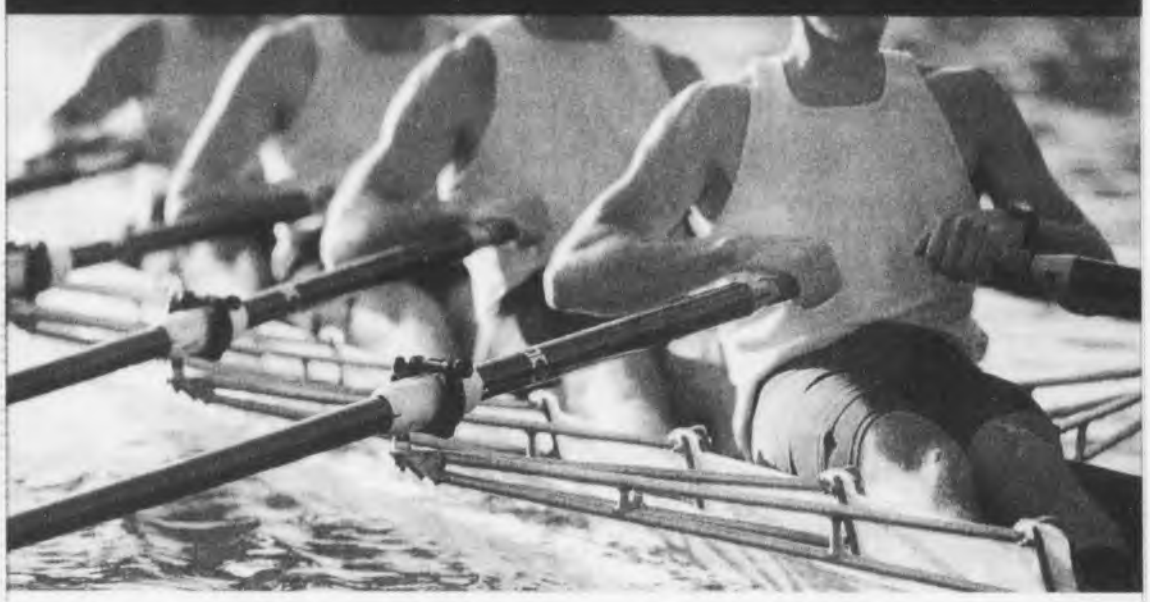
This week, Hull Seaside Animal Rescue is featuring Heaven. Heaven is almost 7 and would very much like to find a home with a senior citizen who would like the company of this friendly feline. Heaven is friendly and is looking for someone to cuddle up with during these cold winter months. Please come and meet her during our open hours from 2 to3 p.m., on Saturdays, except Christmas on Saturday, Dec. 25, and 6:30 to 7:30 p.m., on Mondays. Also you can check her out on our website at www.hsar.org and view our other felines as well. If you'd like to make an appointment, call Shirl at 781-925-3380.

HSAR is featuring a low-cost spay van on Wednesday, Jan. 5. Please call Mary at 781-925-3121 to schedule an appointment. We are located at 50 L Street, Hull; our mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, P.O. Box 787, Hull, MA 02045.

HSAR wishes everyone a wonderful holiday season. If you're interested in volunteer opportunities, feel free to visit the shelter during open hours.

New director of marketing at Music Circus

South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset and the Cape Cod Melody Tent in Hyannis welcome the addition of Howie Turkenkopf as the new director of marketing.



Turkenkopf comes to the Music Circus and Melody Tent from Live Nation as the brand marketing manager for House of Blues Boston. He has more than a dozen years of music industry and concert marketing experience. Turkenkopf began his career as the marketing director for Gamelan Productions and the Berkshire Mountain Music Festival. In between his marketing roles, he has also worked as an independent artist manager.

"We are very excited about the addition of Howie to the Music Circus and Melody Tent team. His years of experience in the New England and national music scene will be of immediate value to our organization and we look forward to a successful 2011 season," said Vincent Longo, executive producer.

The only two continuously operating tent theaters in the United States, South Shore Music Circus and Cape Cod Melody Tent have hosted world-class entertainment for nearly 60 years, serving nearly 200,000 patrons annually. Both the Music Circus and Melody Tent, as well as Music Circus Productions, are operated by South Shore Playhouse Associates, a not-for-profit organization that supports arts and education in southeastern Massachusetts. In the past decade, SSPA has distributed more than $3.5 million to other local nonprofit organizations.

Turkenkopf said, "We are selling gift certificates to each venue. Gift certificates can be bought in any denomination with a $25 minimum. If you purchase $200 in gift certificates you get a free membership to our Gold Circle or Inner Circle clubs. These clubs allow members to purchase tickets to shows before they go on sale to the public. Most of the shows are discounted to members and they save a significant amount on the ticket processing fees as well.

Senior Center starting to take shape

Presented plans recently to Planning Board

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The proponents of a new senior center are making the rounds to various boards. On Dec. 8, the Planning Board got an update on the project.

A feasibility study, which looked closely at what's possible on the proposed site and what is needed to meet the demands of a growing senior population, has been completed.

The feasibility study, which was paid for through private fundraising of the Friends of Elder Affairs, sets the stage for the building. It envisions a 16,000 square foot building with room for four one-bedroom senior affordable housing apartment units. The senior center portion of the building would include a computer lab, a clinic, a social day care center, small offices, a large meeting hall, and a variety of activity rooms.

The proposed site of the senior center is off Sohier Street adjacent to the Cohasset Swim Center parking lot. The Senior Center will share a parking lot with the swim center.

"It's a good location, there's sort of a community center there with the library, the swim center and the Little League fields close by," said Glenn Pratt, one of the members of the elder affairs ad-hoc committee looking at the senior center building.

Over the past year several milestones for the project have been accomplished.

A memorandum of understanding has been signed by the Cohasset Swim Trust and the town to enable the land swap between the two entities. The targeted siting for the new building is adjacent to the swim center parking lot located off Sohier Street.

State legislative approval has been secured to transfer over to the Swim Trust a piece of land controlled by the water commission.

The proposed site of the senior center is off Sohier Street adjacent to the Cohasset Swim Center parking lot.

Soil tests, perc tests and a complete feasibility study have been completed.

The senior center is currently tucked into a corner of the South Shore Community Center and has outgrown its space. Small office space and a limited space for folks to gather currently limits the amount of programs that can be offered by the elder affairs staff.

With more room — and a space of their own — representatives of the project said the senior center will be able to meet the needs of the aging community now and into the future.

Pratt said the next steps included continued fundraising and appointment of a building committee by the selectmen.

Planning Board member Clark Brewer asked if any green building approaches were being taken into consideration. The feasibility study included an estimate for geo-thermal energy.

Pratt said they haven't gotten that far into the building planning to really explore those possibilities, but they would be looked at.

Planning Board member Stuart Ivimey said a traffic study looking at the increased traffic in and out of the Sohier Street swim center driveway would likely be necessary as part of the Planning Board review of the project.

According to a preliminary timeline, if all goes well, the construction of the senior center would begin in fall 2012. The move-in date would be sometime in late 2012.

'Survival Handbook' musical

Hingham has become a town of grand openings lately, and now Dan Rider, an award-winning young playwright, is mounting a new musical with a group of Hingham students to premiere at Derby Academy's Larson Hall on Jan. 7 and 8. Rider has written the script, music and lyrics for the show, a comic satire on the survivalist handbooks that have become popular in recent years. The "Survival Handbook" musical will take the stage for the first time at 7 p.m., on Jan. 7 and 8, at the Larson Hall Theatre at Derby Academy. The public is welcome.

Flute and piano recital

There will be a flute and piano recital at 1 p.m., on Jan. 2, at First Baptist Church of Hingham, 85 Main St., featuring Melissa Voshell on flute.

Voshell has a master of music degree in flute performance from the Peabody Conservatory of Music of the Johns Hopkins University and a bachelor's degree in flute performance from Jacksonville University. She has maintained a private teaching studio since 2000. She has held faculty positions in music and humanities at Jacksonville University and Florida State College of Jacksonville. She is now adjunct professor of music and humanities at Park University, Hanscom AFB campus. Her chamber music and ensemble experiences include subbing with the Jacksonville Symphony Orchestra, performances with the First Coast Wind Ensemble and First Coast Opera. In 2005 she founded and performed with the Arioso Flute Quartet in the north Florida and south Georgia areas until 2009. For more information about Voshell, visit www.melloflute.com.

OPINION

EDITORIAL

It's OK to say no

We love to celebrate the holidays. We love to spread good cheer, and maybe there's even more inclination by some to do so during these continuing trying times. But regardless of our motive to celebrate, we cannot ignore responsibility.

Fortunately, none of the OUI-related crashes State Police have responded to recently involved fatalities. Nothing could dampen our festive spirit more than tragedy. Three of the five crashes, though, occurred in Southeastern Massachusetts, which maybe helps to bring the message home as we approach Christmas and New Year's: Don't drink and drive.

State Police made 75 OUI (operating under the influence) arrests during the Thanksgiving weekend, 71 alcohol-related and four drug-related. About a quarter of the 75 arrests came about from scheduled checkpoints. Nine arrests were made at just one checkpoint. That suggests that when cars are stopped to check the sobriety of their drivers, there is a much higher rate of discovery than that reflected in stops made of automobiles seen to be operated questionably and pulled over. Which tells us that there are way too many people on the road who shouldn't be.

Take for instance the Rhode Island man who was recently arrested in Seekonk and charged with operating under the influence of alcohol, speeding, negligent operation of a motor vehicle and a marked-lanes violation. It was his ninth OUI arrest in Massachusetts. The arresting police officer said the driver was weaving back and forth across the double yellow line in the road – that means weaving into the oncoming lane of traffic. The driver reportedly refused to take a blood alcohol test, which could trigger a lifetime suspension of his driver's license.

Under Melanie's Law, a refusal to take a chemical test will result in an immediate 180-day license suspension with no prior OUI conviction, a three-year suspension with one OUI, five years for two OUIs, and lifetime for three or more.

If a stopped driver agrees to take a Breathalizer test and his blood alcohol concentration is found to be .08 or higher, his license will be suspended for 30 days. For an operator under 21, the level for suspension is .02. There are enhanced penalties for kids under 18.

There are reasons for these suspensions. We have to keep drunk drivers off the road. Anyone can make a mistake, and so the penalty is progressive. But nobody should require more than one arrest to learn. And for each arrest on our highways, how many times do some people drive under the influence without being arrested?

We love to celebrate the holidays. We love to spread good cheer, and maybe there's even more inclination by some to do so during these continuing trying times. But regardless of our motive, we cannot ignore responsibility.

Our bodies can assimilate about an ounce of alcohol per hour. So if you're out and about, remember that and stop imbibing at the right time. It's OK to say no thanks to an offer of another drink.

It's easy to say don't drink and drive; it's harder to practice it, especially for some during the holidays when parties and traveling tend to pick up. But remember, local and State Police will be on the roads during peak party times as well. It's up to us to enforce ourselves and to look out for our friends and loved ones.

Please consider being a designated alcohol-free driver for a group and please be strong enough to take away the keys of a friend you know should not drive. The holidays are a time of celebration and joyfulness. Let's not let them become a time of tragedy and second-guessing. It just isn't worth it.

WINTER WAVES

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Sabotaging cell phone reception

TO THE EDITOR:

Nearly everyone in Cohasset soon will have a cell phone. Currently, cell phone reception in Cohasset is poor, thus affecting all cell phone users. Therefore, nearly all Cohasset residents would benefit from the improvement obtained by installing an additional transmitting antenna at a high elevation. The water tank at the top of Pleasant Street would provide the best readily available location, thus serving all townspeople, not only with much needed improvement in reception, but also with some revenue from the phone company for hosting the antenna on our water tank.

Why then are a few residents (see last week's Mariner) quibbling about whether the Selectmen or the Water Department should contract with the phone company? Does it really matter, as long as the town somehow does the sensible thing and gets the needed antenna in place? Can't the width and location of the access road to the tank be resolved by common sense cooperation between town officials, without a resident taking her quibbles to court?

Is there something in Cohasset's water that incites people to seek and magnify objections to any proposed action, when a little commonsensical compromising would deliver a reasonable solution? The safety issues raised by comically angry citizens hardly merit the passionate sincerity with which they were emoted.

Timely solutions usually are less costly to us all, and usually at least as cost-effective and satisfactory as whatever emerges from protracted nit picking. The Board of Selectmen may be the senior agency in town, but that does not mean that every little problem must be dragged to its doorstep for resolution. Better it concentrate on the important issues, of which there is no scarcity.

Of course, discussion is healthy and debate often results in an improved solution, and may prevent us from a disastrous action. But discussion should always be conducted in the spirit of determining a solution, not to hamstring the solution.

HEALTH NOTES

'Twas the Night Before Christmas

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

'Twas the night before Christmas and all through the town
A rumor was spread of a happ'ning renown;
Selectmen considered with differing stances
All the Town's issues: ponds and finances.

The hope was quite rife that our water is pure;
But nevertheless we can't be too sure.
If cost is a factor, it's made of champagne
With nary a drop of it entering the drain.

The citizens nestled with holiday thought
Of windmills, small harbors; and stuff that we've bought.
We've come to a season where all have good wills
At least until March when we start getting bills.

Then up at Town Hall, they made such a clatter
We asked of ourselves what could be the matter?
We learned all the ways to do what we oughta
To get rid of the problems brought by the wattah.

Next year we'll change staff in various places
To solve all dilemma: a crew of new faces
It's Santa; he's come to save us from harm.
With CPC money he'll keep us all warm.

Our problems are few and our benefits great
It seems that's the truth, but never we'll know
It's Christmas! Feel Good! As Joy we create
Just think what would be if water were snow!

So!

LIFE AT CHS

NATALIE DIGNAM

Get your very own edition of the Spinnaker for just $1! Find out what's going for the holidays at CHS!

It's the last week before vacation, and it's about time! Luckily this year Cohasset got that white Christmas that always seems to turn into sleet in previous years. Not so luckily, we didn't even get a delay (like Scituate…), never mind a day off like some seniors hoped for because, after all, we don't have to make them up!

And what's happening at CHS this week? Some caroling by the Latin I class and a very exclusive Band Party, which includes a VERY exclusive Band Secret Santa, and no, I'm not in band, why do you ask? But in all seriousness, the last week before vacation is always busy with last minute assignments and papers, which are most likely begun on Wednesday night (that is unless you were invited to that band party).

This week, One Act castings will be listed on Thursday outside Mrs. Noble's room in the Middle School. Also this Thursday, the Spinnaker is published! Get your very own edition of the Spinnaker for just $1! Find out what's going for the holidays at CHS! And this winter, Cohasset has teamed up with Hanover to create the girls CHS Hockey game. Their first game was this Wednesday night against Walpole. Good luck girls on your season! And that's about it for this week, happy holidays CHS!

Natalie Dignam is a senior at CHS. Her column appears weekly during the school year.

Orphans have arrived in their new home

LETTER FROM KENYA

VIRGINIA BURBANK

To my dear friends and students in Cohasset: Merry Christmas!

Yes, my dream has come true, and many of you have made it happen. God has used you as instruments to help me build this beautiful place in Kenya. Well, the orphanage is finished, and we now have 18 precious orphans living with us. The best thing about it is that the children all call me "Grammie." And to think that I was so sad for so many years because I had no grandchildren. God must have heard my prayer. As much as I loved teaching at Cohasset High School, this life of reaching out to the poor and the unloved children of Kenya has given me more joy than one person can possibly take in.

I have come to believe that there is no greater work on the face of the earth than to give these children a place to call home.

All of our children have come from desperate poverty, living in the bush in filthy mud huts with no food, no electricity, no water, no toilet, no money, no education and no family. Their parents are dead, and there was nobody to love them. When we found them, we took them in — to live in the most beautiful home in Gachoka, Kenya. It is called Oasis of Peace. It is truly an oasis in the desert of poverty, disillusionment, suffering and abandonment. This oasis is so lovely and refreshing. It stands on a hill in the middle of the Kenyan mountains beckoning God's little throwaways to come and find comfort, security and love.

Each child has his or her own bed, and even a pillow. Not one of them has ever seen a pillow. Never. But now they each have one. They also have clean sheets, warm blankets, and even their own closets and cupboards with a personal key to maintain privacy. Our food is very nourishing, plenty of greens with every nutritious meal. Raw carrots are served as after school snacks.

We have enrolled them all in a very difficult Catholic academy called Saint Peter and Paul's Montessori Academy, and they are picked up every morning at 7a.m. Because they have never been to school, they find themselves at the bottom of their classes. Class rank is very important to Kenyans. At the supper table one night, the children divulged their embarrassment about being at the bottom of their respective classes "29 out of 29" said Mwaniki, "26 out of 26" said Mutembei, "32 out of 32" said Wincate. "O my!" said I.

I promptly set up "December Vacation School" from 7 a.m. till noon every day during which the children are learning math, English, Kiswahili and Bible. In Kenya, the children have all of December off, and they begin a new school year on Jan. 2. I found four volunteer teachers for the month, and the children are truly responding and improving. I needed to locate and use my Cohasset teaching skills once again at the ripe old age of 71.

Mrs. Burbank says she has come to believe that there is no greater work on the face of the earth than to give these children a place to call home.

Each child has his or her own bed, and even a pillow. Not one of them has ever seen a pillow. Never. But now they each have one.

Christmas is coming and we are so thrilled that so many generous Americans have sent so many toys to the children by ship. We have hidden them in storage, and we plan to do one toy up a day from now till Christmas and then put them under the tree. The children have never seen a Christmas tree nor received a Christmas gift in their lives. I just cannot imagine how wonderful all of this will be for them. I am also writing a Christmas play for the children to perform at church. Another staff member is forming an Oasis choir for Christmas – all children.

We are also keeping close watch over their health. The ringworms on their heads are now disappearing because we took them to the clinic to get them internal as well as external medicine. Many suffer from typhoid, malaria and Amoeba, but the medication is so strong that these three diseases are relatively easy to cure if caught in time. The two AIDS victims are gaining weight as a result of the "Moms'" faithfulness in dispensing their meds each day, excellent food – especially spinach three times a week and the raw carrots for after school snacks.

Our Fundraising Board in America is doing a splendid job finding sponsors for each child, which will give us the steady funds we need to keep this place afloat. If you would like to make a tax-deductible donation to our children, you may write a check out to "An Orphan's Dream Inc." Box 692727, Quincy, MA 02269. The money will be sent directly to us in Kenya.

Merry Christmas and lots of love from Mrs. Burbank and the Board: Paul, Moses Dianah, the Moms and Aunties: Martha, Margaret, Salome, Murugi, and all of the volunteer teachers, Benjamin, Martin, John and Christine.

With warmest memories of you, my dear students.
Mrs. Burbank

Editor's Note: Mrs. Virginia Burbank is a former Cohasset High School English teacher. She retired in 1996 after 32 years of teaching in the district. In 2006, she traveled to sub-Saharan Africa, to Nairobi, Kenya, to visit her missionary sister and saw thousands of children living in poverty and filth — and without parents to watch over them. She felt she was called to do something about it. For the past four years, she has worked endlessly to build an orphanage – An Oasis of Peace – in the heart of Kenya.

The best traditions of our service

CALLING ALL VETERANS

RONALD WHEATLEY

"I had to go on a mission in a single engine plane with a Turkish national. The weather was good when we took off from Ankara, but it gradually deteriorated into a blinding snowstorm. Suddenly the pilot shouted 'we are not going to make it!'"

If you go to "French Memories" in Cohasset around 8 a.m., you might see longtime Scituate resident Frank Giordano – though he blends in with the crowd – a habit formed from a long career as an agent with the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA). Spies can never speak of their professional successes, but they can share some unclassified anecdotes and public records about life in their Service.

A native of Connecticut, Giordano graduated from Catawba College in Salisbury, N.C., in 1951, where he majored in sociology and business, he returned to his home state to work for AVCO Aircraft Co. in Stratford, Conn.

"After about five years of working for the aircraft plant, I ran into a former classmate from high school who suggested I might to try to get into one of the government agencies," Giordano said. "I spoke Italian and Spanish. So I submitted a letter to the CIA expressing interest in working for the Agency. I received a return letter informing me that they would have to do a background investigation. Six months later I received a letter setting up an interview at a nearby hotel."

At that initial meeting Giordano took a series of written tests and when completed, his contact left with the promise that he would get back to him. He was back to work at AVCO for another six months when he received a letter inviting him to report to the CIA offices for more tests, including a polygraph at their headquarters, which, at that time, was part of a four-building complex (HIJK) located on Constitution Avenue in Washington, D.C. A fully vetted Giordano began his career in the Agency in 1957 with his first assignment to the Middle East desk in Washington.

After a year and a half serving under the tutelage of a veteran officer, Giordano was assigned abroad to Aleppo, the second largest city in Syria.

"In 1959, I arrived in Syria. The US Embassy was located in Damascus, and I was assigned to work out of the U.S. Consulate in Aleppo. Since I had no overseas experience the chief of station worked with me. After a while when the Chief traveled I took over all the duties." According to Giordano, Syria was part of the United Arab Republic, UAR, dominated by Egypt, and not particularly friendly toward the United States. "Sometimes I would receive anonymous harassment/warning calls late at night."

Completing his first two-year overseas assignment Giordano returned to the Washington and to the then newly constructed CIA Headquarters in Langley, Va., where he was transferred to the Turkish desk.

In early November 1963, he was assigned to the Embassy in Ankara as a political officer. "I was walking up to my apartment in Ankara when I heard the news that President John F. Kennedy had been assassinated. Turkey and America were allies and the Turkish citizens who knew I was an American expressed their condolences."

"We crash landed near a remote U.S. airbase in eastern Turkey. We survived the hard landing but our damaged plane was suddenly attacked by a pack of huge hungry wolves coming down from the frozen mountains. 'Don't get out,' the pilot ordered. Then I heard shots. It was the Air Force guards shooting and scaring the wolves away so we could get out of the plane." In spite of the difficulties Giordano and his colleague completed their mission. Giordano was by now fluent in Turkish and could pass as a native.

Completing his four-year tour in Turkey, Giordano returned to Langley in 1967, to the Turkish desk. "But the Vietnam Desk was taking officers from each and every other Desk and they picked me to go to Vietnam."

In late 1967 Giordano arrived in Saigon and was assigned an apartment in a large building a few blocks from the U.S. Embassy.

"I got to know a Vietnamese woman artist who ran a nearby art shop. One morning she stopped me as I was going to work. 'Mr. Frank, Mr. Frank, can you help me. I have four children and tonight will be rocket attack. Can I bring my children up to your apartment tonight?'"

"I brought them up, gave the kids ice cream, put them all to bed and I slept on the floor. And sure enough a rocket attack occurred."

The 122 mm rocket that rocked Saigon in the predawn hours of Jan. 31, 1968, signaled for the sleeping city the coordinated communist forces attack against almost every important location and target in South Vietnam. A few blocks away from Giordano's apartment Viet Cong (VC) guerilla suicide sappers had penetrated the walls and over run the grounds of the previously invulnerable U.S. Embassy, killing a number of U.S. and South Vietnamese guards. The VC occupied the Embassy grounds for eight hours before they were driven out.

Once the embassy was retaken, Giordano was there when a radio message came in from a besieged American unit fighting about 10 miles away "rapidly running out of ammunition: need resupply as enemy closing in." Giordano volunteered to provide the needed help. "We hopped into a waiting truck and drove into the jungle to the ammo supply hut to load the ammunition onto a helicopter while under small arms enemy fire." Not long afterwards the Embassy radio cracked again with thanks for the ammunition that arrived just in time and resulted in saving 15 American soldiers lives.

For this action Giordano received the CIA Citation of Merit which reads in part: "In recognition of his superior performance of duty while engaged in operations resulting from the Tet Offensive in an atmosphere of widespread hazard, Mr. Giordano, working under conditions of great stress, demonstrated resourcefulness and high dedication in responding to the needs of the situation. The exercise of these qualities brought results of great value during a period of violence and confusion and adds luster to the best tradition of our service."

The Citation shares a place on the wall of the Giordano's home with an original painting presented to him by his Vietnamese friend whose family he helped save during Tet.

Just before his second tour in Vietnam Giordano came to Scituate to marry Joan Grassey, a highly regarded secretary he met at the CIA. Joan's mother, Grace, was a longtime teacher in Scituate Public Schools. His new bride accompanied Giordano during his second tour in Vietnam. They live in Scituate. They have one son, Frank Jr.

A look back at year's big stories

FOR THE RECORD

GREGORY MATHIS

We're getting to that time of year when media outlets start rolling out end-of-the-year retrospective pieces.

Whether it's CNN recapping the top news stories, ESPN replaying the top sports moments, or your favorite radio station counting down the top songs, the end of the year is traditionally a time to reflect.

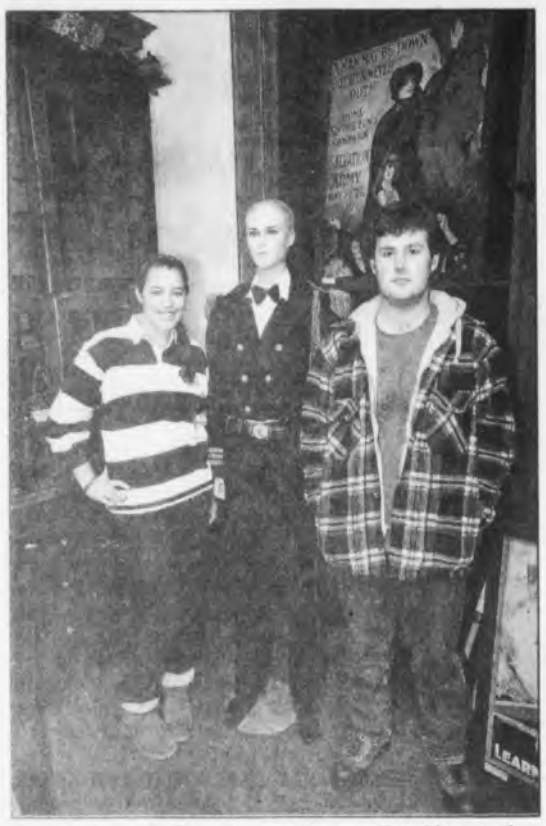
Many of our newspapers will be taking a look back at the year over the next couple of weeks as 2010 winds down. Most of our year in review coverage focuses on local newsmakers and the local stories we covered throughout the year. But being a community newspaper doesn't prevent us from putting a local perspective on regional, state, national, and even international stories.

That was certainly the case in 2010.

Probably one of the biggest stories of 2010 was the emergence of Facebook as a social (networking) phenomenon. From the movie "The Social Network" to Time magazine naming its founder Mark Zuckerberg "Person of the Year," Facebook got its share of press – both good and bad. Locally, one of our papers – the Cohasset Mariner – was the first to report a Facebook post by an educator who badmouthed the parents and students in the community. The story was picked up by the daily newspapers in the area and eventually made its way to the Associated Press and was being discussed nationwide.

Hopefully we have more positive stories than sad stories in 2011 and we look forward to the time all of our troops return home safely.

Two national stories that originated elsewhere eventually made their way onto our pages because of local connections. One was the shooting spree at the University of Alabama at Huntsville, when former Braintree resident Amy Bishop took the life of three professors and injured three others. Bishop made news in Braintree back in 1986 when she killed her brother in Braintree. The incident was ruled accidental, the Braintree Forum's coverage from 1986 came into play as the national media pieced together Bishop's past. Another big national story that had local impact was the recent shooting of Pace University student DJ Henry in New York. Henry, an Easton resident and local football star, was shot by police outside a nightclub in October. The Easton Journal has been following the local reaction to this story, as well as providing thoughtful coverage of the funeral.



As far as top stories go, the 2010 State Election was certainly one of the biggest, as voters responded with the second highest turnout in a non-presidential election in recent memory. We held debates, participated in debates, and used our resources to bring readers information to help them make informed decisions for local and statewide races, as well as the ballot questions. It was an exciting election season, making us look forward to 2012 and the next presidential election.

There are also international stories that make news in our communities. The wars in Afghanistan and Iraq have been big local stories for several years because of the local soldiers serving in the Armed Forces. Unfortunately some of the stories have been about soldiers dying or being wounded, but there have been stories of bravery, courage and perseverance. Hopefully we have more positive stories than sad stories in 2011 and we look forward to the time all of our troops return home safely.

As we approach the one-year anniversary of the devastating earthquake in Haiti, we are reminded of all the charitable work done in our towns following this disaster, as well as the many thoughts and prayers that originated locally. The earthquake had significant impact on communities with residents of Haitian descent particularly Randolph, and our coverage in the Randolph Herald highlighted the community vigils and fundraising efforts. And we continue to cover a local organization based in Rockland — Medicines for Humanity — that continues to help those in need nearly one year later.

Those are just some of my thoughts and observations on big stories that mattered in 2010. I look forward to hearing what you have to say. Please comment on my For the Record blog at http://blogs.wickedlocal.com/fortherecord/ or send an e-mail to gmathis@cnc.com and tell me what you consider to be the top stories of the year.

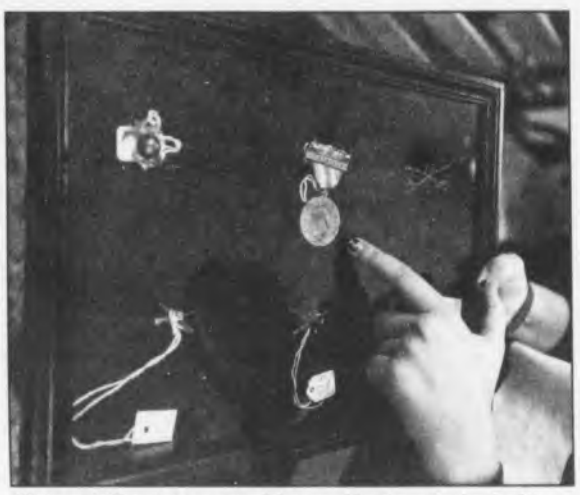
hiccups. Whitney said the best part for her was when all the pieces had come together: all the photos had been hung, the uniforms placed on mannequins, and the labels drawn up.

"Seeing it come together was my favorite part. I was really proud of it," Whitney said. But, it was not to last.

The room where the exhibit had been hung experienced a radiator leak last week. The result was a mini-flood and all the pieces that Whitney and Prescott had carefully placed had to be moved to the adjacent room. Luckily, none of the artifacts were damaged, but the students had to start anew with putting up the exhibit in a new and more limited space.

This week the pair was spending their time putting the final pieces on display. Prescott and Whitney said they worked well together on the project, each was able to work on the parts of the project they liked the most. The students spent three days a week at the historical society during the school day and, as the exhibit deadline loomed, started coming in some afternoon hours.



Prescott Coughlin looks in the storeroom for more uniforms from Ames Loder for the World War 1 exhibit entitled, The Great War, 1914-1918.

Whitney and Prescott have invited the high school's US History classes to come view the exhibit in January.

Prior to putting together the exhibit Whitney and Prescott spent time doing the work that keeps the society's collection organized and cataloged. They visited the society's museums, Maritime Museum and the Capt. John Wilson House and helped transcribe 100-year-old letters.

"There was always something to do," Prescott said. During down time they even looked up some things that were of personal interest (their home's history, stories on Brush Island off Sandy Beach, or the making of Minot Light).

Whitney Jaffe points to a medal earned by Ames Loder for his service during World War 1.

Lynne DeGiacomo, director of the Cohasset Historical Society, said she has been impressed with the work ethic and interest in local history by both Whitney and Prescott.

"This was the first two who asked to put up an exhibit, which I think is particularly impressive," DeGiacomo said. "It was their idea, their execution and even with the mini-flood they rallied and they've really done a nice job."

"My favorite part was getting to touch something that was a part of World War I."

— Prescott Coughlin

All in all, the students really enjoyed their time at the historical society and would recommend other students to spend their volunteer hours there.

"People should really come visit the historical society. There are lots of cool stuff here," Whitney said.

The Historical Society headquarters is located at 104 South Main St. in Cohasset. The students' exhibit on World War I will be on display until the end of January. The society is open Monday through Friday from 10a.m. to 4p.m.

Remembering 'Rocky'

Former long-time selectman loved Cohasset

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

FILE PHOTO

Born and raised in Cohasset, Rocco "Rocky" Laugelle loved no other place more than his hometown.

The former selectman and tried-and-true Cohasset townie passed away at 82 years old peacefully surrounded by family early on Sunday.

Over the course of a decade and a half Laugelle was one of the guiding forces for the town of Cohasset. He was served on the Board of Selectmen from 1979 to 1994.

"He always supported the townspeople and never forgot he grew up here," said former Selectman Martha Gjesteby, who served with him for nine years. "It was the end of an era when Rocky left the Board of Selectmen."

Laugelle was a part of the town's political arena for many years. Before being elected as a selectmen he was on the water and sewer commission. For many years he represented the town on the Norfok County Commission.

He was a Marine during World War II and was an active member of the American Legion in the decades that followed. He spent his 42-year working career with the electric company, Brockton Edison.

But, what many who knew him will most vividly recall is his love and dedication to the Town of Cohasset and its residents.

"His family came first, but his town was a close second...he was always willing to help anyone who came to him," said his son, Paul. "He was a get-it-done kind of guy."

For example, according to the Narrative History of Cohasset Volume 3, Laugelle led the South Shore Community Center through a renovation of its bowling alleys and upstairs apartments in the late 70s while he was on the organization's Board of Directors.

Laugelle, who was part of a large and well-known Cohasset family (he is one of 12 kids), saw the town through many transitions. He served on the Board of Selectmen as it made its transition from a three-member board to a five-member board in 1983 and he was a part of town leadership as the executive secretary position was first created.

At the selectmen's meetings, he would have a very distinct style, his son Paul said.

"He would listen to the jibber jabber, as he called it, at the meetings then when the time came he would suggest a down home common sense approach," Paul said, and many times his fellow selectmen would agree.

"He had a lot of passion and he would say exactly what was on his mind, sometimes people didn't want to hear and sometimes they did," said former Selectman Michael Sullivan.

Jane Goedecke, who served with him on the Board of Selectmen for four years, described him an almost larger-than-life figure with a colorful personality.

"You could always tell it meant a great amount to him to be a selectman and work for the town. He wasn't shy with his opinion, but I enjoyed working with him and I found him to be very sweet," Goedecke said.

"He wasn't without controversy but he would always do what he thought was right for the town. He's going to be missed."
— Ronnie Goodwin, friend

Gjesteby said Laugelle had a definite constituency. Several of the former selectmen interviewed said they were fortunate not to have had to run against him.

Long-time friend Ronnie Goodwin said Laugelle possessed a rare quality absent in many politicians these days: the ability to disagree on an issue without the disagreement spilling over to a friendship.

"He always spoke his mind, even if people didn't like him for it. But, the thing about him was he didn't hold grudges with the people he disagreed with," Goodwin said.

As an example, Goodwin said during the height of the Vietnam War he and Laugelle got into several heated discussions over the issue. Laugelle supported the war and Goodwin opposed it.

"Despite that we always remained friends. Sometimes local politicians take the issues too serious and begin to dislike their opponents. He wasn't like that. At the end of the day when we saw each other we could still be friendly," Goodwin said. "The goal was to make the town better — that was his focus."

Goodwin said many people don't realize the integral role Laugelle played in the building of the water treatment plant and the Aaron River Reservoir in the late 70's. Laugelle served on the water and sewer commission for 12 years before becoming a selectman.

"Back then Cohasset was really fortunate to have guys like Rocky (When the reservoir and treatment plant were built) it put us at the envy of all the other towns...we had more capacity than all the other towns around us," Goodwin said.

"He wasn't without controversy but he would always do what he thought was right for the town," Goodwin said. "He's going to be missed."

Many interviewed described Laugelle as a character.

His son, Paul, quipped that his dad was "one of kind, which is probably a good thing for the rest of us."

To shed light on his personality, Goodwin shared a story from many years ago. It involved Laugelle and a crowded room at a yacht club wedding in Maine. The many guests in the room made it impossible for Laugelle and, anyone really, to get to the bar on the other side of the room.

Laugelle took matters into his own hands, Goodwin said. He clinked a piece of silverware to a glass and announced that the father-of-the-bride would like to make a toast down on the dock. The guests more or less cleared the room giving way to a clear path to the bar.

"Who would ever have had the gall to pull that off," Goodwin said with a laugh.

In the greater picture, Laugelle had his priorities straight. He was the father of four children, uncle to many, many nieces and nephews, grandfather to 12 and great-grandfather to two.

"Family came first, but a close second was the town of Cohasset," his son Paul reiterated. "(My dad) liked to have a good time and laugh, but he could be serious when he needed to be serious."

A funeral mass will be celebrated on Wednesday, Dec. 29 at 10a.m. in St. Anthony's Church. Visiting hours will be on Tuesday, Dec. 28 from 3 to 7p.m. in St. Anthony's Parish Center.

If desired, donations in Laugelle's memory may be made to George H. Mealy Post #118 Scholarship Fund, 98 Summer St., Cohasset.

Holiday drive to support Cradles to Crayons

Donations can be brought to St. Stephen's Church through Dec. 30.

The Arnold family, along with the Cohasset PSO and St. Stephen's Church, invite people to support the Cradles to Crayons holiday drive by collecting winter clothing. People are asked to consider donating any new/gently used winter coats, hats, mittens, boots, clothes, shoes, infant items, books and toys; no stuffed animals.

Donations can be brought to St. Stephen's Church through Dec. 30.

Approximately 305,000 children, ages 0 through 12, live in poor or low-income households in Massachusetts and may go without coats, clothing and footwear this year if not for the work of Cradles to Crayons. In 2009, C2C served 45,000 children across the state. Their goal this year is to serve 50,000 children. Last year, Cradles to Crayons received more than 11,000 orders for winter coats. They expect to receive as many as 15,000 requests in 2010.

SOCCER

NAME: Emily Gallagher
SCHOOL: Duxbury
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward/midfielder
STATS: The All-State and Eastern Mass. All-Star finished fourth in the Patriot League in scoring with eight goals and 14 assists. The Holy Cross bound senior played an instrumental role in getting the Duxbury High School soccer team all the way to the sectional finals.

NAME: Emily Brook
SCHOOL: Duxbury
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Keeper
STATS: Brook earned All-State honors after another impressive season in goal for the Lady Dragons. The number one keeper in the Patriot League, Brook posted a 0.630 goals against average and had nine shutouts. She went 3-1 in the postseason, allowing only one goal in each of her three tournament victories.

NAME: Alanna Woodford
SCHOOL: Scituate
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Keeper
STATS: Woodford was a key factor in Scituate's run to the playoffs, notching eight shutouts during the regular season. The Patriot League All-Star is also a star ice hockey player, who led Scituate in scoring last season.

NAME: Katherine Murphy
SCHOOL: Weymouth
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Defense
STATS: Defenders do not have many stats. It's about character. "Katherine Murphy is a tremendous leader on and off the field," Coach John MacIntyre. She is more of an old school type of leader. Murphy played a little bit as a freshman and as a sophomore and she took on a starting role as a junior and hasn't come off the field since. That is a testament to her perseverance.

NAME: Amanda Pugliese
SCHOOL: Pembroke
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Defense
STATS: There was a reason why the Lady Titans made it all the way to the Division 2 South Sectional semifinals, and it had a large part to do with the play of Patriot League All-Star defender Pugliese. She anchored a back line that helped Pembroke record six shutouts this season, and her play in the postseason was outstanding.

NAME: Renee Trudeau
SCHOOL: Pembroke
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: A dangerous player on the left flank, Trudeau led Pembroke with 15 goals this past fall. She also had six assists and finished fifth in the Patriot League in scoring.

NAME: Melissa Gavin
SCHOOL: Duxbury
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Gavin, one of only three girls in Massachusetts to be named All-American, finished tied for third in the state in scoring (29 goals, 15 assists) and first in the Patriot League. The All-State and Eastern Mass. All-Star will play soccer at Yale University next fall.

NAME: Michelle Coate
SCHOOL: Pembroke
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Coate led the Lady Titans with 11 assists. Combine that with her 11 goals (second on the team) and Coate finished sixth in the Patriot League in scoring.

NAME: Krista Prouty
SCHOOL: Norwell
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: One of Norwell's most consistent forwards throughout her career, Prouty capped her high school career with another impressive campaign. She finished ninth in the state in scoring (22 goals, nine assists) and second in the league. A South Shore League All-Star, Prouty led her team and the league in goals scored.

NAME: Jennifer Toohey
SCHOOL: Hanover
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Defense
STATS: Toohey's defense was a big reason that Hanover went to the Division 3 South Sectional semifinal. She was named to the Eastern Mass. Girls Soccer Coaches Association First Team and was also a Patriot League All-Star.

NAME: Julia Leahy
SCHOOL: Hingham
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Leahy was named to the Eastern Massachusetts All-Star Team and was a Patriot League All-Star. She led Hingham's scoring as well.

NAME: Allison DeBenedictis
SCHOOL: Norwell
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: After a great sophomore season, DeBenedictis took her game to another level this fall. The South Shore League All-Star finished eighth in the state and first in the South Shore League in scoring with 21 goals and 11 assists.

NAME: Molly Peters
SCHOOL: Scituate
YEAR: Junior
POSITION: Forward
STATS: Peters stepped up for Scituate on the offensive end, and led the team in scoring, filling a need that had coach Ross Maki worried about at the beginning of the season. Peters was named a Patriot League All-Star.

NAME: Molly Lodigiani
SCHOOL: Norwell
YEAR: Senior
POSITION: Defense
STATS: If the opposition managed to get past Norwell's midfielders, it ran into a solid backline, anchored by Lodigiani. The South Shore League All-Star was also extremely versatile and had no problem transitioning to the midfield and even up front on a few occasions.

Cohasset's Robert Jones takes a shot against East Bridgewater on Tuesday. Jones will be a key factor on this year's squad.

BOYS BASKETBALL

Renewed hope

By William Wassersug
WWASSERS@CNC.COM

With a new year comes new hope, and this season seems a prime example of that hope for the Cohasset boys basketball team.

A year ago, the boys struggled after losing star center Dan Martin to graduation and John Maher to injury.

Cohasset coach Bo Ruggiero, the Skippers' Hall of Fame coach knew it would be tough without Martin.

Losing Maher made it even more difficult.

"My first year we had a great season," Ruggiero said. "We had 15 wins, made the MIAA Tournament and won many accolades. Danny Martin was a vital piece of the puzzle. Last year I didn't think we'd be at that echelon, but I thought we'd be competitive."

It didn't turn out that way.

Too often, Cohasset found itself getting beaten badly, and found itself filled more with athletes than basketball players.

That said, this season looks to be totally different.

With a year of experience under their belt, many of Cohasset's young athletes have turned into basketball players.

It is a distinction Ruggiero knows is important.

"Experience will turn athletes into basketball players," he said. "A lot of underclassmen were in their first year playing at the varsity level. With the exception of Robert Jones we were undersized and inexperienced. We had no depth."

That isn't the case this season.

Jones had himself a solid season last year and was named a South Shore League All-Star for the second straight year.

Jones is a senior captain this year and he's already had one huge game with a 31-point performance in the season-opener against Hull.

"Robert Jones is a 5-8 senior co-captain," Ruggiero said. "Last year he averaged 15 points and led the team in assists and steals. He shoots well from the floor and the line. He's our point man. As Robert goes, the team goes." him.

Ruggiero said Jones grew last season.

"Robert was in a unique position in that he had four guys with zero varsity experience playing with him," he said. "He was called on to do much more than he will be this year. He's also a little bigger and more mature this year."

Jones will have help from many places this season.

It starts with senior co-captain Sam Richardson.

Richardson, who had a great season in net for the soccer team, has also reaped the benefits of an extra year to grow.

"Sam gained 15 pounds from his junior to senior year," Ruggiero said. "Last year he was 6-1/2 feet. He's put on 15 pounds and 1-½ inches in a year. Sam has made a quantum leap physically and mentally. He's worked at becoming a good a player as he could become."

Richardson averaged 12 points per game as a junior.

"Sam will be a major player," Ruggiero said. "He's worked hard on his game. I'm expecting a great season from him."

Another starter with some experience under his belt is Robbie Mahoney, a 6-3 junior.

He'll play power forward and center.

"Robbie is a wide body," Ruggiero said. "As a sophomore he averaged nine points a game and was our leading rebounded. As a freshman he was a six-foot backup center. He went up to 6 ½ feet last year and is 6-2 ½ now.

"Robbie can put up some numbers on the offensive end, but he's also a defensive presence. He'll play the opponent's center. He rebounds well. He has very good hands and good feet. He's solid. If he understands

Boys and girls beat E.B.

Robbie Mahoney and Kyrel Jaundoo both notched double-doubles and Robert Jones scored 23 points as the Cohasset boys basketball team beat visting East Bridgewater 68-47 Tuesday night at Cohasset.

Mahoney and Jaundoo both scored 10 points and had 10 rebounds to lead the Skippers in a game that wasn't as close as the score indicated.

"The game was never in doubt," Cohasset coach Bo Ruggiero said. "We went out to a 14-0 lead and got it to 17-2. We ended the first period with a 32-9 lead. The press, along with the fast break led to Sam Richardson scoring 10 points in the period."

Jones scored six in the first quarter, including a buzzer-beating three-pointer and Jaundoo added six in the frame.

Jones had another buzzer-beating trey to close out the third quarter.

Ruggiero said the second quarter was solid for the Skippers.

"In the second period we kept the intensity up," Ruggiero said. "Robbie Mahoney did a great job holding their center to one basket."

Cohasset took a 46-19 lead into the half.

"In the third period we outscored them 16-10," Ruggiero said. "In the fourth

SPECIAL TO THE COHASSET MARINER

The Skippers in Singlets wrestled Canton, Marshfield, and Milton last Saturday, defeating Canton while suffering a minor loss against Marshfield.

The Boys in Blue made up for it by obliterating Milton 66 – 6. Go Blue!

Cohasset took on Canton first, with Nick Tangherlini, after engaging in brutal combat with his opponent clad in green, winning by decision to get the Skippers on (the) board.

Derek Froio won his match, and so did by Justin Yeager, Thomas Flibotte, Michael Livingstone, and Robert Weiss. The boys were ahead, and Alex Kinnealey added 3 more digits to their plenty of points. Junior captain Gus Helbock pinned his opponent in the first round near the end of the match, and the final score was 40-27.

Great accomplishments abound

POPPIN' OFF

WILLIAM WASSERSUG

First off, here are a few congratulations for a few local athletes and coaches who have had some accolades and accomplishments over the past few weeks.

We'll start with Cohasset senior hockey player Anders Goetz, who scored his 100th career point on Saturday during an 11-0 win over Harwich at Orleans.

"It was a goal-scorers goal," Cohasset coach Bob Walsh said. "It was a snipe shot on the left side late in the first period. Alex Evans attacked the zone and found Anders with the puck on the left wing side. Anders ripped a nice wrist shot that beat the goalie clean to the far side."

Other notables in that game were career-first goals by freshmen Tommy O'Brien and Chris Lund.

Freshman goalie Brandon Winn picked up his first varsity with with a 15-save shutout.

More congratulations are in what he needs to do (play tough defense) it will be good for him and the team."

Ruggiero said Mahoney's rebounding and defense will help fuel the fast paced style of game Cohasset wants to play.

"Teams are going to be aware of Robbie," he said. "We're trying to incorporate team trust, similar to the way good teams do. Everyone does what they're supposed to do."

Kyrel Jaundoo, a 6-1 junior also has a double-double this season.

He's another player who has worked on his game and has become a basketball player.

"Kyrel Jaundoo started last year as a sophomore," Ruggiero said. "It was only his second year of organized basketball. He averaged seven points and six rebounds a game. He has worked hard to make himself a better basketball player. His maturity, his mental and physical state are improved. We'll put him in the up spot on the press. He has a shot at being a very good basketball player. He's undersized, but he is very athletic and he's hard working. He can dunk. As a junior he will be a very important part of the puzzle."

The final starter is 6-0 sophomore Shane Haggerty, who has no problem with big game pressure. He was on the State Championship baseball team and pitched some big innings and added some clutch hits as well.

"Last year Shane was a freshman starter," Ruggiero said. "Like Kyrel, in other circumstances he wouldn't have been a starter last year. He is a terrific high school basketball player. He's growing. He went from 145 pounds to 160 in a year. He averaged seven points and 3.5 rebounds last season. He's a very fasy forward who has the potential to shoot well. He has terrific upside.

"He's worked at his game over the summer. He's an outstanding athlete. He plays football and baseball."

Chris Murphy, a 6-2 junior will be the first called off the bench.

"Chris played meaningful minutes last year," Ruggiero said. "He's an inch taller this year. He's the first sub in the big position. He ended up with 10 rebounds an six points off the bench against Hull. He's a hard working kid. You can't replace work ethic, and this kid's got it."

Sophomore Christian Davis got some time with the varsity last season. The 5-9 sophomore worked with the varsity practice squad and gained valuable playing experience with the junior varsity. He started every game with the JV last year. He's a quick, solid defender. He'll rotate in on the perimeter."

Freshman Joe Buckley is a solid 6-1 who has big-game experience as a vital member of the Cohasset soccer team that just played in the South Sectional final.

"Joe is one of the hardest working, most intense athletes you'll see," Ruggiero said. "He's a solid kid with a great work ethic. In his debut he scored three points and four rebounds. He'll be an important part of the rotation."

Another freshman who will help is Rocco Languelle.

The 5-9 guard will back up Jones.

"He's been very impressive," Ruggiero said. "He's picking up the intensity of the varsity game. He played on an eighth grade travel team. He wantes to be a player. The other night he gave us enough minutes to give Robert Jones a mental break."

Freshman Chris Haggerty will see some playing time with brother Shane, and 5-7 sophomore Conor O'Brien will play JV and some varsity.

"Conor is much improved," Ruggiero said. "He's enthusiastic in practice."

Mark Rattenbury is a six-foot freshman who will help the JV and get some minutes with the varsity.

Dick Lawless and Jim Willis are Ruggiero's assistant coaches.

"This is Dick's 11th year with me," Ruggiero said. "He was with me in Foxboro. Jim Willis coaches the JV team. He's a terrific guy and a good coach. The kids like him, I like him. I'm looking forward to the season."

The season will bring its challenges.

The South Shore League is loaded, with outstanding teams like Abington, Norwell and newcomer Rockland all potential champions.

"Rockland has to be a favorite to win the league," Ruggiero said. "They're very well coached. They're a basketball town. They've won championships. Abington has dominated so often for so long. You can't count them out. They lost four starters, but they also beat us by 48 last year. They're a traditional powerhouse.

"Norwell has Nick Volpe. They croaked Carver the other night. Mashpee made the tournament last year. Hull looks strong. Harwich beat us twice last year."

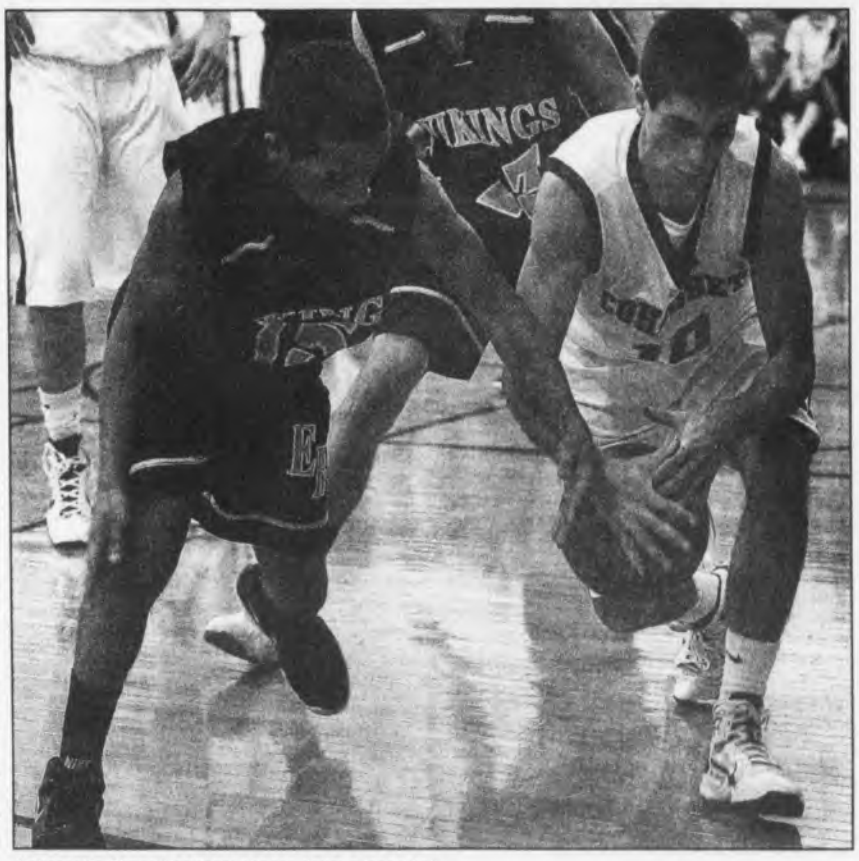
Ruggiero, having been around long enough to know better, has set realistic goals for his team.

"We intend to be as good as we can be," he said. "Hopefully that will get us into the post-season tournament. We have the potential. We have to live up to that potential. We know that as coaches you can teach as best you can and work as hard as you can. Some nights there are going to be teams who have better players that work as hard. We want to be competitive and not have 48-point losses. I feel that we can do that."

Ruggiero said the experience and work in the off-season could be a difference maker.

While there were some blowout losses, Cohasset also lost three rimes in overtime, once by two points, two losses by one point and a few more by four or five points.

This year those game will hopefully go the other direction, and if that happens, the tournament is well within their grasp.



Ruggiero is excited about this group.

"I'm having an enjoyable time," he said. "But I'm not the one running full out in practice."

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse registration open

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse will open its on-line registration for the Spring 2011 season December 1.

To register go to our website www.cohassetlacrosse.com and click on the registration link.

Registrations will be accepted for both boys and girls in grades three through eight. All youth players are welcome, regardless of experience.

Registration will continue until January 31.

The program is committed to accepting every player who signs up during open registration. At that point a waiting list will be established, or players may be turned away.

Fees for grades 3-8 in 2011 are $170 per player, with family pricing of $140 for each additional family member. The price includes the field fee of $10 per player that the town charges to CYL. Scholarships are available for families facing unusual circumstances or financial difficulty. Please check the appropriate box on the on-line form.

If you have any issues with on-line access, or registration related questions you may contact Joe Fitzgerald at fitzpj8@aol.com.

Cohasset Youth Baseball & Softball registration now open

The Cohasset Youth Baseball and Softball Association will hold its annual registration for the upcoming baseball and softball season beginning December 1, 2010 through February 10, 2011.

Visit www.CYBSA.net to register online.

Registration Due Dates and Fees

Regular registration will close on February 10, 2011. Registrations that are completed after February 10, 2011 will be charged a $50 per player late registration fee and late registrants will only be placed on a team if space permits, on a first come-first serve basis.

Registration Fees

Below is the 2011 registration fee for Baseball and Softball programs:

Junior League Baseball and Softball (ages 13 to 14) $150.

Major League Baseball (ages 10 to 12) and Softball Divisions (ages 10 and 12) $150.

American League Baseball (ages 9-11) and Softball (ages 9-10) $125.

National League Baseball (ages 6-8) and Softball (ages 7-8) $100.

Farm League Instructional Baseball (ages 5-6) and Instructional Softball (ages 5-6) $75.

Note: There is a Family Maximum charge of $300 per family. All online registrations will be processed at full-fee. If your total fees exceed $300, you will be issued a check for the difference within 30 days of registration.

Please be advised that returning players already assigned to Major League teams are still required to register. Please direct any question regarding registration to info@cybsa.net.

of a fight, Justin Yeager, Derek Froio, Thomas Fibotte, Zach Washak, Gus Helbock, and Graden Foley all won their matches, dismantling their opponents. The final score: 30-47, Cohasset just barely behind.

Last up was Milton, which promptly lined up against the wall for Cohasset. Yeager, Chris Brash, Flibotte, Kinnealey, Washak, Harry Helbock, Gus Helbock, Axel Sepala, Trevor Tedeschi, Blake Erler, and Foley all devastated their opponents in furious bouts that gave spectators nightmares for days.

Anyways, Coach Sweeney said of the meet:

"Beating Canton, one of our constant rivals, was a big win, and we always have great matches with them," he said. "Last year we lost to them in the dual-meet sectional tournament, and beating them felt good.

"We wrestled Marshfield really tough, 47-30, we beat them in 6 matches, they beat us in 8, but they out pinned us, so, that was a great match, their one of the top teams in the state. And then finishing up with Milton where almost everybody won was a great way to finish the day – lot of real good wrestling."

The Skippers wrestle Weymouth and Hingham at Hingham High School Thursday evening.

Cohasset gymnastics open season

The Cohasset/Norwell gymnastics team opened the season with a 126.35-118.55 loss to Carver/Sacred Heart on Tuesday.

Cohasset/Norwell lost two seniors from last year and one of Norwell's top competitiors decided to play a different sport and one of Cohassets's top players is sidelined with an injury.

Sam Sprague of Norwell placed first in the all around with a 33.75. Sprague finished first on vault 8.40, beam 8.65 and floor 8.50.

Third in the All-Around was Cohasset's Amber Silvia with a 7.8 on vault and floor and an 8.05 on the beam.

" Our goal for the evening was a 120, but we had some falls on beam and bars," said co-coach Ruthann Ardizzoni.

Co Coaches Ruthann Ardizzoni and Nancy Durkin thought the girls did pretty good for the non-league season opener.

Both felt that they could improve a great deal by the end of the season.

The team is back in action Jan. 6 against Silver Lake.

South Coastal Hockey League roundup

By Mark Ducharme
CORRESPONDENT

So much for being the higher seed in the South Coastal Hockey League playoffs.

In the four Fall Playoff games in the South Coastal Hockey League the lower seed won three of them, which included two shutouts.

The only favorite that won their playoff game was the top-seed in the Legends Div. the Toros. The Stingers, Rangers and Canadiens were the three lower seeds to win their playoff games and advance to the finals.

The Stingers win in the Legends Div. was the first playoff win in their history. Pembroke's Mark Frano posted the shutout in the Stingers' 5-0 win over the Whalers and advanced to the finals against the Toros.

Michael Cashin of Norwell, Paul Smyth, Jay Kavangh of Hanover, John Scag and Pembroke's Steve Lemish were the goal scorers for the Stingers, which lost their five playoff games in their history.

Jim Holmes had a goal and an assist, James Ward of Norwell, Paul Brinkman, Dennis Yates and Peter Cleary of Pembroke added a goal each as the Toros built a 4-0 lead and coasted to a 5-2 win over the Saints, which were making their first playoff appearance.

John Thoms and Charles Ryan each scored a goal for the Saints.

The Rangers got two goals from Jim O'Toole of Rockland as they rallied from deficits of 2-0 and 3-2 for a 4-3 victory over the Classics Div.

top-seeded and defending champion Maple Leafs.Marshfield's Joe Craig and Bob Bibeau also scored and O'Toole had an assist for the Rangers, which advance to the finals.

They will face the Canadiens, who got 18 saves from Pembroke's Jeff Hollstein in posting a 6-0 shutout over the Bruins.

Kirk Souza scored two goals, Mike Evans, John MacLellan and Mike Fahie both of Pembroke and Jim Donnelly of Marshfield each added a goal for the Canadiens.

period we played a multitude of substitutes. They played well enough to keep the margin close."

Cohasset made seven of eight free throws and had four players in double figures. Eight players scored for Cohasset.

The Skippers improved to 2-0 and are at Harwich on Thursday.

In girls action, Cohasset downed East Bridgewater 49-28 on Tuesday behind another big night from Carli Haggerty.

Haggerty had 18 points and 11 boards in the Skippers' third win of the year.

Sophomore forward Kristen Alexander had 8 points and 5 rebounds, while senior point guard Rachel Fredey contributed 7 points and 5 assists.

Cohasset hosted Harwich last night.

store for Cohasset field hockey coach Laura Giuliano, who was named the Boston Globe's Div. 2 South Coach of the Year.

"It's a little surreal," Giuliano said about the award. "I'm not looking for and wasn't expecting the recognition. I'm very surprised. When Ron (Cohasset athletic director Ron Ford) told me, I was in the middle of painting my house. I was floored. It's a very nice honor."

Giuliano said the credit should be given to her team.

"The award really belongs to the girls," she said. "I really believe that."

Speaking of field hockey, Giuliano said she enjoyed the Thanksgiving weekend field hockey game between the football team and her girls, a game that has become an annual tradition.

"We beat them in overtime," Giuliano said. "I like it when the girls play the boys. They're really aggressive and they play a little differently. They anticipate things and really want to win."

Giuliano said she enjoyed watching the boys' Kyle Livinstone in net.

"He was a great goalie," she said. "I would love to have him. It was a lot of fun. Last year the boys overpowered us (although the girls won). This year we outskilled them."

Our winter installations are fast, efficient, and for the first time ever, free.

November was the first time we've ever offered Free Installation on our replacement windows. More people took advantage of this offer than we even expected, and some saved up to thousands of dollars! Folks are usually hesitant to have replacement windows installed in the colder months—around the craziness of the holidays—but we're extending this Free Installation offer for one more month only. Now through Dec. 31st your installation will be FREE when you buy five or more windows. And if you think a winter installation will be difficult for you, know that giving it away for free is much harder for us.

Not only will your installation be absolutely free, with our Winter Installation Method™ the entire process, from removal to clean-up, often takes just one day. And our team of Expert Installers works room-by-room, closes the door, and replaces only one window at a time. One installer works outside while another works inside, installing our energy-efficient windows as quickly as possible to minimize your home's exposure.

FREE INSTALLATION
through Dec. 31st only!
or
NO INTEREST FOR 5 YEARS![1]
Which means smaller payments for 5 whole years!
Plus Limited Time
FREE UPGRADE
to energy-efficient SmartSun™ Glass

PARTNER OF THE YEAR
LEAD-SAFE EPA CERTIFIED FIRM
NAT-22578-0

Our FREE installation can save you up to thousands — and costs us dearly.

Renewal by Andersen is the exclusive start-to-finish replacement window subsidiary of Andersen Windows; the most recognized name in windows. In this economy, the only way to keep our installers working through the cold months is to have an irresistible deal, but we can only afford to offer this deal for a very limited time.

You don't need yet another home improvement company making empty promises.

A positive home improvement experience is hard to come by, but our Certified Installers are respectful of both your time and your home. Each member of our installation teams averages 10+ years of window installation experience, which is why most jobs are completed in just one day.

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
JAN. 3, 2011

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A hectic period begins to wind down. Take time to draw some deep breaths and relax before getting into your next project. A long-absent family member makes contact.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're eager to move forward with a new challenge that suddenly dropped in your lap. But you'd be wise to take this one step at a time to allow new developments to come through.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You're almost ready to make a commitment. A lingering doubt or two, however, should be resolved before you move ahead. An associate could provide important answers.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Caution is still the watchword as you move closer toward a decision about a new situation. If you act too fast, you might miss some vital warning signs. Go slowly and stay alert.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your new goal looks promising, and your golden touch does much to enhance its prospects for success. In your private life, Cupid does his best to make your new relationship special.

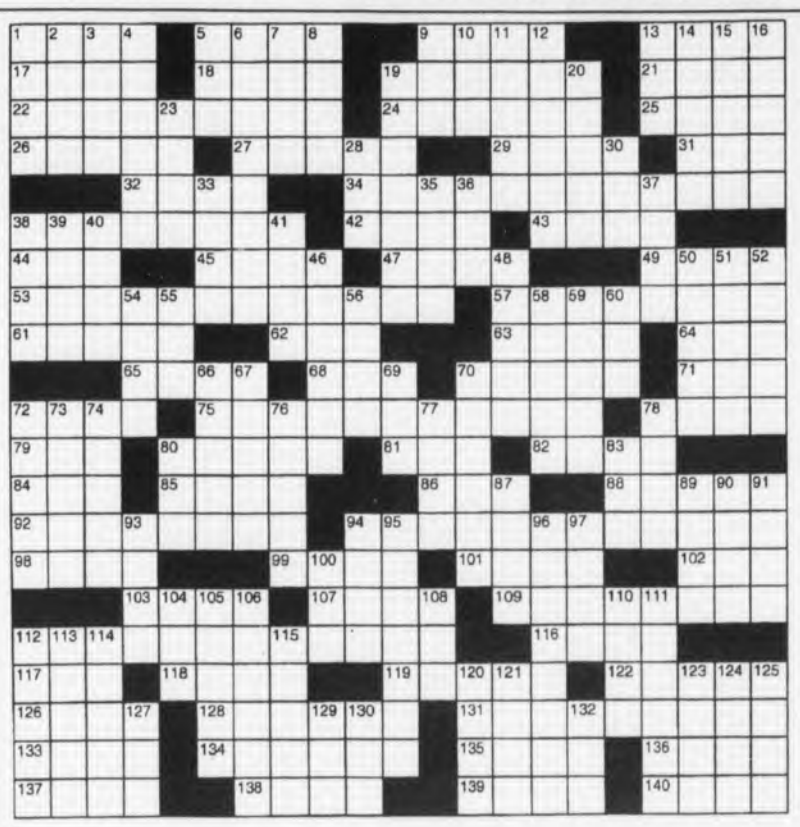
VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) That impatient side of yours is looking to goad you into moving before you're ready to take that big step. Stay calm and cool. Let things fall into place before you act.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A legal matter you hoped could finally be settled could be a pesky problem for a while, until all the parties agree to stop disagreeing with each other. Be patient.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Partnerships — personal or professional — which began before the new year take on new importance. They also reveal some previously hidden risks. So be warned.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your associates are firmly on your side, and that persistent problem that has caused you to delay some activities should soon be resolved to your satisfaction.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Favorable changes continue to dominate, and you should be responding positively as they emerge. Someone wants to become more involved in what you're doing.



AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A friend wants to share a secret that could answer some questions you've wondered about for a long time. Meanwhile, travel aspects continue to be strong.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Stay on your new course despite so-called well-meaning efforts to discourage you. Rely on your deep sense of self-awareness to guide you to do what's right for you.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Abbey offers spiritual enrichment programs

This fall and winter Glastonbury Abbey will offer a new educational format, a series of spiritual talks and open discussions. Most people did not experience this opportunity when religion first entered their lives. This is an opportunity to explore the history of the Church, the richness of spiritual teachings through Scripture, the relevance and daily application of spirituality, its emotional connections and the place of sacred music in personal and communal relationships to God.

The Abbey provides a spiritual environment to learn, discuss and reflect on the depth of one's spiritual roots. The focus of these Spiritual Formation gatherings is to gain insight into one's own spiritual identity today, create or enhance inner spiritual awareness, and seek knowledge not available during one's early years. Glastonbury Abbey offer courses, lectures and retreats to deepen knowledge of theology and sacred scripture, and to provide opportunities for personal spiritual growth.

The following talks and discussion will be presented by the monks and laypersons in the community of Glastonbury Abbey:

- Dr. John Sheff, "Mental Health/Spiritual Health: A Psychologist's Perspective," will take place Tuesday, Jan. 11, 9:30 to 11 a.m.; or Jan. 11 from 7:30 to 9 p.m.
- Br. David Coakley, OSB, "Holy Clamor and Sacred Song: Our Emotions, Our Inhibitions and Our God," will take place Tuesday, Feb. 1, 7:30 to 9 p.m.; or Thursday, Feb. 3, 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Suggested donation is $20 per class.

Class given by Fr. Andrew Mark Quillen, OSB will include:

- "An Introduction to Wisdom Literature." Classes will take place Wednesdays, Jan. 12 through April 13, 7:30 to 9 p.m., on Thursdays, Jan. 13 through March 31, 9:30 to 11 a.m.

Suggested fee for the Fr. Andrew's classes is $125 for the course.

For more information concerning retreats, Lenten Reflections or the Listening to Other Voices lecture series, refer to the Glastonbury Abbey website at www.glastonburyabbey.org or call 781-749-2155 and ask for the Retreat office. Glastonbury Abbey is at 16 Hull St., Hingham.

St. Joseph Retreat Center programs

St. Joseph Retreat Center, 339 Jerusalem Road, invites the public to the following programs. Besides scheduled events, the retreat house is often available for individual or group private retreats.

Directed or private retreat days: Dec. 27, Jan. 1 and Jan. 3 through 7.

Directed prayer weekend, Friday, Jan. 7 through Sunday, Jan. 9.

Morning of Prayer, Jan. 24: The Psalms: A Gateway to Intimacy with God, with Nan Bouche.

Martin Luther King Jr. to be honored through music

The Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. loved gospel – and in honor of his day this year gospel music will be an integral part of an interfaith event to be held at 6 p.m., on Sunday, Jan. 16, the day before Martin Luther King Day, at Hingham Congregational Church at 378 Main St., co-sponsored by the Hingham Hull Religious Leaders Association.

In addition to plenty of music, the evening will include audio and video clips from Dr. King speeches, as well as readings from HHRLA members – including the Rev. Ken Read-Brown, who is the current president of the Hingham Hull Religious Leaders Association.

The event is free and open to the public. A free will offering will be taken to benefit groups working against violence in Roxbury.

This year there will not be a Martin Luther King Day breakfast at Glastonbury Abbey; the concert is taking the place of the breakfast.

Opening Doors to Opportunity

By J. Keith Motley, PhD, UMass Boston Chancellor

For many people, the holiday season is a time for reflection, a time to count their blessings, review the year that has gone by, and think about the possibilities that the New Year will bring.

As chancellor of the University of Massachusetts Boston, I always find this season particularly rewarding. I reflect on my daily interactions with our students, and I'm heartened by their stories, their commitment to building better lives for themselves through education. I'm humbled when I recall my interactions with our devoted staff and our faculty's dedication to teaching and learning, their devotion to research that provides opportunities for student involvement, and their commitment to engaging with our surrounding communities and beyond.

I was particularly mindful of this when the university recently announced and celebrated a new $13.7 million grant to extend our partnership with the Dana-Farber/Harvard Cancer Center. This grant – the National Institutes of Health evaluated our proposal as the nation's best – allows us to continue important research in cancer treatment while addressing health disparities in minority populations and increasing community outreach and education. From its beginning, UMass Boston has pledged that it will serve its communities' needs beyond education, forge ties between research and service, and open doors for populations who have been denied access.

Equally important, UMass Boston's partnership with the world-renowned Dana-Farber/Harvard Cancer Center opens doors to opportunities for hands-on cancer-focused training, outreach, and research for our minority students, post-doctoral fellows, nursing PhD students, and faculty. For example, Judith Alonzo, a senior biochemistry major, recently participated in the Continuing Umbrella of Research Experiences (CURE) program, which introduced her to the world of cancer research by placing her in a laboratory at Dana-Farber for a year.

Another former student, Lisa Barros, graduated from our Urban Scholars pre-collegiate program and participated in the CURE program four years ago while earning a nursing degree. She is now a staff nurse at Dana-Farber/Brigham and Women's Hematology/Oncology Bone Marrow Transplant unit.

These are just two examples of the many opportunities we strive to provide for our students here at UMass Boston, whether they are in the College of Nursing and Health Sciences, College of Science and Mathematics, or any of our other six colleges and graduate schools. We believe that the best education happens not only in the classroom, but also in the hospitals, schools, nonprofits, and businesses where our students are getting hands-on experience.

At UMass Boston we have a commitment to being the student-centered urban public research university of the 21st century. And looking back at the past year, I would say we are on course.

I encourage you to visit www.umb.edu for more information.

OBITUARIES

Obituaries appearing in this section are paid for and written by families often through the services of a funeral director.

Jeanne M. Healy

Jeanne M. Healy

COHASSET – Jeanne M. (Carson) Healy died peacefully at the Melrose home she shared with her son on Dec. 18. Originally of Scituate, she resided in Quincy, South Weymouth, Hingham and most recently Cohasset. She was 78 years old.

Jeanne was the only child of Edward W. Carson, a policeman killed in the line of duty in Scituate in 1938 when Jeanne was 6, and Miriam V. (Slavin). She is survived by her two children with former husband Lamont R. (Monty) Healy, daughter Erin C. Healy and her husband John T. Noyes of Cataumet and son Edward C. Healy of Melrose. Her grandchildren, Dillon R. Healy and Maeve J. Healy, both of Melrose, will especially miss her. She counted her cousin Mary Jean (Rogers) Quinn and Monty's wife, Grace E. Healy, as close friends.

Jeanne graduated from Quincy School of Nursing in the early 1950s and worked as a nurse anesthetist at numerous hospitals in Boston and on the South Shore, including Carney, St. Elizabeth's, Hahnemann, Brigham and Women's, South Shore and Mass. Eye and Ear. Her last job was providing anesthesia for eye surgeries on Cape Cod; she retired in 2008.

Jeanne loved travel and cooking and combined the two by attending cooking schools in Ireland and Italy, among other trips to Europe. She loved foreign films and to be surrounded by books. She loved the arts, cultivating a flair for the dramatic in her dress and manner. Through decades of living with rheumatoid arthritis she rarely complained, always maintaining a cheery disposition.

In accordance with her wishes her children hosted a 70th birthday party for her instead of a wake. Burial will be private.

Donations may be made in Jeanne's honor to the Edward W. Carson Memorial Scholarship Fund, made out to Chief Brian Stewart, Scituate Police Department, 604 Chief Justice Cushing Hwy., Scituate, MA 02066.

Ralph B. Hill

COHASSET – Ralph B. Hill of Cohasset, formerly of Ipswich, died Dec. 19, 2010 at the age of 92.

Beloved husband of the late Lydia E. (Gross) and loving father of Pamela Hill and her husband, Alexander Koines of Cohasset, R. Jonathan Hill and his wife, Audrey of Denver, CO, and grandfather of Chloe Koines and Kimberly, Jameson and Alexandra Hill.

Ralph was a graduate of Umass Amherst, Class of 1940 and Manning High School, Ipswich, Class of 1936. He was a veteran of World War II serving in the U.S. Navy and achieved the rank of Lieutenant Commander at age 28. He commanded two minesweepers in the Pacific before serving as a mine expert on Rear Admiral Struble's staff on the USS Paniment. After the war, his successful business career included U.S. Rubber Co., Weyerhauser Co. and his own, Ralph B. Hill Co. which conducted international and domestic sales.

A funeral service will be held on Thursday, Dec. 23, 2010 at 2 p.m. in St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Cohasset. Visiting hours Thursday 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. in McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, 1 Summer St., Cohasset. Interment with military honors at Woodside Cemetery, Cohasset.

Weymouth's Mary Callanan on tour with 'Mamma Mia!'

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Mary Callanan is well familiar with the sound of applause from an appreciative theater audience. As one of the most popular performers on Boston area stages, she has heard plenty of it from local audiences over the years. The Weymouth resident was not fully prepared, however, for the reaction she received from a Minnesota audience recently when she completed her first performance in the North American tour of the mega-musical "Mamma Mia!"

Mary Callanan

— which arrives at the Providence Performing Arts Center next week.

"The very first show we did was in Duluth. It was a huge theater and it was completely sold out," recalled Callanan by telephone from West Virginia recently. "When the audience started rock concert-like screaming it was like nothing else I have ever experienced. My co-stars and I all just cried as we looked at each other and whispered, 'We did it. We really did it.' It really does a soul good to see an audience so ecstatic over a show."

For Callanan, who has toured Asia with Marie Osmond in "The Sound of Music" and also appeared in bus-and-truck tours of "Big," "Damn Yankees" and "Cinderella," hitting the road in the commercial juggernaut and global phenomenon that is the ABBA jukebox musical has been a familiar, but still different experience from those earlier tours and the sit-down runs she's had in Boston in shows like "Nunsense" and "Menopause: The Musical."

"You definitely don't want to let the audience down so we all have to work really hard to make sure none of us are ever just walking through the show. As a cast, we feel an enormous sense of responsibility, because people love this show and this music so much"

As Rosie, the carefree friend who travels to the Greek islands for the marriage of her old friend's daughter, Callanan is playing one of the characters that audiences love most, too, in the show with a book by Catherine Johnson and score filled with the Swedish supergroup's biggest hits from "Super Trouper" and "Dancing Queen" to "Knowing Me, Knowing You." Callanan even gets her own number when Rosie puts both a suggestive spin on "Take a Chance on Me" and the moves on Australian outback adventurer Bill Austin. Callanan admires her character's moxie, and her loyalty.

"I love Rosie, playing her is really not a stretch for me. She is a gregarious, fun-loving woman who finds herself on a Greek island vacation with old friends. And, I think that Rosie is the glue that holds these three friends, Donna, Tanya, and she together. She's known and loved these women for years, through all the many changes in their lives. I'm very lucky in that there is so much of the audience in my character, that they just love her. Rosie has great exuberance for life. She thinks her life is interesting, because she makes it that way. Rosie's like a big puppy. She's always up for adventure."

Mary Callanan will appear in "Mamma Mia!" at the Providence Performing Arts Center, 220 Weybosset St., Providence, Dec. 28-Jan. 2. For tickets, call 401-421-2787 or go online at ppac.org.

Theater review

Rockettes show needs a kick

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

The Radio City Rockettes perform their signature high kicks at the Wang Center through Dec. 29.

The Radio City Rockettes are back at Boston's Wang Theatre for the first time since 2006 and that is definitely something to celebrate this holiday season. Unfortunately, the show that surrounds them — "The Radio City Christmas Spectacular" — doesn't live up to its name.

The world-famous dance troupe, with legs for days and never-less-than-perfect precision high kicks, is front and center as the curtain rises. Before long, however, things begin to sag as the Rockettes cede the stage for "Santa's Gonna Rock and Roll." The number is not only lackluster and dated, no fresher than when it was last performed here four years ago, it also lacks any discernible charm.

Charm isn't the only thing lacking. They may be doing brisk box office business at the Wang, but there are plenty of empty seats in the orchestra pit as pre-recorded music stands in for the much-missed sound of live musicians. The national tour of Rodgers & Hammerstein's "South Pacific" that came through Providence earlier this month featured the rich, gorgeous sound of a 26-piece orchestra proving some producers still understand the importance of live music. Sadly for Boston audiences, Madison Square Garden Entertainment doesn't feel the same way about its touring Radio City show. They're not just scrimping on the music either. They've also cut the number of Rockettes from 36 in the signature New York production, to just 18 on the road.

Even with the downsizing, some wonderful moments remain. Act one's "The Nutcracker: A Little Girl's Dream," complete with oversized teddy bears dancing gracefully ballet dancing, is both warmly humorous and impressive. And, the Rockettes staples, "The Twelve Days of Christmas" and "The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," are once again splendidly entertaining especially in the beautiful costumes by Gregg Barnes and Pete Menefee. Longtime Radio City Christmas show devotees will also be pleased that the perennial if now very creaky closer "The Living Nativity" lives on - complete with a camel, a donkey, and some sheep. At least the animals are still live, although the rest of the effects connected with this "classic" number seem ready to be put out to pasture.

"The Radio City Christmas Spectacular," directed and staged by Dennis Callahan, will be at the Citi Performing Arts Center's Wang Theatre, 270 Tremont St., Boston, through Dec. 29. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 866-348-9738 or go online at citicenter.org.

Movie review

THIS 'TRUE GRIT' EVEN BETTER THAN THE ORIGINAL

True Grit (A-)

By Al Alexander

Rumors about the death of the Western are exuberantly laid to rest by the Coen Brothers' quick-on-the-draw remake of "True Grit." Not only is it funny and tremendously acted; it also audaciously exorcizes the ghost of John Wayne.

No easy task, given how the role of the irascible federal marshal Reuben "Rooster" Cogburn has been owned by Wayne ever since he picked up an Oscar for it 41 years ago. But Jeff Bridges lays all that to waste in an instant with his raspy-voiced reinvention of the toughest, most principled drunkard to ever grace the old frontier.

Yup, Duke has been usurped by the Dude, and I couldn't be more thrilled by the experience of watching one of our finest actors take a role as iconic as Rooster Cogburn and indisputably make it his own. And what makes his Rooster crow is his intuitive understanding of the underlying humor that made the source novel by Charles Portis so beloved.

It's a trait Bridges shares with his equally witty cohorts, Joel and Ethan Coen. Like their previous collaboration on "The Big Lebowski," the trio is of one mind and one goal, which is to totally blow your mind with a blend of surreal splendor and harsh reality.

They have you in their grip right from the start, when the voice of a precocious young girl is heard vowing revenge while you look upon the haunting image of her father lying dead in the street as a soft, steady snow begins to fall. Shot by the incomparable Roger Deakins, the image is a true work of art, juxtaposing exquisite beauty and grotesque violence in one unforgettable instant.

How could the rest of the film possibly top it? Well, it does, over and over again. Then that's the skill of the Coens feverishly at work, hypnotizing you with their knack for dialogue and imagery that leaves you convinced you're witnessing something utterly unique.

That word "unique" is rarely mentioned in a discussion of remakes. But the Coens are always the exception to the rule. And with "True Grit," they break every statute in the book governing Westerns.

There are no showdowns, horse chases or sweeping vistas of the great virgin territory. No, their "True Grit" takes place largely along the terrain of hearts and minds, where fools are not suffered and even the guys in the black hats are smart and strangely likeable. And because they're likable, their fates become far more resonate than if they were merely boo-bait.

Of course, when the villains are portrayed by actors the caliber of Josh Brolin and Barry Pepper, you'd be disappointed if they were anything but three-dimensional. The only letdown is that we don't see them enough. But it's hard to quibble when the alternative is spending more time with Bridges and outstanding newcomer Hailee Steinfeld as the old-beyond-her-14-years heroine, Mattie Ross.

Yup, Duke has been usurped by the Dude, and I couldn't be more thrilled by the experience of watching one of our finest actors take a role as iconic as Rooster Cogburn and indisputably make it his own.

That was her voice – and her father – back at the start of the movie, when Mattie matter of factly states her intention to find a hired gun to lead her through Indian Territory to ferret out the rat that shot her Pa.

His name is Dick Cheney, a dastardly hombre notorious for shooting old men in the face. Oh, excuse me, I'm told that it's Tom Chaney (Brolin). My mistake. Anyhow, Mattie wants the guy dead, but not before she sees him stand trial for murder.

First, though, she needs to apprehend him. And to do that end, she solicits that old rooster, Cogburn, who after some initial reluctance gives in, partially due to the girl's sweet face, but more because of the $100 she's offering to pay.

One problem: If Mattie is to realize her dream of watching Chaney hang, she and Rooster must get to him before that annoyingly smug Texas Ranger, LaBoeuf (a wonderfully deadpan Matt Damon), who is looking to haul the varmint back to the Lone Star state to stand trail for a different murder.

Both Steinfeld and Damon are huge improvements upon the original's Kim Darby and Glen Campbell, finding the gravitas their predecessors failed to muster in trying to be heard over Wayne's rampant scenery chewing. Steinfeld and Damon have no such problems with Bridges, who allows his co-stars generous amounts of space to standout.

That's particularly true of Steinfeld, who makes one of the most stunning debuts by a child actor since Dakota Fanning in "I Am Sam." The girl is simply jaw-dropping amazing in playing a 14-year-old going on 30, full of vinegar and moxie.

But as great as she is (just wait till you hear her dickering over horse prices with a confounded Dakin Matthews), there's never any doubt that this is Bridges' movie. And seldom does he disappoint in a performance free of inhibition and loaded to the brim with complexity and nuance.

He may not match Wayne in delivering the iconic "fill your hand, you SOB." But he trumps the Duke in every other way, just as the entire movie blows the original off the dusty plain. Yes, this version has grit and it's as large as it is true.

Rated PG-13. "True Grit" contains violence and adult language.

A screening committee interviews four finalists to succeed Police Chief James Hussey. Former Duxbury police chief Mark DeLuca is appointed to the top cop position.

Pilgrim Bank purchases the Cohasset Hardware building. Later in the year, they decide to move their offices over to the prominent village building.

A group of residents raises concerns and questions over the quality and safety of Cohasset water. The Water Commission and Board of Health host a forum to air the issues. This is the first of many problems to face the water department in 2010.

A New Year's snowstorm hammers the region and begins to strain on the town's snow and ice budget.

The planning board re-considers the CCI-Energy two-wind turbine project after a remand order came down from the court in 2009. The planning board ultimately denies the project because, they ruled, it violated the zoning bylaw's setback requirements.

In a Cohasset Mariner poll, residents consider what piece of Cohasset astronaut Steve Bowen, a Cohasset native, should bring to space. The poll winner was sand or pebble from Sandy Beach, followed closely by the Cohasset flag. Ultimately, it was the flag that made the trip to space. Bowen returned the flag to the town in December.

Students from the South Shore Vo-Tech install a heating, ventilation and air conditioning system in the Rec Center for only the cost of materials.

The Social Service League of Cohasset pledges $1 million toward the construction of a new senior center.

A fitness studio opens up at 25 Ripley Road. The next week it is issued a cease and desist order from the building department because it violated the town's zoning bylaws.

Cohasset votes with the state and Republican Scott Brown assumes the late Ted Kennedy's senate seat.

Cohasset resident Peter Tolman, the South Shore Community Center's longtime handyman, is honored when the center names the computer room after him.

Budget talks begin in earnest as increased fees, local option taxes and cuts in services are discussed.

Shelter set up during blizzard

Storm leaves hundreds without power

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

For the first time in nearly 20 years the Cohasset Emergency Management Team opened a shelter during a snowstorm.

At the height of the Dec. 26-27 storm more than 2,000 Cohasset homes were without power, police said. Many of outages involved services to individual houses and left hundreds without heat overnight.

By midday Tuesday, about 400 homes were still without power in the area if Lamberts Lane and Clayspring Road. By Wednesday morning virtually all homes in Cohasset were back online.

Cohasset draws its power off the high-tension wires and one of the main transformers that feeds the town was knocked out. That line feeds the Route 3A businesses, traffic lights in the area, and the police department radios (they have a battery back-up).

Police spokesman Lt. William Quigley said police were very concerned about the lights at North Main Street and Forest Avenue because the intersection is dangerous. A cruiser was stationed at the intersection for a period of time but, as calls due to the storm increased, the cruiser had to report to other incidents.

Police had five marked and two unmarked cars on the road. A total of 10 officers were on duty including the chief and several special police officers. Two dispatchers were also on duty fielding the calls.

Meanwhile, the fire department fielded 40 emergency calls between 1p.m. on Sunday and Tuesday morning. Twenty-six of those calls involved down wires.

"Every piece of equipment owned by the town, owned by the fire department was on the road all day Monday," said Fire Chief Bob Silvia. "We just shuffled the equipment from one call to the next."

Because of similar demand in neighboring town public safety was unable to call for or provide mutual aid during the height of the storm. In some cases, response time was delayed as equipment and personnel were stretched.

Part of the reason was the more than two-dozen downed wires. Because they could contain high voltage they have to be monitored by the fire department until a representative from National Grid arrives. In some cases it took six, eight, or in one case 16 hours for someone to arrive on site to relieve the fire official.

"The same issues National Grid had in other areas they had here. They did not have the resources they needed to have ready when the storm started, so they spent the rest of the time playing catch up," Silvia said. He had several conference calls with National Grid representatives during the storm and its aftermath.

"In terms of the amount of damage with this storm with downed trees and wires it can be likened to a hurricane. (In recent history) there's never been a winter storm with the same kind of magnitude (of damage)," Silvia said. Some of the veteran firefighters, he said, compared the number of calls and amount of damage to the Blizzard of '78.

"It was something very different than what we have dealt with in a long time…we got it all covered, but it was challenging," Silvia said.

About a dozen cars went off the road during the storm, police said. Tidal flooding occurred in all the "usual places" like Border Street, Margin Street, Stockbridge Street and several spots on Atlantic Avenue. No one had to be evacuated from their home. DPW crews were out during the night and well into the next day plowing and sanding to keep the road as safe as possible.

Quigley said the fact that school was out for the holidays helped relieve some of the pressure. He also said that many residents likely had extra food left over from Christmas so police did not see a big rush at Stop & Shop.

Shelter opens

Because of the power outages, four people took advantage of the emergency shelter set up at Deer Hill School from 2 to 7 p.m. on Monday. One person was put up for the night at the Cohasset Harbor Inn.

The town's Emergency Management team began to put their plans in place on Sunday afternoon. Deputy emergency management director Glenn Pratt was in touch with Fire Chief Bob Silvia and MEMA over the possibility of opening a shelter on Sunday night.

Pratt said during the morning on Monday dispatch received more than 40 calls inquiring about the possibility of a shelter opening. Those phone calls weighed heavily in the emergency management team's decision to open the shelter.

Shortly after noontime on Monday, a Connect-CTY call went out town-wide alerting residents that a shelter would be opening at the Deer Hill School at 2p.m.

Building manager Brian Adams came in to ensure the Deer Hill School was up and running. The generator was on because power on Sohier Street was out. Explorer Boy Scouts and other volunteers helped set up the shelter.

Deer Hill School has been targeted location for a shelter for some time. Emergency management supplies are staged there and it has the capability to house people overnight, as well as kitchen facilities in the event of a more drawn out emergency.

Health inspector Tara Tradd, Public Health Nurse Mary Goodwin and Elder Affairs Director Coral Grande joined forces to ensure the elderly that live alone were doing okay throughout the storm and its aftermath. On Monday afternoon phone calls were made to those known to the town and if there was no answer someone went to check on the residents.

Four residents took advantage of the shelter before heading back home in the early evening hours. Pratt said several residents stopped by the shelter to ask questions and check out the facilities.

In addition, two families were re-located to relatives' homes within Cohasset, Pratt said.

Pratt encouraged families to plan ahead for emergencies like this one.

"It's important to know where you can go in the event of an emergency," Pratt said.

Although the storm was not as bad as others in the past in terms of snow, it was the wind and the damage that came with it that set this one apart, Pratt said.

"It was a good exercise for us to ensure we can use the facilities and supplies set aside and set up a shelter according to our plan," Pratt said, adding the last time an emergency shelter was open in Cohasset was on a Christmas Eve snowstorm in the early 90s.

Held on bail after third OUI drug charge

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

The clerk at the Mobil Mart convenience store at Route 3A and Sohier Street notified police at about 6:11 p.m. on Tuesday (Dec. 21) that a man was acting strangely and might be intoxicated. His car, a 1992 Nissan Stanza, had front-end damage.

When police arrived the man, who is 33 and a Scituate resident, was back in his car. Police observed a white powdery substance around his nostrils and that he was bleeding from his wrists.

He was placed under arrest for operating under the influence of drugs (third offense), operating after license revocation and possession of Class E (pills).

Police called a drug recognition expert in for assistance. It was determined that the subject had been snorting Suboxone. He is being held at the Norfolk County House of Correction on $5,000 cash bail.

Covered in blood

At about 9:15 p.m. on Monday (Dec. 20), a concerned citizen called about a man running down the railroad tracks; the caller provided a description of the subject. Police responded and found some footprints but others had been covered with snow. Then at about 9:50 p.m. another caller reported that a man wearing dark clothing and covered in blood was at their house, was in need of medical attention and was asking for police.

Police said the subject, who was later identified as a 31-year-old Scituate man, was highly intoxicated and had a large cut on his hand. He kept repeating to police that he did not mean to hurt anyone. Police were concerned there may be a victim. The man, who fit the description of the man seen earlier running along the tracks, was taken into protective custody and transported by ambulance with a police officer to South Shore Hospital. Police called for the Hull K-9 who tracked the man's tracks from the house back through the woods to a house on Spring Street where there was blood in the foyer.

Officers checked the house. Investigation revealed that the intoxicated man had been attending a gathering there and had injured his hand on broken glass and then left. There was no victim, police said.

Summons

The owner of a 2007 Toyota Corolla — a 27-year-old Scituate woman — is being summonsed to court for allowing her car to be operated with a suspended registration and no insurance. Police stopped her 23-year-old brother, who was operating the car, when he veered across both lanes of Route 3A near Brewster Road. As it turned out, he was trying to reattach the navigation system in the car when he momentarily lost control at about 1 a.m. on Saturday (Dec. 25), police said. A computer check revealed that the car, belonging to his sister, was unregistered and uninsured.

MV crash

Police responded to a two-vehicle crash at 1:52 p.m. on Sunday (Dec. 26) involving a 1995 Chevrolet pickup truck, operated by a 21-year-old Hull man, and a 2003 Audi, operated by a 53-year-old Cohasset man.

Police said the pickup was traveling too fast for the conditions on Forest Avenue; the truck was coming from the direction of Hull when it hit the Audi, almost head on and then hit a tree. The 21-year-old Hull man was transported to the hospital. The Cohasset man was not injured. Both vehicles were towed. The Hull man was cited for speeding, police said.

Hit and run

An 85-year-old Cohasset man reported on Monday (Dec. 20) that his 2005 Honda Accord was struck on the driver's side by an unknown vehicle in the parking lot at St. Anthony's while he was attending church on Dec. 16 causing about $1200 in damage. The man needed a police report for insurance purposes.

Illegal dumping

An investigation last week revealed that a 45-year-old Scituate man had been illegally dumping trash into a dumpster behind a village eatery. Police spoke to the alleged offender and told him to stop.

ID theft

Police provided a 44-year-old Cohasset man with an identity theft packed lat week after he reported that an unknown person used his credit card.

Rollover

A 23-year-old Brockton woman operating a 2004 GMC Envoy down the long driveway at the Golden Living Center slid off the road at about 7:40 p.m. on Wednesday (Dec. 22) and flipped over into a ditch. She was evaluated by paramedics but was not injured, police said.

Candy delivery

A Sanctuary Pond resident notified police after receiving some candy which, he said, had apparently been dropped when he was not at home. He said he did not have an employee who would do that and wanted it reported.

9-1-1 calls

During Monday's storm, Hull 9-1-1 calls were routed to Cohasset, when the Hull 9-1-1 system went down. Police added an extra dispatcher to handle the calls. The regular Hull police line was working but 9-1-1 was not.

Talent abounds in the Cohasset High production of "Check, Please," the school s entry in to the state Drama Festival. The comedy about a series of blind dates makes it to the semi-final round.

Avalon, developers of an apartment complex off Route 3A, seek Selectmen support to become a friendly 40-B project. Selectmen give their support at a later meeting as well as sign off on an additional 20 apartment units at the Avalon complex, bringing the grand total to 220 units. The town hopes this addition will satisfy the state's Chapter 40-B requirement for the next 10 years.

A packed house of parents, teachers and students weigh in on the high school's program of studies. Course leveling, or lack thereof, was in question. Members of the audience spoke against any school plans to combine course levels beyond what was already in practice.

The Chamber of Commerce introduces welcome baskets for all new residents.

The Selectmen consider whether the Community Preservation Act has run its course in Cohasset.

Cohasset's hometown astronaut Steve Bowen prepares for his second trip into space.

A Cohasset Athletic Hall of Fame is created.

A handful of Cohasset's most iconic and well-known properties are up for sale. For $55 million the majority of Cohasset Harbor's waterfront property – the vine-covered brick estate and its sprawling grounds dubbed "The Oaks," Atlantica and the Olde Salt House, the Mill River Marina and the Cohasset Harbor Inn – could be yours. No takers (that we know of) have come forward to buy the property.

The South Shore Athletic Club is the first business to open at Old Colony Square.

Cohasset resident and veterinary ophthalmologist Bill Greentree volunteers to check the eyes of local service dogs at the Cohasset Library.

Sallyann Chatterton, the Mariner's long-time Around Town columnist, passes away.

Superintendent Denise Walsh announces her intent not to seek an extension of her contract on the night of her open session annual performance evaluation.

Ninety Cohasset High seniors cross the stage at the South Shore Music Circus to receive their diplomas. The Class of 2010 is called "extraordinary" and "accomplished."

Local elementary schools learn a great deal about growing plants and farm life while on field trips to Holly Hill Farm.

The water planning group and water commission hold several meetings and forums to flesh out recommendations to Town Meeting to deal with an current year $770,000 shortfall and project 2011 $1 million shortfall.

Cohasset High offers several foreign exchange opportunities to its student body – a Quebec trip for eighth graders, a two-way French exchange and a Guatemala trip for Spanish language students.

The Historical Society displays its collection of prom dresses from years past. The collection dates back to the 1950s.

JUNE

Perfect weather complements a picturesque and well-attended Memorial Day parade and ceremony at Veterans Memorial Park. The Wigmore Family is honored for their tireless commitment to honoring those who served.

Ninety Cohasset High seniors cross the stage at the South Shore Music Circus to receive their diplomas. The Class of 2010 is called "extraordinary" and "accomplished." The week before the graduates got to feel like movie stars as they made a splash on the red carpet set up on Cohasset Common.

The Relay for Life finds a new location on the Cohasset High rear practice field because of the new turf field.

The Cohasset Teachers Union reads a statement at the School Committee meeting describing communication and collaboration as lacking within the schools.

Two Cohasset doctors, Paul Appleton and Michael Hughes, travel to Haiti to help in earthquake recovery. Both doctors volunteered through the Partners in Health organization.

A parent group and new school food services director are making new and healthy lunch options available at all three schools.

A fatal car accident on Route 3A claims the life of a 51-year-old Scituate man.

Long-time water commissioner John McNabb resigns from the board amid the department's financial crisis. Shortly thereafter Selectmen chair Karen Quigley calls for the resignation of another long-time water commissioner, Glenn Pratt. Pratt says he intends to stay on the board until the end of his term in 2011.

The Historical Society puts together a tour of gardens along the Gulf River.

Cohasset High was ranked the eighth public high school in Massachusetts and 476 in the nation by Newsweek magazine. The annual ranking is based on the percentage of Advanced Placement (AP) tests being taken at the school.

Town Meeting tackles water issues. A majority of town voters agreed to bail out the water department by assuming higher rates. The increased revenue generated from the new rates was expected to cover much of the water department's projected $1.1-million shortfall in fiscal 2011. This measure, and other, helped to keep the water department's financial crisis at bay, but it was neither the end of the discussion nor the end-all fix.

For 24 years, Deer Hill School nurse Karen Murphy heard the phrase "I don't feel good" more time than she cares to admit. She retired at the end of the 2010 school year.

Thousands descend on Cohasset for the 55th Annual South Shore Art Center Arts Festival on the Common. Hundreds of lobster rolls and strawberry shortcake are sold over the weekend-long event.

The Cohasset High baseball and boys' lacrosse teams earn state championship titles during the same week in June.

Village businesses gear up for two summer strolls to capitalize on Thursday happenings (Farmers Market, Recreation Department summer concert series, and the Music Circus shows).

The town announces its intent to seek another public works (PWED) grant from the state to finish up work in the village.

A Cohasset EMT is caught in a training scam and has his license suspended for nine months.

Reverend Jan Carlsson-Bull of First Parish Church is moving on after six years in Cohasset.

The Advisory Committee agrees to pay for an independent financial and operational audit of the water department.

Hundreds of athletes participate in the fourth annual Cohasset Triathlon. Five Cohasset athletes share their stories of why they do the triathlon with the Mariner.

JULY

Students and parents are not happy with the school's intent to not fill the middle school music teacher position. Dozens come out to speak up for the value of music education in the schools. Two weeks later the position was posted and a dedicated middle school music teacher was hired in time for the fall.

The Stormwater Committee recommends further study at Treat's Pond and its associated Sandy Cove outlet.

Local guitar teacher Jim Armstrong puts on a concert series during the summer featuring his talented young students.

Cohasset high senior Meghann Salerno earns her Girl Scout Gold Award, the highest achievement in girl scouting. For her gold award project she raised money to purchase an automated external defibrillator to be housed at the RTF.

Aquarion Water, which services homes in North Cohasset, institutes a water ban. A few weeks later Cohasset Water asks water users to limit outside watering.

Cohasset beaches have nearly perfect water quality in early July.

Three Cohasset students attend Boys and Girls State sponsored by the American Legion.

Aubuchon Hardware leases a former car dealership space on Route 3A to make its first South Shore location. The site is still under construction and should open in 2011.

A man who allegedly lifted a woman's skirt in Shaw's is linked to an assault on a 16-year-old on the MBTA.

After an informal survey of residents it was determined that the intersection of Sohier Street and Route 3A is the worst in Cohasset. Other Route 3A intersections (Lower King, Beechwood Street) make the list as well.

The Cohasset Dramatic Club puts on two kid-only productions: "Seussical, Jr." and "13" to rave reviews.

Preliminary plans come forward from the Trustees of Reservation to erect a wind turbine on the Cohasset side of Turkey Hill.

CHS sophomore Caitlin Mavilia creates a colorful seascape on the Sandy Beach bathhouse.

A local mother and daughter open Mathnasium, a math tutoring center, on Route 3A over the summer.

The Historical Society highlights the rich history that surrounds "The Oaks" estate on the harbor and the world famous Hugo's Restaurant, now Atlantica.

AUGUST

The Water Commission inks a contract to install a cell antenna on the Bear Hill water tank. The installation may require a new access road and the surrounding neighborhood is not happy with that prospect. Several more discussions over the issues – and many related issues – occur over the next few months. Whether the Selectmen will allow the water department to create the new access point will be determined in the new year.

Former Cohasset resident Gail Reardon is now raising cattle in Virginia. She reunited with Cohasset friends through Facebook and sold them her grass-fed beef.

A party involving underage drinking is broken up on Deep Run. A mother and son are charged under the Social Host Law.

The School Committee gears up for the search for a new superintendent to succeed Dr. Denise Walsh.

The Cohasset Maritime Institute puts on the second annual Jack Hubbard 5K Fun Run.

After three years of discussion and back and forth a majority of the Selectmen reject the Treat's Pond Army Corps saltmarsh restoration project proposal – and the $1.2 million in funding that came with it.

Students get hands-on science opportunities at the Center for Student Coastal Research summer program.

A group of brave swimmers make the 4.5-mile round trip journey from Bassing Beach to Minot Light and back again.

Cohasset braces for Hurricane Earl, but the storm ended up not impacting the area much at all.

Peggy Lewis, the former Cohasset High secretary, says her dismissal from the schools was linked to her son's special education case in 2007.

It feels like déjà vu for the group of paraprofessionals who had to ask once again that they remain salaried employees. The School Committee agreed, but the return to salary pay creates a $38,000 line item that was not in the budget.

Town Manager Bill Griffin gives his notice to take a job in the private sector.

The Cohasset Schools begin the 2010-2011 school year.

Two Cohasset mothers, Shelly Allen and Muffy Antico, create Milestones for Children to raise money to find cures for rare diseases. A cure for GLUT1, a glucose transporter deficiency syndrome, is their first goal.

The School Committee gives the OK for the Cohasset Cable Television to use their studio space off of the library. The studio is expected to be up and running in early 2011.

The 25 Ripley Road 40-B proposal was before the Zoning Board of Appeals for most of 2010. The Zoning Board is still considering the application to transform the single-family home into seven condominium units.

Cohasset resident Ray Kasperowicz loses his bid for congressman in the state primary. Democrat William Keating and Republican Jeff Perry face off in the November election for the 10th Congressional District seat.

Chief Mark DeLuca reports the police department is seeking accreditation from the state.

The third annual Cohasset Day brings out hundreds of locals to celebrate the town they live in.

At a School Committee meeting a parent reads a highly critical letter of Superintendent Denise Walsh after President Barack Obama's back to school speech was once again not shown to all students.

The Board of Selectmen ask Cohasset Triathlon race director Bill Burnett to make changes to the event to mitigate impact on residents along the race course.

The Mariner joins lobsterman Paul Figueiredo on the water to see what a day in the life of a lobsterman is all about.

The Board of Selectmen decides to seek an interim town manager to keep things moving while a permanent town manager is sought.

Cohasset High is named 17th best public high school in the state by Boston magazine.

Residents Rob and Margie Hillman create an exhibit at the Historical Society to highlight 100 years of Boy Scouting history. For 94 years boy scouting has been an institution in Cohasset.

The Old Man and The Kid

Even now, after almost a year, the Old Man could still feel the ground shake if he allowed himself a moment of quiet reflection.

He was just a Kid then, barely having figured out where everything was, when the earthquake hit Haiti. "I guess the Old Man was right last year when he told me no one is ready for what they'll encounter," he thought at the time. He still didn't understand why Nature would inflict such a cruel fate, and then cholera? Hadn't this place, and these people, suffered enough?

But the death and destruction wasn't all that weighed on the Old Man's mind about Haiti. What was almost worse for him were the faces of the survivors, the people whose largely meager existence was reduced to nearly nothing, if not actually nothing, in just a few minutes.

Time and time again, he saw that anguish, be it the survivors of the earthquake or people left behind by those who had died in any number of ways. It got to the point where he could almost predict what people would do and how they would react.

He also saw a different kind of anguish — the anguish of the people who could not find work, no matter how hard they tried. He saw their fear of not knowing where their next paycheck would come from and how they would take care of their families.

A lot of those same people had lost their homes, or were about to, and he could see them sitting by the dim light over a kitchen table wondering … wondering what was going to become of them. He could see not only their fear, but their guilt.

The anguish, he understood. The fear, he understood. But the guilt, that he couldn't understand.

For as the old man thought about all the anguish he saw over the past year, one question came to his mind in so many of the cases.

"What did they do to deserve this?"

That was the cruelty of the year the Old Man had experienced … that so many people had been harmed so badly because of something they didn't do, by circumstances beyond their control and forces they likely didn't understand.

And making it even worse for him was that, even as he prepared to become part of History as soon as the Kid arrived, he had no idea of what to do about it.

It was with that in mind that he sat down to write his final entry, a note for the Kid.

"As you read this, the world is an endless horizon in front of you, full of what you see as a chance to fulfill your vast promise and all the time in the world to do it.

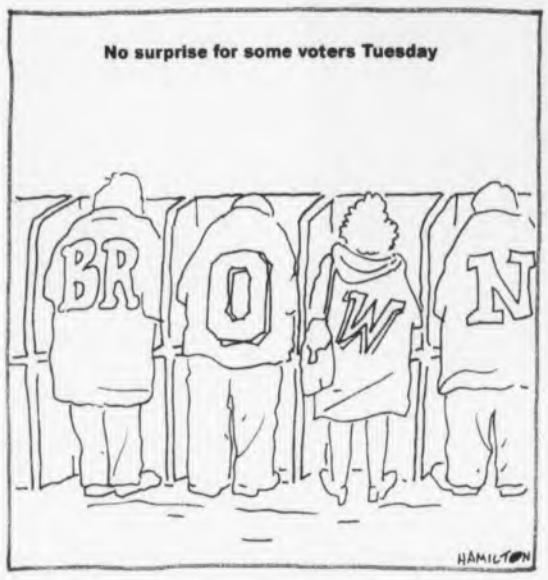
It isn't. You get the same 365 days as I did, and then when it ends, you'll be sitting here like I am now, an Old Man writing a note for the new Kid. And there is so much to do, the time will fly; trust me. Enjoy it while it lasts.

So what should you do with the year ahead? Obviously, I can't tell you what to do. Between the enthusiasm and stubbornness of your youth, you probably wouldn't listen anyway, which is fine. When I was a Kid, I wouldn't have listened, either, and maybe you shouldn't. This is your world now, and you have to figure out how to deal with it without having to worry about what I want. My time has come and gone.

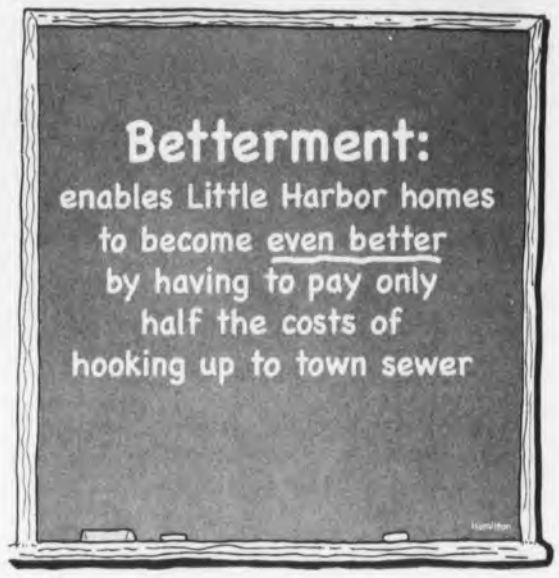
But if I can, I'd like to offer a bit of advice, maybe something for you to think about as you're setting your priorities. (Or, who knows? Maybe you won't set priorities and just wing it, taking it as it comes).

Our world is not a fair one. Good things happen to bad people; bad things happen to good people. You will pull your hair out wondering why that is so. If I knew why, I would tell you. Of course, I also would have done something about it, but then again, no one before me was able to figure it out, either.

I'm not saying it's up to you to make the world fair. In fact, I don't think you can do it (although I'd be happy to be wrong). But if, in the year ahead, you can find a way to make people treat each other a little bit better and to make the world a little bit fairer of a place, you will have accomplished more than you could ever know.

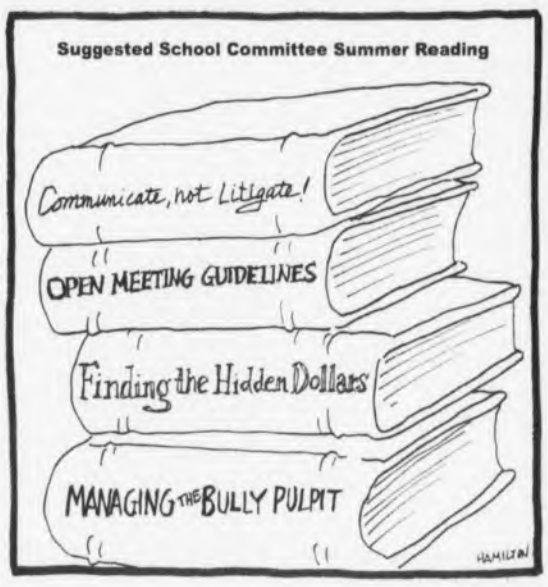


It may not seem like a lot, but History is bigger than you, me and all of us. I don't know if I've done as much as I could have, but if we all make things a bit better, we'll be a lot better.



Good luck."

Selectmen's meetings moving to Tuesday



After the first of the year the Board of Selectmen will move their regular meetings to Tuesday night. The move is largely in response to the difficulty in parking in the Town Hall lot on Monday nights. A regular meeting next door at Second Congregation takes up much of the parking spaces leaving little room for residents looking to attend the Selectmen's meeting, especially if they are coming for an agenda item later on in the evening.

Starting second decade of 21st Century

SENIOR SCENE

LOUISE SMULLEN

At my age, I never cease to wonder at modern technology.

At the time of this writing, the first major storm of the season is raging, with much snow and strong winds, along with power outages.

Christmas has come and gone quickly as usual and here we are about to begin the second decade of this century. I hope everyone had a happy holiday with family and friends.

In December, Scituate Life Care served one of the senior lunches, prepared by their excellent chef. Colleen Kissell, director, spoke about their therapy program. At another seminar, Richard Myrick, research fellow at the MIT Age Lab, visited. At the Age Lab, researchers study the impact of physical changes as one grows older. They even have a special suit, which, when worn, makes one feel what it will be like to grow physically older. New technologies are studied to make it easier for older people to drive safely. Mr. Myrick also discussed alternatives of getting around if one can no longer drive.

At another seminar, Bill O'Donnell of the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds spoke. He discussed the importance of having a record of a mortgage discharge. For those who wished, one of his aides checked with the registry online and gave them answers while they waited. At my age, I never cease to wonder at modern technology.

Carol Taylor of the Welch Co. spoke to us about how to pay for assisted living. There are ways to get assistance with these costs; one of them is Veterans' Aid. Carol suggested that we visit several assisted living facilities to decide which would best suit our needs. After her talk, Linda Chukran, also from the Welch Co., played the piano for a sing-along, then lead us in a game of "Name That Tune," for which prizes were given. Linda's visits are always enjoyed by all.

The Wednesday before Christmas we were fortunate to hear seasonal music sung by John Campbell and his daughter Katie, accompanied by John on his guitar. Then John led us in singing carols until lunchtime. John is the chairperson of the Cohasset Elder Affairs Board of Directors.

Best wishes to all in 2011.

Louise Smullen's column appears monthly in the Cohasset Mariner.

South Shore Conservatory

GIA RAMZA

Time to Chase Away the Winter Blues

COURTESY PHOTO

Bill Gagnon, Carolyn Loughlin of Hingham, and Fred Clifford enjoy Chase Away the Winter Blues festivities at South Shore Conservatory.

The 2011 Chase Away the Winter Blues party takes place on Jan. 29 from 6:30 p.m. to midnight.

By late January, the novelty of a New England winter has chilled my native Californian soul. Luckily, South Shore Conservatory's Chase Away the Winter Blues party is a wonderful warm spot in an often dismal and cold January! This party is brimming with great music, food, and chic cocktails. It is an awesome evening with appeal far beyond the Conservatory community. I am already getting my dancing shoes ready! The 2011 Chase Away the Winter Blues party takes place on Jan. 29 from 6:30 p.m. to midnight.

This is my third year attending Chase Away the Winter Blues. When my husband and I first attended, we did so because our children were students in the Conservatory Preschool. We went to support the school and expected a typical fundraising event. We knew there would be plenty of wonderful music and a silent auction. What we didn't expect was just how much fun we would have! Throughout the Conservatory's Hingham campus, music was being performed in three different venues filled with talented Conservatory faculty performing. There is something for everyone's musical taste.

Speaking of tastes, we have never gone hungry attending this party! The food is always great and the desserts unbelievable. The trademark Blue Martinis really make us feel like we have escaped to a chic club in the city.

The chic club atmosphere is amplified by the excellent musicians, many of whom are outstanding Conservatory faculty members. The musical headliner, The Heavyweights is awesome. Not only are the musicians talented, but the wide range of music played will satisfy any one who enjoys great live music. They cover artists such as U2, Pearl Jam, The Rolling Stones, Train, The Police, Billy Joel and many more. It is amazing to have such a terrific band come to Hingham and I look forward to singing along to every song and dancing up a storm!

The silent auction is filled with a full range of amazing items. Everyone expects to see coveted sporting tickets and vacation getaways at these types of auctions, and here the Conservatory delivers. However, beyond that, the Chase Away the Winter Blues auction includes amazing art items and some wonderfully accessible items. Last year we came home with two large Lego sets that we would have purchased anyway at a store. Another year, we bid on a photo session with the very talented photographer, Alyssa Fortin. These are some of my all time favorite pictures of my children. I feel great knowing the proceeds of our auction participation benefited the Conservatory. Last year, I was the lucky winner of the Grand Prize raffle and won a striking gold necklace and earrings from King Jewelers of Cohasset. There is truly something for everyone at the Blues event silent auction!

Save the date, Jan. 29, line up your babysitter and get out your dancing shoes — Chase Away the Winter Blues is the perfect antidote for a case of the January chills. This year's theme is Hot! Hot! Hot! with Latin food, cocktails and music. See you there!

All proceeds benefit financial aid and educational programming. For tickets or for more information, visit www.sscmusic.org or contact Amy Schomp at 781-749-7565, ext. 19.

Gia Ramza is a member of the Conservatory's Parent Committee. Her son Rex, a former SSC preschooler, now attends SSC's kindergarten program. She lives in Hingham.

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Breakfast

Please join the Cohasset Clergy and the Cohasset Diversity Committee in honoring the memory and achievements of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. at Cohasset's 10th annual Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Breakfast.

The breakfast will be held on Monday, Jan. 17 at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, 16 Highland Avenue, from 9 – 11 am. A full breakfast will be served from 9 – 10 am followed by an uplifting program honoring the memory of Dr. King.

The featured speaker will be documentary filmmaker, Topper Carew, an "Artist in Residence" at Trinity Church, Boston. Topper will screen his recent 14-minute film "A Dream Deferred" at the breakfast. The cost of the breakfast is $5 per person or $15 per family. Childcare will be provided. For more information please call Connie Afshar at 781 383 6006.

HEALTH NOTES

Most common New Year's resolutions

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Recent studies indicate more than 66 percent of adult Americans are considered overweight or obese, so it is not surprising to find weight loss is one of the most popular New Year's resolutions.

Resolutions — New Year's Eve is a time to look back to the past, and forward; to make resolutions on changes and follow through. Here are the 10 most common:

1. Spend More Time with Family & Friends

Recent polls conducted by Nutrition Centers, Quicken, etc. and others, shows that more than 50 percent of Americans vow to appreciate loved ones and spend more time with family and friends this year.

2. Fit in Fitness

Regular exercise has been associated with more health benefits than anything else. Studies show that it reduces the risk of some cancers, increases longevity, helps achieve and maintain weight loss, enhances mood, lowers blood pressure, and even improves arthritis. In short, exercise keeps one healthy. You look and feel better. Why not make this the time to start getting in shape.

3. Tame the Bulge

Recent studies indicate more than 66 percent of adult Americans are considered overweight or obese, so it is not surprising to find weight loss is one of the most popular New Year's resolutions. Setting reasonable goals and staying focused are the two most important factors in sticking with a weight loss program and the key to success for those millions of Americans who made a New Year's commitment to shed extra pounds.

4. Quit Smoking

If you have resolved to make this the year that you stamp out your smoking habit, over-the-counter availability of nicotine replacement therapy now provides easier access to proven quit-smoking aids. Even if you've tried to quit before and failed, don't let it get you down. On average, smokers try about four times before they quit for good. Start enjoying a smoke-free life! Locally, a variety of free support services, hotlines and smoking cessation classes help you kick the smoking habit.

5. Enjoy Life More

Given the hectic, stressful lifestyles of millions of Americans, no wonder that "enjoying life more" has become a popular resolution. Try something new! Take up a new hobby or try your hand at skiing. Go to a theater performance, or head to the local spa.

6. Quit Drinking

While many people use the New Year as an incentive to finally stop drinking, most are not equipped to make such a drastic lifestyle change all at once. Many heavy drinkers fail to quit cold turkey but do much better when they taper gradually, or even learn to moderate their drinking. If you have decided that you want to stop drinking, help and support are available. Alcoholics Anonymous offers meetings in Cohasset. Also, advice for Parents of Teenage Alcohol and Drug Abusers and treatment-based programs, as well as support groups for families of alcoholics.

7. Get Out of Debt

Was money a source of stress in your life last year? Millions of Americans have resolved to spend this year getting a handle on their finances. It's a promise that will repay itself many times over in the year ahead.

8. Learn Something New

Have you vowed to make this year the year to learn something new? Perhaps, considering a career change, want to learn a new language, or just how to fix your computer? Whether you take a course or read a book, you'll find education to be one of the easiest, most motivating New Year's resolutions to keep. The Local Recreation Department offers training for all ages. Or if the arts are your interest, the Cohasset Art Center offers adult studio classes.

Track Your Resolutions, create a plan and stay on track.

9. Help Others

A popular, non-selfish New Year's resolution: volunteerism. Send time helping out at your local library, mentoring a child, or building a house. Many nonprofit volunteer organizations could use your help. Or if your time is in short supply, perhaps donate furniture, clothing and other household items hat you no longer need.

10. Get Organized

Organization can be a useful goal. Home reorganized, or your office organized so you can find the stapler when you need it, should get you started to a more organized life.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Searching for distant relatives

TO THE EDITOR:

Recently my brothers and I started to do some genealogy research on our family. Our mother's family is from the village of Silgueiros near Viseu, on mainland Portugal. We have learned that it is possible we have distant relatives in Cohasset. We believe some Portuguese families from Silgueiros and Viseu settled in Cohasset around 1910 to 1920; possibly working on the estates of some of the wealthy families.

In particular, we have traced Evaristo Paes do Lavordouro, Antonio Ribeiro Liz and Jose Figueiredo to Cohasset during this time. Our grandparents were Joaquim and Custodia Figueiredo from Falmouth, Mass. If you have any information involving these men or perhaps have relatives yourself from Silgueiros or Viseu, Portugal, please feel free to contact either Susan at notomoniz1.7@hotmail.com or Allan at almo@cape.com. Thank you for any assistance you can provide.

'Hurrah' to DPW and public safety crews

TO THE EDITOR:

How about a "hurrah" to our town of Cohasset?

DPW had the road cleared, sanded and salted soon after the storm — even though it was the end of the weekend.

After the road maintenance was done they were clearing the sidewalks where possible.

Then, the cops — wasn't it nice to have the phone messages to each household relative to the out-of-power situations and suggestions. Great job!

Quotes of Note

They said it:

"What has happened is egregious and indefensible. We can only hope with (reforms) we can begin to restore your confidence."

— Selectmen chair Karen Quigley at special town meeting in June dealing with the water department

"After giving this decision much thought, I have concluded that it is time to move on. I am excited about the opportunities that are ahead. I am fortunate to be working in a field that I love."

— Superintendent Denise Walsh in her resignation letter

"I am so not looking forward to another year at Cohasset schools. The residents of Cohasset are so arrogant and snobby! I need to work where the community has real problems that I can be part of the solution!"

— Dr. June Talvitie-Siple in a Facebook post in July

"We did things differently than others before us and we've been doing that our entire lives, maturing into fine young adults in the process. It is amazing how far we have all grown as people."

— CHS Class of 2010 President Sean MacCarthy

"We're going to have a lot of fun, we're going to enjoy the job."

— Police Chief Mark DeLuca to his officers during his swearing in ceremony

"We look at the bylaws and act upon them. When a bylaw passes that is somewhat unpopular, it puts us in a difficult position as we try to follow those rules and bylaws fairly."

— Planning Board chair Al Moore on the night the CCI-Energy wind turbine project was denied

"We owned a little hardware company that provided a service on the South Shore for many years. Everyone I've talked to is just shaking their head; it is a small amount of money in today's business world."

— Barry Joseph, owner of Joseph's Hardware after the entire inventory was seized

"The fiberglass reproduction will be such that from the street you won't be able to see the difference."

— Rod Hobson, on the new spire and cell antenna installation at First Parish

"I cannot write in them in German, the words become stiff, not vivid. With the English language it just flows."

— Rosmarie Engel-Conn, on writing her memoirs from World War II in Germany

"It's gotten the public more involved and that's where they need to stay. (Residents) have been complacent for too long and they need to step up their involvement in the town."

— Jeanne Astino, after winning election to the school committee

"The decision (to sell the properties as a package) was driven by one factor: the Roys have spent 20 years building this real estate portfolio and while they were in control they made sure it was beautifully maintained."

— Jonathan Radford of Coldwell Banker, listing agent for the The Oaks, Atlantica and Cohasset Harbor Inn

"It is amazing for a town of 7,000 how many come out."

— Thomas Kelley, Medal of Honor winner and keynote speaker at Memorial Day

"It must be realized that causing such drastic changes to the school district's music program would impact not only our school, but our community as a whole."

— Ashley Howard, CHS senior on the hiring a middle school music teacher

"This thing needs a silver stake through its heart. Let's make a decision, guys."

— Selectmen chair Karen Quigley as the board inched toward a decision on the Treat's Pond project.

"From the very first day I came to Cohasset, I was welcomed here."

– Town Manager Bill Griffin reflecting on his time in Cohasset

"You never know, it really depends on the weather, on if you're catching. You go out everyday you can. When the lobsters are going, we pretty much go out everyday. In the summer it's not so bad. In the fall and the winter when it's rough and you're catching a lot of lobster, then it's hard work."

— Local lobsterman Paul Figueiredo

"Our clients are our neighbors, our friends, our parents, our brothers and sisters. They are people we know and people who need a little bit of help."

— Jane Corry, co-director of the Cohasset Food Pantry

"I'm going as deep as a I can (to get to the correct answer)…I do not have an agenda; I don't want to hit the town of Cohasset with a $1 million bill."

— John Sullivan, the town's independent auditor looking at the water department's finances

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: There were no roll calls in the House or Senate last week.

SEVEN-MEMBER "INDEPENDENT" REDISTRICTING COMMISSION:

House 23-133, Senate 7-28, voted mostly along party lines and rejected a Republican-sponsored proposal that would require the Legislature to establish a seven-member non-legislative, independent redistricting commission to draw Massachusetts congressional districts every ten years. The commission would then submit the plan to the Legislature for an up or down vote. Only nine Democrats joined the GOP and voted in favor of the GOP proposal that would replace a Democratic-sponsored plan under which the Legislature itself would draw the districts as it has done for many years.

28-MEMBER LEGISLATIVE REDISTRICTING COMMISSION:

House 132-20, (no Senate roll call), approved the Democratic-sponsored bill establishing a redistricting commission comprised of 28 legislators that would include 23 Democrats and five Republicans. Only four Democrats joined the GOP and voted against the commission. The 28-member commission was generally opposed by representatives who had earlier supported the seven-member independent commission. The 28-member commission was generally supported by representatives who had earlier opposed the GOP's proposal for a seven-member independent commission.

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL:

GETTING READY FOR COLLEGE (H.5120) – The House approved and sent to the Senate a proposal creating a five-member advisory committee to study the development and implementation of a six-year career planning program to be coordinated by school guidance counselors for all students in grades 6 to 12. Supporters said this program would ensure that students begin to talk about and plan their future education and careers at a younger age and help ensure they are ready for college or a career when they graduate high school. They note that many students don't discuss their post-high school plans with guidance counselors until they are already juniors in high school.

TAX INCENTIVES IN EXCHANGE FOR JOBS – The Massachusetts Life Sciences Center Board voted to award tax incentive worth $23.9 million to life sciences companies in Massachusetts in exchange for creating 1,000 jobs that will each last five years. The state would be allowed to recover tax incentives if the job requirements are not met. Center spokesman Angus McQuilken estimates payroll taxes from the 1,000 jobs would provide sufficient revenue in a little over five years to cover the cost of the tax incentives.

Supporters say these incentives would also make Massachusetts the world leader in the ongoing search for cures for diseases including cancer, diabetes, AIDS and multiple sclerosis.

WATER QUALITY (H.5112) – The House gave initial approval to a bill giving a committee to monitor water quality of the lower basin of the Charles River another 20 months to issue its report. The Charles River Water Quality Commission, established in 2008 by the Legislature, is charged with finding ways to improve the quality of the water and make it safe for swimming. The original report was due March 1, 2010. The bill extends the deadline to November 1, 2011.

This week, Beacon Hill Roll Call publishes excerpts from an unusual farewell speech given on the House floor by outgoing Rep. Matthew Patrick (D-Falmouth). Most farewell speeches are either funny, touching, boring and/or too long.

Patrick's was dead serious as he described the House as "deeply wounded in the public eye" with a reputation at an all-time low.

Patrick was defeated in his bid for re-election to a sixth term and will leave the House in January.

Here are excerpts from Patrick's tradition-breaking speech:

"I consider my ten years here well spent. I have made lifelong friends and I will miss you all – well almost all of you. That is why I wanted to take this time to talk about how you can make this a better – more democratic - Legislature.

The unwritten understanding here in the House is to never speak badly of the institution. We don't want to damage its standing with the public by being openly critical of it. But we must face facts.

The Massachusetts House is now deeply wounded in the public eye. Its reputation is at an all-time low. The institution has suffered three major broadsides in the ten years that I have been in office. Now is the time to make a change.

We all know how it works here. The atmosphere is very seductive and you undergo total immersion. You are flattered to be called 'Representative' but later realize it is because everyone recognizes you as a new rep, but doesn't remember your name yet. Even so it's great for your ego.

You have never been in another legislature so you have no reference point. You learn quickly that if you play your cards right, vote the right way and keep your criticisms to yourself, you have the chance of becoming a chairperson of a committee. As such you will be able to have more influence over the process.

Sometime later – it may be your second or third term – you find yourself not participating in debates, not even listening because you and everyone else know what the outcome will be. It's preordained.

Y = Yes, N = No, NV = No Vote. "President rarely votes."

2010 YEAR IN REVIEW

No appetite for Meals Tax

FROM 2010, PAGE 7

Cohasset Mariner honor breast cancer awareness month with a pink newspaper and many articles throughout the month of October.

The South Shore Art Center opens a second location at the Hingham Shipyard.

The Historical Society plans its second annual Haunted Happenings event, which includes a party at the Stoneleigh mansion on Jerusalem Road and a ghost investigation at Town Hall and the village museums.

The School Committee chooses the non-profit firm NESDEC to help them carry out the school superintendent search.

The Cohasset Sailing Club floats a new building and seeks approval from the Zoning Board and support from the selectmen.

An independent film, "Sunny Side Up" begins filming at the Red Lion Inn and other locations around the South Shore.

Selectmen chair Karen Quigley starts an online blog about town government happenings and discussions.

Long-time finance director Michael Buckley announces he is leaving his Cohasset post for a job in the town of Hull.

Jennie Curley interviews local girl scouts and develops an exhibit on girl scouting history to earn her Girl Scout Gold Award.

The annual ASP (Appalachia Service Project) pumpkin patch delights the young and old once again.

The more than 30 paraprofessionals in the school district signal their intent to unionize underneath the Cohasset Teachers Union umbrella.

The school student services department creates a yearlong series featuring their professionals talking about relevant topics.

A citizens petition seeks more oversight for the water department. The petition does not pass at Town Meeting in November.

Three candidates interview for the interim town manager position. Steve Lombard, who spent 32 years working in municipalities and eight years in interim town manager positions, is given the job.

John Hartshorne has spent much of his retirement creating fantastically realistic working model ships.

Cohasset Schools meet their targets for the MCAS in 2010.

A new 30,000 square foot building is approved for Cohasset Plaza.

A bon voyage fete is held for departing town manager Bill Griffin.

A feasibility study for the proposed new senior center is completed.

A majority of the Board of Selectmen vote to pull back the Notice of Intent on Cat Dam from the Conservation Commission. After multiple discussions in November and December where two sides of the neighborhood present their case the Selectmen vote on substantive changes and re-submit the NOI to the Conservation Commission.

NOVEMBER

Cohasset voters re-elect state representative Garrett Bradley and state senator Bob Hedlund. Cohasset votes for Republican candidate for governor Charlie Baker, but Governor Deval Patrick is able to retain his seat in the state-wide vote. Democrat William Keating is elected to congress.

The Cohasset Food Pantry was in dire straights in early November as they struggled with increased demand and fewer donations. The town of Cohasset rallied and filled the shelves of the pantry and volunteers hope the generosity will continue into the new year.

The 220-unit Avalon apartment complex breaks ground. Developers aim to have the first apartment occupied by June 2011.

Selectmen vote to raise several licensing fees to bring in more revenue.

The Sewer Commission inks a new contract for a plant operator.

Lisa DiTullio, a two-time author, public speaker and project manager extraordinaire, leaves corporate America to start her own business.

Senator Bob Hedlund calls for an oversight hearing prior to approval of the South Coast rail line.

Cohasset veterans are honored at the fourth annual Veterans Day ceremony at Deer Hill School.

Several focus group sessions are held to get a well-rounded understanding of what the town is looking for in a new superintendent.

The Planning Board investigates the possibility of changing zoning in the harborfront area and the next week they begin public hearings on a proposed 80-meter wind turbine on top of Turkey Hill.

Town Meeting denies the local option meals and hotels tax.

Cohasset native Liam O'Donnell gets producer and writer credits for "Skyline," a sci-fi movie distributed internationally.

A coalition of parents, teachers, administrators, police officers is looking at ways and means to prevent and deal with bullying in the community.

The School Committee gives the go ahead to a self-funded Hanover-Cohasset cooperative girls hockey team.

Interim town manager Steve Lombard places a town-wide spending freeze across all town departments as a result of information coming out of the water department audit.

Cohasset has a local canine celebrity in Tater, the brown Newfoundland.

A Cambridge man and former priest is arrested in Cohasset for harassing Cohasset resident and "Chronicle" host Anthony Everett.

Superintendent Denise Walsh tells the School Committee there is the potential for a $700,000 budget gap.

DECEMBER

For 34 years music teacher Bryan Marks has been involved with school musicals. With his retirement next year, Marks' last production – "The Wiz" – took stage in early December.

A group of neighbors file a civil action against the town and the water commission over the Bear Hill access road and cell antenna controversy. Later in the month, a judge denies the action.

Three Cohasset High students drove over the back practice field after the school's Thanksgiving football win. The schools handled the matter internally.

Dr. June Talvitie-Siple, who resigned over controversial comments made on Facebook, is getting unemployment benefits. The school department has appealed the matter.

Holiday traditions abound in Cohasset from the Jingle Bell Walk to the Village Fair to the Holiday Stroll.

A partnership of town officials does good for seniors in need with the TRIAD program.

Cohasset's own astronaut Steve Bowen flies back to Cohasset to inspire students at all three schools to pursue math and science studies and careers.

The town's auditor tells the Selectmen that due to possible misclassifications of expenses in the water department the town could be facing as much as a $1 million deficit in the current fiscal year.

Hingham residents come out in droves to register opposition to the proposed wind turbine on Turkey Hill. The Planning Board will deliberate the application in early January.

The Cohasset Arts Boosters sell guitar string bracelets to raise money to support arts education.

Meetinghouse Pond, the pond on the common, gets a complete restoration thanks to Community Preservation funding. The project nears completion this month.

The Water Commissioners meet with the independent auditor to discuss concerns.

Cohasset loses one of its longest serving selectmen, Rocky Laugelle.

Two Cohasset High students create an exhibit on Cohasset's connection to World War I.

Retired police officer John Small has been collecting toy for Toys for Tots for almost 25 years.

The newsmakers

Top 10 Cohasset news stories of 2010

Here are the stories we think made the biggest headlines in 2010 – and could make even more in the upcoming year. Do you agree?

Water Department financial crisis

The water department was already facing discontent from the community over water quality and high rates before news spread of its financial crisis. In early March, the water commission said it faced as much as $1 million shortfall in the current year.. Town Meeting increased rates and the deficit was covered, but the results of an audit could keep the issue in the news.

Wind turbines

Wind turbines in many incarnations were a topic of discussion and news in 2010. First, the CCI-Energy two turbine project was denied. Secondly, talk about revising the wind turbine bylaw was discussed. And thirdly, the town's second turbine application, this time from the Trustees of Reservation on Turkey Hill, came forward.

Facebook fiasco

Science and math program supervisor Dr. June Talvitie-Siple resigns from her position after several inappropriate comments were found on her public Facebook page. Media interest was at a high as Cohasset was painted as "arrogant and snobby."

Bear Hill access tank

The Water Commission inks a contract to install a cell antenna on the Bear Hill water tank. The installation may require a new access road and the surrounding neighborhood is not happy with that prospect. Several more discussions over the issues – and many related issues – occur in the latter half of the year. Whether the Selectmen will allow the water department to create the new access point will be determined in the New Year..

Superintendent does not renew contract

The 2010-2011 school year will be the last in Cohasset Schools for Superintendent Denise Walsh. Walsh had headed up the schools for the past six years.

Two top town employees leave their post

Town Manager Bill Griffin and Finance Director Michael Buckley leave their posts for other opportunities within a month of each other.

Treat's Pond

After more than three years of discussion, a majority of the Board of Selectmen opts not to pursue the Army Corps' proposed saltmarsh restoration project at Treat's Pond.

Political newcomers elected to School Committee

A 25 percent turnout sends a clear message that change is wanted on the School Committee. Two fresh faces – Jeanne Astino and Linda Snowdale – take office in April.

Avalon breaks ground

The long-awaited 220-unit apartment complex development off Route 3A breaks ground in early November.

Cohasset Harbor properties on the market

In May, Coldwell Banker announced the real estate opportunity of a lifetime – for the right millionaire. For $55 million, the majority of Cohasset Harbor's waterfront property – the vine-covered brick estate and its sprawling grounds dubbed "The Oaks," Atlantica and the Olde Salt House, the Mill River Marina and the Cohasset Harbor Inn – goes up for sale.

When you think of Cohasset and the 2010 year in sports, two things come to mind, State Championships and general excellence.

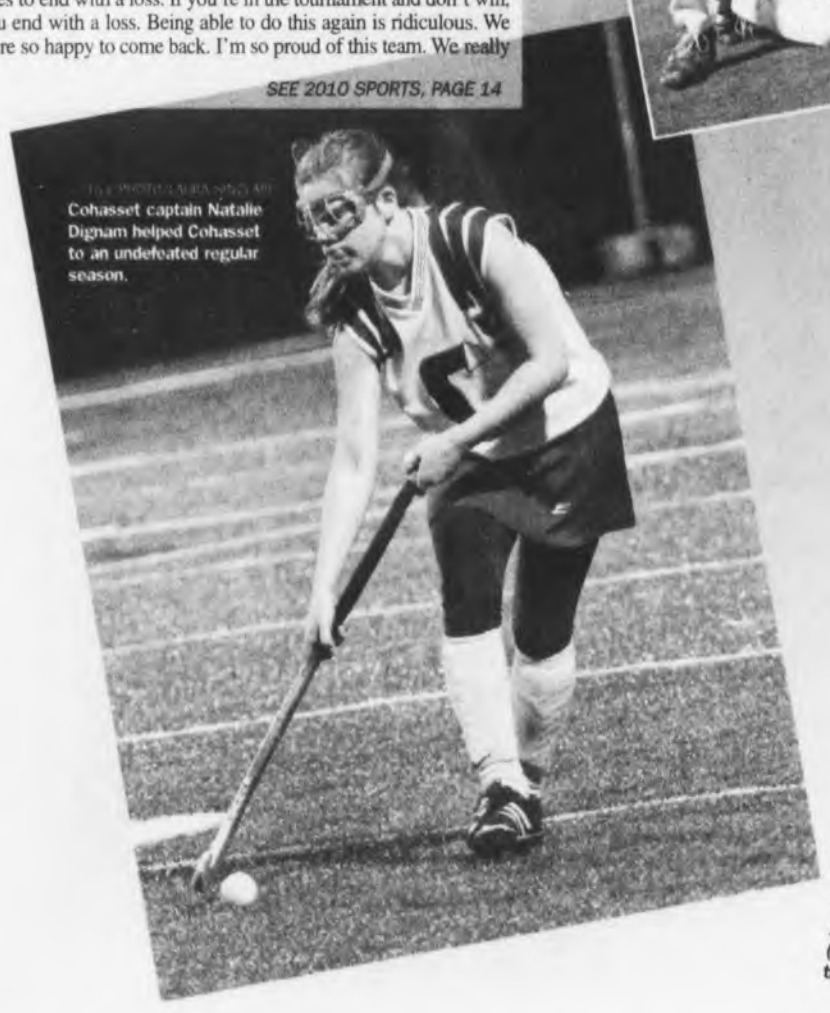
Three Cohasset teams won state titles during 2010, and there were many more outstanding performances.

The State Championships came from the girls basketball team, the boys lacrosse team and the baseball team, which won their title just a few hours after the lacrosse team won their title.

To look back, you have to start with the girls basketball team, which went undefeated and played with a fire culled from a last-second loss in the Division 4 Sectional Final to Millis the previous season.

Cohasset returned the favor and beat Millis 54-42 in the Sectional Semifinal this year.

They followed with a 58-49 win over Nantucket in the Sectional Final and made the most of their trip to the Boston Garden with a 50-40 win over a scrappy Manchester-Essex team in the State Championship game.



Meredith Kelly led Cohasset's attack with 19 points, including a 15-point first half.

Tori Lehr finished the game with 11 points, all in the second half. She also chipped in a game-high 17 rebounds.

While the team didn't talk about it much during the season, Lehr admitted the loss the season before did provide some motivation.

"That gave us the drive," she admitted with a smile. "Nobody likes to end with a loss. If you're in the tournament and don't win, you end with a loss. Being able to do this again is ridiculous. We were so happy to come back. I'm so proud of this team. We really

BASKETBALL

Hoop It Up, A look at Week 2

Twenty one years ago this week, I was part of the Weymouth North boys' basketball team that won the 1989 Red Raider Christmas Tournament at North Quincy. As I get set to lead the Weymouth Wildcats into the second annual Adams Classic at Quincy High School, I'd like to take a minute to remember how exciting it is to play on your high school's basketball team.

Whether you are an all-league player or a seldom used substitute, there is nothing quite like playing with your friends and putting on that jersey with your schools name across the chest. Good luck to everyone playing this week and Happy New Year!!!

Top Acts, Week 2

Junior Audrey Bizak had 14 assists for Notre Dame (2-0) in a win over Ursaline

Senior Captain Jon Perez led Weymouth (3-0) over Framingham with 28 points (seven 3's)

Senior Amanda McKinney of Braintree had 28 points in a win over Newton North

Carli Haggerty had 27 points and 18 rebounds as Cohasset improves to 4-0

Sophomore guard Devin Ratta (10 points) led Weymouth to a 50-43 win over Hingham in Coach Christy Hays first career victory.

Marshfield senior Nicole Beresford had 28 points in a win over Fontbonne

Curtis Owens leads the Duxbury boys who are off to a 4-0 start

Pembroke boys (2-2) hit 15 3-pointers in a win over Scituate

Cohasset boys improve to 3-0 with a victory over Harwich. Five Skippers were in double figures

South Shore Christian girls are off to a 4-1 start

Jeff Delahunty had 15 points and 16 boards in Abington's (3-1) victory over Hull

Rockland is out to a 4-0 start with excellent play from the Gibson brothers.

Where Are They Now

Former all-scholastic Ryan Chambers of Abington is playing at Regis College. Fellow all-scholastic Brian Hard of Weymouth is playing at Eastern Nazerene College. The two will play each other on Jan. 22 in Quincy

NOTE: First edition of the Gatehouse South Shore Coaches Poll will appear in Week 3

Jim Dolan is currently in his 8th season as the boys varsity basketball coach at Weymouth.

Sports Briefs

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse registration open

Cohasset Youth Lacrosse will open its on-line registration for the Spring 2011 season December 1.

To register go to our website www.cohassetlacrosse.com and click on the registration link.

Registrations will be accepted for both boys and girls in grades three through eight. All youth players are welcome, regardless of experience.

Details for players in first and second grade will be coming out shortly.

Registration will continue until January 31.

The program is committed to accepting every player who signs up during open registration. Once that sign-up period is completed the program will establish its ideal roster sizes and take late registrants on a first-come, first-served basis only until the rosters are filled. At that point a waiting list will be established, or players may be turned away.

Fees for grades 3-8 in 2011 are $170 per player, with family pricing of $140 for each additional family member. The price includes the field fee of $10 per player that the town charges to CYL. Scholarships are available for families facing unusual circumstances or financial difficulty. Please check the appropriate box on the on-line form.

If you have any issues with on-line access, or registration related questions you may contact Joe Fitzgerald at fitzpj8@aol.com.

didn't like the feeling of losing, that feeling in your gut. We pushed ourselves to do our best."

Lehr wasn't just a basketball star.

In the spring, she continued to shine, winning the shot put at the MIAA EMass. Div. 4 Track and Field Championships.

Lehr won with a throw of 36-01.00 in the final to take the title.

The girls basketball team was still looking good in the final weeks of 2010, winning their first five games as of press time here.

Carli Haggerty, who had a great season in net as the girls soccer team made a nice playoff run in the fall, has been huge for the girls in the early going.

In the spring, the lacrosse and baseball teams won over the hearts of the town as both won their titles.

June 16 was the big day.

It started at Harvard Stadium, where the boys lacrosse team squared off against Norwell in the Div. 3 State Championship game.

The Skippers notched a 10-8 win.

Thomas Flibotte led Cohasset with three goals, Wise and Ian Quinlan added two apiece, and Dean Driscoll, Kyle Livingstone, and Jack Carrier netted one apiece. In goal, Jack Murphy came up with some key stops, especially in the fourth quarter, to preserve the win.

Cohasset finished the season 20-2.

While the lacrosse team finished their game, the baseball team got started quickly, scoring 11 runs in the first inning of a 15-3 win over Matignon in the Div. 4 title game.

Jeff Cavanaro tossed five innings, fanning 10 while giving up two runs, and Brendan Doonan, possible the toughest athlete in the area, struck out four in two innings to close it out.

Doonan had been seriously injured during the hockey season and at one point had been told he wouldn't be able to play until the end of June. He has metal plates in his arm.

Instead he struck out 15 against Mashpee and pitched a complete game in Cohasset's 6-2 Div. 4 South Sectional championship win over Harwich at Campanelli Stadium in Brockton.

With Cohasset, when there's success in one area, there's usually success in others, considering most players are multi-sport athletes, not to mention some coaches.

Baseball coach Pete Afanasiw also coaches Cohasset's football team, which had another solid season that included wins over Hingham, Patriot League Fisher Div. champ Scituate and a Turkey Day win over Hull.

Flibotte and Cavanaro both had strong years on the gridiron as well.

Flibotte and Murphy also wrestle, they were among seven Skippers who qualified for the Div. 3 State Tournament, which Cohasset hosted.

Cam Washak won the Div. 3 South Sectional title in the heavyweight division, while Flibotte finished second. He had run up 23 straight wins before falling to Hanover's Fran Armstrong.

Murphy and Andrew Littauer both made it to the All-State Tournament and were among the top 12 wrestlers in the state.

Anders Goetz was a member of the baseball team, and he was also a part of the soccer team that advanced all the way to the Div. 3 South Sectional Final this fall.

The boys soccer team won two straight 1-0 games in penalty kicks, with Drew Cobin supplying what turned out to be game winning boots, while Sam Richardson was outstanding in net all season long.

Goetz was a huge part of the Skippers' run to the final, and has made some noise with the hockey team in the early part of the winter season, scoring his 100th career point.

The hockey team has also started well after just missing the tournament last year.

Richardson, meanwhile, has been playing some very good basketball as the Skippers opened the 2010-2011 season with three straight wins and look to be a force in the South Shore League this season.

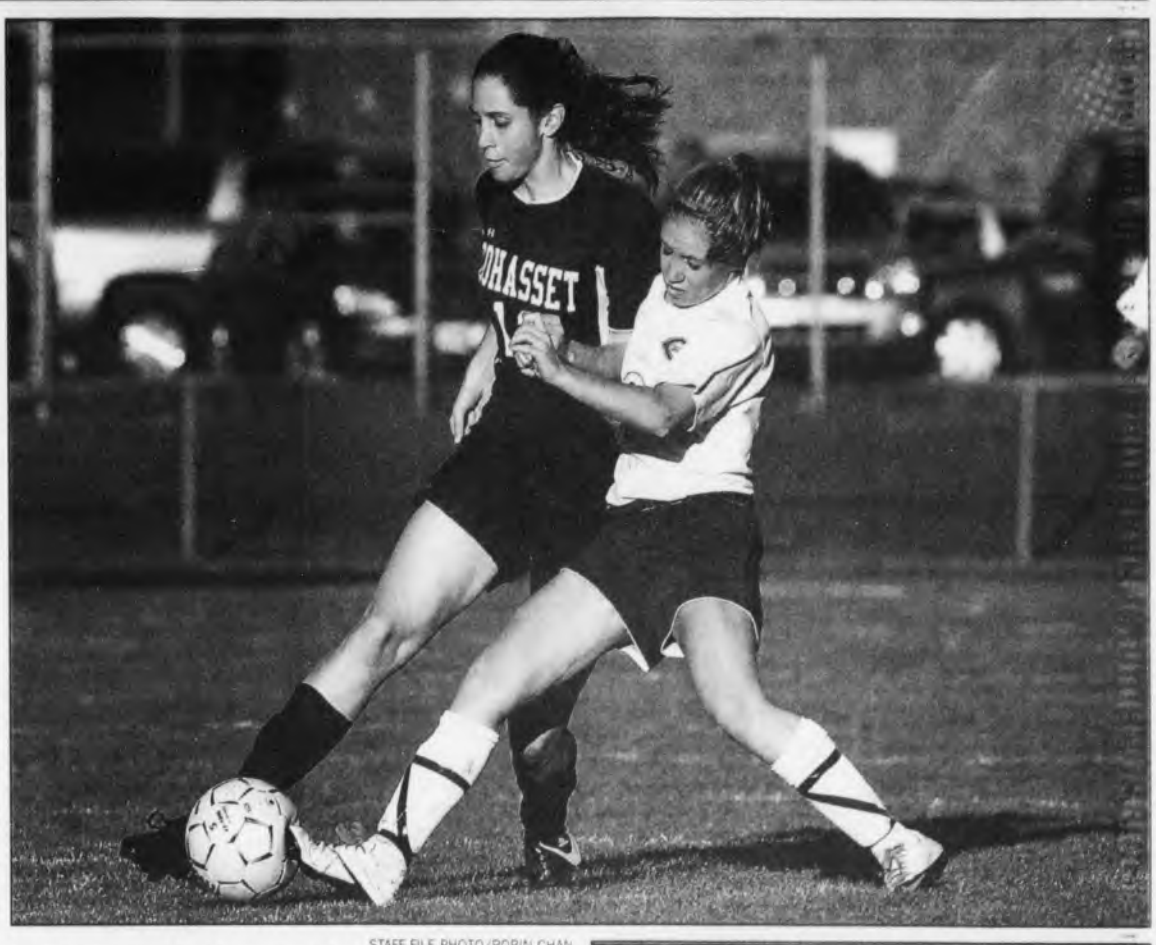
Robert Jones has also been brilliant in the early going for the boys basketball team.

Not to be forgotten in the fall was the field hockey team which had the best regular season ever for a Cohasset field hockey team, finishing the regular season undefeated.

That feat earned coach Laura Giuliano the Boston Globe Coach of the Year honors.

Cohasset won the South Shore League title and four Skippers were named to the South Shore League All-Star team.

Kelsey Erler, Olivia Murphy, Natalie Dignam and Whitney Jaffe all made the cut.



Including the tournament, Erler was the team's leading scorer with 13 goals and six assists. Murphy finished the season with 13 goals and five assists.

Dignam finished up with eight goals and two assists and Jaffe was brilliant in net, stopping 86 percent of the shots she faced.

Jaffe allowed just 11 goals in 19 games and notched 13 shutouts.

Jaffe wasn't just a field hockey player.

She also helped lead the girls lacrosse team to a 12-6 regular season record and a spot in the playoffs.

On the links, Morgan Grasz captured the league tournament individual crown by a single stroke, shooting a 1-over-par 35 at Ridder Farm Golf Club in East Bridgewater.

The Skippers were nosed out for the team championship by East Bridgewater, which had 114 points. Cohasset was runner-up with 115, followed by Mashpee (120), Abington (124), Harwich (126), Norwell (127), Rockland (127) and Carver (136).

The boys and girls tennis teams were also both playoff bound this season.

GIMME SHELTER

Georgia is a lovable lass

This week Hull Seaside Animal Rescue would like to find a home for Georgia, a 1-1/2 year old female who had a litter but will be spayed next week and will then be available for adoption. She is a gorgeous Tiger cat with a great personality. She was even willing to pose for this picture. She'll sit on your lap, purr and cuddle, look at you with her beautiful green eyes and whisper, please take me home. If you'd like to meet this little lady, we have open hours Saturday from 2-3pm and Monday from 6:30 to7:30. You can check out our web site at www.hsar.org for available cats. If the above hours aren't convenient, please call Shirl at 781 925 3380 to arrange an appointment. We will have a low cost spay van on Wednesday, January 5th; if interested, call Mary at 781 925 3121to arrange an appointment. You can email us at hsar@verizon.net. We're located at 50 L St., Hull; our mailing address is Hull Seaside Animal Rescue, PO Box 787, Hull, MA. 02045. We welcome you to come visit us during open hours to check out our volunteer opportunities. Happy New Year to all and yes, we will have open hours on New Years Day.

Wishing you and your staff the best in 2011

Cabaret auditions January 2

Anyone who loves to sing and dance, or both, is invited to the Hingham Community Center, 70 South St., on Sunday, Jan. 2nd for the 2011 Cabaret Meet the Director auditions...

FORTY NINE! Yes, 49 years of Cabaret excitement. We hope that this year's theme of "Cabaret in Paradise" will continue with this great tradition.

Anyone who loves to sing and dance, or both, is invited to the Hingham Community Center, 70 South St., on Sunday, Jan. 2nd for the 2011 Cabaret Meet the Director auditions, starting at 1 p.m.

Singer's solo try-outs will begin around 2 p.m. Please keep your solos short and bring your own CD or sheet music.

Dance rehearsals will begin on Monday, Jan 3rd at 6:30 p.m. and will be held thereafter on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Chorus rehearsals will begin on Tuesday, Jan. 4th at 7:30 p.m. and will be held thereafter on Tuesdays and Thursdays, all at the community center.

The show dates are January 27, 28 and 29.

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
JAN. 10, 2011

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Your batteries should be fully recharged by now, making you more than eager to get back into the swing of things full time. Try to stay focused so that you don't dissipate your energies.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're eager to charge straight ahead into your new responsibilities. But you'll have to paw the ground a little longer, until a surprise complication is worked out.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Rival factions are pressuring you to take a stand favoring one side or the other. But this isn't the time to play judge. Bow out as gracefully as possible, without committing yourself to any position.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Reassure a longtime, trusted confidante that you appreciate his or her words of advice. But at this time, you need to act on what you perceive to be your own sense of self-interest.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You need to let your warm Leonine heart fire up that new relationship if you hope to see it move from the "just friends" level to one that will be as romantic as you could hope for.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) There's still time to repair a misunderstanding with an honest explanation and a heartfelt apology. The sooner you do, the sooner you can get on with other matters.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Expect a temporary setback as you progress toward your goal. Use this time to re-examine your plans and see where you might need to make some significant changes.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Some missteps are revealed as the cause of current problems in a personal or professional partnership. Make the necessary adjustments and then move on.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Jupiter's influence helps you work through a pesky problem, allowing your naturally jovial attitude to re-emerge stronger than ever. Enjoy your success.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Set aside your usual reluctance to change, and consider reassessing your financial situation so that you can build on its strengths and minimize its weaknesses.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Some recently acquired information helps open up a dark part of the past. Resolve to put what you've learned to good use. Travel plans continue to be favored.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Act on your own keen instincts. Your strong Piscean backbone will support you as someone attempts to pressure you into a decision you're not ready to make.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

OBITUARIES

Obituaries appearing in this section are paid for and written by families often through the services of a funeral director.

Rocco F. Laugelle

COHASSET – Rocco F. Laugelle, age 82, of Cohasset, died peacefully surrounded by his loving family on December 19, 2010.

Born and raised in Cohasset, Rocco was a Marine Corps Veteran of World War II. He was a proud member of the American Legion Post, Cohasset. Rocco served as Selectman of Cohasset for 15 years, from 1979 to 1994 and on Water & Sewer Commission of Cohasset for 12 years. He also was on the Norfolk County Advisory Board and was an employee of Brockton Edison for 42 years.

Rocco was the husband of the late Margaret J. (Noble) and the longtime companion of Elizabeth "Betty" White of Quincy. He was the devoted father of Paul J. Cohasset; Sean P. of Weymouth; Meka-Mari Carmody and her husband, Orion of Cohasset; and the late Lisa Ann Laugelle. Cohasset. Rocco was the beloved grandfather of 12 and great-grandfather of 2. Brother of Ann Blackmon of RI, Lucy Spognardi of Quincy, Joseph Laugelle; Peter Laugelle and his wife, Patricia, Pauline Litchfield of Cohasset, the late Louis and Anthony Laugelle, Barbara Thayer, Rose Pape of Cohasset, Mary Theberge of Jamaica Plain and Josephine Nicholls of Roslindale. Rocco was the father-in-law of Karen Laugelle of Cohasset and Rina Laugelle of Weymouth.

Renewal by Andersen WINDOW REPLACEMENT
an Andersen Company

Our winter installations are fast, efficient, and for the first time ever, free.

November was the first time we've ever offered Free Installation on our replacement windows. More people took advantage of this offer than we even expected, and some saved up to thousands of dollars! Folks are usually hesitant to have replacement windows installed in the colder months—around the craziness of the holidays—but we're extending this Free Installation offer for one more month only. Now through Dec. 31st your installation will be FREE when you buy five or more windows. And if you think a winter installation will be difficult for you, know that giving it away for free is much harder for us.

Not only will your installation be absolutely free, with our Winter Installation Method™ the entire process, from removal to clean-up, often takes just one day. And our team of Expert Installers works room-by-room, closes the door, and replaces only one window at a time. One installer works outside while another works inside, installing our energy-efficient windows as quickly as possible to minimize your home's exposure.

FREE INSTALLATION
through Dec. 31st only!
or
NO INTEREST FOR 5 YEARS![1]
Which means smaller payments for 5 whole years!
Plus Limited Time
FREE UPGRADE
to energy-efficient SmartSun™ Glass

LEAD-SAFE EPA CERTIFIED FIRM
NAT-22578-0

Our FREE installation can save you up to thousands — and costs us dearly.

Renewal by Andersen is the exclusive start-to-finish replacement window subsidiary of Andersen Windows; the most recognized name in windows. In this economy, the only way to keep our installers working through the cold months is to have an irresistible deal, but we can only afford to offer this deal for a very limited time.

You don't need yet another home improvement company making empty promises.

A positive home improvement experience is hard to come by, but our Certified Installers are respectful of both your time and your home. Each member of our installation teams averages 10+ years of window installation experience, which is why most jobs are completed in just one day.

Quick Flix

Gulliver (Jack Black) stumbles upon an island of little people in "Gulliver's Travels."

127 HOURS (R) Thrilling true tale about mountain climber Aron Ralston (James Franco), who had to amputate a limb after getting trapped under a boulder in Utah. Director Danny Boyle does a great job of giving a static story some kinetic energy. The pivotal moment is as disturbing as you feared. But the emotional impact of the film is far greater than any gore: The ending will have you crying like a baby. (A-)

BLACK SWAN (R) Director Darren Aronofsky's dark view of the ballet world. Natalie Portman plays a ballerina who may lose her starring role in "Swan Lake" unless she can unleash the seductress within. The alluring Mila Kunis plays a dancer in the wings, ready to steal the role. But the film is about more than backstage politics. Aronofsky provides a graphic depiction of the anguish — physical and emotional — that comes with being an artist. (A-)

BURLESQUE (PG-13) Cher mentors Christina Aguilera in the fine art of burlesque, in this film that's little more than a series of music videos strung together by a thin plot. In the music numbers, Aguilera is a show-stopper, with plenty of va-va-voom. But there's a reason she wins Grammys and not Oscars, and it's painfully obvious every time the music stops: She can't act. She tries her best, playing the Iowa girl who pursues her dreams all the way to L.A. But you have to admire that Aguilera has the guts to try; "Burlesque" could be her "Glitter." (D)

CONVICTION (R) Based on a true story, the film follows a Massachusetts woman (Hilary Swank) who fights to prove the innocence of her brother (Sam Rockwell) after he is wrongly convicted of murder. Martha Coakley takes a hit, but Swank and Rockwell shine. Also, Minnie Driver steals scenes as Swank's friend. (B)

THE CHRONICLES OF NARNIA: VOYAGE OF THE DAWN TREADER (PG) The Pevensie family return to the screen for an adventurous ocean voyage full of dragons, dwarfs and that lion voiced by Liam Neeson. Kids are likely to miss all the biblical allegories, but parents will love the gorgeous scenery. It's disappointing that Susan and Peter make only brief appearances. (B-)

FAIR GAME (PG-13) The real-life story of CIA agent Valerie Plame (a perfectly cast Naomi Watts) who was outed by Dick Cheney and company as revenge against her husband. Watts gives a remarkable, multi-faceted performance, part super-spy, part mom. And Sean Penn shows an uncanny knack for playing her SOB husband. It's an important story — not even the government is more powerful than the truth. "Fair Game" tells Plame's story in a clear and impactful way. (A-)

FASTER (R) After 10 years in prison, Driver (Dwayne Johnson) is focused on avenging the murder of his brother, who died during the bank robbery that led to Driver's imprisonment. It's a loud and relentless revenge film, but the non-stop nature of it, along with some nice plot twists, makes it a very watchable action film. (B)

THE FIGHTER (R) Christian Bale and Mark Wahlberg play Dicky Eklund and Micky Ward, the Lowell brothers who shook up the boxing world in the 1990s. Bale kind of steals the show from Wahlberg. As Micky's unsuccessful half-brother, Bale is gaunt (he lost 30 pounds for the part) and thoroughly convincing. But the most remarkable performance comes from Melissa Leo, playing Micky's overbearing mother. Every time Leo is onscreen, the movie becomes deliriously alive and unpredictable. (B)

GULLIVER'S TRAVELS (PG) Comedian Jack Black stars in this film, based on a 1726 book by Jonathan Swift. In the movie, a mail-room-flunkie and aspiring travel writer, Gulliver (Black) gets tossed by the Bermuda Triangle onto an island with miniature inhabitants, and starts to like the feeling of being looked up to. Expect some silliness. (Not Reviewed)
